bring Action of forible Entry, because he cannot be expelled, though he may be disturbed. Dyv. 141.
And the Words in the Writ to maintain the Action are, that the Defendant is a of Distress, &c., yet it is said that every Distress implies an Expulsion for forible Entry. 2 S. 31. The Possession of the Termor is the Traverie, and grant Retention, on removing the Indictment from before Judges of Peace, &c., it shall Indictment was found, may either at Seisoms or out of it award Retention; the fame Judges may do it in Perin, or make a

If two of the King's subjects fight in a foreign country, and one of them is killed, it cannot be tried here by the Common Law; but it may be tried and determined by the Consul and Merchant, according to the Civil Laws; or the fact may be examined by the Privy Council, and tried by Commissioners appointed by the King in any country of England, by Statute. 3. A foreign plea is a plea in objection to a judgment, where he is refused as incompetent to try the matter in question, because it arises out of his jurisdiction.

Of course, you can ask for more context or assistance if needed. This text is an excerpt from a legal document and contains references to statutes and legal terms from English law history. It discusses the process of trying foreign subjects in England and the jurisdictional issues involved in such cases.
feated by a Lord, for Want of Services performed by the Tenant, and quietly held by such Lord beyond a Year and Day after the Tenant, was seeing his Land taken into the Hands of the Lord, and possesed so long, and not pursuing the Course appointed by Law to recover it, doth in Pretension of Law dis- aude the Tenant in the Land, or being held by the same; and such Lands shall be called Forsyth. 15 Ed. 2 c. 1.

Forsyth, (Forester, Salem) Signifies a great or vast Wood; Laws Seyff镢t or Salien. Our Law-Writers define it thus; Forstone le locus unde abinantes vel incipientur; others lay it is called Forsyths, about for a great wood; and from henceforth. Manured in his forest Laws gives this particular Definition of it: A Forsyth is a certain Territory or Circuit of Wooden Grounds and Parks, known in its Bounds, and privileges, for the peaceable Being and Abiding of wild Beasts, and Fowls of Forsyth, Chafe and Warren, to be under the King's Protection for his Princely Delight, repleteness with Beasts of Venery or Chafe, and great Coveres of Fere for Success of the said Beasts; for Prer- servation whereof there are particular Laws, Privileges and Officers belonging thereunto. Maxow. part 2. 1. 1. Forsyth, are in that part of England, that (except the New Forest in Hampshire, ered by William called The Conqueror, and Hampton Court ered by King Hen. 8.) it is laid there is no Record or History doth make any certain knowledge to the same, neither in Beginning; though they are mentioned by several Writi- ers; and in divers of our Laws and Statutes. 4 Inf. 359. Our ancient Historian tell us, that our New Forest was raised by the Description of two Parth Churches, and many Villages, Chapels and Mansors, for the space of three Miles together; which was at- tended with divers Judgments on the Perytorie of King Will. 1. who ered it; for William Rufus was there then with an Arrow, and before him Richard the Bro- ther of Hen. 1. was there kiled; and Henry Nephew to Edward the Confessor, did hang by the Hair of the Head in the Boths of the Forsyth like unto Jealousy. Blunt. Besides the New Forest, there are sixty-eight other Forsyths in England; thirteen in Cheshire, and more than three hundred Parks. The four principal Forsyths are New Forest, on the Sea, Sheri- wood Forest on the Trent, Dean Forest on the Severn, and Wensley Forest on the Thames. The Way of ma- king a Forsyth is thus: Certain Commissioners are ap- pointed under the Great Seal of England, who view the Ground intended for a Forsyth, and fence it round with a double fence of one yard and a quarter long, and to the Chantry, the King caided it to be proclaimed throughout the Country where the Land lies, that it is a Forsyth, and to be governed by the Laws of the For- syth, and prohibits all Persons from hunting there with- out his Leave; and then he appointed Officers fit for the Preservation of the Ven and Venison, and so it becomes a Forsyth on Record. Maxow. part 2. 8. Though the King may ered a Forsyth on his own Ground and Woods; he may not do it in the Ground of other Per- sons, without their Consent; and Agreements with them for that Purpose, ought to be confirmed by Parli- ament. 4 Inf. 500. Proof of a Forsyth appears by Mat- ter of Record; as by the Enye of the Julistes of the Forsyth, and other Courts, and Officers of Forsyths, &c. and not by the Body. 13 Hen. 8. 22. As Parks are inclosed with Wall, Pala, &c. so Forsyths and Chais are inclosed with Mews and Bounds; such as Rivers, Highways, Hills, &c. which are an Inclosure in Law, and without which there cannot be a Forsyth. 4 Inf. 517. And in the Eye of the Law, the Boorda- ries of a Forsyth go round about as it were a Brick Wall, directed one way, and by his Bounds, and they are known either by Master of Record, or Pre- scription. Ibid. Bounds of Forsyth, may be ascertained by Commission from the Lord Chancellor; and Com-of the Forreft, it is laid may be good: But of this Quoate, when it is an Advowson of a former Eys, the Man hath a Wood in a Forreft, and hath no such Prescription, the Law will allow him to fell it, so as he do not prejudice the Game, but leave sufficient Vert; but this is by Writ of Ed. good Domm.Fac. &c. 4 Inf. Cr. 75. And every Perfon in his own ought to be presented at the next Court of Attachment, spoiled, for Want of repairing Fences by another, ought to request the Party to make good the Hedges; and if he refuse, then he must do it himself, and have Anion on the Cale against the other that should have done it. 1 Jones 277. A Perfon may have Anion rors, at 75 by the Steward of the Forreft, is made cannot be kept offener than every third Year. As before other Judges in Eyre, it must be summoned forty Days at least before the Sitting thereof; and one Writ of Summons is to be directed to the Sheriff of the County, and another Writ called Forrefti Domini Regis et juxta locum tans, &c. Which Writ of Summons consists of two Parts: First, To summon all the Officer of the Forreft, and that they bring with them all Records, &c. Secondly, All Perfon who claim any Rights or Franchises within the Forreft, and to shew how they claim the same: If there be erroneous Judgment at the Justice-Sealt, the Record may be removed by Writ of Error into B. R. 4 Inf. 321. The Court third Year, for Expedition or Lawing of Dogs; by are bound to take care, &c. 35. The Chief Warden of the Forreft is a great Officer, next to the Justice of the Forreft, to bail and discharge Offenders; but he is no Judicial Officer: And the Com-nty of Forreft, by the Forreft, is a Forreft: And the Forreft Law is Chief Warden of the Forreft, as of Winceuf Castle, &c. A Verderor is a judicial Officer of the Forreft, and chosen in full County, by the King's Writ: His Office is to observe and keep the Affairs or Laws of the Forreft, and view, receive and inroll the Attachments and Prelentments of all Trefpassers of the Forreft, and keep the same in due Order, and make Right to the People: The Verderors are the Chief judges of the Suainatme Court; although the Chief Warden, or his Deputy, usually sits there. 4 Inf.

and to view and inquire of Offences, Concealments, Defaults of Forrefts, &c. Before any Justice-Sealt is holden, the Regarders of the Forreft must make their Regard, and go through and view the whole Forreft, ters Patent of the King, or chosen by Writ to the Sheriff. 4 Inf. 295. A Regarder is in legal Understanding a sworn Officer ministerial of the Forreft, and it is watch over the Vert and Venison, and to make At-nachments and true Prelentments of all Manner of Trefpassers in the Forreft, &c. A Warden is taken for a Woodward: This Officer is made by Letters Patent, and his Office may be granted in Fee or for Life. 4 Inf. 295. Every Forrester when he is called at a Court of Justice-Sealt, ought upon his Knees to deliver his Horn to the Chief Justice in Eyre; and every Woodward ought to present his Hatchet to my Hunting. 1 Jones 277. The Office of Forrester, &c. though it be a Fee-simple, cannot be granted or a signified over, without the King's Licence. 4 Inf.

326. If a Forrester's Office is granted to for life to an Anion and to have a sight of the King's Wood and a Wood in the Forreft, &c. which Office is rent and sellable, it is a great Forrester, and the Forrester is become void; for those Offices are incommensurate, as the Forrester is under the Correction of the Judge, and he cannot judge himself. 4 Inf. 313. An Asst. Officer is to attend upon the King's Woods and Lands in a Forreft, receiving and taking in Castle, &c. by Agitation, that is to depredation within the Forreft, or to feed upon the Pannage, &c. And this Officer is constituted by Letters Patent. 4 Inf. 323. Persons inhabiting in the Forreft, may have Common of Heritage for Beasts commonable, and the Forrester is to look after them: But Sheep are not commonable there, because they hire o' clode that they destroy the Vert; and yet it has been held, that Sheep may be commonable in Forrefts by Prescription. 3 Bulk 215. There may be a Preemption for Common in a Forreft at all Times in the Year: tho' it was formerly the Opinion of our Judges, that the Forrester should be excepted. 3 Lc. 217. A Forrester driven out. 5 Pol. Res. on Stat. 505. None may gather Nuts in the Forreft, without Warrant. A Ran-get of a Forreft is one whole Body: If in the Forreft, it is to rehafe the wild Beasts from the Pursuit into the Forest, and prey Offences within the Forreft, and the Forreft, Forreft, his Office is the same as of belonging to it. The Beasts is a Forrester, Officer, that warns all the Courts of the Forreft, and executes Process, makes all Proclamation, &c. 4 Inf. 313. There are also a Deer be hunted in a Forest, and afterwards by Hunting be driven out of the Forest, and the Foxer follows the Chafe, and the Owner of the Ground where drives the Deer there; yet the Foxer may enter into the same, and make the game return. For every one in the Deer is in this Cafe by Pursuit. 2 Lorn. 301. He that hath any Maner of Licence to hunt in a Forest, Chafe, Park, &c. must take heed that he do not abuse his Licence, or exceed his Authority; for if he do, he shall be accounted a Trepasser ab initio, and be punish'd for that Fault, as if he had no Licence at all.

Matthew 25, 28. Every Lord of Parliament sent for by the King, may in coming and returning kill a Deer or two in the King's Forest or Chafe through which he passes; but it must not be done privately, without the View of the Foxer, if he prefer; or if absent by causing one to blow a horn, because otherwise he may be a Trepasser, and seem to feed the Deer.

in a Forest, and the Trepasser dies, it shall be punished after his Death in the Life-time of the Heir, made by the Forest Law for Trepass, as to Venison; though it cannot be pursued but only within the Bounds of the Forest. 4 Inst. 294. And not pursuing Hunt and Cry in the Forest, a Township, &c. may be fined and assigned. In every Trepass and Offence of the Forest in Ven or Venison, the Punishment is, to be imprisoned, fined, and bound to the good Behaviour of the Forest, which must be executed by a judicial Sentence by the Lord Chief Justice. But if any Foxer find any any Person hunting without Warrant, he is to arrest his Body, and carry him to Prison; from whence he shall not be delivered without special Warrant from the King, or his Judges of the Forest, &c.

But by 1 Ed. 3. c. 8. Persons are liable if not taken in the Manner, as with a Bow ready to shoot, carrying let such to Mainprize until the Eye of the Forest; or a Writ may be had of the Chancellor to oblige him to do it; and if he refuse to deliver the Party, a Writ shall go to the Sheriff to attack the Warden, &c. who shall pay treble Damages to the Party grieved, and be committed to Prison. 1 Ed. 3. c. 8. No Officer of Frontier, (Fr. Fronture) Signifies a putting off, or delaying of an Action; and has been compared to hammering, by which the Speech is drawn out to a more than ordinary Length of Time, as by Founding a Suit is prolonged, which might be brought to a Determination in a shorter Space: The Device is commonly used when an Action or Suit is brought against two Points, who being jointly concerned, are not to answer till both Parties appear; and is where the Ap- pearance or Effion of one, will excite the other's De- fault, and they agree between themselves that one shall appear or be effected one Day, and for Want of the other's appearing, have Day over to make his Ap- pearance with the other Party; and at that Day allowed the other Party dast appear, but that he appeared before then not, in Hopes to have another Day by Adjournment of the Party who then made his Appearance. Frankism, (Liber Eleventh) is a Tenure by Spiritual Service, where an Ecclesiastical Corporation, sole or aggregate, holdeth Land to them and their Successors, of some Lord and his Heirs in free and perpetual Alms; and perpetual Sappoys is it to be a Feepfimple; though it may pass without the Word Sappoys. 1 Litt. 135. 1 Inf. 94. A Lay Person cannot hold in free Alms: And when a Grant is in Frankal-mogn, no Mention is to be made of all Manner of Service; for it is free from any Temporal Service, and is of the highest Nature, because it is a Tenure by Spiritual Service, and so Persons can hold in Franck-mogn, but by Preemption, or for Force of some Grant made before the Statutes of Mentemain, 7 Ed. 1. c. 36, and 18 Ed. 1. c. 1. 1 Litt. 54, 99. And if an Ecclesiastical Person holds Land by Feeply and certain Rent, the Lord may at this Time confirm his Edate, to hold to him and his Successors in Frankal-mogn; for the former Service is extinct, and nothing is referred but that he should hold, of which he did before; whereby this Change and Alteration is not within the Stat. 18 Ed. 1. of Quia cunctas Terram. Litt. 540. 1 Inf. 99, 106. Tenure in Frankalmong is incident to the Inheritance Blood of the Donor or Founder; except in a Case of the King, who may grant this Tenure to hold of him and his Successors. Litt. 135.

And the Reason why a Grant in Frankalmong, since the Stat. 18 Ed. 1. is void, except in the Case of the King, Gr. is because none can hold Land by this Tenure in the Times of the Donor; where the Service is joint, that it be held of the Chief Lord, by the same Service by which the Feepor held it; though the King might grant away any Edate, and render the Tenure to himself. 1 Inf. 99, 233. If any Perons that hold Lucus or Tenements in Frankalmong, make any Faiture in doing such Divine Service as they ought, the Lord may make Complaint of it; to the Ordinary or Vifor; which is the King, if he be Founder, or a Subject where he was appointed Vifor upon the Foundation; and the Ordinary, Gr. may put the Negllence, according to the Ecclesiastical Laws. Litt. 136. 1 Inf. 96. Also for Negll in performing Divine Service in certain, the Lord may disclaim: But Frankalmong is said to be held by Service certain; and where the Tenure is tied to certain Services, as to read Prayers every Friday, Gr. this is not Frank-almong, but Tenure by Divine Service; it is Lands given in Alms, but not in free Alms. Briton, c. 66. The Tenure by Frankalmong is an ancient Tenure, chiefly to be met with in Grants to religious Houses, Bi-lished, or to be become the Use of. Unl. 17.

Frank-plage, (Francis plagium, from the French Frank, I. e. Liber, and Plege, Pugés, Signifies) Pledge or Securties for the Behaviour of Freedom; it being the ancient Cultum of this Kingdom, borrowed from the Lombards, that for the Protection of the Cultum, every Free man at the Time of his Fourteenth, (Religious Persons, Clerics, Gr. excepted) should should give Security for his Truth towards the King and his Subjects, or be committed to Prision; whereupon the Number of his Neighbours, usually became bound one for another, to see each Man of their Pledge forth-coming at all Times, or to answer the Transgression of one, and then the whole Body, whenever any one offended, it was forthwith inquired in what Pledge he was, and then those of that Pledge either produced the Offender within One and thirty Days, or satisfied for his Offence. This was called Frank pledge; and this Custome was so kept, that the Sheriffs at every County-Court, did from Time to Time take the Oaths of young Persons as they grew to fourteen Years of Age, and in one of those Oaths, they were contented to give them a Decree or other whereby this Branch of the Sheriffs Authority was called Via in frank pliegl, or Prioir of Frank pledge. At this Day not an ordinary gives other Security for the Keeping of the Peace, than his own Oath; so that none answereth for the Transgression of another, but every Person for himself. 2 Inf. 78. Habeas Corpus; and it was held, that if the Justice of Peace had purfifed the Statute, no Court could dif-charge the Defendant. 2 Bac. 170. On a Certiorari to remove a Conviction before a Justice, Cts. for carrying a Gun, not being qualified; it appeared upon the Re-turn to be taken before a certain Justice of Peace, without being of the Age fixed by the Act, of Trans-granum, aulium, affigium, Cts. and it was ruled that this was a good Exception upon a Certiorari to remove an Indictment taken at the Sessions; but not upon a Conviction of this Nature, because the Court can take Notice that the Statutes give the Justice Authorities in their Cafes. 1 Vart. 33. Sid. 419. A Person was convicted before a Justice of Peace upon the Statute, for keeping a Gun, not having 100l. per An. and the Con-viction being removed into B. R. was quashed, for not paying when the Defendant had not 100l. a Year; for he was a Justice of Peace at the Time when he kept the Gun, thou not at the Conviction, and the Of-fence and Time ought to be certainly alleged. 3 Mod. 280. The Defendant not having 100l. per An. did likewise on a Gun in February, and was brought before a Justice of Peace in March following, and then by him convi-ced; and it was held, that as by the Statute no Time was limited when the Offender Should be carried before a Justice to be examined, it therefore ought to be an Infraction; which not being done, the Conviction was quashed. 4 Mod. 147. A Man was indiceted for shooting Game; but it was omitted showing that he was worth 100l. a Year; and it was ordered by the Court, that the Party shouid he put he was worth so much to discharge him. 2 Kib. 582. If a Person has upon a Ground of another, for which the Person cannot justify Killing of his Dogs, as appears by a Roll. Abr. 587. But it was otherwise adjudged Mich. 33 Cas. 2. in C. 2 Roll. 538. C. R. 52. An Action was brought against a Person for entering another Man's Warren; the Defendant pleaded that there was a Pleasant on his Land, and his Haws were put into the Plaintiff's be otherwise on a joint Contract: And if a Perfon loft 120. on the Gaming at 120. a head; or 120. more, with which he gave his Note, the Note would be good, but all beyond it be void. 1 Salk. 345. A Perfon brought an Action for 40. and Defence pleaded 2d. a head for Money won at Play, and that at the fame Time he also loft 66 l. to another; but on Demurrer the Plaintiff had Judgment; for it was held that losing 106 l. to several Persons at one Time, is not with

Where Security is given for Money won at Gaming to a third Perfon, not being privy to it, or not knowing it was won at Play, it is not within the Statute; as when the Winner being indebted to another brought the Lector to his Creditor, who entered into Bond to him, &c. 2 Mod. 197. If a Perfon lose Money at Play, and the Lector give the Winner a Bill for it drawn upon a third Perfon, who accepts the Bill; though the Acceptance of the Bill is in Nature of a new Contract, yet all is founded on the first Note. It is for the Security of the Payment of the Money loft; and therefore is within the Statute: But if the Bill be assigned for a valuable Consideration to a Stranger, such Assignees being not privy to the first Wrong, as was the Perfon, it shall not be within the Statute. 1 Salk. 344. If any Perfon playing at Cards, Dice, or other Game, or Betting, shall lose the Value of 10 l. at one Time, to one or more Perfons, and shall pay the Money, he may recover the Money loft by Action of Debt, within three Months afterwards; and if the Lector do not pay, any other Perfon may do it, and recover the same, and treble the Value with Costs, one Money to the Proctor, and the other to the Poor: And the Perfon profecuted shall answer upon Oath, on preferring a Bill to discover what Sums be hath won, Perfons by Fraud or ill Practice, or playing at Cards, Dice, or by bearing a Share in the Stakes, &c. or by Betting, winning any Sum above 10 l. shall forfeit five Times the Value of the thing won, and suffer such Infamy and corporal Punishment, as in Cases of wilful Perjury, being convict thereof on Indictment or Information; and the Penalty shall be recovered by Action, by such Perfon as will lit for the fame. Ibid. By a late Act, where it shall be proved before any Justice of Peace, that any Person hath used unlawful Games contrary to the Statute 12 Geo. 1. c. 39. and such Officers as shall attend such Prison, till he enter into a Recognizance that he shall not from thenceforth at any Time to come play at any unlawful or Gaming House, or any Gaming House for better preventing excessive and deceitful Gaming; the Act of Hearts, Pharaoh, Back, and hazard, are declared to be Lotteries by Cards or Dice; and Perfons fitting up their Games are liable to the Penalty of 200 l. The Game of Piefage, and all other Games with one or more Dice, or any Thing in that Nature, having Figures or Numbers thereon, (Bagammon and Games now played with those Tables only excepted) shall be deemed Games or Lotteries by Dice, within the 12 Geo. 2. And such as keep any Office or Table for the said Games, &c. or Play theretofore, are subject to the Penalties in that Act. By an Act 18 Geo. 2. cap. 34. Playing at, or keeping any House or Place for playing at the Games of Roullet, otherwise Rouly-poly, or any other Game with Cards or Dice, which are the same as the Penalties of the Statute 12 Geo. 2. cap. 28. The Persons who have Jurisdiction to determine Informations on the Statutes against Gaming, may summarily Writhe, who, on refusing to appear and give Evidence, shall forfeit 50 l. No Privilege of Parliament shall be allowed on Prosecution for keeping a Gaming House. Perfons losing 10 l. at one Time, or 20 l. in twenty-four Hours, may be indicted and fined Five Times the Value.

Gang, (Gauda, Fr. Gaul), i.e. Geovas, a Cage for Birds is used metaphorically in a Prison. It is a Strong Place or House of keeping the forcers, &c. wherein a Man is restrained of his Liberty to answer an Offence done against the Laws; and every County hath two Gaans, one for Deobars, which may be any House where the Sheriff pleases; the other for the Peace and Matters of the Crown, which is the County Gaan. Med. Tafs. 230. Justices of Peace may not commit Felons, and other Criminals to the Count-iers in Lancas, or other Priisons but the common Gaans, for they can legally imprison no where but in the common Gaud. Ca. Litt. 9, 119. But the House of Correction, and the Judges of the Sheriff of London, are the common Priisons for Offenders for the Breach of the Peace, &c. Sheriffs of Counties are to have the Keeping of the common Gaud; except such as are held by Inheritance. 19. Hen. 7. 10. And for the Relief of Priisoners in Gaans, Justices of Peace in Sifons have Power to tax every Parish in the County, not exceeding 2s. 6d. immitted, in the Absence of Confectable, and distributed by Collectors, &c. 14 Eliz. cap. 5; Offenders committed to Priison, are to bear the Charges of their Conveying to Gaud; or on Rebell, their Goods shall be sold for that Purpoise, by Virtue of a Justice of Peace's Warrant; and if they have no Goods, a Tax is to be made by Confectable, &c. on the Inhabitants of the Parish where the Offender is apprehended. 3. Tac. cap. 10. If a Gaan be out of Repair, insufficient, &c. the Justices of Peace in the Quarter-Siftons may agree with Workmen for Rebuilding or Repairing it; and by Warrant under their Hands and Seals, order the Sum agreed upon to be levied upon the several Hundreds and Divisions in the County, by a proportionate Rate. 11 of 15 & 16. 3. cap. 19.

Gauder, Is the Master of a Priison; one that hath the Custody of the Place where Priisoners are kept. Sheriffs must make such Gauders for which they will answer: But if there is a Default in the Gauder, Action lies against him for an Efect, &c. 2. Tafs. 592. In common Cases, the Sheriff or Gauder are chargeable at the Difpensation of the Party; though the Sher- riff is most usually charged. Wind. Tafs. 76. He who hath the Custody of the Gaan wrongfully, or of Right, shall be charged with the Efect of Priisoners; and if he that hath the actual Possession be not sufficient, Reformatus Superior. Ibid. A Gauder kills an unlawful Priisoner, it is no Felony; but if it be by hard USe, Murder. 1. Tafs. 52. And if a Gauder barbarously mistreat Priisoners, he may be fined and discharged. Rom. 216. If any Priisoner afflicts a Gauder, for keeping a Priisoner in Safe Custody, he may be fined and imprisoned. 1. Hen. 5b. 59. Where a Gauder is broken by Thieves, the Gauder is answerable; not if it be broken by Enemies. 1. Tafs. 53. No Fees shall be taken by Gauders of Priisoners, but such as are allowed by Law, and the Judges, &c. are to settle the same; also the Judges may determine Petitions against Extortions of Gauders, Bad Usages Statutes 2 & 3. cap. 22. In the Deed, the Inheritance of Lands did not descend to the eldest Son as now, but to all alike; from whence came the Custom of Gavelkind. And the Reason why this Custom was retained in Kent, is because the Kentishmen were not conquered by the Normans in the Time of William 1. For Sigward, then Archbishop of Canterbury, who commanded the Forces in the County, ordered every Man to march with Bougets in their Hands, and meeting William they acquainted him with their Resolution of standing or falling in Defence of the Laws of their Country, and he intending himself to be incommoded in a Wood, granted that they and their Posterity should enjoy its Rights, Liberties and Laws; some of which, particularly this of Gavelkind continues to this Day. Thus, all the Lands in England were of the Nature of Gavelkind before the Conquest, and deeded to all the Issue equally; but after the Conquest (as it is called) when a High Service was introduced, the Deed was restrained to the eldest Son, for the Preservation of the Tenure. Lamb. 167. 3 Salk. 129. In the Reign of Hen. 6. there were not above thirty or forty Persons in all Kent that held by any other Tenure than this of Gavel-kind; which was afterwards altered upon the Petition of others, in much of that County, so as to be deeded to the eldest Son, according to the Custom of the Common Law, by the Statute 3 Hen. 8. cap. 3. Though the Custom to devote Gavelkind, and the other Qualities and Customs remain. 1 Stat. 140. By the Statute 34 & 35 Hen. 8. cap. 26. all Gavelkind Lands in Wiltshire were made deeded to the Heir, ac-Gavelkind, for the Land of Kent, is intended to be in Kent, it shall be intended that they are Gavelkind; if the Contrary does not appear. 2 Sid. 153. By Hale Chief Judge, Gavelkind Law is the Law of Kent, and is never pleaded, but presumed: And it is held, that the Superior Courts may take Notice of Gavel-kind generally without pleading; though not of the special Custom of deeding it, etc. which ought to be pleaded specially. But it appears by some of our Books, that the Court cannot judiciously Take Notice of the Custom of Gavelkind, without pleading the same; and that it ought to be set forth in the Declaration, &c. 1 Mod. 98. 2 Sid. 405. Lawm. 236. 754.

Gifts, (Law) in a Conveyance, which passeth either Lands or Goods. And a Gift is of a larger Extent than a Grant, being applied to Things moveable and immoveable; yet as to things immoveable, when it is applied to Things immovable, it is applied to Things only to Land, and Tenements given in Trust; but Gifts and Grants are kept to be alike in Nature and oftentimes confounded. Ward's Inf. 260. A Gift may be by Deed, in Word, or in Laws: All Goods and Chattels personal may be given without Deed, except in some special Cases; and a Free Gift is good without a Consideration. Perk. 57. But a general Gift of all one's Goods, without any Exception, though this be by Deed, it is liable to Susception as fraudulent, to deceive Creditors; for by giving all a Man's Goods, there seems to be a secret Truth and Confidence implied, that the Donee shall deal favourably with the Donor, in Respect to his Circumstances. 3 Rep. 80. And therefore where it appears that a Gift is made in Satisfaction of a Deble, it is good to make it in a publick Manner before Neighbours, that the Goods and Chattels be appraised to the full Value, and the Gift expressly made in Satisfaction of the Debt, and that on the Gift, the Donee take Possession of them, &c. Hob. 230. If a Man intending to give a Jewel to another, lay to him, Here I give you my Ring, with the Ring to it, &c. and with his own Hand deliver to
to the party, this will be a good Gift; notwithstanding the Ring shall bear any other Jewel, being delivered by the Party himself to the Person to whom given. Bac. Max. 87. And if a Person give a Horse or a Cow, and take him to the Horse, though he call the Man by a wrong Name, it will be a good Gift; but it would be otherwife if the Horse were delivered for the Use of another Person, being absent; there a Mistake of the Name would alter the Case. Ibid. A Gift must be certain; and therefore to give or grant another his Horses or Cows, that may be spared, will be void: Though if one give to A. B. his Horse, or his Cow, he may take which he will of them. Bro. Dane 19. If I give all my Money in my Purse to another, without saying how much it is; this is a void Gift, and no Action will lie for the same. Plowd. 273. As to Gifts in Law, when a Man is married to a Woman, all her Goods and Chattels by Gift in Law become the Husband's; but then he is liable for her Debts: So if a Man is made Executor of a Will, the Law gives him all the Goods and Chattels of the Deceased, free of all Liens, Mortgages, and any other incumbrance; Amos 22. As if a Person make a Suit of Clothes for another, and put it upon him to use and wear, this will be a Gift or Grant in Law of the Apparel made. 1 Inst. 355. A Man by Deed did Give and Grant, Bargain and Sell, Alien, Enfeoff and Convey to his Daughter certain Lands: But no Confession of Money was mentioned, nor was it willed; there was likewife no Confession of Natural Affection express'd, (other than what was implied in naming the Granter his Daughter) and there was no Livery imparted, or any founded to have been made; nor was the Daughter in Possession at the Time of the Deed made: And in B. R. it was adjudged by the Court that the Deed was good, and carried the Estate to the Daughter by way of Covenant to stand satisfied, C. &c. 1 Mod. Rep. 175. The Words Give and Grant, in Deeds of Gift, of Things which lie in Grant, will amount unto a Grant, a Prefume, a Gift, Release, Confirmation or Surrender, at the Election of the Party, and may be pleaded as a Gift, or Grant, Release, C. at his Election. 1 Inst. 301. And Words shall be more cubiculare in Gifts and Grants, that whereas they cannot take Effect according to the Letter, the Law will make such Conclusion as the Gift by Policy may take Effect: Brangae Interpretationes Clarissimae propter simplicitatem Latiusim, ut esse, &c. Co. Litt. 183. If a Person gives or grants Land, and does not say in what Part or County it is; yet if there be any other Thing to describe it, as lately belonging to such a Person, &c. or other Circumstantial Matter, it may be averred where the Land lieth, and fo the Gift be good. Bro. Grant. 53. 9 Rep. 47. All corporeal and immovable Things that lie in Livery, such as Mansions, Mefjuage, Cottages, Lands, Woods, and the like, may be given and granted in Fee, for Lives, or Years at first; and be assignable over, from Man to Man in infinitum. 1 Roll. Gods Behaviour (Deus Gufax Signifies an exact Carrige or Behaviour of a Subject towards the King and the People; whereas some Persons upon their Mischief are bound: And he that is bound to do this, is said to be more strictly bound than to the Peace: because where the Peace is not broken, the Scurity de Deo Gufax may be forfeited by the Number of a Miser's Company, or by his Weapons. Lamb. Eiren. lib. 2. cap. 2. 34 Ed. 3. cap. 1.
Good Behaviour, Scurity for the God Behaviour is Scurity for the Peace, and differs very little from Good Stewarding. A Justice of Peace may demand it as Office, according to his Discretion, when he sees Cause: or as the Request of any other under the King's Protection. His Warrant also shall be the Order when he is commanded to do it by Wris of Supplication out of the Chancery or B. R. It may be granted to any one who warneth, under the Degree of Nobility, against whom Complainant is to be made in the Court of Chancery, or in B. R. and they may be bound there to keep the Peace. Dall. 267, 269. The Warrant of the Justice to keep the Peace, is to be granted against Infants, and Feme Coverters, who ought to find Security by their Friends, and not be bound themselves; it may be had against the Husband, at the Request of the Wife, and against the Wife, at the Request of the Husband; against a Lunatick, that hath sometimes locum lataevis (but not a Non Compos), or against or for one assaigned of Felony, &c. against any Peron affronting a Judge, Justice of Peace, &c. and in a Word against all who are ordered to break the Peace, or that do break it by Affray, Affliction, Battery. Wound ing, Fighting, Quarrelling, Threating to beat another, or to burn his House, Renter, &c. and in all these Places there is a Necessity, Dall. 262, 264, 4. Ed. 15. Also one may be bound to his God Behaviour for a scandalous Way of Living, for keeping Bawdy Houses, or being with them, Gu ing Houses, &c. and so may common Drunkards, Whoremongers, sod, common Whores, Night walkers, and those that live idle, Cheats, Libellers, &c. Dall. 292, 293. A Woman is a common Stark may be bound to the Good Behaviour: But the Stater. 2 Ed. 5. cap. 1. relates only to Mischief against the Publick Peace, so that it ought not to be demanded for private Detraction of another, but for Words only, which tend to the Breach of the Peace, or terrifying others, or unto Sedition, Stater. 4 Ed. 281. 1 Litt. Ab. 1. 650, 651. A Justice of Peace may not bind any Person to the Good Behaviour, upon a general Accusation made against the Party. Stat. 3 Car. B. R. He that demands Security for the Peace, must make Oath before the Justice of Peace given, or he that stands in Fear of his Life or some bodily Hurt: or that he fears the Party will burn his House, &c. and that he doth not demand the Peace of him for any Malice or Revenge, but for his own Safety: whereasupon the Justice grants his Warrant to bring the Party before him, and then Security is to be given by Recognition for the Good Behaviour: or on Default thereof, the Party shall be committed to Gaols. 1 Ind. 293. 4 Ind. 180. And when Security for the Peace is given to the King by Recognition in a Penal Sum, if the Peace is afterwards broken by any Act of the Party, or by his Procuring another to break it, &c. it is a Forfeiture of the Recognition, which being brought to the next Sessions of the Peace by the Justice, the Judges in Sessions shall certify the Recognition with the Case of Forfeiture, into B. R. or the Ex cequer, &c. from whence Proberty shall go out against the Offender. Dall. 275. 276. Judges of Peace, under Colour of their Authority, ofc. to require the Good Behaviour of every one at their Pleasure; and if they refused, then to commit them to Prison: But if they have not good Cause to require Security for Good Behaviour, and the Party relating to give it is committed to Prison, false Imprisonment well lies; for the Statute which gives the Judges that Authority, is principally against Vagabonds. 1 Litt. 651. The Scurity for the Peace or Good Behaviour may be released by the Judge which took it, and the Party upon whole Complaint it was granted. Dall. 250. But it is said such a Recognition may not be dis charged by Release of the Party himself; because the Cognisor is bound to the King, and to keep the Peace in general though by the Death of the King, or of the Principal Cognisor, (not of the Scurity) it is discharged of Course. Roll. Rep. 260.

A. and Wears, &c. levied and set up, whereby the King's Ships and Boats are disabled and cannot pass in any River, shall be utterly pulled down, without being renewed. Sir Edward Coke derives this Word Gorge, a deep Pit of Water, and calls it a Gaze or Gouf; but this seems to be a Miltake, for in Demolay it is called Gower and Gouz, the French Word for a Wear. Co. a Fraternity or Company, because every one was Gallivare, i.e. to pay something towards the Charge and Support of the Company. The Original of these Guilds and Fraternities, is said to be from the old Saxen Law; by which Neighbours entered into An Association, and became bound for each other, to bring forth him who committed any Crime, or make Satisfaction to the Party injured, for which People they raised a Saim of Money among themselves, and put it into a common Stock, whereat a pecuniary Compensation was made accordingly; the Quality of the Office committed. From hence came our Fraternities and Guilds; and they were in

Suet of Augustus. (Gala Augusti, alias Gade de Augusti) is a Day of St Peter and Vinuela, which is celebrated on the 19th of August, and called the Gade of August, from the Lat. Gade, a Throat, from this Reason, that one Reverses a Tribune, having a Daughter that had a Disease in her Throat, went to Pope Alexander, the Sixth from St. Peter, and deposed of him to see the Chains that St. Peter was chained with under Nero, which Revers was being granted. For the said Daughter killing the Chains, was cured of her Disease: Whereupon the Pope inlustrated this Feast in Honour of St. Peter; and, as before, this Day was termed only the Calends of August, it was on this Occasion called indifferently either St. Peter's Day or Vinuela, from what wrought the Miracle, or the Gade of August, from that Part of the Venetian wherein it was wrought. Durandus's Rationale Divinorum, lib. 2, cap. 10. It is mentioned F. N. B. 62. Ploved. 316. Stat. Majm. 2. cap. 50. 27 Ed 3.

By a subsequent Act, it is unlawful for any Person to keep in London, &c. above 200 l. Weight of Gunpowder at one Time, beyond the Space of twenty-four Hours, which incurs a Forfeiture of the Powder, or the Value: And two Justices may cause Searches to be made, and the same to be seized and stored, &c. Persons obtruding the Search, incur the Penalty of 4 l. Also no Man shall use Iron or Steel Hammers, where Gunpowder is, on Pain of 20 l. 11 Geo. 1. cap. 25. Persons who are not Dealers therein are not to keep above 10 l. of Gunpowder, in London and Westminster, or if they deal in it, not more than 200 Weight longer than twenty-four Hours, though under different Roofs or on the Thanes, except in Ships passing or detained, on Pain of forfeiting all such Gunpowder, &c. No Penalty shall be incurred for keeping above 5000 Weight of Gunpowder, in any Warehouse already built for that Purpose, unless the same shall be deemed dangerous.

Habeas Corpus, Is a Writ for the Bringing up of any Person from any Gaol, Court, or Place under the Command of any Person or Persons, to appear upon the Venire facias, for the Trial of any Cause brought to lie in any Court of Common Law or in any Court of Equity, and to bring him before the Judges of such a Court, to pass on the Trial of such Cause, in such a Cause, etc. Pradf. Sec. 308, 309.

Habeas Corpus, The great Writ of English Liberty, lies where one is indicted for any Crime or Offence, taken or served before the Justice of the Peace, or before the Judge of the Court, or in a Court of any Justice, and being imprisoned for the same, hath offered sufficient Bail, but it is refused where bailable; he may have this Writ out of the King's Bench to remove himself thither, and answer the Cause there. F. N. B. 250. And the Court in this Case is first to procure a Certiorari out of the Common Bench, directed to the Judges to remove the Indictment into B. R. And upon that to procure this Writ to the Sheriff, for the Cause of his Body to be brought at a Day. Leg. Jud. 81. This Writ is also used to bring the Body of a Person into Court, who is committed to any Gaol, either in Criminal or Civil Cases; and a Habeas Corpus will remove a Person and Cause from one Court and Prison to another. The Writ of Habeas Corpus was originally ordained by the Common Law of the Land, as a Remedy for such as were unjustly imprisoned, to procure their Liberty; and it is a milder, more, Notion that this Writ is of a Substantial Date, and introduced with the Reign of King Charles 2. But before the Statute 31 Car. 2. stat. it was too difficult to be obtained, because the Judges had Authority to try and determine it, pretended to have Power either to grant or deny it; and the Sheriffs and Gaolers to whom the Writ was directed frequently put poor Prisoners to the Charges of a second, and third Habeas Corpus, before they would yield Obedience to the first; which being grievous to the People, the Stat. 31 Car. 2. was enacted to prevent Abuses of this Nature, and further our Laws for the Benefit of the Liberty of the Subject. Laws of Liberty, pag. 44, 45. By the Statute 31 Car. 2. c. 2. a Person in Prison may have an Habeas Corpus from a Court, or to many of them, if the Judge shall think proper to grant the Writ of Habeas Corpus upon the Demand of a Warrant of Commitment, (unless he be committed for Treason or Felony, especially expressed in the Warrant, or other Offences or Matters not bailable) which Habeas Corpus shall be returnable immediately; and upon Certificate of the Cause of Commitment, the Prisoner shall be discharged on Bail to appear in the Court of B. R. in the next Term, or at the next Assizes, etc., where the Officer is cognizable: And Persons committed for Treason or Felony, (especially expressed in the Warrant) on Prayer in open Court, the Judges in their Discretion, or of their own Motion, etc., are to be brought to Trial; and if not indicted the next Term, or Sessions after Commitment, upon Motion the last Day of the Term, etc., they shall be let out upon Bail; except it appears upon Oath, that the King's Witnesses are not ready; and if on Prayer they are not indicted or tried the second Term after Commitment, they shall be discharged. No Person shall be delivered upon an Habeas Corpus, shall be committed again for the same Cause, other than by the legal Order and Process of such Court where they shall be bound to appear, or by other Jurisdiction of the Court; on Pain of 500l. And if any Person be in Prison, or any Officer's Custody, for any Criminal Cause, he shall not be removed by him into the Custody of any other Officer but by Habeas Corpus, upon 2.

Pain of incurring the Penalty of 100l. for the first Offence, and 200l. for the second Offence, and being Banished to Ireland, Scotland, or any Place beyond the Seas in the King's Dominions in which it shall be falsely Imprisonment, on which the Prisoner may recover treble Damages, etc. 26 Geo. 3. and the Party committing or detaining him shall also incur the Penalty of a Premunire. Judges denying a Habeas Corpus shall forfeit 500l. And the Officer refusing to obey it, or to deliver a true Copy of the Commitment Warrant, is liable to a Fine of 100l. for the first Offence, etc. Stat. 161. This is the Substance of the Habeas Corpus Act 26 Geo. 3. which has been substantiated several Times in late Reigns, on rebellions, etc. No Writ of Habeas Corpus, or other Writ to remove a Cause out of an Inferior Court, shall be allowed, except delivered to the Judge of the Court, before the Cause shall be heard, and then only after the Court has heard the Cause, and try the Cause have appeared, and before any of them are sworn. 43 Eliz. cap. 5. And Writs to remove Suits commenced in an Inferior Court of Record that shall not be obeyed, unless delivered to the Steward of the Court before Iffie or Demurrer joined, etc. And a Suit shall never be removed again, after a Proceedings is allowed. 21 Jan. 1700. And a Suit may not be moved where the Thing in Demand doth not exceed 5l. or where the Freehold, Inheritance, Title of Land, etc., are concerned. And all Suits are to proceed in Suits in Inferior Courts laid not to exceed the Sum of 5l. (although there may be Actions against the Defendant, whereas the Plaintiff's Demands may exceed that Sum, by Stat. 21 Geo. 1. c. 29. If the Steward of an Inferior Court proceeds after an Habeas Corpus delivered and allowed, the Proceedings are void; and the Court of B. R. will award a Superfectus; and grant an Attachment against the Warrant for the Contempt. Cor. Cor. 79, 79. A Habeas Corpus fulfills the Power of the Court below, so that if they proceed, it is void, and cannot be made. And on a Habeas Corpus, if the Record be filed, no Proceedings can go to the Court below; but where a Record below is not filed, or not returned, it may be granted. 1 Saad. 352. A Habeas Corpus can remove the Body of the Party for whom granted, and all the Causes depending against him; and if upon the Return thereof the Officer does not return all the Causes, etc., it is an Escape in him. 2 Lill. Abr. 2. A Judge will not grant a Habeas Corpus in the Vacation, for a Prisoner to follow his Suit; but the Court may grant a special Habeas Corpus to be his Trial in the Vacation. Ibid. 3. And the Court may grant a Habeas Corpus to bring a Prisoner, not in Prison on Execution, out of Prison, to be a Witness at a Trial, though it is at the Peril of the Party foregoing the Writ, that the Prisoner do not escape. Style 119. Trin. 1640. But no Person ought to take out a Habeas Corpus for any one in Prison, without his Consent; except he be to turn him over to B. R. or charge him with an Action in Court. 2 Lill. A Man brought into B. R. by Habeas Corpus, shall not be removed thence till he has answered a Writ of Habeas Corpus till then, and after he may be removed. 1 Saad. 350. A Person is in Custody upon a Criminal, and also on a Civil Matter, if he would move himself by Habeas Corpus, there ought to be to be one Habeas Corpus of the Crown Side or Plea Side, and both Causes are to be returned. Med. Cas. 135. If there be Judgment against a Defendant in the Court of B. R. and Suit in c. B. on which he is in Execution in the Fleet, he may have an Habeas Corpus to remove himself into B. R. where he shall be in Custody of the Marshal for 30 days. Both Debt. Dyer 135. W. in O. The Chief Justice of the Court of King's Bench commits a Prisoner to the Marshal of the Court by his Warrant, he ought not to be brought to the Bar by Rules, but by Habeas Corpus. 1 Saad. 350. In extrajudicial Commitments, the Warrant of Commitment ought to be returned in such words on a Habens Corpus: but when a Man is committed by a Court of Record, it is in the Nature of an Execution for a Contempt, and in such Case the Warrant is never returned. 5 Mod. 156. The Cause of the Impolicy must be particularly for the further in the Height of the Habens Corpus, or it will not be good: for by this the Court may judge of it, and with a Paratium habet, that they may either discharge, ball, or remand the Prisoner. 2 Nolf Abr. 915. 2 Cr. 543. If a Commitment is without Cause, or no Cause is shown, a Prisoner may be delivered by Habens Corpus. 1 Salt. 348. But on a Habens Corpus granted by the Court of B. R. a Difference was made as to a Return; where a Prisoner is committed by one of the Privy Council, there the Cause of his Commitment is to be returned particularly; but when he is committed by the whole Council, no Cause need be alleged. 1 Lew. 70, 71. And it has been adjudged, that on a Commitment by the House of Commons, of Persons for Contempt and Breach of Privilege, no Cause need be alleged: But Halket, in the Case of a contrary Opinion. 2 Salt. 501, 404. A Writ of Error may be allowed by the King in such a Case, &c., and it is not to be denied on debito juri. The same: though it has been a Doubt, whether any Writ of Error lay upon a Judgment given on a Habens Corpus. Ibid. A Man may not be delivered from the Commitment of a Court of Oyer and Terminer by Habens Corpus, without Writ of Error: And where there appears to be good Cause, and a Defect only in the Form of the Commitment, he ought not to be discharged. 1 Salt. 348. If a Person be committed by the Admiralty in Execution, he is not removable by Habens Corpus into B. R. to answer an Action brought against him there: but it might be otherwise if an Action had been before depending. Ibid. 351. Where there is a precedent Action in B. R. to the King's Suit, on which the Jury is out on Bail, Habens Corpus may be brought by the Bail, &c., and the Prisoner turned over; though this was greatly opposed in Favour of the King's Execution. Ibid. 353. A Habens Corpus is a prerogative Writ, which concerns the Liberty of the Subject, and must be obeyed in Contempt of Justice, &c. If it is not, an Alias Habens Corpus will issue with a great Penalty. And on the Ineffectiveness of the Return of an Habens Corpus, an Alias Habens Corpus shall be granted. 2 Cr. 543. 12 W. 3, 5. B. R. Where an Action is founded on the Custody of London, for a Thing actionable there, and not elsewhere; if it be removed by Habens Corpus, a Procedendo Bail shall be granted: But the Declaration itself ought to be returned upon the Habens Corpus, and then the Court will see what was the Case. For the Special� Master and all the Proceedings are to be in the Return in this Case; as well as in an Action on a By-Law, to take Notice thereof. Carth. 75. 76. Before a Habens Corpus is returned and filed, it may be amended; but not afterwards. 2 Lill. Abr. 2. A Habens Corpus is grantable, without Motion, to remove a Person upon an Arrest; but not where committed for a Crime. 1 Lew. 1. In the Case of those Writs in B. R. to remove a Cause, &c., they are first to be carried to the other Court to be allowed; and some few Days after the Delivery, the Cause shall be called for; and Special Ball put in at a Judge's Chamber; which being done, within four Days in Term, and six Days in the Vacation, the Cause is removed to the Superior Court. Practil. Selic. 562. And if the Defendant be guilty, his Bail shall not be delivered from Prison till the Bail on the Habens Corpus be accepted, or justified in Court. Ibid. If a Defendant arrested cannot find Bail, and would be removed to the King's Bench, the Practice is the same; the Habens Corpus directed to the Sheriff of London and Middlesex is to be delivered, and he, after Search in his Office for what Writs he hath against the Defendant, will make Return of them, and then the Bailiff or Keeper of the other Prison, who hath the Defendant in Custody, is to carry him to a Judge's Chamber, where he will be turned over, as before. Habendum, in every Case of Convoyance there are two principal Parts, the Premises, and the Habendum; the Office of the Firth is to express the Name of the Grantee and Granter, and the Thing granted; and the Habendum is to limit the Estate, by which the general Implication in the Premises may be qualified: As in a Lease or Grant to two Persons, if the Habendum be to one for Life, and the Remainder to the other for Life, this alters the general Im- plication of the Joynenancy, which would pass by the Premises, if the Habendum were not. 4 Rep. 55.

And where Things which are in Grant are conveyed to take Effect barely on Delivery of the Deed of Grant without other Ceremony; in such Case, if the Habendum be for a less Estate than in the Premises, or be repugnant to the Habendum, it is void; But when a Ceremony is requisite to the Perfection of an Estate granted, and not a bare Delivery only of the Deed; and to the Estate limited by the Habendum nothing goes, and peril is placed, though the Habendum is of a less Estate than the Premises, the Habendum shall stand good, and qualify the Ef- fect granted in the Premises. 2 Rep. 23. 2 Nef. 920. An Habendum may not only qualify what is granted in the Premises; but it may also enlarge what is granted, or explain the Premises: Though the Habendum shall stand good, and peril is placed, though he that is a Stranger to the Premises. 1 Jones 4. 3 Leson 60. If a Bargain and Sale be made, without ex- pecting to whom; although it were Habendum to A. Herez, (Heryz) is an Optinal Council, to found Principles of Religion; among Protestants it is taken for a false Opinion repugnant to any effeptual Point of Doctrine of the Christian Faith revealed in Scripture, and obdilinately maintained and perfidiz in, by such as profess the Name of Christ. Some Authors say it's properly the Obliquity that makes the Crime of Heryz, and not the Error; for when a Man is humble, and ingenuous, and desires to receive further Light and Information, giving everything urged against him as its due Weight: he is not guilty of Herez. There is no express Law or Statute that determines what shall be called Herez, it being impossible to set down all the particular Errors which may be said to be Herez, concerning which there have been so many Disputes: Yet as the Stat. 3 Eliz. cap. 1, directed the High Commission Court, (since aboliz) to refrain the same to what had been ad-judged to be Herez or Disobedience in the Scripture; or by the first four General Councils, or any other general Council wherein it was declared Herez by express Words of Scripture; or as should be determined to be such by the Prerogative of the Crown, affecting the same. These Rules may be a good Direction to the Judges of the Ecclesiastical Courts in Relation to Herez, 3 Inf. 40. H. P. C. 3, 4. Opinions condemned by Scripture, or by the four first General Councils, or of Nice, Ephesus, Constances and Chalcedon, shall be accounted Herez. 1st Cent. 210. See 55. 57.

The Archbishop, or Bishop of the Dioceses, have Power to convict any for Herez if this is by the Common Law. And by the 23 Hen. 8, &c. the Archbishop of either Province may cite any Person before him for Herez, if the immediate Ordinary or Bishop, after consulting the same. Heritt. (Heritium) Is in the Sax. Heretum, Bellica apparatus, derived from heres, i. e. Exercitio, an Army, and erit, to bear, erit, to bear in the Exercitum eritum; and signifies originally a Tribuate given to the Lord of a Manor for his better Protection of the same. By the Laws of Canons, at the Death of the great Men of this Realm, so many Horses and Arms, were to be paid as they were in their respective Life times obliged to keep for the King; Sir Richard de Herd, Sir Thomas Heret, Sir Heret, (from Herit Lord) the Lord's Beal: And it is now taken with us for the bell Beal, whether it be Herit, Ox, or Cow, that the Tenant dies po-fered of, due and payable to the Lord of the Manor; and in some Manors, the bell Beal, Goods, Piece of Plate, Lr. Kitch. 135. Is Herit-Servito, or Her-it-Caunum. Herit-Servito is payable on the Death of Tenant in Fee-Simple; and Herit-Caunum upon the Death of Tenant for Life: When a Tenant holds by Service to pay a Herit at the Time of his Dis-cess, as is expressed, and especially referred in the Deed of Feoffment, this is Herit-Servito; and where Herit has been cullommary paid Time out of Mind, after the Death of Tenant for Life, this is Herit-Caunum. Cm. Liv. 185. Herits by Custum are commonly paid for Copisold Eates; and if an Herit is reserved upon a Leaile, it is Heriit-Servito, and incident to the Reverience. Lr.
1106, 1157. For a Herit goes with the Reverience, as well as Kent; and the Grantee of the Reverience shall have it. 2 Saund. 165. Although a Herit referred upon a Leaile is called an Herit-Servito; yet it is not like the Cale where a Man holds Land by the Service of paying an Herit, &c. because where an Herit is reserved upon Leaile, the proper Remedy is either a Diffre, or Adition of Covenant grounded on the Contract for the Leaile cannot bea, as the Lord of a Manor may do, the Beal of his Tenant who holds of him by Herit-Servito. Kelso. 85. 84.
There may be a Copisold in Leaile for Lives, &c. to render the bell Beal, or so much in Money for an Herit, at the Election of the Leaile; in which Case an Action will go. But in the time of the Accept, before Action may be brought for it, or a Didiffret taken, Lr. 2 Litt. Abtr. 19. For Herit-Servito, the Lord may distrain any Beal belonging to the Leaile, but it has been held, that the Lord may distrain any Man's Beals which are upon the Land, and retain them till an Herit be satisfied. 1 Inf. 185. Litt. Rep. 53. And if the Tenant deviseth away all his Goods, &c. yet the Lord shall have his Herit on the Death of the Tenant.
Stat. 13 Eliz. c. 9. For Herit-Caunum, the Lord is to be, not distrain; and he may seize the bell Beal, &c. though out of the Manor, or in the King's Highways, because he claims it as his proper Goods, by the Death of the Tenant, which he may seize in any Place where he finds it. Kitch. 267, 2 Inf. 135. 2 Nisf. Abtr. 951. The Lord may properly seize for Herit-Caunum, and take a Diffret for 2. 7.
Heret-Caunum: And for Herit-Caunum, he may seize any where; but for Herit-Servito, on the Land only: Though it has been adjudged, that a Herit Caunum or Service, may be seized any where; but one cannot distrain for them out of the Manor. Plowd. 96. Kelso. 84.
Sal. 596. Where a Woman marries and dies, the Lord shall have no Herit Caunum, because a Feme Covert can have no Goods to pay as a Herit. 2 Lw.
259. And when a Herit is to be paid by a certain Life of his own Goods, an Allonge is not liable to pay the Herit; his Goods not being the Goods of such Life. Cro. Car. 315. 2 Nisf. 952. If the Lord purchases Part of the Tenancy, Herit-Servito is extinguished; but it is not so of Herit-Caunum. 8 Rep.
107. There is this Difference between Herit and Relief; Herit has been generally a Personal, and Releaf always a personal Service.

Highway, (Pia Regia) Is a Passage for the King's People, for the Repair of the King's Common Highways; but the Freehold of the Soil is in the Lord of the Manor, or the Owner of the Land on each Side; and if there are Trees and other Profits there, they belong to him. Dalt. 76. Our Books mention three Kinds of Ways, 1st, A Foot-way, which is called irs, quod est vandi vel ambulandi hemini. 2d, A Foot way and Horse-way, which is termed altas ab agenda; and this is called a pack and primeway, because it is both a Foot-way, which was the first or primeway, and a pack or drift way also. 3d, A Horse-way and Sight-way, which contains the other two, and likewise a Cart-way, &c. And this is either the King's Highway for all Men, or Commons prata, belonging to a City or Town, &c. and is called by our ancient Writers Chinnia, being a French Word for a Way. Co. Litt. 56. Any one of the aforementioned Ways, may properly be called the Highway; if common to all the King's People; and so may a private Way that leads from Town to Town, and is a Through way: If a Way leads to a Market-Town, is a Way for Travelers, and has a Communication with a great Road, it is a Highway; but if it leads only to a Church, a Village, or the Fields, &c. there is a private Way. Co. Litt. 56. Venet. Rep. 189. A Foot-way common to all People, is a Highway, although it do not lead to any Market-Town: A common Street is a Highway; and so may a River be said to be, that is common to all Men. Ibl. Highways which lead from one Town to another and those Highways that are Drift ways, or cart ways, leading from Market to Market, that are Ways for all Travellers, and great Roads, or do communicate with them, are only under the Care of Surveyors, as to Repa-

The General Issue Not guilty, goes only to the being in Repair, or not; and a Special Inditment ought not to be given in Evidence upon the General Issue. 1 Saga. 287. On Inditment against a Parith, they can give nothing in Evidence upon Not Guilty, but that the Way is in Repair: Though where a private Person is indi-ted for not repairing a Highway, he may give in Evidence that another is to repair, because he is not. Ref. Red. it is called the Parith in. Mich. 8 W. 3. 3 Saga. 184. Though a Highway be not forth in the Inditment to lead to any Market-

Town, it has been adjudged no Objection; for every Highway leads to some Market-Town, or Vill, &c. Nor is it necessary to shew that the Professors of a Man, for not amending an Highway, are Surveyors, &c. 2 Red. Rep. 412. But the Inditment must shew with Certainty, in what Place a Necessity was done, the Extent of it, &c. And the Fait is to be forth in proper Terms, that the Court may judge of it. 1 Harw. P. C. 220. An Indictment concerning the Highways ought to set forth that it is the King's Highway, and for all the King's liege People; or it may be quashed. Co. Litt. 65. The Indictment must shew from What place to What place the Highway leads, &c. Hilly. 9 W. 3. Style 356. Upon an Indictment for not repairing a Highway, if the Defendant produce a Cermade a Highway, as good as it is capable of being made, it was paid in an extraordinary Cafe, this shall not discharge him, on an Information against him: though it may be a Mitigation of his

the Inhabitants of a Parish indited at Common Law, for not repairing the Highway, that they have done the Work required by Statute; for the Shall be made in Aid of the Common Law: And when the Statute-Work is not sufficient, Rates and Affirmances of a Justice of Peace on the Statute of 5 Edw. upon its own Knowledge of a Highway out of Repair, is of the same Effect as a Pretermint of twelve Men; but the Authority of Justice of Peace is liimited only to common Highways, and not to private the Inhabitants ought to have pleased Reparare non debitur, and that such a Person, naming him, ought intment is admitted to be a Highway. A Pretermint before Justices of a Way out of Repair, may be removed into B. R. And an Indictment for not repairing of Highways, may be lodged by the Plaintiff in the Statute 5 & 6 W. & M. m. All Matters concerning Highway, Homan, (Homageum) Is a French Word derived from Homen, because when the Tenant does his Service to the Lord, he says, I become your Man.

Co. Litt. 45. In the Original Grants of Lands and Tenements by way of Fee, the Lord did not only oblige his Tenants to certain Services; but also took a Subdivision with Promise and Oath, to be true to him as their Lord and Benefactor: And this Submision, which is the most honourable, being from a Freehold Tenant, is called Homage. Stat. 17 Ed. 2.
The Lord of the Fee for which Homage is due, takes Homage of every Tenant, as he comes to the Land or Fee: But Women perform not Homage but by their Husband, who pays Homage especially relating to Service in War; and a Corporation cannot do Homage, which is Personal, and they cannot appear but by Attorney: Also a Bishop, or religious Man, may not do Homage, only Fexity; but the Arch bishop of Canterbury does Homage on his Knees to our Kings at their Coronation; and it is said the Bishop of the Life of Man does Homage to the Earl of Derby; though Fadde renounced this, when he says that a religious Man may do Homage, but may not say to his Lord, Ego devors homo sufer, I become your Man, because he is not to take himself to be God's Man, but he may say, I do not you Homage, and to you you do not

Houzip, In peurum politis. Is a Word brought from the Fr. Or for it is found the King one Hundred able Men for his Wars. These Hundred were first ordained by King Alfred, the 29th King of the Wif Saxon; who took the Form of dividing Counties into Hundreds out of the County, from the Constitution of Germany, where Centa or Census is a Jurisdiction over an Hundred Towns, and has the Punishment of capital Crimes. After the Division of England into Counties by the afore-mentioned King, and the Government of each County given to a Sheriff, those Counties were subdivided into Hundreds, of which the Constable was the Chief Officer. And the Grants of Hundreds at first proceeded from the King to particular Persons. 9. Geo. 10. The jurisdiction of the whole County remained in the Sheriff, until K. Edw. 14 granted some Hundreds in Fee; and all Hundreds which were not before that Time granted by the Crown in Fee, were by Statute joined to the Office of the Sheriff. By Statute 14 Ed. 1. c. 3. 9. main in some Sort the same, as originally used; but their Jurisdiction is devolved to the County Court, some few excepted, which have been by Privilege annexed to the Court, or granted to some great Sub-

Every Person is bound as his Pet- ril to take Notice of what the Law of the Realm is; and Ignorance of it, though it be invincible, where a Man affirms that he hath done all that in him lieth to know the Law, will not excuse him. 9 Ed. 2. &c. 1. 16. Impartiality of Judges. Signifies writing and entering into a Parchment Schedule by the Sheriff, of the Names of a Jury summoned to appear for the Performance of such public Service, as Judges are employed in. Immunities was sometimes a Privilege granted that a Person should not be imprisoned or returned upon a Jury. — Non Maximim in Immunitatis est actionis Justitia, C. Troch. Anni. 617. See Decret.

Impartiality, (Jure interdict, vel litera interimperat.) is derived from the P. Parker, to speak, and in the Law, is taken for a Petition in Court of a Day to consider, or advise what Answer the Defendant shall make to the Action of the Plaintiff; being a Continuance of the Cause till another Day, or a larger Term, and in general, the same Rules are to be observed, either General or Special, General, when it is set down, and entered in General Terms, without any special Clause, that is, and now at this Day, in which it is set down, and entered in the same Terms, in which the Party desires a further Day to answer, adding also these Words: Saving all Advantages, as well to the Jurisdiction of the Court, as to the Writing and Declaration, &c. Kitch. 200. This Impartiality is held on the Declaration of the Plaintiff; and special Impartiality is of Utte where the Defendant is to plead some Matters which cannot be pleaded after a general Impartiality. 5 Rep. 75. Impartiality is generally to the next Term; and if the Plaintiff amend his Declaration after delivered or filed, the Defendant may imparl to the next Term afterwards, if the Plaintiff do not pay Costs; but if he pay Costs, which are accepted, the Defendant cannot Imparl. 1 Litt. Abr. 35. Also if the Plaintiff pleads against the Defendant, but does not proceed in three Terms after; the Defendant may Imparl to the next Term. Ibid. The not delivering a Declaration in Time is sometimes the Cause of Impartiality of Court: Where and where the Defendant's Case requires a special Plea, and the Matter which is to be pleaded is difficult; the Court will, upon Motion, grant the Defendant an Impartiality, and longer Time to put in his Plea, than otherwise by the Rules of the Court he ought to have: If the Plaintiff keeps any Ded, or other Thing from the Defendant, whereby he is to make his Defence, Impartiality may be granted till the Plaintiff delivers it to him, or brings it into Court, and a convenient Time after to plead. Hill. 22 Car. 1. B. R. An Impartiality being pray'd on a Defendant's Appearing to be in Danger, it was said that the Plaintiff would formerly from Day to Day, but now from one Term to another, on the Crown-Side; and it was ruled that the Defendant should have the same Time as he had, that the Proces would have taken up, if he had stood out till the Attachment or Copy; for when he comes in upon that, he must plead infamiter. 1 Salk. 367.
Imprisonment of Wills, (Imprimitia Vagi, from the Fr. Imprimescence, i.e. Imprimemment) Signifies a Reservement of Wills upon Lands or Tenements, or a Demand of Recompence for Wills done by a Tenant that hath but a particular Estate in the Land granted; but he hath a Lease to hold without Imprisonement of Wills, by that Law for an Interest given him in the Land, &c. that he may make Wills without being imprisoned for it; that is, without being questioned, or any Demand of Recompence for the Wills done in that Lease. See Stat. 12. 3. c. 7. 167. c. 24. See Statute Limitation, 21. Jac. 1.

Imprisement, (Imprisement) Signifies an Obtaining of any Thing by Requet and Prayer: And in our Statutes, it is said of Church Benefices, that Englanded from the Court of Rome, which belong to the Gift and Dispofition of the King, and other Lay Patron of this Realm; the Penalty thereof was the Same with Provost, 25 Edw. 3. 38 Ed. 4. cap. 1.

Impriptment, Is used for Impairing or Prejudicing; as to the Impriptment and Diminution of their good Names, &c. 24. Hen. 8. 8. 9.

Impript, To sue or prosecute by Court of Law; from the Fr. Plaidor.

Impriptes, (From the Lat. Imply, to fill up) Things infeincible in any Trade or Mystery, without which the Work cannot be performed; also the Furniture of a House, as all Household Goods, Implements, &c. And Implements of Houses are Tables, Pressey, Wainscot, and the like: In this Sense, we find this Word often in Gifts and Conveyances of Moveables. Termes de Ley 40th.

Implication, Is where the Law doth imply something that is not declared between Parties in their Deeds and Agreement: And when our Law giveth any thing to a Man, it giveth Implicitly whatsoever is necessary for the Enjoying the same. The WANT of Words in some Cales may be help'd by Implication; and so one Word or Thing, or one Estate given, shall be implied by another: And there is an Implication in Wills and Deeds of Lands, whereby Estates are gained; as if a Husband devolves the Goods in his Hous to his Wife, and that after her Death his Son shall have them, and his Hous; though the Hous be not devolved to the Wife by express Words, yet it has been held that the hath an Estate for Life in it by Implication, becase no other Person could then have it. And the Son and Heirs being excluded, who was to have nothing 'till after her Death. 1 Peut. 223. But where it may be reasonably intenced, that the Devior meant as well the one as the other, in such Case his Intention shall never be construed in Prejudice to the Heir at Law: For Instance: A Man devolved Part of his Lands to his Wife for Life, and that the same and all the Rest of his Lands should remain to his youngest Son, and the Heirs of his Body, after the Death of the Wife; now here was no express Devise of the Rest of the Lands to his Wife, and as they shall not have them by Implication, because the eldest Son and Heir at Law was not excluded, who shall have them during his Life or other Time; and out to the Youngest son takes Effect, for they shall descend to the Heir in the mean Time. Mor. 123. Though Crake, who reports the same Case, says, it was adjudged the Wife should have the Whole. 2 B. & C. 140. Estates for Life, and Estates tail, may be raised by Implication in Wills; a Tenant had three Sons, the eldest Son dying, leaving his Wife with Child, to whom the Father devised an Annuity in Value in the same, and if his middle Son died before he had any Issue of his Body, Remainder over, &c. And it was resolved, that such Son had an Estate tail by Implication. Mor. 127. It is said, a Fee simple Estate shall not arise by Implication in a Will; though there is a perpetual Charge imposed by the Devisee on the Devisee. 1 B. & C. Bridg. 103. Also it hath been adjudged, that where a particular Estate is devised by Will expressly, a contrary intent shall not be implied by any subsequent Clause. And Implication is either necessary, or possible; and where ever an Estate is raised by that Means in a Will, it must be by a necessary Implication; for the Devisee must necessarily have the Thing devised, and no other Person whatsoever can have it. 1 Salt. 326. 2 Nef. Abr. 494. No Implication shall be allowed against an express Estate, limited by express Words, to drown the same. Salt. 266. There are Conditions and Covenants, implied by Law in Deeds and Grants: And Implication will sometimes help to Supply Omissions, and Supply Defects. See Intendment and Usucaption.

Imprestation, (Imprestation) Is where Goods and Merchandize are brought into this Kingdom from other Nations. 12 Car. 1. c. 4.

Imprest, (Fr. from the Lat. Impo, i.e. Impunire) Is a Tribute or Custom; but more particularly that Tax which the King receives for Merchandize imported into any Port or Haven: And it may be distinguished from Customs, which are rather the Profit arising to the King from Goods exported. 3 Edw. 1. c. 5.

Imprestibility. A Thing which is Imprestible in Law, is an one with a Thing imprisnotible in Nature: And if any thing in a Bond or Deed be Imprestible to be done, such Deed, &c. is void at Law. Yet where the Condition of a Bond becomes Imprestible by the Act of God, such Case it is held the Obliger ought to do all in his Power towards a Performance; As when a Man is bound to enfooch the Obliger and his Heirs, and the Obliger dies, the Obliger must enforce his Heir. 2 Cor. 274.

Imprestenten, (Imprestementen) Is a Refrain of a Man's Liberty under the Custody of another; and extends not only to a Good, but a House, Stocks, or where a Man is held in the Street, &c. for in all these Cases the Party to restrained is said to be a Prisoner, so long as he hath not his Liberty freely to go about his Business as at other Times. 1 Inf. 253. Imprestenten according to Law, is according to the Common or Statute Law, or the Custom of England, or by Procès, and Course of Law. 2 Inf. 46. 52. 102. And the Tall is in this Case imprisnotible, but as the Law directs either by Command and Order of a Court of Record, or by lawful Warrant, or the Device, or by whichsoever means may be lawfully detained to answer the Law. 2 Inf. 46. 3 Inf. 209. At Common Law, a Man 51 could could not be imprisoned in any Cafe unless he were guilty of some Force and Violence; for which his Body was subject to Imprisonment, as one of the highest Executions of the Law: But Imprisonment is in Britian found in many Cafes. Though see Magna Chart 9. H. 3. c. 29. When ever the Common Law, or any Statute doth give Power to imprison, there it is lawful and justifiable; but that doth so far Purport of a Statute, must be so expressly, as to follow the Statute in the Order and Manner of doing thereof. Dyer 104. Ed 11. A Justice of Peace may cause Oder to be made to be imprisoned, and may himself require any Man to give Security of the Peace or Good Behaviour, where he causeth, and if he refuseth may imprison him. Briv. Treff. 177. If a Warrant of Commitment be for Imprisoning a Man until further Order, it is not a warrant but for an Afforded, nor is there any Cause for which he is committed: And where a Person was committed to Prison by Warrant from a Secretary of State, without alleging any Cause, it was adjudged that he might be discharged for that Reason; but then another Warrant was returned of the same Secretary, in which the Person committed was restored, and that upon further Examination, he commanded the Gaoler to detain him, safely, for Suiposition of High Treason; and he was fined, so there was no cause to detain him, because the former Warrant referred to the First, which was no warrant at all; besides, there was no especial Cause of Supicion alleged, nor for what Species of Treason. Pal. 558. 11. Roll. Rep. 219. In all Cases of Personal Actions, if Judgment be given against the Defendant, he shall be fined and imprisoned, because to every Fine Imprisonment is incident; and therefore where the Warrant is fines and committed to appear to any Court of Record, he may be imprisoned till the Fine is paid. 8. Rep. 606. In what Cales Persons imprisoned may be delivered on Bail: if the Person is bound by another: First, Not to be given upon the Exchange, or other publick Place, of the Time of Sale; and in the mean Time, the Goods to be hold are divided into Lots, printed Papers of which are to the Bidders, and the Creditor is to be delivered till the Goods are sold, and the left Bidder when the Candle goes out, is entitled to the Lot not offered to expost. In any Difference happens in adjoining to whom a Lot belongs, where several bids together, the Lot to be put up again: and the left Bidder is bound to stand to the Bargain, and take the Lot, whether good or bad. In these Cafes, the Goods are let up at such a Price: and none shall bid less than a certain Sum, more than another hath before, 8. Morth. Diet. Incident, (Incident) is a Thing necessarily depending upon, appearing to, or following another that is more worthy or principal. A Court Baron is inappelable incident to a Minor; and a Court of Piepowders to a Faile: Those are so inherent to their Principals, that by the Grant of one the other is granted and they cannot be extant by Release, or save by Exception, but in special Cafes. Kitch. 36. 1 Inf. 131. Rent is incident to a Renter. Indictment, (Indictamentum, from the Fr. Enqui- ter, i.e. confer numen-aligante) is a Bill or Declaration of Complaint drawn up in Form of Law, exhibited for some Offence criminal or penal, and presented to a Grand Jury; upon whose Oath it is found to be true, before a Judge or others, having Power to punish or certify the Offence. Terms de Ley 253. Lombard lays, an Indictment is an Accusation, at the Suit of the King, next he said to the Attorney-General of the County wherein the Offence was committed, returned to inquire of all Offences in general in the County, determinable by the Court, into which they are returned, and their Finding a Bill brought before them to be true: But when such Accusation is found by a Grand Jury, without any Bill brought before them, and afterwards reduced to a formed Indictment, it is called a Preliminary; and when it is found by Juries returned to inquire of that particular Offence only which is indicted, it is properly called an Indictment. Lamb. &c. cap. 9. And by Pulton, an Indictment is an Inquisition taken and made by twelve Men, at the least, thereunto sworn, whereby they do find and present, that such a Person, of such a Place, in such a County, by and by one Degree, hath committed such a Trespass, Felony, Treafy, or other Offence, against the Peace of the King, his Crown and Dignity. Patt. 169. An Indictment, by Lord Chief Justice Hale, is nothing else but a plain, brief, and certain Narrative of an Offence committed by any Person, and of those necessary Circumstances, that concur to ascertain the Person and his Act and Nature: And there is great Strictures required in Indictments, where Life is in Question; and therefore very nice Exceptions thereunto, are of later Times allowed. 1 Hale's Hist. P. C. 156, 159. A Bill of a Grand Jury, hath been said to be the Advertisement and Discovery of the Reason: because the Jury that enquireth of the Offence, doth not receive it, until the Party that offerrith the Bill appearing subscribeth his Name, and offers his Oath for the Truth of it: But it differs from an Accusation in this, that the Preferer of the Bill is not tied to the Proof of it, upon any Penalty, except there appear Conspiracy. Stann. &c. P. C. 20. cap. 83. Although the Bill of Indictment may be most of a Grand Jury upon Oath, they are not bound to find the Bill, if they find Cases to the contrary; and though the Bill of Indictment be brought unto them, without Oath made, they may find the Bill if they see Cases: But it is not usual to prefer a Bill unto them before Oath be sworn made in Court, that the Evidence they are to give unto the Grand Inquest to prove the Bill is true. Pagh. 23 Car. B. R. 2. Lib. Abr. 44. The Grand Jury are to find the Whole in a Bill, or reject it, and not find specially for Part, &c. 2 Hen. P. C. 210. According to the Common Law, every Indictment must be found by Twelve Men at the least, every one of whom ought to be of the same County, and returned by the Sheriff, or other proper Officer, without the Nomination of any other, and to Free-men, not under any Attainder of Felony, nor Oat- law, &c. &c. And any one under Prosecution for a Crime, before he is indicted, may except against or challenge any of the Persons returned on the Grand Jury; as being outlaid, returned at the Insistance of the Prosecutore, or not returned by the proper Officer, &c. 2 Hen. 215. By Statute, no Indictment shall be made but by Inquest of lawful Men returned by Sheriffs, &c. 11 H. 4. cap. 2. And if a Person not returned by the Sheriff on a Grand Jury, procures his Name, though the Head among others of a Jury be actually returned, whereupon he is sworn of the Jury: he may be indicted for it, and fined, and the Indictment found on such a Jury shall be void. 11 H. 4. cap. 9. 12 Reg. 28. 5 Jas. 35. Sheriffs had formerly Power to take Indictments; which they did by Roll in-Felon. 22 Car. B. R. 5 Lid. 44. By Holt Chief Justice: If a Civil Action of Treason be brought for Goods taken, after Recovery the Party may be indicted for Trespass or Felony, for the same Taking; and that may be brought, as an Indictment for Trespass, &c. and the Crime appears to be Felony; there you cannot have Verdict or Judgment on the Indictment for Trespass till the Felony is tried, it being the inferior Offence. Indictments ought to be made commonounding in Law, because they are more penal, and to be more precisely answered unto. Holt 25 Car. 2. B. R. They must be precise and certain in every Particular as to the Place of the Offence and not ordinary. All Offences in particular, and not a Person as an Offender in general, or for other Goods, &c. stolen, without expressing what Goods; and it ought not to be so indistinctly, not by Way of Recital, &c. or be supplanted by Implication. 3 Hats. 219. 2 H. Indictment must set forth, the Christian Name, Surname, and Addition of the Place, and the Time, and the Day, &c. and the Time when the Offence was done, as the Day, Year, &c. and the Town or Place where; the Nature of the Offence, whether Treason, Felony, &c. and the Place of the Thing by what, which it is committed, &c. And in Indictments of Murder, the Length and Depth of the Wound is to be expressed: The Value of Things stolen is to be specified, that it may appear whether Grand or Petit Larceny; and of the Thing that does the Felony, which is forfeited to the King; and the Dimensions of a Wound must be expressed, that is may be judged mortal. 1 Hats. 2 cap. 3, 2 Inf. 518. drawn upon a Statute, it ought to purlole the Words of it, if a private Act: but it is otherwise on a general Statute: it is not bound to recite a public Statu-ture: the Rectal is not necessary, for the Judges are bound ex Officio to take Notice of all publick Stat-tures, and Miscellaneous are hazel: so it is the first Way only to conclude generally contra formam Statut. &c. 4 Rep. 48. Though there be no Necessity to recite a publick Statute in an Indictment, material Words of the Statute, or the Words, Contra formam Statut, will not make it good. 2 Howd. 249.

the whole Indictment is naught: but it is otherwise where a Word of Form is omitted, or there is an Omission of any Thing, to which all or one have be given by Statute, upon an Indictment which doth not Common Law, as every Indictment which doth not thus conclude shall be taken to be. 2 Howd. 251.

But where Perilns are indicted on the Statute of Stalking, and the Statute is not given upon to bring them within the Statute: they may be found Guilty of general Malversation at Common Law, and the Words contra formam Statut shall be rejected as useless.
In some other Cases the fame has been also adjugded; though formerly it was held, that an Indictment grounded on a Statute, which would not maintain itself in any Case, must be maintained as an Indictment at Common Law. Ibid. Indictments may be amended the same Term wherein brought into Court, and not after: But criminal Prosecutions are not within the Benefit of the Statutes of Amendments: so that no Amendment can be made to an

Common Law. 2 Litt. 45. 2 Howd. 244. The Body be amended, except from London where a Tenor only of the Record is removed: though the Cognition of an Indictment from any Place may, on Motion, be amended by the Clerk of the Alfier, &c. so as to make it agree with the original Record. Ibid. And Cognitions of Indictments ought to set forth the Court dictment may be drawn for the same Offence, whereas-

By the Common Law, the Court may quash any Indidictment for Insufficiency, as will make the Judgment

Indictm't, is what is alleged as a Motive or Indictm't to a Thing; and in Law is used specially in several Cases, viz. there is Indictment to Actions, to a Traverce in Pleadings, a Faht or Offence committed, &c. Indictments to Actions need not have so much Certainty as in other Cases: A general Indictm't is not sufficient, where it is the Ground of the Action; but where it is but the Indictment to the Action, as in Consideration of forbearing a Debt till such a Day, (for that the Parties are agreed upon the Debt) this being but a collateral Promise, is good without the proof. Gr. Jac. 2. 52. 2 Mod. 70. A Man ought to indict his Traverce when he begins to have a Difficult, and not when the Debt appears for him who was tras-Proc. and Trenis, as it is a Putting the Minister in actual Poifion of the Church, and of the Glebe Land, which are the Temporalties of it. This Indictment is done in the following Form: One of the Clergymen commissioned takes the Perfon to be inductgate, on the Church Wall, &c. and either of those are sufficient: An Indictment may be made by Deliv-

Par. Com. 21. 22. Ordinarily the Bishop is to

And by Procuration, others as well as Archdeacons may make Indictments.

Proc. Conv. 8. An Indictment made by the Patron of the Church, is void; but Bishops and Archdeacons may induct a Clerk to the Parsonage of which they are Patrons, by Procuration, &c. 11 Hen. 4.

The Dean and Chapter of Cathedral Churches are to induce Prebends, though in his hands the Bishop doth induct a Prebend, it may be good at the Common Law. 11 Hen. 6. 7. 11 Hen. 6. In some Places a Prebend shall be in Poifion without any Indictment; as at Westminister, where the King makes Collation by his Letters Patent. If the King grants one of his free Chapels, the Grace shall be put in Poifion by the Sheriff of the County, and not by the Bishop: And no Indictment is necessary to a Donative, where the Patron by Donation in Writing puts the Clerk into Poifion, without Procuration, &c. 11 Hen. 4. If the Authority of the Perfon who made the Mandate for Indictment, determines by Death or Removal, before the Clerk is inducted, the Indictment afterwards will be void; as where before it is executed, a new Bish op is consecrated, &c. But if the Archishop, Infantest, Infanctnethe, (From the Saxon Fae or Faerie, i. e. natures, and Thiop, Far) signifies the Nitunage or Liberty granted unto Lords of certain Manors, to judge any Thief taken within their Fees. Bract. lib. 3. cap. 35. In some ancient Charters, it appears that the 'Thief' should be taken in the Landships, and with the Goods stolen, otherwise the Lord had not Jurisdiction to try him in Court; though by the Laws of King Edward the Confessor, he was not restrained to his own People or Tenants, but might try any Man who was thus taken in his Manor: 'Tis true afterwards, the Word Infantest signifies Latins copias in terris alienas foedus de aliquo Latinis, and fits perquiserit hominum, &c. In F. G. C. &c. The Francklins of Infantest and Ofafungesthe, to be heard and determined in Court-Baron, are anti-gated, and gone long since. 2 Inst. 51.

Infant. In law our Law is a Person under twenty-one Years of Age; while Abs are in many Cases either void, or voidable. 1 Inst. 171. All Gifts, Grace, &c. of an Infant, which do not take Effect by Delivery of his Hand, are void; and if made to take Effect by Delivery of his Own Hand, are voidable by himself, and his Heirs, and those which shall have been delivered by his Father, where his Infant makes a Deliver and delivers it within Age, though he afterwards delivers it again at full Age, the second Delivery and Deed are void; for the Deed must take Effect from the first Delivery. 3 Rep. 55. If an Infant bargain and sell Land by Deed indented and terrold, he may void it. 2 Inst. 375. If an Infant makes a Feoffment, he may enter and void it; and if he dies, his Heir may enter, or have a Damoa, in the Statute 1. Edw. 1. cap. 5. An Infant feigned in Fee makes a holder; his Heir, in full Age, shall enter; and it is the same if feigned in Tail Male. 8 Rep. 42. And Privies in Blood, as the Heir general or at large, may avoid a Conveyance made by their Ancestor during his Infancy. But Privies in Estates, such as the Donee of an Estal tull where the Tenant in Tull dies without issue; or Privies in Law, as the Lord by Estates where there is no Heir, is not void a Conveyance made by an Infant. 8 Rep. 43. 44. If a Man within Age seised in Right of his Wife, makes a Feoffment; and dies, his Heir cannot make and void it, because no Right descends to him for the Baron, if he had lived, could have entered only in Right of his Wife. 8 Rep. 43. And no Person shall take Advantage of the Infancy of his Ancestor, to make a Right to a Conveyance made by his Ancestor during his Infancy. But though the Heir may take the Benefit of a Cohabitation, notwithstanding no Right descended to him from his Ancestor. 8 Rep. 43. If Husband and Wife are both within Age, and they by Indenture join in a Feoffment, and the Husband dies, the Wife may make and avoid the Deed, or have a Deed seised in the Statute 1. Edw. 1. cap. 5. And if a Man without Age seised in Blood, the Survivor cannot enter; but the Feoffment the Survivor may enter into the Interest, &c. 8 Rep. 43. If an Infant exchanges Lands with another, and the other enters, the Infant may have Aliens. 18 Ed. 1. s. 3. 186. If an Infant enters for Years, or for the Term of an Interest in Fee Simple, he may affirm the Lease, or bring Trespass against the Land for the Occupation. 18 Ed. 1. &c. Trespass 338. A Lease made by an Infant referring Rent, will void it; and if it have no Sinking Fund in it, it is absolutely void. 19 Ed. 1. If an Infant makes a Lease paying Rent, and after his coming of Age he accepts the Rent, the voidable Lease is made good; and an Infant's Lease in Eremity is good. 2 Inst. 55. 3 Inst. 196. A Lease made by an Infant may be avoided by waving the Land before the Rent Day; but if there be a Lease for Years he must be made an Infant, rendering Rent, after the Infant coming of Age he combines the Possession of the Land, this will make him chargeable with the Rent incurred during his Infancy, and in case of one case, if the infant under a future Interest, by taking a new Lease; his Surrender by Deed, and by Acceptance of a second Lease, are void, except there be an Interest of the Term; or on a Decrease of the Rent; for where there is no Benefit comes to him, his Abs are merely void. 4 Car. 501. If an Infant surrenders a Lease for Years he must in Retribution, this is void, and cannot be made good by any Agreement at full Age. 2 Inst. 55. 3 Inst. 728. An Infant may purchase, being intended for his Benefit; yet at his full Age he may confirm, or avoid it, by Agreement or otherwise; and if he agrees not when at Age, his Heirs after him, may disagree to the same. 1 Inst. 3. 172. An Infant's Feoffment, or other Deed, may be avoided by Fire or Entry, after or before he is of full Age; but his Abs on Record, as his Fine levied, Recovery suffered, or Statute acknowledged, must be avoided by Master of Record, one of the Judges of Error, or Audita Quaestia, during his Minority. 3 Inst. 54. If any Infant confilicted judgment in an Action of Debt brought against him; and it was held, Audita Quaestia did not lie, though it would on a Statute or Recognition, but the Party ought to bring a Writ of Error in the Exchequer Chamber, by Virtue of the Statute 27 Eliz. 460. Infants ought not to be received to liberate fines; though if they are admitted, their Fines are good and unavoidable, unless revoked during their Minority. Inf. 235.

Infrauctum, (Infrauctum) Is one Part of the Digests of the Civil Laws; according to Benedict, Abbess of the Monastery of Peterborough, in the Reign of K. Hen. 3.

Infurgatur, signifies to put to Flight. Leg. Cameli, c. 78.

Infurta, Was anciently the Garment of a Priest, like that which we now call a Calfskin; sometimes it is taken for a Calf.

Ingis. This Syllable in the Names of Places, denotes Meadow or Pasture; and in the North, Meadows are called the Ingis from the Sax. Ing, i.e. a pasture.

Ingritum, Is an Instrument used in War, Artes & Ingenio consulem; from whence 'tis said we derive the Word Engine.

Ingritor, Is used for Liberty given to a Servant by Manumission. Leg. H. c. 89.

Ingruentia Beggri, Ingenii, Liberii & Legatorum timorum, Freeholders; and the Commonalty of the and his Kingdoms: And sometimes this Title was given to the Baronets and Lords of the King's Counsell. Endm. Mf. Nov. 70.

Ingrigesque ans Beggri, Words in Langes of Land, to signify a free Entry into, going forth of, and Returning from some Part of the Lands let; as to get in a Crop of Corn, &c. after the Term expired.

Ingrifil, Is a Writ of Entry, whereby a Man seeks Entry into Lands or Tenements; and lies in many Cases, having as many different Forms: This Writ is also called Prerogative good redett, because there are formal Words inserted in all Writs of Entry. See Entry.

Ingritio, The Relief which the Heir at full age paid to the Head Lord, for Entering upon the Fee, or Lands fallen by the Death or Forfeiture of the Tenant, &c. was sometimes called Ingriffin.

In gravis. Adversion in gravis, Villain in gravis, &c. See Gravis.

Ingriffis, (Ingriffis) Is one that buys and sells any Thing by Wholesale; and whoever shall get into his Hands by Buying, Contract or Promise, other than by Demise, Grant or Lease of Lands, any Corn growing, or other Corn or Grain; Butter, Cheese, Fowl, or other dead Vitalis whatsoever, within the Realm of England, to the Intent to sell the same again, shall be reputed an unlawful Ingriffy, by Stat. 5 & 6 Ed. 6. c. 14. Such Vitalis only as is necessary for the Food of Man, is within the Purview of the Statute; and therefore Apples and Fruits are not within the Meaning of it; and it has been held, that Hops are not within the Statute: 3 & 4 H. 9. 155. H. P. C. 153. C. Car. 251.

The Buying of Corn to make Sarch of it, and then to sell it, is not within the Intent of the Statute: because it is not bought to be sold again. But the same Name as is given in the Statute, is sold, and bought, gain to the first seller by a Trade or Science; and by the like Reason the Buying of Corn to make Meal of it, and then to sell it, is sold to be within the Act; and Buying of Barley, with an Intent to make it into Malt, and after that to sell it, had no Need of the Exception made for it in the said Statute. 1 March. P. C. 357. Foreign Corn and Vitalis, except fifth and Salt, are excepted, and not within the Penalty of the Act. And licensed Bakers are excepted as are likewise Fîrmogomers, Butchers, Poulters, &c., buying any Thing in their own Factories, otherwise they being Fortified, and selling them at their reasonable Prices by Recall. 17 H. 3. 240. Any Merchant, whether a Subject or Foreigner, bringing Vials, or other Merchandise into this Kingdom, may fell the same in Gross; but he that buys them of him cannot do so, because by such Means the Price will be increased, for the more Hand any Merchandise passes through, the cheaper it must grow, as every one will make a Profit of it. And if this were allowable, a rich Man might ingraft into his Hands a whole Commodity, and then sell it at what Price he should think fit; which is of such bad Consequence, that the bare Ingrafting of a whole Commodity with Intent to sell it at an unreasonable Price, is an Offence indictable at Common Law, whether any Part thereof is sold by the Ingrafting, 2 Ed. 2. 124. 3 Ed. 2. c. 9. & 9. 13 Ed. 2. c. 9. & 9. 2 Ed. 7. 134. An Inhibition is most commonly issuing out of a Higher Court Christian to an interior, upon an Appeal. And Inhibitions are likewise on the Vitiation of Archbishops and Bishops, &c. This Inhibition is to either Homines or Juris; sic Ne quis abnationem faciat, sed alipsum jurata, dictum, dicat, expeditionem scilicet, nec consuetudinem abolatam. Thus when the Archibishop violates, he inhibits the Bishop; and when a Bishop violates, he inhibits the Archdeacon; and this is to prevent Confusion, and continues till the last Parish is to be done. Now after that the Archbishop shall intend, if a Lapse happens, the Bishop cannot interdict, because his Power is suspended; but the Archbishop is to do it, 2 Ed. 6. 601. 15 Ed. 3. 19 Car. B. Inhib, or Inhibe. [From In, within, and boke a Corner or Nook] Signifies any Corner or Part of a curved Field, ploughed up and sowed with Oats, &c., and sometimes found in with a Day Book, in that Year wherein the rest of the Field lies fallow and common. It is called in the North of England an Ine, and in Orkney an Heilie; and no such Inkle is now made without the joint Consent of all the Commoners, who in most Places have their Share by Lot in the Benefit of it, except in some Mansions, where the Lord has a special Privilege of doing. Injunction. (Injunct) is a Kind of Prohibition granted in divers Cases: it is generally grounded upon an Interlocutory Order or Decree out of the Court of Chancery or Exchequer, to stay Proceedings in Courts at Law; and sometimes it is issued to the Spiritual Courts. W. 1. 2 Stat. 25. It is called sometimes used to give Possession to a Plaintiff, for Want of the Defendant's Appearance, and may be granted by the Chancellor or by an Ordinary. Injunctions are of several Kinds; also where a privileged Person of the Chancery is sued elsewhere, and to stay Waifs, &c. Injunction lies. If a Defendant by his Answer in Chancery, owens a certain Sum of Money is due to him, the Court will often not grant an Injunction, unless the Money be brought into Court: And an Injunction is obtained by Order, either upon Matter contract, or upon leave of Writ, or upon some Evidence of Record, or by Deed, Writing, or other Evidence found in Court, from whence there is a Probability that the Party and the Court be discharged in Equity and formity: but even if it is granted before Answer, when it is usually only until Answer, and further Order, &c. A Delay of Proceedings for a considerable Time, is good Caufe for letting aside and dissolving an Injunction to stay Proceedings at Law: but an Injunction may be revived on Caufe shown, and sometimes the Court will, revive it though dissolvd, where the Plaintiff's Cause is hard, or Equity is evidently on his Side. Pr. Stat. 124, 125. If an Injunction be for Stayng of Waifs, there must be Affidavit made of Waifs committed in Houses, Lands, &c., belonging to the Complainant; and if it be to stay Suits in other Courts, it is granted on Suggresting some Matter, by Reason of which the Complainant is not able to make his Defence in the other Court, as for Want of Witness, &c., for that he is prosecuted at Law for what in Equity he ought not to pay; or that the other Court acts erroneously, denies him some rightful Advantage, and grants a Bar against Equity and good Conscience, &c. 3 Rep. 41. The Law of Injunction prefers the first Child before all others; the Male before the Female; and of Males the Son, &c. And as to Inheritance, if a Man parches Land in Free, and dies without Issue, the Issue of the Blood of the Father's Side shall inherit it, if there be any; and for Want of Issue of the Father's Side, the Issue of the Heir of the Mother's Side: But if it come to the Son by Defeat from the Father, the Heirs of the Mother shall not inherit it. Plowd. 135. &c. &c. &c. Goods and Chattels cannot be turned into Inheritance. 3 Ed. 19. 125. &c. See Defent and Fee Effects.

This Inquitum is upon an Outlawry found; in Cases of Treason and Felony committed; upon a Feas de Je, &c. to entitle the King to Forfeitures of Lands and Goods: And there is no such Necessity required in an Inquiry as in an Inquest; because an Inquiry is only to inform the Court how Proces should ille for the King, while Title accrues by the Attainter, and not by the Inquisition; and yet in the Cases of the King, and a common Peron, Inquisitions have been held void for Incertainty. Lane 39. 2 Nis. Abr. 1088. It is Inquiritum, (Inquisition) Is the Registering or Entering in the Rolls of the Chancery, King's Bench, Common Pleas or Exchequer, or by the Clerk of the Peace in the Records of the Quarter-Sessions, of any lawful Act; as a Statute or Recogmance acknowledged, a Deed of Bargain and Sale of Lands, &c. An In-quiritum of a Deed may be either by the Common Law, or according to the Statute: And Inquiritum of Deeds ought to be made in Parchment, and recorded in Court, for Perpetuity's Sake. Trin. 29 Car. 2. Paed.

24 Car. 1. B. R. But the Inquiring a Deed doth not make it a Record, though it thereby becomes a Deed recorded; for there is a Difference between Matter of Record, and a Thing recorded to be kept in Memory; A Record being the Entry in Parchment of Judicial Matters committed in a Court of Record, and whereof the Court takes Notice; whereas an Inquiritum of a Deed is a private Act of the Parties concerned of, which the Court takes no Cognisance at the Time of doing it, although the Court gives Way to it. Meth.
21 Car. 1. 2 Litt. Ab. 69. Every Deed before it is inquired, is to be acknowledged to be the Deed of the Party before a Master of the Court of Chancery, or a Judge of the Court whereinafore it was, which is the Off-cicer's Warrant for the Inquiring of the bare: And the Inquiritum of a Deed, if it be acknowledged by the Grantor, will be good proof of the Deed itself upon a Trial. Ibid. A Deed may be inquired without the Examination of the Party himself; for it is sufficient if Oath is made of the Execution of the Deed: If two are Parties, and the Deed is acknowledged by one, the other is bound by it: And if a Min. con.

New York, &c. and would pass Lands in England, a nominal Person may be joined with him in the Deed, who may acknowledge it here, and it will be binding.

may be inquired afterwards: And Inquisitions of Deeds operate by Virtue of the Statute of Inquisitions; but if Livery and Seisin, &c. be had before the Inquiring, Party shall be in that, as the more worthy Ceremony

Any Man may make a private Policy of Infrics, and there is no fixed Price for the Rates of Infrics, which rise and fall according to the State of the Nation in Peace or War, the Season of the Year, and other various Occurrences: in former Wars the Rates of Infrics on a good Ship, from London to any Port or Place in the East Indies, &c. and back, was 16 per Cent. but in the late War, in the Reign of K. William, the Premium of Infrics on a good Ship was 30 per Cent. And when a Ship has been long miling, and no Advice can be had where the ship, the Premium in Time of War will run very high; sometimes 30 or 40 per Cent., but then the Words are inferred in the Infrics, Left or not Left; and in such Case, if it happens at the Time the Subscription is made, that the Ship is cast away, the Infrics will not answer: But if the Party that caused the Infrics to be made, was the Ship wrecked, or had certain Intelligence of it, such Subscription will not be Obligatory, so likewise if the Infrics having a rotten Ship, shall infirm upon the same more than the ship is worth, and afterwards going out of the Port the fire is sunk or wrecked, this will be adjudged fraudulent, and not oblige Infrics to answer. Mich. 26 Car. 2. B. R. And willfully Cashing away, or making Holes in the Bottom of a Ship, &c. with Delign to prejudice any Infrics, Merchants, &c. is made Felony by Stat. 1 Ann. and 1 Geo. 1. Subscriptions for Infrics are generally for certain Sums; as 100 l. or 500 l. &c. at the Premium current; and if a Man injures Goods to the Value of 500 l. and he hath but 500 l. to indemnify him, or saving infirm a real Adventure, if a Loss happens, by the Law Maritime, all the Infrics are compellable to answer pro rata: Though this is more by the Custom of Merchants than by Law, and by some Opinions, that it was the Opinion of the Infrics, to pay and prorata, and is not entitled to benefits, until formal Indulgence. Period. 528. The Church is full by Infrics against all common Persons, So that if another Person be at all Indulged, it is void, and he hath but a mere Peoficmen; but a Church is not fall against the King till Indulgence. 2 Inst. 358. 1 Roll Rep. 151. When a Bishop hath given Indulgence to a Clerk, he oblates his Mandate for Indulgence; and if he be an Archbishop to indult the Clerk thus infirmated, he may do it notwithstanding. 4 Rep. The first Beginning of Indulgences to Benefactors was in a National Synod held at Westminster, Ano 1124. For Patrons did originally fill all Churches by Collation and Liberty; till this Power was taken from them by Canons. Sedes, 8th of Nov., cap. 6 & 9 reg. 375. See Indulgence.

The Bishop by Infricio transfers the Cure of South to the Clerk; and if he refuseth to grant Infricio, the Party may have his Remedy in the Courts of Audience of the Arch bishop, by Delinquencia, &c. for Infricio is properly cognable in the Ecclesiastical Court: Where Infricio is granted and suspected to be void for Want of Title in the Patron, &c. a Superinfricio hath been sometimes granted to another, to try the Title of the pretent incumbent by Ejecution. 2 Roll. Abr. 220. 4 Rep. 79. Taking a Reward for Infricio incurs a Forfeiture of double Value of one Year's Pofits in the Benefice, and makes the Living void. Stat. 31 Eliz. c. 6. On Infricio the Clerk hath a Right to enter on the Parsonage house and land, and take the Tithes; but he cannot grant, let, or do any Act to charge them, till he is included into the Living: He is compleat Parson as to the Spiritual, by Infricio; but not as to the Temporal. &c. if the Bishop be only committed the Monastery, to pray and presbyt, and is not entitled to Ad Vantage, until formal Indulgence. Period. 528. The Church is full by Infricios against all common Persons, So that if another Person be at all Indulged, liable to bear the Loss: But if Goods involved are not contraband at the Time of the Lading and Insured ... and the Goods break, if they are likewise insured, the Insurers are answerable. 32 Car. 2. 52.

And if Goods and Merchandise be lawfully insured, and afterwards the Ship becomes disabled, by Reason of which, the Cargo of the Ship and Merchants, they are to be laden into another Vessel; and that Vessel proves the Ship of an Enemy, by Reason of which, on her Arrival, she is subject to Seizure, and in the Event it is true the Insurers are liable, for that is an Accident within the Intention of the Policy of Insurance, which mentions Dangers of Sea, Enemies, &c. Yet where Goods are insured in a Ship bound to any foreign Port, and in the Voyage the said Vessel is laden at Sea, it is said the Insurers are discharged without a special Clause to make them liable. Lex Streat. or Merc. Commiss. 93. If a Ship be insured from one Port to another, and is laden at a Foreign Port, and before the Ship breaks Ground, the Goods happen to take Fire, and is consumed, the Insurers are not obliged to answer, unless the Words of the Insurance are so expressed as to cover the said Case; and the Adventure did not commence till the Ship were gone from thence: Though if the Ship had broken Ground, and afterwards been driven by Storm back to the Port of London, and there had taken Fire, the Insurers must answer. Rot. Soccor. 15 Car. 2. Goods are stolen or imbrilled on Ship board, the Master, and not the Insurers are liable: And when Insurers are to answer, and it happens that some Part only of the Effects insured are lost, as in the Case of Ejections in a Storm, or other such Accidents; then the Insurers may be discharged from the whole Sum of Money paid for such Part only. At the same Time, every Man pays so much per Cent. in Proportion to the Sum for which he subscribed. If a Ship arrives safe, after the Adventure is born, generally the Insurers receive their Money; but if a Loss happens, the Premium is deducted with the usual Abatement, and the Insurers receive about 80 per Cent. And when Advice is received of the Loss of the Ship or Goods, Application is to be made to the Insurers, and the Vouchers to be produced; with which, if they are satisfied, they will pay the Money; but if they have reasonable Ground to fear that the Insurers will not wait a convenient Time, till the Insurers can obtain as much satisfaction as their Duty requires; or if nothing can be heard of the Ship in any reasonable Time, the Insurers are obliged forthwith to pay the Money: Though if they think that the Ship shall arrive in Safety, the Money is to be returned them by the Insurers. Merc. Commiss. 91, 96, 97. A Merchant having insured the greatest Part of the Adventure of a Ship, if Advice is received of a Loss, but with Hope of Recovery, whereby such Merchant would have the Satisfaction of the Insurers; he has a Right to make a Remuneration of the Lading to the Insurers, and to come in himself in the Nature of an Insurer, for so much as shall appear he hath born the Adventure of, beyond his Part of the Value insured. Insurers may be made on Men's Heads; as where a Man is in Danger of being taken into Slavery by the Moors, whereby a Random must be paid for his Redemption, he may advance a Premium, in Consideration of which the Insurer must answer the Risk incurred, if there be a Capture. Mich. 29. 32 Car. 2. B. R. All Men Lives may be insured at Land: And Policies of Insurance are used in other Matters, where Damage is feared; in Cafe of House or Goods, from Loss by Fire, &c. By the Stat. 19 Geo. 2. c. 37. No Assurance shall be made by any Person on any Ship belonging to his Majesty or his Subjects, except with the Licence of the Board of Trade; and the Goods laden on board such Ship, Interfere or no Interests, or without further Proof of Interests than the Policy, or by Way of Gaming or Wagering, or without Remuneration; and if they are the Property of the Insurers, every such Assurance shall be void. Re assurance shall not be made except the Assuror becomes Insolvent, and then but to the Value before assured, and to be expressed in the Policy. And if Policies of Assurance be assigned or transferred under any Transaction upon a Policy of Assurance, shall be void within fifteen Days after Receipt, declare what Sums he hath offered in the Whole, or borrowed at Repeustreement or Rerefund in the Voyage. Any Person taking such a Policy of Assurance may bring the Money into Court, and if the Plaintiff shall refuse to accept it, and the Jury shall not find more Damage than the Money brought into Court, the Plaintiff shall pay Costs. See Battam. Form of a Policy of Insurance.

Intutiones, Is used in ancient Charters for Treas-ure trove, Money or Goods found by any Persons, and not found. High. Soc. 2d Ed. 2. p. 456. By 21 H. 3. c. 5. Executors and Administrators are required to make and deliver in upon Oath to the Ordin-ary, Inventions indented, of which one Part shall remain with the Ordinary, and the other Part with the Executor or Administrator: And the Intention of this Statute was for the Benefit of the Creditors and Legatees, that the Executor or Administrator might not conceal any Part of the Personal Easte from them: Though as to the Valuation it is not exclusive, but the real Value found by a Jury; if they are underval-ued, the Creditors may take them as appraised; and if over-valued, it shall not be prejudicial to the Exec-utor. 2 Nell. Abp. 1015. But though generally all the personal Easte of the Deceased’s, what Nature or Quantity, ought to be put into the Inventory; yet Goods given away in the Life time of the de-ceased’s Person, and actually in the Possession of the Party to whom given, and the Goods to which a Hus-band is entitled as Administrator to his Wife, are not. 3 Bulst. 555. And notwithstanding the Law requires that the Inventory be exhibited within three Months after the Death of the Person, if it is done afterwards, it is good, for the Ordinary may dispence with the Time, and even whether it shall be exhibited, or not, as where Creditors are paid, and the Will perform’d, &c. Rovm. 470. These Inventions proceed from the Civil Laws; and whereas by the old Roman Law, the Heir was obliged to answer all the Tenant’s Debts, &c., it was ordain’d, that Inventions should be made of the Substance of the Deceased’s, and he should be no further charged. The Columns and Ce-remonicies of Inventiones or Giving Possession, were long prattified with great Variety: At first Inventiones were made by a Form of Words; and afterwards by such Gifts of Ringe which had more Relevance to what was to be transferred; as Lands passed by the Delivery of a Turf, &c. which was done by the Grantor to the Per-son to whom the Lands were granted: But in After-Ages, the Things by which Inventions were made, were not to exactly observable. Jointstores of Lands. A Jointstore is a Settlement of Lands and Tenements made to a Woman in Consideration of Marriage; or it is a Covenant, whereby by the Husband or some Friend of his, affreth to the Wife, Lands or Tenements, for Term of her Life: It is called, either because it is granted Ratione Junditi in Maritivm, or for that Land in Frank Marriage was given jointly to Husband and Wife, and after to the Heirs of their Bodies, where by the Husband and Wife were made as it were Jointstores during the Covenance. 3 Rep. 27. Members of Parliament, Officers in the Government, Ecclesiastical Persons, Lawyers, &c. in Ireland, are to take the Oaths, or be liable to Forfeiture. The Statute 1 Ann. 1 c. 29, ordains, that Persons elected in the Popish Religion in Ireland, of eighteen Years of Age, shall take the Oaths, or be disabled to take Lands by Devise, Devel, &c. Protestant families being Palatines, settled in Ireland, are declared Naturalizers on their taking the Oaths of the Government. 1 Geo. 1 c. 29. And by 6 Geo. 1 c. 5, the jurisdiction of the Lords of Ireland to try Matters between commoners in the Courts of that Kingdom, was wholly taken away. See Stat. 4 Geo. 2 c. 15.

Irishies, (Extravas, from the Fr. Extrav., i.e. Emanatory) Hash divers Signification in Law, as sometimes it is taken for the Children begotten by a Woman after her Marriage, sometimes for Profits growing from American and Fines; the Merchants and other Owners of Lands and Tenements: But it generally signifies the Point of Matter, sluing out of the Allegations and Picard.
Pleas of the Plaintiff and Defendant in a Caufe, to be tried by a Jury of twelve Men. 1. 1. 13. 3. 12. 10.

The Uses concerning Causes are of two Kind: upon Matter of Fact, or Matter of Law: An Use in Fact is where the Plaintiff and Defendant have agreed upon no Tryal by a Jury but the Plaintiff is to take his Chance; and if he lose, as is where there is a Demand to a Declaracion, Plea, &c. and a Joinder in Demurrer, which is an Use at Law to be determined by the Judges. 1. Inf. 71. 72.

As to an Use of Fact, no, whether the Fact is true or false, which are triable by the Jury, they are either General or Special; General, when it is left to the Jury to try whether the Defendant hath done any such Thing as the Plaintiff lays to his Charge: as when he pleads, No guilty to a Trepass, &c. Special is when some special Matter, or material Point alleged by the Defendant in his Defence, is to be tried; as in Assault and Battery, Where the Defendant pleads that the Plaintiff struck him, &c. 1. Inf. 126. And when special Matter is alleged by the Defendant, both Parties join in the Tryal by a Jury, which is in general called an Action of Writ. 1. Inf. 128.

Matter amounting to the General Use, and special Matter of Jurisdiction, have been joined in one entire Plea, and held good. 3. Lev. 41. And where there is an Use upon Not guilty, and there are other Uses upon Jurisdiction, the Trial of the General Use of Not guilty is but Matter of Fact, and the other matters on special Matter upon special Matter. 3. Cas. Tot. 599.

In real Actions, Causes grown to Uses are tried by a Jury of twelve Men of the County where the Cause of Action arises: and in Criminal Cases, Uses are to be tried in the County where the Offence was committed: but this hath admitted of some Alteration by Statute. 3. Inf. 80, 115. 2. Rep. 93. The Place ought not to be made Part of the Uses; a transitory Action; it is not material, as it is in Real and Mix'd Actions. 34. Car. B. R.

If the Place is material, and made Part of the Uses, the Jury cannot find the Fact in another Place, because by the Special Pleading, the Point in the Action is referred to a certain Place; but upon the General Uses pleaded, the Jury may find all local Things in another County, and where the Substance of the Uses is found, it is good, and the Finding more may be Surplusage. 6. Exp. 46. 46. If an Use is of two Matters in two Counties, Tryal may be in one County, by the Stat. 12. &c. for that Statute extends to Causes where the Matter in Uses ariseth in two Counties, and the Trial is by one only, as well as were the Matter in Uses ariseth in two Places in one Country, and the Trial is by one only. Every Uses is to be joined in such a Court that hath Power to try it, otherwise the Uses is not well joined; for if the Cause cannot be tried, the Uses is frustrate, and if it be tried, the Trial is a Case non judicati. 23. Car. B. R. 1. Litt. abr. 84. Where an Uses is not joined, there cannot be a good Trial, nor ought Judgment to be given. 23. Niff. 1042. All Uses are to be certain and finite, and joined upon the most material Thing in the Cause; that all the Matter in Quetion between the Parties may be tried. 23. Car. B. R.

An immaterial Uses joined, where the Matter will not bring the Matter in Question to be tried, is not helped after Verdict by the Statute of Uses, but must there be a Repleader: But an inmaterial Uses as a Statute of Uses 2. Cas. 18. Nuff. 6. c. 50. helps Misjoining of Uses. A Repleader may be awarded after Verdict, for the Bad-nesses and Incertainty of the Uses: And a Judgment may be given upon an Immoral Uses; 1. Niff. 150. 1. 1. 12. 10. Upon a joint Trespass by many Persons, there must be only one Uses joined: and if several Offences be alleged against the same Person, all the Defeats must be tried by one Process, and offer an Uses upon that one, and no more. 1. Moore. 80. But in Action for Damages, according to the Law which the Plaintiff hath retained, every Part ought to be put in Usage. 1. Sand. 360. In Action upon the Cause for Service done for a Time certain, the Defendant ought to put in Uses all the Time alleged in the Declaration. 2. Lorr. 268. And upon a General Uses in Wadie, the Plaintiff must shew his Title. Ibid. 1547. Though when any special Point is in Uses, the Plaintiff is not obliged to set forth the Whole Matter. 3. 20.

If there are several Things in a Declaration, upon which no Uses is joined or may be joined, it is in any of them, it is good; and an Affirmative and a Negative will make a good Uses age 511, 510. There must be in every Uses an Affirmative on the one Part, as that the Defendant owes such a Debt, &c. and a Denial on the other Part, as he has not the Debt, &c. And though the Matter contradicts, yet there must be a Negative and Affirmative of it, to make a right Uses. 1. Pint. 303. 1. Also a Negative should be as broad and full as the Affirmative, or it is no Negative to make an Uses as if a Defendant plean a Grant of four Acres, and two Acres only are denied, 3. Cas. Tot. 88. It has been held, that if the Plaintiff taught not to be joined on a Traverse only, without answering the Affirmative, 1. U. 6. 102. But where the Matter, which is the Gift or Sale of the Acre, is not good, and good Verdict, though there was no Negative and Affirmative to make the Uses as in Debt upon Bond the Defendant pleads Payment, and concludes to the Country, without giving the Plaintiff Opportunity to deny the Payment, if the Jury in such Cause find the Money paid, it is good after Verdict. Sid. 541.

If several Uses are joined, and the Jury give a Verdict but as to one of them, the Whole is discontrued: And where there are two Uses joined, one good and the other bad, if entire Damages are given upon the bad, and nothing upon the good, the several Damages are found, the Plaintiff may release the bad Damages, and have judgment for the Rest. 1. Litt. abr. 87, 88. And it is said Judgment may be entered as to the Part of Uses of a Negative upon which Damages are found, to another Part of the same Uses, where it may be divided. 23. Car. B. R.

There may be a Plea to a Uses to Part, and a Demurrer to Part; which have no Dependence on each other. 1. Sand. 372. Where the Declaration of the Plaintiff is good, and the Plea of the Defendant is All if the Plaintiff in his Replication tenders an Uses upon such ill Plea, and a Trial is had, and it is found for the Plaintiff, he shall have Judgment. Cro. Car. 18. And when a Plea is naught, that the Plaintiff might have demurred upon it, and he doth not, but takes Uses, and it is found for the Defendant; this is aided by the Statute of Uses, and the Defendant shall have Judgment: So likewise where the Replication is naught, and Uses is taken upon it, and found for the Plaintiff, he shall have Judgment. Cro. Blis. 455. Cro. Jud. 312. If Uses be taken on a dilatory Plea, &c. and found against the Defendant, final and peremptory Judgment shall be given upon it is not GPLv. 1. &c. 118. A good Uses is offered to the Defendant, he ought not to plead over; and if he plead over, the Plaintiff shall have Judgment. 1. Sand. 358. 1. Uses does not stay the Statute but bars it. 1. Lorr. 268. A Plea being pleaded to the Plaintiff's Declaration, and the Plaintiff's Attorney's

For to bring such a Judgment before a Judge, inasmuch as he brings against an Expector upon the Bond of the Tefator, and he pleads Plena Admininiscitur, this is a Confection of the Debts; and the Plaintiff may have Judgment with a Court and Summum till the Debtor hath Affis. 4 Rep. 2 Neill. In Debt on Specialty, the whole and exact Sum must be demanded; or the Judgment upon it will not be good. Med. 41. If more or less than the Plaintiff demands, it is erroneous; though this may be helped by a remit of Damnum for Part. 2 Litt. 27. Where one recovers on Action for divers Tilings, and hath Verdict upon the Whole, but doth wave some one or more of the Things for which his Action was brought, and hath a special Judgment; in this Case he must release his Damages to all, and yet he may have Costs of Suit. Ibid. If Office is found against one Party in a Suit, and not against the other, Judgment may be for the Plaintiff to recover against him where the Master is found and a null et parum Billam is entered against the Plaintiff as to the other. 1 Saw. 216. And when several Damages are recovered against several Defendants, the Plaintiff may enter a null et parum Billam as to one of the Defendants, &c. and it must be against a Judgment against one only for the Damages against him. 3 Mod. 101. In Trepass and Assault against three Persons, they plead severally, and are found Guilty and entire Damnum and Wards is given, the Judgment is good; and where there is but one Judgment for the Damages against several, the Plaintiff may make his Election against which he will take his Judgment. Cas. 3a 184. Exch. 118. If one entire Judgment is given against two several Persons, and one of them is an Infant, the whole Judgment is void; (which being entire cannot be divided) except the Infant be joint Executor with the other Party. 2 Litt. 100. When a Judgment is entire, it cannot be divided, to make one Part of it good, and another Part thereof erroneous; but if it be not an entire Judgment, it may. Ibid. On Action where Damages are to be recovered, if the Declaration be good in Part, and insufficiant in Part, and the Defendant Demurs upon the entire Declaration; the Plaintiff shall have Judgment for that which is well laid, and be barred for the Rest. 2 Saw. 379. And if in Action of Debt upon three Bonds, it appears that one of the Bonds is good, the Plaintiff shall have Judgment for the other two.

Where a Judgment is partly by the Common Law, and partly by Statute, the Judgment at Common Law may remain and be good against the other. 1 Salk. 24. Every Judgment ought to be complete.
Judgments acknowledged for Debts. The Court for one to acknowledge a Judgment for Debts, is for him that doth acknowledge it to give a general Warrant, or a general Warrant in favour of the Attorney, or to render an Attorney of that Court where the Judgment is to be acknowledged, to appear for him at his Suit, against the Party who is to have the Judgment acknowledged unto him as also to file a Bond, and receive a Declaration, and then plead Non Sunt Invenitati, &c. or to let it pass by Noct dicit, wherein Judgment is entered for Want of a Pea. A Lill. 105. If one gives a Warrant of Attorney to confine Judgment, and dies before it is confined, this is a Countermand of the Warrant. 1 Pomer. 310. And if a Feme Sole gives Warrant of Attorney to confine Judgment, and marries before it is entered, the Warrant is also countermanded; and Judgment shall not be entered against Husband and Wife. 1 Salk. 309. A Man under Arrears gives Warrant of Attorney to confine a Judgment in B. R. if no Attorney for the Defendant is then present, the Court of B. R. on a Supposition that the Judgment was obtained by Force or Fear, will not file the same. 1 Salk. 400. If it has been adjudged that if one under Arrears gives a Warrant, to confine Judgment, if an Attorney be not by, it is ill; and to it is ill, if one under Arrears gives a Warrant to confine Judgment, he should give a Warrant of Attorney to confine a Judgment: But if one served by Prooys of an inferior Court, gives a Warrant for confining Judgment in that Court, B. R. will not file it aside, though an Attorney be not present. Mich. 2 Ann. Mod. Cas. 85. And where one has been in Prison some Time, and he confers Judgment to his Creditor voluntarily, that Judgment shall stand but no Judgment shall be made out against such a Person, without the Consent of the Attorney. Farquh. Rep. 115. A Judgment conferred upon Terms, being in Effect conditional, the Court will see the Terms performed: But where a Judgment is acknowledged absolutely, and a Subsequent Agreement is made, this does not affect the Judgment, and the Court will take no Notice of it. 1 Salk. 400. A Man gave Warrant and Judgment, defaulcated upon Payment of Money on such a Day, and it was agreed that Execution should not be issued out before; but a Fizir Scap was issued out a Month before and executed, upon Demand and Non payment of the Money: And though this was a Breach of the Agreement, it was for a just Debt, the Court would not undo any Thing, for Fear it would frustrate the Judgment. Mich. 2 Ann. Mod. Cas. 103. If Judgment be of such a Term, or any Time after; the Attorney may enter it at any Time during Life; but without such Words the Judgment must be entered the Term expressed in the Judgment and if it shall be prolonged, it may be extended the next Term. 1 Ann. 1. Or if it has been held, it may be entered within a Year after the Date of it: And if Judgment upon a Warrant of Attorney be not entered within the Year, it cannot be done without Leave of the Court, on Motion and Affidavit made of the Party’s being living, and the Debt not satisfied. 2 Litt. Acr. 118. 2 How. 255. It is dangerous to take a Judgment acknowledged in the Vacation, as of the preceding Term; and if any such Judgment be taken, the Warrant of Attorney to confine the same must bear Date before, or in the Term whereof it is confin’d: But the safest Way is to make it a Judgment of the Subsequent Term; though continuance Practice is otherwise. A Litt. 102. By Act of Parliament, the Party to enter Judgment as of a precedent Term, he must actually enter it before the Eighths Day of the succeeding Term: And if Judgment be signed in Hilary Term, and in the Easter Term be entered, and if before the Eighths of Easter Term, the Plaintiff enters his Judgment, it shall stand in the Hands of the Parcher; and if one enters Judgment in Hilary, when the Party is dead, the Judgment shall not.

The particular Times of en- ting Judgments of Debt, by Confection, Non Jus in Foro, &c. and docketing them after every Term, by the Clerks of Courts, &c. is directed by the Statutes 6 Ed. 2. and 5 W. & M. cap. 20. And no Judgment shall affect Purchasers of Lands or Mortgages till docketed; nor have any Preference against Heirs, Executors, &c. in the Adminis- tration of Estates. Ibid. Upon signing Judgment 6 Ed. 2. &c. to be paid the proper Officer, in Sa- tisfaction, or the Clerk of the Court, &c. is directed by the Statute 6 & 7 W. & M. c. 12. Judgment in Criminal Cases. No Man can be Attainted of Treason or Felony, but on Judgment by express Sentence, or by Outlawry, or Abjura- tion. 1 How. 447. And a Peron shall not have two Judgments for one Offence; for in Outlawry which is a Judgment, Execution shall be awarded against the Offender, but no Sentence pronounced. Finch 389, 457. But one convicted of a scandalous Libel, had Judgment to pay a Fine, and to go to all the Courts in Westminster Hall with a Paper in his Hat signifying his Crime; and on his Behaving immodestly, his Punishment was increased. 1 Salk. 401. No Judgment or Punishment can be inflicted without our Laws; but only by Act of Parliament. 2 How, 445. And the Law makes no Difficu- lty, in fixed and dated Judgments, between a Peer and a Commoner; or between a common and ordin- ary Case and an Ecclesiastic. 2 How. 445. Judgment cannot be given for a corporal Punishment, in the Absence of the Party. 1 Salk. 400. Though Perons may have Judgment to be fined in their Ab- sence, having a Clerk in Court to undertake for the Fine. 1 Salk. 56. Jurisdiction, (Jurisdiction) are in Nature of Aldermen, for the Government of many Corporations. As Romney Mayh is incorporate of one Bailiff, twenty- four Jurors, and the Commonalty thereof; by Chart, 1 Ed. 4. And we read of the Mayes and Jur- ors of Maidstone, Rye, Winchester, &c. Also Jerro- mer hath a Bailiff and twelve Jurors, or sworn Affid- ants, to govern that Island. The Name is taken from the French; for in France, among others, there are Major of Jurors, &c. They are mentioned in the Stat. 2 C. 5 Ed. 6. c. 30. And see 15 Ed. 1. 2 Scobell 267.

Jurisdiction, (Jurisdiction) Days in Court, on which the Law is administered. See Days.

Jurisdiction, (Jurisdiction) is an Authority or Power, which a Man hath to Act, or to Judge, in Cause of Complaint brought before him: Of which there are two Kinds: the one, which a Person hath by Reason of his Fee, and by Virtue thereof doth a Man, or in all Places, and in all Cases, without his Fee; the other is a Jurisdiction given by the Prince Prince to a Bailiff, as divided by the Normans: and by him whom they called a Bailiff, we may understand all those that have Committals from the King to give Judgment in any Cause. Culsum, Normand., cap. 2. The Courts and Judges at Westminster have jurisdiction all over England; and are not restrained to the City of London: But all the other Courts are confined to their particular Jurisdiction; which if they exceed, whatever they do is erroneous. 2 Litt., 129. There are three Sorts of Inferior Jurisdiction: The first whereof is Tenure Pluria, which is the lowell, and the Party may either sue there, or in the King's Courts: The second is Consequence of Pleas; and by this a Right is whihed in the Lord of the Franchize to hold Pleas; and he is the only Person that can take Advantage of it, by claiming his Franchize: The third Sort is an Exception: as where the King grants to some City, that the Inhabitants shall be used within their City, and not elsewhere: though there is no Jurisdiction, which can withstand a Coroner to the Superior Courts. 2 Bell., 79, 80. And a Court shall not be prefumed to have a Jurisdiction, where it doth not appear to have one. 2 Haw., 59. If an Action is brought in a Corporate Town, and the Plaintiff thereupon shall be acquitted in his Action which he has in the other Town, the Plaintiff shall be discharged there, and shall not insist in the other. Tulk, 362. Although a Cafe be debated and have Judgment in the Spiritual Court, yet the King's Courts may afterwards disdue the same Matter. Artic., Clarv., Stat. 16 Ed. 1. c. 34. In some Cases, the Spiritual and Temporal Courts have a concurrent Jurisdiction. See Courts, &c.

B. 48.* And the Writ Juris utrum, shall be granted to try whether free Almas belong to a Church, where they are transferred, &c. by Stat. 18 Eliz. 1. c. 34. If a Man intrude into Lands and Tenements, after the Death of a Parson, the Successor shall have this Writ: So if a Parson be divested of Lands, the same Cestui, by his Reconvey, and death, his Successor shall have a Writ of Juris utrum. *New Nat. Juris. (Jurisprudence) Is one of those Perfections that are sworn on a Juris, and the Law requires the Returning of able and sufficient Juris. 16 & 17 Car. 2. Juris. (Jurisdiction, from the Lat. Juris, that is, Power) Signifieth a certain Number of Men sworn to inquire of and try the Matter of Fact, and declare the Truth upon such Evidence as shall be delivered them in a Cause: And they are sworn Judges upon Evidence in Matters of Fact. The Privilege of Trial by Juris, is of great Antiquity in this Kingdom: some Writers will have it that Juris were in Use among the Britons, but it is more probable that this Trial was introduced by the Romans: Yet some say that we had our Trials by Juris from the Greeks; (the first Trial by a Juris of Twelve, being in Greece.) By the Laws of King Ethelred, it is apparent that Juris were in Use many Years before the Conquest; and they are as it were incorporated with our Confinement, being the most valuable Part of the trial law, without them no Man's Life can be impeached, (unless it be by Parliament) and no one's Liberty or Property ought to be taken from him, and their only use is in the Circuits of the Judges, in both other Courts and Masters: As if a Coroner inquire how a Person killed came by his Death, he doth it by Juris; and the Judges of Pleas, in both other Courts and Masters, are to try any Pleas in the County-Court, or in the Sheriff in his County-Court, or in the Court of the Steward of a Court-Lord or Court-Baron, &c. if they inquire of any Offence, to decide any Cause between Party and Party, they do it in like Manner; and at the General Assizes there are usually many Juris, because there are great many Causes, and both Civil and Criminal, commonly to be tried; whereof one is called the Grand Jury, and the said Petit Juris, of which it is said there should be one for every Hundred. Lamb. Eirenn, pag. 354. Anciently the Jury as well in Common Pleas, as in Assizes of the Crown inquire twelve Knights, according to Glossow and Bredin: And to make a Jury in a Writ of Right, called the Grand Assize, there must be Sixteen, viz. four Knights, and twelve others. Tulk, 612. The Grand Jury generally consists of twenty-four Men of greater Quality than the other, chosen indifferently out of the whole Jurors; and then the Sheriff and the Justice of the Peace convacth of twelve Men, of equal Condition with the Party indicted, imprisoned in Criminal Cases, called the Jury of Life and Death: The Grand Jury finds the Bills of Indictment against Criminals, and the Petit Jury convicts them by Verdict, in the Giving whereof all the Twelve must agree; and according to their Verdict the Judgment passeth. 3 Inf., 211. If the Common Law Jurors are to be returned, in all Cases for Trial of General Ills, from the County where the Fact was done. S. P. C. 154. And Jurors are to be Freemen, indifferent, and not outlawed or informers; Aliens, Men attainted of any Crime, ought not to serve on Jurors; and Infants, Persons seventy Years old, Clergymen, Apostate Carlists, &c. are exempted by Law from serving upon Jurors. 3 Inf., 211. Jurors. Barons of the Realm, and all above them, are not to serve in any ordinary Jury; and others may have this Privilege by Writ, or by the King's Grant, C. 6 Rep. 55. 3 Breton. 50. But such as are Charters of Exemption, shall not be excused, and shall serve upon great Alts, and in Attainders, &c. where the Security of the Realm is concerned. Statute. Jurors empanelled are to be the next Neighbours, most sufficient and least culpious; or the Officer shall forfeit double Damage. 28 Ed. 1. cap. 2. The Jurors of the City or Borough of Westminster, for that City, was given to the Mayor, &c. per Annum 8. E. 12. &c. which was increased to 4. l. per Annum by 27 Eliz. cap. 6. and is made 10. l. per Annum Freehold or Copyhold within the same County, by 6 & 7 Will. 3 M. cap. 44. But all Cities, Boroughs, and Towns, are excepted out of this last Act: And Trials of Felons in Corporations may be by Freemen worthy 60 l. in Goods, by the 23 Hen. 8. c. 13. Panels of Juris returned in such Case to return a Jury, may be reformed by the Judges of Gaol-delivery. C. 6 Hen. 8. c. 12. Jurors not appearing shall forfeit 40s. if they have no reasonable Excuse for their Default, min. 5. c. on the first Writ, upon the second 10. and the third Writ 13 l. 4s. 4d. 55 H. 8. cap. 6. Though no Jury is to appear, under the Officer for the Time, if it be known that the King was committed thirty Miles off, except the Attorney General require it. 18 Eliz. cap. 5. Confinbles of Parishes, &c. at Michaelmas Quarter-Session yearly, are to return to the Lord of the Manors, and Places of Abope of Persons qualified to serve on Jurors, between the Age of Twenty-one and Seventy, attested upon Oath, on Pain of forfeiting 5s. for their default; and the Judges of Peace shall order

Jutia (Jutius, or Jutia) Signifies an Officer deputed by the King to administer Jutia, and do Right by Way of Judgment; and is called Jutia, because in Antient time the Latin Word for him was Jutia, and for that he hath his Authority by Deputation, and not Juris Magnatiss. Glau. lib. 2. c. 6. In the King's Bench and Common Pleas, there are Chief Jutiae for the former of which, is called Capitale his Office, and is called Capitale Jutiae, be cause he is Chief of the Red; and for this Reason he is generally the Title of Lord Chief Jutia of England. This Jutia was antiently created by Letters Patent under the Great Seal; but is now made by Writ in this Sort Form: Rex, &c. Roberto Ray

And the ancient Dignity of this supreme Magistrate was very great; he had the Prerogative to be Vice gerent of the Kingdom, when any of our Kings governed, being chosen to this Office out of the grassest of the Nobility; and had the Power alone, which afterwards was divided to three other great Magistrates, that is, he had the Power of the Chief Jutia of the Common Pleas, of the Chief Bar ron of the Exchequer, and the Master of the Court of Wards; and he commonly sat in the King's Palace, and there executed that Authority which was formerly many as he had in the Common Pleas, in determining Differences which happened between the Barons and other great Persons of the Kingdom, as well as Causes Criminal and Civil between other Men: But Sibth. A manu annualem Redditiis de quandam con-

Sibbys. Are a certain Body of Persons of Kin or related to each other. There are three Degrees of Kindred in our Law; one in the Right Line descending, another in the Right Line attending, and the Third in the Collateral Line; and the Right Line descending, wherein the Kindred of the Male Line are called Agnats, and of the Female Line Coterminals, is from the Father to the Son, and so on to his Children in the Male and Female Line; and if no Son, then to the Daughter, and to her Children in the Male and Female Line; if neither Son nor Daughter, or if the Children of the Nephew and His Children, and if none of them to the niece and her Children; if neither Nephew nor niece, nor any of their Children, then to the Grandson or Granddaughter of the Nephew; and if neither of them, to the Grandson or Granddaughter of the Niece; and if none of them, then to the Great Grandson or Great Granddaughter of the Nephew and of the Niece, &c. &c. ad infinitum. The Right Line attending is directly upwards; as from the Son to the Father or Mother; and if neither Father nor Mother, to the Grandfather or Grandmother, the Great Grandfather or Grandmother, to the Great Great Grandfather or Great Grandmother, to the Father of the Great Great Grandfather, or the Mother of the Great Great Grandmother; and if neither of them, then to the Great Grandfather's Grandfather, or the Great Grandmother's Grandmother; and if none of them, to the Great Grandfather's Great Grandfather, or Great Grandmother's Great Grandmother, &c. &c. ad infinitum. The Collateral Line is either descending by the Brother and his Children downwards, or by the Uncle upwards: It is between Brothers and Sisters, and to Uncles and Aunts, and the kind of Kin, upwards or downwards, a cross and amongst themselves 2 Nelf. 4073. 1078. If there are no Kindred in the Right descending Line, the Inheritance of Lands goes to the collateral Line; if there are no Kindred in the collateral Line upwards, if there are any Kindred of the collateral Line, though it may ascend in that Line; and there is this difference between the Right Line descending and the collateral Line; that the Right of Representation of Kindred in the Right descending Line reaches beyond the Great Grandchild of the same Parent; but in the collateral Line, it doth not reach beyond Brothers and Sisters Children; for after them there is no Representation among Collaterals. In the Right ascending Line the Father or Mother are always in the first Degree of Kindred: and by the Civil Law, if the Son died without Issue, his Father or Mother succeeded, and after them his Brothers or Sisters, Uncles and Aunts; but in Case of Purchase by the Son, if he died without Issue, his Father or Mother could not inherit, but his Brother or Sister, &c. by which it appears, that the Father cannot succeed the Son immediately, though he is the next of Kin. It is a constant Rule in the collateral Line, that they who are of the Whole Blood are first admitted; but after Brothers and Sisters Children, the nearest in Degree in Kindred is to be considered, and not whether they are of the Whole or Half Blood; as for Instance; there were two Brothers of the Whole Blood, and one of the Half Blood, of the Whole Blood died, each of them leaving Issue a Son, then one of the Sons died without Issue, in this Case his Uncle of the Half Blood shall be admitted before the other surviving Son of his Brother by the Whole Blood: Yet if a Man purchase Lands and dies without Issue, it shall never go to the half Blood in the collateral Line; though it is otherwise in Case of a Defect from a common Ancestor. 2 Nelf. Abstr. Bid. The Children of the Brothers and Sisters of the Half Blood, shall exclude all other Adbertances, as Brothers Uncles and Aunts, and all remoter Kindred of the whole Blood in the collateral Line; but then the Brothers of the half Blood, and their Children, shall succeed equally by Stirping, and by the Capita, according to the distant Number of their several Persons. Bid. There are several Rules to know the Degrees of Kindred in the ascending Line, to which the Son shall add the Father, and it is one Degree ascending, then add the Grandfather, and it is a second Degree, a Person added to a Person in the Line of Confanguinity makes a Degree: and if there are more Persons, take away one, and you have the Number of Degrees, as if there are four Persons, it is the third Degree, if five the Fourth, &c. so that the Father, Son, and Grandchild, in the descending Line, with three Persons, make but two Degrees: To know in what Degree of Kindred the Sons of two Brothers stand, begin from the Grandfather and descend to one of the Sons, which is one Degree, then descend to his Son the Ancestor's Grandson, which is a second Degree; and then descend again from the Grandfather to the other Brother, Father of the other of the Sons, which is one Degree, and descend to his Son, &c. and it is a second Degree; thus reckoning the Person from whom the Computation is made, it appears there are two Degrees, and that the Sons of two Brothers are distant from each other two Degrees: For in what Degree either of them is distant from the common Stock, the Person from whom the Computation is made, they are distant between themselves in the same Degree, and in every Line the Person must be reckoned from whom the Computation is made. If the Kindred are not equally distant from the common Stock; then what in the same Degree they are distant between themselves, and so far as the most remote maketh the Degree; by which Rule, 1, and the Grandchild of my Uncle, are distant in the third Degree, such Grandchild being distant three Degrees from my Father, 2 Nelf. Abstr. 48, 49. The Common Law agrees in its Computation with the Civil and Canon Law, as to the right Line; and only with the Canon Law as to the collateral Line.

King. (Rom. from Lat. Regis to Rule, in Sax. Cening or Cening) Is a Monarch or Potestate, who 1 rules singly and soveraignly over a People; or he that has the highest Power and Rule in the Land. The Author of the Law, and the learned Bradon tells us, Rom. 291 Victorius & Mi- nifter Des in Terris, annus quidem 12 et 16 12 multas varias, 18. Des. Bibl. lat. 1 c. B. But our Kings and their Coronation, take an Oath of the following Parport, to. To govern the People of this Kingdom, according to the Statutes in Parliament agreed on, and the Laws and Customs of the same; to his Power cause Law and Justice in Mercy to be executed in all his Judgments; to maintain the utmost of his Power the Laws of God, the Free Profection of the Gospel, and the Protestant reformed Religion established by Law; and preferre to the Bishops and Clergy their Rights and Privileges, as by Law are appertaining to them: This is the ob- liation of our Kings, as regulated to be taken by 1 W. 1st & 2d. M. and the Coronation Oaths, in former Times, were undoubtedly a Contract between the King and the People, with this Natitude of the Nature of the Government of our King, says Fortescue, is not only Royal, but Political: If it were merely the former, Royal, he would have Power to make what Alterations he pleased in their Law, and impose Taxes and other Hardships upon the Subject, whether they would or no; but his Government be- ing Politicus, he cannot change the Laws of the Realm, without the Consent of the Realm, nor Book or Parliament, and has the Delegation of Power from the People: Like- wise our King is such by the Fundamental Law of the Land; and the King in his Name, it is not in the Power of the King, to take away any Rights or Liberty of his Subjects, or his Property in his Estate; and it is every Man's Concern to defend these, as well as the King in his lawful Rights. Fortescue 16. 9. Author has endeavoured to prove the original Contract between the King and the People, from the Prophet Samuel's Conference with the Israelites; who refused a King offered unto them, and in 2d Samuel 20. the Prophecy of the Head of the Commonwealth; and taking Notice of the Breaches made in the Constitution of this Kingdom in several Reigns, and the Necessity of their being redressed, affirms that it is the original Power and Constitution of the States of the Kingdom, to re instituted the regal Estate, as well where Kings are left arbitrarily and break through the Constitution, as where there is no immediate Heir to succeed the King, so that the Throne is actually vacant; and without this I take it there is no perfect Constitution. Brittan Confin. In King 1st's Magna Charta of Liberties, there was a Clause making it lawful for the Barons of the Realm to chuse twenty five Barons to see the Charter offered by the King; with Power, on any Justice or other Misrule of the King's failing to do Right, and acting contrary thereto, for four of the said Barons to address the King, and pray that the same might be remedied; and if the same were not amended in forty Days, upon the Report of the four Barons to the Rest of the Twenty-five, those twenty-five Barons with the Commonalty of the whole Land, were to be enabled to distribute the King, take his Castles, Lands, &c. until the King complaine'd of should be remedied, according to their Judgment; saving the Person of the King, Queen, and every other Person, or Persons, how high soever; and the Estates and Liberties and other Rights of the Nation, the People were to obey the King as before. King 1st's Magna Charta, cap. 73. But this Clause, and some others in Favour of Liberty, are omitted in King Henry VI's Magna Charta; though it is clear that the Statute made at Oxford, anno 42 Hen. 3. to reform Misgovernments, it was eneacted, that twenty-four Great Great Men should be named. Twelve by the King, and Twelve by the Parliament, to appoint Judases, Chancellors, and other Officers, and the younger Sons are born in Dukes and Earls of what Places the King pleases. K. Hen. 2. took his Son into a Kind of subordinate Regality with him, so there was Rex Peter and Rex Edw.; but he did not devote himself of his Sovereignty, but referred to himself the Homage of his Subjects. And notwithstanding this King, by Consent of Parliament, created his Son John King of Ireland, and King Rich. 2. made Robert de Vere Duke of Ulster; and Edu. 3. made his elder Son Lord of Ards, with Royal Dominion; yet it has been held, that the King cannot regularly make a King within his own Kingdom. 4 Esd. 357, 360. Hen. de Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick, was by King Henry 6. Crown'd King of Wight Island: but it was resolved, that this could not be done without Consent of Parliament, and even then our greatest Men have been of Opinion, that the King could not by Law create a King in his own Kingdom, nor that he could not create a King of the same Place: And afterwards the same King Henry made the same Earl of Warwick Prime Comes inuia Angliae. A King cannot reign or dignify himself of his Office of King, without the Consent of Parliament; nor could Hen. 2. without such Consent, divide the Sovereignty: There is a sacred Band between the King and his Kingdom, that cannot be dissolved without the free and mutual Consent of both in Parliament; and though in Foreign Kingdoms there have been Intercourse of Voluntary Ceilings and Restorations, which possibly may be warranted by their former Concessions, by the Laws of England, the King cannot resign his Sovereignty without his Parliament. Sir Matt. Hale's Hist. Co. If a King hath a King's Definent, where the Laws have taken good Effect and Rooting; or if a King Conquers a Christian Kingdom, after the People have Laws given them for the Government of the Country to which they submit, the succeeding King can alter the fame without the Parliament. Col's. 7 Rep. 17. It is nevertheless held, that conquered Countries may be governed by what Laws the King thinks fit, and that the Laws of England do not take Place in such Countries, until declared so by the Conqueror, or his Successors; here in safe of Inferiors their Laws do not cease, but only such as are against the Laws of God: and where the Laws are rejected or silent, they shall be governed according to the Rule of Natural Equity. 2 Salk. Rep. 411, 412, 665. Our King have disfranchised their whole Power of Judicature to the Courts of Justice; which Courts by Innominal Usages have gained a known and trusted Jurisdiction, that no King can alter without an Act of Parliament. 2 Hanc. P. C. 2. But as it has been resolved, that the Successor of every King begins his Reign on the very Day that the former King died; therefore all Patents of Judges, Sheriffs, Justices of Peace, &c. determine by the Death of the King. Though wide Stat. 1 Ann. c. 8. The Kings of England not having the whole Legislative Power, if the King and Clergy make a Canon, though it binds the Clergy as re Ecclesiastia, it does not bind Laymen: for they are not represented in the Convocation, but in Parliament: in the primitive Church, the Laity were present at all Synods: and when the Empire became Christian, no Canon was made without the Emperor's Consent, and indeed the Emperor's Consent in the People, he having in himself the whole Legislative Power: but the Kings of this Kingdom have it not. 2 Salk. Rep. 412, 673. Religion, Justice, and Truth, are the Supporters of the Crowns of Kings. See Crown, King's prerogative. The Statue of the King's Prerogative 17 Ed. 2. contains not the King's whole S X.

Prerogatives, but only so much thereof as concerns the Profit of his Colliers, for his Prerogative extends much farther: and the King hath divers Rights of Majesty peculiar to himself, which the Learned in the Law term Sacra Sacrament, nee Sacred and indestructible, and which are many and various. Statut' Prerog. Reg. Plowd. 314. Sir Henry Spelman calls the King's Prerogative, Lex Regis Dignitatis; and a great many Prerogatives arise to the King from the Reason of the Common Law, which allows that to be Law almost in every Case for the King, which is not so for the Subject; but the King's Prerogative does not extend to any Thing inconsistent with his Subjects; for the King by our Law can do no Wrong. Fisch. 85.

1 Inf. 19. The King's Prerogative is incident to his Crown, and ancient as that itself; and hath in it a Prescription, and is not only the Law of the Exchequer, but the Law of the Land; This Prerogative of the King is of a very large Extent; it reacheth not only to the coloured Prerogatives and distinctive Parliament; and all Statutes are to have his Royal Affent, which he may refuse to give to a Bill; though his Denial is not an express Negatur, but that he will not assent to it. But the King's Prerogative is so extensive, that he is Prima mixta, so is his Power and Prerogative. 7 Rep. 14. It is the King's Royal Prerogative to make War or Peace: And as Head of the State he cannot be sued by his own Subjects, nor by any Parliament; and all Statutes are to have his Royal Affent, which he may refuse to give to a Bill; though his Denial is not an express Negatur, but that he will not assent to it. Lapfet, [Laphia] is a Slip or Omission of a Patron to prefer to a Church, within Six Months after it becomes void, in which Case we say, that Benefice is in Leges or legia. 15 Ed. c. 13. And Legia is defined to be a Title given to the Ordinary to collate to a Benefice, on the Patron's Negligence in Prefenting within Six Months; and also to a Devolution of a Right of Prefenting from the Patron to the Bishop; from the Bishop to the Archipallio; and from the Archipallio to the King. Wood's Inf. 158. If after an Avoidance, the Patron does not present in six Months, the Ordinary hath the next six Months to collate to the Benefice; and if he doth not collate in six Months, then the Metropolitan hath further six Months; and if he does not collate within his six Months, it then devolves to the Crown. 2 Roll. Abr. 350. Hob. 30. rep. 17. And the Computation of the six Months is by the Kalendis Month, exclusive of the Day in which the Church became void. 6 Rep. 62. And so if the Patron makes his Presentation before the Archibishop hath collated, though the six Months be past: But if the Bishop collates after twelve Months, this bars not the Archibishop. 2 Rel. But if the King hath a Title to present by Leaf, and he suffers the Patron to present, and the Prebend dies, or regains before the King hath presented, if the Presentation be real and not by Covin, he hath lost his Prebension for Leaf is not for the fill and next Turn; and by the Death of the Incumbent, a new Title is given to the Patron: though it has been adjudged that the King in such Case may present at once as to the Prebend, but not to the Patron. 2 Cro. 216. 7 Rep. Mer. 244. When the Patronage of the Church is litigious, and one Party doth recover against the other in a Quarter Impoem, if the Bishop be named in the Writ, and six Months pass while the Suit is depending, Leaf shall incure to the Bishop: If the Bishop be named in the Writ, then the Archibishop or the King, can take the Benefice by Leaf: and yet it is said if the Patron within the six Months brings a Quarter Impoem against the Bishop, and then the six Months pass without any Pretence, then the Leaf shall incure to the Bishop. 2 Roll. Arch. 365. 6 Rep. 52. 1 Inst. 344. Hol. 270. Though where the Bishop in a Dilator, or the Church remains void above six Months by his Paizl, there shall be no Leaf. 1 Inst. 344. A Clerk presented being refused by the Bishop for any sufficient Cause, as in Litterature, Ill Life, &c. he is to give the Patron Notice of it, that another may be presented in due Time, otherwise the Bishop shall not collate by Leaf, because he shall not take Advantage of his own Prebend, in not giving Notice to the Patron as he ought to do by Law. Dyer 292. And if an Avasdance is by Refignation, which will necessarily be by the Bishop by the Act of the Incumbent: or by Deprivation, which is the Act of the Law, Leaf shall not incur to the Bishop, till six Months after Notice given by him to the Patron: When the Church by Deprivation is void of the Incumbent, &c. the Patron must present in six Months without Notice from the Bishop, or he shall lose his Prebend. 3 Rep. 75. 4 Rep. 75. In the Causes of Deprivation and Resignation, where the Patron is to have Notice before the Church can leaf, the Patron is not bound to take Notice from any Body but the Bishop himself, or other ordinary, which must be personally given to the Party, if he live in the same County; but such Notice must express in certain the Cause of Deprivation, &c. Dyer 999. And it has been adjudged, that Leaf is not an Interest, like the Patronage, but an Office reputed by Law to the Ordinary, and the Bishop is to provide a Church a Rector, in Default of the Patron: And it cannot be granted over for the Grant of the next Leaf of such a Church, either before it falls or after, is void. Larceny, (Fr. Larrere, Lat. Larcinum) is A Theft or Felony of another's Goods, in his Abundance; and in Respect of the Thing stolen, it is either great or small: Grand Larceny is a felonious Taking and carrying away the personal Goods of another, above the Value of 12d. not from the Person, or by Night, in the House of the Owner, and Petit Larceny is when the Goods stolen do not exceed the Value of 12d. It agrees with Grand Larceny in all Things excepting the Value of the Goods, so that wherever any Offender would be Grand Larceny, if the Thing stolen was above 12d. Value, it is Petit Larceny, if it be but of that Value, or under. H. P. C. 60. 69. If two Persons are suspected of the Value of 13d. it is Grand Larceny in both; and if one at different Times steals divers Parcels of Goods from the same Person, which together exceed the Value of 12d. they may be put together in one Indictment, and the Offender found Guilty of Grand Larceny; but this is very seldom done: On the contrary, the Jury sometimes, where it is an Offender's first Offence, &c. find it specially, as they may, that the Goods are but of 10d. Value, whereby it will be only Petit Larceny, though the Offender is indicted for stealing Things of the Value of 39s. 40d. 1 H. P. C. 70. 4 Inst. 109. Hol. Rep. 66. And Grand Larceny is a Felony punished with Death; Petit Larceny only with Whipping, or other Corporal Punishment, &c. But giving the Offenders the Benefit of Transportation by Statute. There is not only Single Larceny, by taking away the Goods of another, but a mixt or complicated Larceny, which has a further Degree of Guilt in it, and is either a Taking from the Person, or from the House; as in Case of Robbery, Burglary, &c. Alio there is a Private Larceny from a Man's Person, without his Knowledge: or an Open Larceny with his Knowledge; Private, by picking the Pocket, &c. Openly, with the Aid of another. This is by 37s. 22d. off the Periwig, from my Head, and runs away with it: And as to Private Larceny from the Person above 12d. it is excluded Clergy, if laid in the Indictment as done clam & silent, according to the Words of the Stat. 8 Eliz. but otherwise it is not: Open Larceny with Knowledge, by the Common Law is within the Benefit of Clergy. H. P. C. 75. Dal. cap. 110. 3 Inst. 68. 1 er. 224. Of all movable Goods, the Property whereof is in any Person, Felony, or Larceny may be committed; as Money, Houholdstuff, Hay, Corn and Fruits that there are on the Ground, &c. But the Goods stolen must be merely Personal, to make it Larceny; for it is by any Thing in the Reany, or fixed to the Freehold; as Corn, or Fruit growing on the Ground, &c. It is not Larceny. 3 Inst. 109. 8 Rep. 93. Dal. 372. And of Paper and Parchment, on which Conveyances are written concerning Lands, or Obligations, &c. Larceny cannot be committed. And for losing of 3 Inst. 366. But see Stat. 2 Gen. c. 12. as to stealing of Bonds and Notes; and the 4 Gen. c. 32. against dealing and taking away Lead, or Iron Bars from Houses, &c. Where a Person finds the Goods of a Carrier or Servant, and converteth them to his own Use, it is no Larceny. H. P. C. 61. To take away Goods the Owner of which is unknown, sometimes in the hands of the Servant, or in the Course of his official duties, is no Larceny.

The Law which we are discussing, is one of the oldest and most fundamental in the British legal system. It deals with the theft of goods by individuals, and the consequences that can arise from such actions. The Law of Larceny, as it is known, is divided into two main parts: Larceny and Theft.

Larceny refers to the act of stealing goods that belong to another person, with the intention of permanently depriving them of their possession. Theft, on the other hand, is the act of stealing goods for the purpose of converting them to one's own use.

In the case of Larceny, the act of stealing must be done with the intention of permanently depriving the owner of their property. If the person who steals the goods intends to return them to the owner, it is not considered Larceny.

Theft, on the other hand, is a broader category that includes Larceny. It includes not only the act of stealing goods for the purpose of converting them to one's own use, but also includes actions that cause damage to goods or property.

The Law of Larceny is an important part of the British legal system, and has been in place for many centuries. It has been refined and updated over time, but the principles behind it remain the same. It is a reminder to all of us, that the act of stealing another person's property is not acceptable, and that consequences will follow for those who commit such actions.

In conclusion, the Law of Larceny is an important part of the British legal system, and is a reminder to all of us, that the act of stealing another person's property is not acceptable, and that consequences will follow for those who commit such actions.

Defendant doth lack and lie hid, and cannot be found in the County of Middlesex to be taken by Bill, but is gone into some other County, to the Sheriff of which this Writ is directed, to apprehend him there. P. N. B. 78. Terms of Leg 421. The Original of it is this:—

In ancient Time, while the King’s Bench was movable, when any Man was fixed, a Writ was sent forth to the Sheriff of the County where the Court was resided called a Bill of Middlesex, to take him; and if the Sheriff returned non est inventus, then was a second Writ fired out, that had these Words, Care taken of good Latitut, &c., and thereby the Sheriff was commanded to attend the Party in any other Place, where he might be found: And when the Tribunal of the King’s Bench came to be settled at Westminster, the same Course was observed for a long Time: But afterwards, by the Conivance of Clerks, it was deviced to put both these Writs into one, and so attach the Defendant upon a Fiction that he was not in the County of Middlesex, but lurking elsewhere; and that therefore he was to be apprehended by the Sheriff of the County where he was suspected to be and lie hid. It is called a Tetratum Writ, issuing out of B. R. ground upon a Bill of Middlesex, supposed to be fired out before, and returned non est inventus: And a Latitut Court of the King’s Bench in Nature of the Original Writ Clausum frigio, on which the Practice is in the Common Plan. 2 Litt. Abridg. 147. A Latitut cannot issue into the County Middlesex, except the Court remove out of Middlesex into another County, for in the County where the Court of B. R. is, the Process must be by Bill, and out of the County by Latitut. Not. If the Writ of Latitut is issued during Term-Time, the Teefe thereof is to be the first Day of the Term; and if in the Vacation, it must be the last Day of the Term preceding: A Note is to be made of it on Paper for the Record, and the Latitut cancelled, when the Matter is filled up, is to be carried with the Note to the King’s Bench Office, and there the Writ is figured; from whence it is carried to the Seal Office, where it is sealed, and the Day stamped on the Back side; and then a Warrant is to be procured from the Sheriff of the County to execute the Writ. Practic. So. B. 197. And when any Person shall be forth of B. R., any Latitut, Alias, and Pluribus against any Person, who thereupon appears and puts in Bail: if the Plaintiff do not declare within three Days, or after Declaration be discontested, &c., the Judges shall award Damages. Laud, (In Sax. Leg. Lat. Lex, from Legi or Leg-aro, choosing, or rather à Legato, binding) Is the Rule and Bond of Men's Actions: Or 'tis a Rule for the well governing of a Civil Society, to give to every Man that which doth belong to him. According to Bracton, Lex o sancto juxta, jubes homins & probiritos Contrariis: And the Divine Schoolman says, Lex Humana of quidem divinam rationem, quia diriguntur humanis aditus. The Law is Rectum, as it discovers that which is crooked or wrong; and these three Qualities are incident to the Law, wise. It must be Jus, jubes hominis, Prohibita Contrariis: And jusa requires five Properties: Posibili, Necessaria, Communica, Manifesta, nullis privatis conceda. A Co. Infr. c. 87. The Law is said to be Arbitrary; the Natural Law of the last of which are essentially just and good, and bind every where and in all Places where they are oblige.

A. The Law is arbitrary concerning such Matter as is in itself morally indifferent, in which Code both the Law and the Matter, and Subject of it is likewise indifferent, or concerning the natural Law itself; and the Regulating thereof; and all arbitrary Lawes are founded in Convenience, and depend upon the Authority of the Legislative Power which appoints and makes them, and are for maintaining publick Order: Those which are natural Lawes, are from God; and those which are arbitrary, are properly human and positive Institutions. Seiden an Fortuna, cap. 17.

The learned Selden tells us, that the Lawes of any Country began, when first began to be a State in the Land: And that we may consider the World as one universal Society, and then that Law by which Nations are governed, is called Jus gentium; if we consider the World as made up of particular Nations, the Law which regulates the publick Order and Right of them, is termed Jus publicum; and that Law which determines the private Rights of Men, is called Jus civilis. Ibid. No Law can oblige a People without their Consent; now this Consent is either Verbs or a Feble, i.e. it is expressed by Writing, or implied by Deeds and Actions; and where a Law is grounded on an implied Affirm, refers & Jusfebl, it is either Common Law, or Custom; if it is universal, it is Common Law, or a General Law, or a particular Law, but if it is Cusom. 3 Salk. Rep. 112. The Law in this Land had been variable; the Roman Lawes were in Use anciently in Britain, when the Romans had overthrown the Laws of the Province, here, each of which was governed by the Romian Laws: Afterwards we had the Laws called Mercen-

The Common Law, which is the most accient and general Law of the Realm, and common to the whole Kingdom: being appropriate thereto, and having no Dependence upon any Foreign Lawe what-or; 2. Statutes or Acts of Parliament, made and pasbicted by the King and the Lords and the Commons in Parliament: being a Referre for the Government to provide against new Mischler arising through the Correspondency of the Times; And by this the Common Law is amended where defective, for the Suppression of publick Evils; though where the Common Law and a new Lawe or Custom intermingle, the Common Law shall be preferred. 3. Particular Customs: but they must be particular, for a general Cusom is Part of the Common Law of the Land. Cr. Lit. 15. 115. There is another Division of our Lawes, more large and particular; as into the Prerogative or Crown Lawes; the Law and Cusom of Parliament; the Common Law, the Statutes Reasonable Cusomens, the Law of Warr and Peace a Chastity, or Crown Lawes; or Canon Lawes; Civil Lawes, in certain Courts and Cales; Forfe Lawes; the Law of Marque and Repriseal, the Law of Merchants; the Law and Privilege of the Statesmen, &c. But this large Division may be reduced to the common Division; and all is founded on the Law of Nature or Reason, and the revealed Law of God, as all other Lawes are to be. 1 Co.

Infr. 11. The Law of Nature, is that which God at Man's Creation inflicted in him, for his Preservation and Direction; and this is Law eterna, and may not be changed: And no Lawe shall be made or kept, that are expressly against the Law of God, written in his Scripture; as to forbid what he commanded, 2 Thess. 2. 13. As to the Law of Nature, it is generally the Law of all Places, Perions and Times, without Alteration; and has the same Force all the World over. But it is limitable, as Circumstances require; and limited Law of Nature, is the Law enacted in every State. All Lawes derive their Force a Legi Naturae; and those which do not, are accounted as no Lawes. And so it is said, All men are at liberty to do wrong: And there are some Things that the Lawe favours, and some it disfavour, it favour about those Things that come from the Order of Nature. 1 Infr. 183, 157. All our Lawe hath much more Respect to Life and Liberty, Freehold, Inheritance, Matters of Record, and of Subsistance; than to Charnes, Things in the Personality, Matters not of Record, or Circumstances. Ibid. 197. & Rep. 114.

Law of Arms, (Lex Armament) Is that Law which gives Precepts how to proclaim War, make or

The Law and Judgment of Arms are necessary between tween two regnant Princes of equal Power, who have no other Method of determining their Controversies, but have a Superior or ordinary Judge, but are supreme and publick Persons; and by the Law of Arms, Kings obtain their Rights, Rebels are reduced to Obedience, and Peace is established: But when the Law of Arms and War do rule, the Civil Law is of little or no Force. Treat. Law. 57. It is a kind of Law among all Nations, that in Case of a solemn War, the Prince that conquers gains a Right of Dominion, as well as Property over the Things and Persons he has subdued; and 'tis for this Reason, because both Parties have appealed to the highest Tribunal that can be, on the Trial by Arms and War, wherein the great Judge and Sovereign of the World, in a more especial Manner, seems to decide the Controversy. Lease: But if the Agreement hath a Reference to the Lease to be made, and implies an Intent not to be perfected till then; it is not a perfect Lease until made afterwards. Bridg. 13. 3 Skip. Abr. 374. If a Man on Promises to make a Lease to him, lays out Money on the Premises, he shall oblige the Leese afterwards to make the Lease: The Agreement being executed on the Leesser's Part: Where no such Expence hath been, a bare Promiss of the Lease for a Term of Years, though the Leesser have POSsession, shall not be good without some Writing. Preced. Can. 561. A Person feid of an Estate in Fee Simple, in his own Right, of any Lands or Tenements, may make a Lease for himself, for what Lives or Years he will; and he that is feid of an Estate tail in Lands, may make a Lease of it for his own Life, but not longer; except it be by Fine or Recovery, or Lease warranted by the Stat. 32 H. 8. And if Tenant in Tail, or for Life, make a Lease generally, it shall be confined for his own Life. 1 Inf. 42.

He that is feid of an Estate for Life, may make a Lease for his Life, according as he is feid; also he may make a Lease for Years of the Estate, and it shall be good as long as the Estate for Life doth last: One feid of Lands, makes a Lease of all the Years, except one Day, or any short Part of the Term; it is to be granted for a left Term than the Maker has in the Lands; for if all the Estate is granted, it is an Affair Set. And if Lease for Years makes a Lease for Life, the Leesser may enjoy it for the Leftor's Life, if the Term of Years lasts so long; but if he gives Livery and Seisin of it, this is a Forfeiture of the Estate for Years. Wind. Inf. 257. Joint-ments, Tenants in Common, and Coparceners, may make Leases for Life, Years, or at Will, of their own Parts, and the term of the Lease by Tenant in Tail, &c.

as are not feid of Lands in Fee, &c. may make Leases for Life or Years, by special Power enabling them to do it, when the Authority must be exactly expressed. But there is a difference, where there is a general Power to make Leases, and a particular Power. 8 Rep. 69. A Lease for Life cannot be made to commence in future, by the Common Law; because Livery cannot be made to a future Estate. 8 Rep. 69. Where a Lease is made for Life, Hendreden at a Day to come, and after the Day, the Leaser makes Livery before the Term of the Lease shall expire, he may give Livery after, or after the Death of the Leesser. 8 Rep. 156. If one make a Lease for Years; after the Death of A. B. if he die within ten Years; this is a good Lease, in Case he dies within that Time, otherwise not.

And where a Man has a Lease of Lands for eighty Years, and he grants it to another to hold for thirty Years, to begin after his Death; it will be good for the whole thirty Years, provided there be so many of the eighty to come at the Time of the Death of the Leessor. Bras. Grant. 54. 1 Rep. 155. A Lease made from the Leessor's Death, until Anna Domini 1750 is good: And if a Lease be during the Minority of J. S.

or until he shall come to the Age of Twenty-one Years; there are good Leases; and if he die before his full Age, the Lease is ended. Hob. 174. A Person interests of 10 Years, till an hundred Pounds be paid, is a Lease of the Rent for five Years. Co.

Litt. 42. If a Man makes a Lease of Land to another, then he shall levy out of the Profits one hundred Pounds, and as much as this will pay, to have a Lease Lease for Life, determinable on the Payment of the hundred Pounds, if Livery and Seisin be made: But if there be no Livery, it will not be good for Years, but woid for Uncertainty. 21 Geo. 2. 18. Plowd. 28. 6 Rep. 35.

A Lease
A Leafe for Years to fuch Perfon as A.B. shall name, is not good: Though it may be for fo many Years, as he shall name; no as shall be named by his Executor, &c. for it must be in the Life-time of the Parson. And if a Man makes a Leafe to another for fo many Years as a third Perfon shall name, when the Years are named by fuch Perfon, it is good for fo many Years. 1 Inf. 45. So if a Perfon lets his Lands for as many Years as he hath in the Manor of D. and he hath then a Term for ten Years, this is a good Leafe for ten Years; and in the like Cases, by referring to a Certainty, it may be made good and certain. 1 Inf. 47. A Leafe may be made for Life or Years, of any Thing that lies in Livery or Grant; but Leafe for Years ought to be made of fuch Lands, &c. whereunto the Lessor may come to dilinat; not as of incorporeal Inheritance. 1 Inf. 47. And they may be for the Term of thousand Years, any Number of Years, Months or Weeks; or be from Week to Week, &c. for one, two or three Years, and be good for three Years: And a Tenant for Half a Year, or a Quarter of a Year, is Tenant for Years. 1 Inf. 6. If one makes a Leafe for a Year, and fo from Year to Year, it is a Leafe for two Years; and afterwards it is but an Eflate at Will. 1 Med. 4. 1 Lanw. 212. And if from three Years or three Years, it is a good Leafe for fix Years: Alfo if a Man make a Leafe for Years, without laying for how many, it may be taken to extend to a Leafe forever; and so on:

and the Life of the Survivor of them; and though the Lessor can have it no longer than his own Life, yet his Ailifee shall have the Benefit of it fo long as the other two are living. 5 Rep. 15. Nov. 32.

Where one grants Lands to A.B. and C.D. to hold to them during their Lives, although the Words and the longer Live of them be omitted, they shall hold it during the Life of the longest. 5 Rep. 19.

A Leafe is made to a Perfon for fuchs Years, if A.B. and C.D. fo long live; and afterwards A.B. dies, by his Death the Leafe is determined. Though if the Words of the Leafe be, To hold during the Life of the longest of them, C.D. the Freehold doth not determine by the Death of one of them; and if in the other Cafe of a Term, the Words or other of them be inferred in the Leafe, it will be good for both their Lives. 13

Rep. 60. A Leafe was made to a Man for ninety-nine Years, if he should fo long live; and if he died within the Term, the Son to have it for the Reidue of the Term: This was adjudged void as to the Son, because there can be no Limitation of the Reidue of a Term which is determined. Cr. Eliz. 216.

But if the Words of the Leafe be, To hold during the Reidue of the ninety nine Years, and not during the rejl of the Term, in this Cafe it may be good to the Son alive. 1 Rep. 136. Dyer 253. A Leafe was made to Twenty Years, if the Leafee lived fo long, and in the Service of the Lessor; the Lessor died within the Term, and yet it was held that the Leafe continued, fo it was by the Premise of God that the Leafee could live no longer. Cr. Eliz. 643.

If a Leafe be to a Man, and to his whom he shall take to be his Wife, it is void: Because it is not fo much as a Lessor in any Cafe had the Leafe for Years, the Term of the Commencement of the Leafe which might take. 1 Leiz. 158. When a Leafe in Reversion is granted as fuch as another Leafe, and that Leafe is void by Nature, and the Term commences, the Lessor is void:

and flant upon the Leafe for Years that is void, is void ally. Cr. Cas. 269. But where a Man recites a Leafe, when in Truth there is no Leafe or a Leafe which is void, and mistakes the fame in a Point material, and grants a further Leafe to commence after the Determination thereof; in fuch Cafe the new

Leafe shall begin from the Time of Delivery. Dyer 93. 6 Rep. 36. Fagby. 73, 80, 8c. A Leafe that has an impoffible Date for its Commencement, is laid to be void; and an uncertain Limitation makes the Leafe void, because it is uncertain that the Covenant of the Court cannot determine what the Contract was. 1 Med. 180. Though it hath been adjudged, where a Leafe bears a Date which is impoffible, the Term shall begin from the Delivery, as if there was no Date. 1 Inf. 40. If a Leafe be to hold from the Day of the Date, the Day itself is excluded; otherwise the Day of Delivery is inclusive. 4 Rep. 46.

A Man makes a Leafe for Years to one, and afterwards makes a Leafe for Years to another of the fame Land; the fecund Leafe is not void; but shall be good for fo many Years thereafter, as fhall come after the firft Leafe ended. Noy. Max. 67.

And if one make a Leafe for Years, and afterwards the Leafee enters upon the Lands let, before the Term is expired, and makes a Leafe of chife Lands to anotheft; this second Leafe is a good Leafe until the Leafee doth re-enter, and then the firft Leafe is recovered, and he is in as good a Condition as if the Term had been held, that a Leafe may be void as to one, and ftrand good to another: And Leaflis voidable, or void for the Preffent, may after become good again.

If a Leafe is made to hold to him and another, it is voidable as to the two other Perfons; and when the two firft die, the Leafe is an End. A Leafe which is only voidable, and not absolutely void, must be made void by the Lessor by Reentry;

but but if a Lease be void absolutely, there needs no Re-entry: As and a voidable Lease is made void by Re-entry, without going out the Lease; for it is after Repair, by accepting and receiving the Rent, which ocknowledge the Leetee to be Tenant. 21 Car. B. R.
2 Litt. 149. If a Leetee accepts of Rent of an Alligation in a Grant, having Knowledge of the Not Glover-ment, he may not afterwards charge the Leetee with the Rent in Action of Debt. 3 Rep. 23. And where a Leetee for Years accepts of Rent for the Term at Leetee, even by Word, it is said this is a Surrender of the Term which he had by Deed. Style 548.
When a Term for Years in Lease, and a Fee simple, meets in one Perion, the Lease is drowned in the Inheritance; yet in some Cases it may have Continuance, to make good Charges and Payments. 8.
Es. 59. 2 Nell. Abr. 1100. If a Lease for Years is made to a Man and his Heirs, it shall go to his Executors. 1 Inf. 46, 338. And a Leetee for Years, notwithstanding it be a very long Lease, cannot be instituted; but may be aligned in Truth, to several Units, 2 Litt. 148. If such a Lease comes to be limited in Tail, the Law allows not a present Remainder to be limited thereupon. Ibid. Leetee for Years, though for never so great a Term, has only a Challet; but Tenant for Life hath a Freehold. 1 Inf. 9. A Lease is feald by the Leetor, and the Leetee hath not feald the Counterpart, Action of Covenient may be brought upon the Leetee against the Leetor: But where the Lease is feald by the Leetee, and not the Leetor, nothing operates. T. L. 18.
Owen 100. If the Leetee only feald one Part of Leetee, the Leetee is as much bound by it as if he did feal it. Finch 109. A Man out of Possession, cannot make a Lease of Lands, without entering and sealing the Lease upon the Lands. Daily 488. The Leetor is to enter on the Premises let; and such Leetee for Years is not in Possession, so as to bring Trefpass, 8c. until actual Entry; but he may grant over Entry for the next Term, 1 Inf. 46. 2 Litt. 160.
A Leetee of a future Interest never enters by Virute of his Term, but enters before, and continues after the Commencement of the Term; and if then the Leetor ouls him, the Lease may sit over his Term off from the Land. 1 Lev. 47. But a Leetee to begin at Michaelmas, if the Leetee enters before Michaelmas, and continues the Possession immediately, it is a Difficrib. 2 Inf. 46. If a Lease be made of a Cloef of Land, by a certain Name, in the Parish of A. in the County of B. whereas the Cloee is in another County, the said Parish extending into both Counties; such a Lease is good to pass such Land: Though where a House is leald without a Manor, and the Parish be di different, or it has been held otherwise. Dyer 252, 257. Land and Mines are leald to a Tenant; this only extends to the open Mines, and the Leetee shall not have any others, if there be such: And if Land and Timber be demised, the Leetee is not empowered to sell it. 2 Lev. 184. 2 Med. 193. A Man makes a Lease of Lands for Life, or Years, the Leetee hath but a special Interest in the Timber-Tree, as annexed to the Land, to have the Malt and Shadow for his Cattle; and when they are severed from the Lands, or blown down with Wind, the Leetee shall have them till the Parcel of his Inheritance. 3 Rep. 62. 1 Rep.

mentioned in the Lease to the contrary. 8c. Max.
Though as a Leetor gives Notice to the Leetee that he has the House let to him which is burnt by Accident; if there be not a special Covenant in the Leetee, that he shall leave the House in good Repair at the End of the Term: Yet if the House be burnt by Negligence, the Leetee shall repair it, although there be no such Covenant. Pap. 24 Car. B. R. 8c. A Leetee at Will is not bound to furnish or repair, or any Recom pense be made by such Perion for Damage as not to extend to, or make void any Agreement between Landlord and Tenant; and negligent Firing of Houses is liable to Penalties. A Leetee who hath Fee, cannot refer Rent to any other but himself, his Heirs, 8c.
And if he refers a Rent to his Executors, the Rent shall be to the Heir, as Incident to the Reversion of the Land. 1 Lev. 47. The Leetor may djudged this does not determine the Edifices at Will. 5 Rep. 10. Tenants at Will grants over his Estate to another Tenants at Will, and Bishops, 6 Rep. 11. and 12. Tenants at Will grants over his Estate to another which is a Tenement shall leave Leases of such two Farms, in any Tenors, Village, &c. nor hold two, unlese he dwell in the Parish, under Penalties and Forfeitures, by grant 25 H. 8. c. 13. See 21 H. 8. cap. 13. There is a late Statute for the more effectual preventing Frauds committed by Tenants; and for the more easy Recovery of Leases of lands, in possession of twenty years, which Chief Leases of Lands may be removed on Surrender, without the surrendering of the Under Leases, 4 Geo. 2. c. 28. And how Leases of Lands, &c. left uncultivated, may become void, for non Payment of Rent, on view of two Judices of Peace, &c. by the late Act 11 Geo. 1. cap. 19. See the Purport of those Statutes, under Rent.

Leases by Bishops. There are three Kinds of Persons, who may make Leases for Life or Years by Statute, that could not do so heretofore, one, Tenants in Tail, in Estate and Were of the Wife's Land, and Persons fled of Land in Right of the Church. By the Stat. 33 H. 8. c. 18. Tenants in Tail are enabled to make Leases on the following Conditions, vis. They are to be made by Deed Indented; to begin from the Time of Making, or some short Time after, as Michaelmas next, &c. If there be an old Lease in Being, it must be absolutely surrendered, or expires within a Year after the making of the new; they must not exceed three Lives or twenty-one Years, from the making, or be for both, but may be for less Terms; they are to be of Lands manurable or corporeal, out of which a Rent may be legally insuring; and of such Lands or Tenements which have been most commonly let to Farm by the Space of twenty Years; the ac-cultivated, part of a Farm, is to be leasable, or twenty years is to be referred; and they are not to be made without Impeachment of Waffe, &c. It has been held on this Statute, that where a new Thing is demised with Lands of the same Kind, or the same Nature and Quality, or near the same, the Leases are to be referred; and the renewal of the Leases may be referred. 5 Rep. 5. 6 Rep. 37. And the Leases according to the Statute bind the Inheritors in Tail; but not those in Reversion or Remain-er: For if Tenant in Tail makes a Lease warranted by the Statute, and dies without Issue, the Lease is to be made to the Husband of the Wife, at a common Recovery, Leases may be made to bind him in Remainder, &c. What's Infr. 267. A Guardian during the Minority of an infant Tenant in Tail, who was but one Year old, made a Lease for twenty years; and it was adjudged not good by the Stat. 33 H. 8. to bind the Issue in Tail; and it is the same in the Case of Tenant in Dowry. Tenant by the Currecy, or Husband fled in Right of his Wife, because they have no Inheritance. Dyer 271. The Statute impowers a Husband to make Leases of Land in Tail, held in his Wife's Right, as to such Leases the Condi-tions aforementioned are observed, and the Wife be made a Party to and seal the Leases and the Rent is to be referred to the Husband and Wife, and her Heirs, &c. If a Lease of the Wife's Land is not warranted by the Statute, it is a good Lease against the Husband, though not against the Wife: The Husband and Woman cannot bind in Reversion or Remainder, 1 Rep. 352. Bis-shops, Spiritual Persons, &c. Sealed in Fee in Right of their Church, may make Leases of their Spiritual Livings for three Lives, or one and twenty Years, however, in case of the Death of Leases made by Tenants in Tail, 33 H. 8. And Leases otherwise made are to be void; but not against the Bishops, &c. making them, only against their Successors. 5 Rep. 39. At a Bishop, &c. may make Leases of Lands for twenty-one Years, or three Lives, according to the Statute, without Confirmation of Deans and Chapter, and at Common Law might make them for any longer Time, without Limitation, with Confirmation of Dean and Chapter; but this is restrained by the Statutes 13 Eliz. c. 10. and 13 Eliz. c. 11. and 12 Eliz. c. 10. and 15 Eliz. c. 10. shall not extend to Leases of Masters and Fellows of Colleges, &c. of Houses in Corporation Town, which may be made for forty Years, &c. But the 15 Eliz. c. 11. makes void Leases of Masters and Fellows of College. Deans and Chapters, Masters of Colleges, &c. of where another Lease for Years in Being, and not to be expired or surrendered within in three Years: a Bishop, &c. may make Leases for twenty one Years or three Lives, referring the accervuated Rents, &c. Bishops are out of this 6 B Statute.
Statute. If a Bishop be not Bishop de jure, Leases made by him to charge the Bishopric, are void; though all judicial Acts by him are good. 2 Cre. 353. And a Bishop makes a Lease, which may tend to the Diminution of the Revenues of the Bishopric, Gr. which should maintain the Succeeder: there the Deprivation or Translation of the Bishop, is all one with his Death. 1 Jac. 3. 230. Also all Affurances and Demises of Bishops Lands to the King, shall be void. 1 Jac. 1. c. 5. Persons for whose Lives Estates are granted beyond Sea, or being absent seven Years; if no Proof be made of their being alive, shall be accounted dead. 19 Car. 2. c. 6.

Leases of the King. Leases made by the King, of Part of the Duchy of Cornwall, are to be for three Lives, or thirty-one Years, and not be made dispensable of Waits, whereas the ancient Rent is to be received; and Estates in Reversion, with those in Possession, are not to exceed three Lives. 13 Car. 2. c. 4. All Leases and Grants made by Letters Patent, or Indentures under the Great Seal of England, or Seal of the Crown, are invalid, by Copy of Court Roll, according to the Custom of the Manors of the Duchy of Cornwall, not exceeding one, two or three Lives, or the Term determinable thereunto, etc. are confirmed; and Covenants, Conditions, &c. in Leases for Lives or Years, shall be good in Law, as if the King were feigned in Fee Simple. Stat. 1. Jac. 2. c. 9. See 28 & 29. Edw. 1. 1. 13. & 14. 1. & 2. & 3. & 4. C. 3. & 2. & 1. & 17. & 9. & 8. & 7. & 6. & 5. & 4. & 3. & 2. & 1. & 16. & 15. & 14. & 13. & 12. & 11. & 10. All Leases from the Crown in England and Wales, and under the Seals of the Duchy of Lancaster, &c. for one, two or three Lives, or Terms not exceeding fifty Years, are good in Law, as if the King were feigned in Fee Simple. D. his Wife, and T. D. his Son, and during the Life natural of every and either of them longest living. Lease and Beatfee, is a Conveyance of Right or Interest in Lands or Tenements, to another that hath the Possession thereof. Deed of Gift, Though the Deed of Feoffment was the usual Conveyance at Common Law; yet since the Stat. 1 H. 8.
of Ues, the Conveyance by Leahy and Rel ease has taken Place of it, and is become a very common Affair upon such Lands and Tenements; for it amounts to a Feoffment, the Ue drawing after it the Possession without actual Entry, &c. and supplying the Place of it over and about, as required in that Deed. In the making it, a Leahy or Bargain and Sale for a Year, or such like Term, is first prepared and executed; to the Intent that by Virtue thereof the Leahy may take actual Possession of the Lands intended to be conveyed by the Rel ease, and thereby and by Force of the Statute 27 H. 8. c. 10. for transferring of Ues into Possession, be enabled to take and accept a Grant of the Reversion and Inheritance of the said Lands, &c. to the Ue of himself and his Heirs for ever: Upon which the Rel ease is accordingly made, registered by the Leahy, and declaring the Ue: And in these Cases, a Pepper-Corn Rent in the Leahy for a Year is a sufficient Reversion to raise an Ue, to make the Leahy capable of a Rel ease. 2 Thyn. 35. 2 Med. 362. When an Eph any conveyed by Leahy and Rel ease, in the Leahy for a Year there must be the Words Bargain and Sell for Money, and 5 s. or any other Sum, though never paid, is a good Con- dition, whereupon the Bargain for a Year is immediately in Possession on the Executing of the Deed, without actual Entry: If only the Words Demise, Grant, or such like are used, in that Case of Leahy and Rel ease cannot accept of a Rel ease of the Inheritance until he hath actually entered and is in Possession. 2 Litt. Abr. 435. But where Littleton lays, that if a Leahy is made for Years, and the Rel ease relates to the Leahy before Entry; such Rel ease is void, because the Leahy had only a Right, and not the Possession; and such Rel ease shall not enure to enlarge the Eph any, without such Power or Grant. Though this is true in Com- mon Law, it is not so now upon the Statue of Us. 2 Med. 250. 251. And if a man make a Leahy for Life, Remainder for Life, and the first Leahy dies on the, the Leahy overtransfers to him Old Remainder, before Entry; this is a good Rel ease to enlarge the Eph any, he having an Eph any in Law capable of Enlargement by Rel ease, before Entry had. 1 In. 270. No Perf can make a Bargain and Sale, who hath not Possession of the Lands: But it is not necessary to Reserve a Rent therein, because the Condemnation of Monies to be paid into the Ue. If a Leahy be without any such Condemnation, the Leahy hath not any Eph any till Entry, nor hath the Leahy any Revocation; and there- fore a Rel ease will not operate, 3 & 11. 1. 1 Med. 270. 278. Cre. Jus. 169. 1 Med. 263. On Leahy and Rel ease, a Rel ease shall be good by Reason of the Pri- vacy between the Parties: But if a Man be only Te- nant at Sufferance, the Rel ease will not Enure to him; and as to the Perf who hath the Revocation it is void, for such Tenant hath not any Possession, there being no Eph any in him. Litt. Stat. 461, 462. Cre. 57. 21. 1. 253. It is necessary in all Cases where a Leahy of Lands is made, that the Eph any be turned to a Right; as in a Distill, &c. where there are two Rights, a Right of Possession in the Distiller, and a Right to the Eph any of the Distiller: now when the Distiller hath released to the Distiller, here the Distiller hath both the Rights in him, viz. the Right to the Eph any, and also to the Possession: Or else it is requisite that there be Privy of Eph any between the Tenant in Possession and the Rel ease; for a Rel ease will not operate without Privy. A Litt. 435. A Rel ease made by one that at the Time of the Sinking thereof had no Right, is void; and a Rel ease made to one that at the Time of Making thereof had no Right in the Lands, is also void, because he ought to have made a Rel ease, &c. or a Distill, 3 & 11. 1. 1 Med. 74. He that makes a Rel ease must have an Eph any in himself, out of which the Eph any may be de- rived to the Rel ease; the Rel ease is to have an Eph any in Possession in Deed or in Law, in the Land wherein the Rel ease is made, as a Foundation for the Rel ease; there must those of Eph any between the Rel ease and Rel ease; and be sufficient Words in Law not only to make the Rel ease, but also to create and raise a Right in the Eph any, or not be good. 1 In. 48. 22. A Rel ease to a Man and his Heirs will pass a Fee simple; and if made to a Man, and the Heirs of his Body, by this the Rel ease hath an E- fable-reid; But a Rel ease of a Man's Right in Fee simple, is not sufficient to pass a Fee simple. 1 In. 273. And if a Perf can Rel ease to another all his Right which he hath in the Land, without using any more Words, to hold to him and his Heirs, &c. the Rel ease-hath only an Eph any for Life. Dyer 251. A Rel ease made to a Tenant in Tail, or for Life, of Right to Land, shall enure to him in Remainder, or Reversion. 1 In. 267. By Rel ease of all a Man's Right unto Lands, all Aliens, Entries, Titles of Dower, Heirs, &c. are discharged; though it bars not a Right that shall descend afterwards: And a Rel ease of all Right in such Land, will not discharge a Judgment not executed; because such Judgment doth not wnt any Right; but only makes the Land liable to Execution. 2 In. 151. 3 & 4th. 191. To say a Rel ease of all one's Title to Lands, is a Re- ease of all one's Right. Litt. 509. 1 In. 290. By Rel ease of all Entries, or Rights, of Right to Land, shall enure to him in Remainder, and then release all Entries, by this he is not barred and excluded his Alienion; nor doth a Rel ease of Aliens bar the Right of Entry. Plowd. 424. 1 In. 297. Rel ease of all Lands, &c. needs no other Execution than Sealing and Delivery; and will operate without Considera- tion: But 'tis convenient to put a valuable Considera- tion thereunto, lest it should be judg'd fraudulent by Statute. Litt. Sess. 445. Litt. Comw. 248, 250. Cr. Jus. 270. A Rel ease that doth ensue by Way of Perchance away an Eph any, an Extenuation, may be made upon Condition or with a Deference, so as the Condition, &c. be contained in the Rel ease, or delivered at the same Time with it: And there may be a Rel ease of the Condemnation, &c. indeed in this Rel ease; though it is said the Deed is goo good, without any such Additions. Acom. Comw. Vol. 1. In a Leahy and Rel ease to make a Tenant to the Prin- ciple to suffer a Recovery, where the Rel ease is made to A. B. and his Heirs, &c. no tenant to the Practicis) it must be also made to the Ue of the Him the said A. B. and his Heirs and Alligos for ever; for the Rel ease must be abatable Tenant of the Freethold. 2 Fest. 432. Litt. Comw. 251. And a Rel ease made on TrufT, must be to A. B. his Heirs and Ali- figns, to the only Ue and Benefic of the Rel ease, his Heirs and Alligos for ever; in TrafT for C. D. who is to be a Party to the Deed, and the Purchas- TrafT to be paid by the Cofnor que TrufT: If the Words to the Ue, &c. are not inserted in the Rel ease, the Eph any doth not execute by the Statute of Ues, and the TrufT is void. 1 Bull. 153. But it has been otherwise decreed in Chancery. 1 Ch. Rep. 501. A Man devised 1000l. a piece to the two Children of A. B. at the End of the Year. At the Death of T, afterwards the Children died within the ten Years; and it was held a lapsed Legacy: For there is a Difference where a Devise is to take Effect at a future Time, and where the Payment is to be made at a future Time; and whenever the Time is annexed to the Legacy itself, and not to the Payment of it, if the Legacy dies before the Time happens, 'tis a lapsed Legacy. 2 Sa1. 421. If you have a Bequest of Money to be paid at the Age of twenty-one, or Day of Marriage, without laying to be paid at that Time, and the Legacy dies before the Time, it is not a lapsed Legacy. And so is it if the Devise had been to her when she shall marry: or if a Son shall come of Age, and they die before Godd. 182, 2 Pann. 342. But a Devise of a Sum of Money, to be paid at the Day of Marriage, or Age of twenty-one Years; if the Legacy die before either of these happen, the Legatee's Administrator shall have it, because the Legacy had a present Interest, though the Time of Payment was not yet come; and 'tis a Charge on the Peronial Estate which was in Being at the Teller's Death; and if it were discharg'd by this Accident, then it would be for the Benefit of the Excess, which was never intended by the Testator. 2 Pann. 456. 2 Lew. 257. A Father bequeathed Goods to his Son, when he should be of Age, or within six Years; if he die before that Time, then his Daughter should have them; afterwards the Father died, and then the Son died before he was of Age; adjourn'd, that the Daughter should have it in immediate Possession, and not stay till her Brother would have been of Age, if he had lived. 1 and 33. And where a Legacy was devised to an Infant, to be paid when he shall come of Age; and if he die before that Time, it was ruled that his Administrator should have it presently, and not stay until the Infant should have been of Age. 1 Vern. 199. Where a Legacy is to arise out of the Real Eate, it shall not go to the Representative of the Legatee; but link in the Inheritance: And yet where 1000l. was given at Birth, the Legatee was to have Interest to be computed from his Death, &c. here though the Legacy died before the Time appointed for paying it, it was held the Legacy should be raised with-awards, and the Lord Chancellor said, that this Legacy was a vested one. 2 Vern. Rep. 617. Barnewalt. 326, 330. A Peron by Will, &c. gives a Portion or Legacy to a Child, payable at twenty-one Years of Age, out of a real and personal Estate, and the Child dies before the Legacy becomes payable; in that Case, to such therof as is the personal Eate will pay, shall go to the Child's Executors or Administrators: But so far as the Legacy is charged upon the Land, 'tis said it shall link; 2 P. Williams 513. Also if a Legacy be given to one, to be paid out of such a Fund, and the same fails; it has been resolved, that it ought to be paid out of the Personal Eate, and the failing of the Manner appointed for Payment shall not defeat the Legacy. 2 P. Williams 279. One by Will disposes of his Eate in Lagenite, and afterwards by Parol, or Word of Mouth, gives a Bill for a certain Sum, to be delivered, and if the Testator should die of that Sickness; this is adjudged good, but it being in the Nature of a Legacy, may be deemed fraudulent, or void. If a Legacy when due be paid to the Father of an Infant, it is no good Payment; and the Executor may be obliged in Equity to pay it over again: And where any Legacy is bequeathed to a Feme Connet, paying to her alone, is not sufficient, without her Husband. 1 Pann. 165. A Man devised to pay a Legacy, without Security given by him to the Legatee to refund, if there are Debts, because the Legacy is not due till the Debts are paid, and a Man must be just before he is charitable; so in some Cases, the Executor may be compelled to give Security to the Legatee for the Payment of his Legacy; as where a Teller bequeathed 1000l. to a Person, to be paid at the Age of Twenty one, and in the next Account, an Executor, and died, afterwards the Legates exhibited a Bill in Equity against the Executor, setting forth that he had withheld the Eate, and paying that he might give Security to pay the Legacy when it should become due; and it was ordered accordingly. 1 Ch. Rep. 136, 257. If a Legacy is devised, and no certain Time of Payment, and the Legacy is an Infant, he shall have Interest for the Legacy from the Expiration of one Year after the Teller's Death; for so long the Executor shall have, that he may see whether there are any Debts, and if any Laches shall be imputed to the Infant; But if the Legacy be of full Age, he shall have no Interest but from the Time of the Demand of his Legacy; Where a Legacy is payable at a Day certain, it must be paid with Interest from that Day, 2 Sa1. 421, 2 Nifs. Abr. 1144. A Person gives a Legacy charged upon Land, which yields Reus and Profits, and the land is not to be sold, if it is charged on the Peronial Eate, and the Will mentions no Time for paying it, there the Legacy bears Interest only from the End of a Year, after the Death of the Teller, which is said to be the fited Difference. 2 Prise Williams 26. Where a Legacy is to be paid in Eeque_merge'dEE in two or more equal Payments, then that although a Legacy be devised to be paid at a certain Time, it carries Interest only from such Time as it is demanded. 1's wife of a Debt; and in such Case Non payment at the Day, has been held no Breach, without Demand and Refusal. Prise. Conc. 161; See Abr. Conc. 586. One having a Legacy given him, payable within a Year, knew nothing of it till a great while after, when the Executor published it in the Gazette; here Chancery would allow no Inredit but the bare Legacy. Prise. Conc. 14. The Act or Agreement of the Executor is fird to be obtained before any Legacy can be taken; until then the Executor may not meddle with the Legacy, because the Executor is to pay Debts before Legates, &c. Wood's 1st. 329. And this is the Reason why no Property can be transferred to the Legatee, without the Executor's Assent: If the Executor refuses to assign to a Legacy, he may be obliged to it by a Court of Equity, or the Spiritual Court. March, Rep. 19. Legacy being Grauntale, and no Duties, Assignment will not lie at Common Law for the Recovery of a Legacy; but Remedy is to be had in the Chancery or Spiritual Court. Allen 138. The Cognizance of a Legacy properly belongs to the Spiritual Courts, for such Bequests were not good by the Common Law; but this is to be understood, where a Legacy is devised generally: If 'tis payable out of the Land, or out of the Profits of the Land, an Assignment of the Cafe lies at Common Law; but the usual Remedy is in Chancery. Sid. 44, 3 Sa1. 233: By Holy Ch. Jull. A Legacy may maintain an Action of Debt at Common Law against the Owner of the Estate of the Land, out of which the Legacy is to be paid; and since the Statute of Wills gives him a Right, by Consequence he shall have an Action at Law to recover his Legacy. But sometimes the Common Law takes Notice of a Legacy, not directly, but in a collateral Way; as where 2 the the Executor promised to pay the Money, if the Leenen would forbear to sue for the Legacy, this was adjudged a good Consideration to ground an Action; but that it would not lie for a Legacy in Speiss, which would be well done by the Spiritual Court of what properly belonged to their Jurisdiction, by turning Suits which might be brought there into Actions on the Cafe. Rem. 23. If Security is given by Bond to pay a Legacy, in such Cafe an Action on Law is the proper Remedy; by giving by the Bond, the Legacy is as it were extinis, and becomes a Debt at Common Law, and the Legatee can never afterwards sue for it in the Spiritual Court. Tho. 59. For the Recovery of a Debt or such like Thing in Action, given by Way of Legacy, it is best to make the Legatee Executor as to that Debt, &c. or he must have a Letter of Attorney to sue in the Executore's Name. Woody's Inf. 330. Where a Tenant gives his Deebor a Legenory greater than his Debt, it shall be taken in Satisfaction of it: Though where the Legacy is left, it shall not be deemed as any Part therof; but as a Legenory is a Gift, sometimes the Legatee has been declared both 1 Salk. 155, 2 Salk. 518. If a greater Legacy is given by a Deed, to the same Person that was Legatee in the Will, it shall not be a Satisfaction, unless so expressed. 1 Petes Williams 442.

Legatis, (Legatis) An Ambassador or Pope's Non-gate a Latere, and Legatis notais; the Difference between these two appears thus: Legatus a Latere was usually one of the Pope's Family vested with the greatest Authority in all Ecclesiastical Affairs over the whole Kingdon where he was sent; and during the Time of his Legation, he might determine even those Appeals which had been made from thence to Rome; Legatus notais had a more limited Jurisdiction, but was exempted from the Authority of the Legate a Latere; and he could exercise even his Jurisdiction in his own Province. The Popes of Rome had formerly in England the Archbishops of Canterbury their Legatis notais; and upon extraordinary Occasions, sent over Legatis a Latere.

Letters of Abolition, (Littera Absolutane) Or abolitory Letters, were such in former Times, when an Abbot released any of his Brethren ab somni judici- time & Obdemone, &c. And made them capable of entering into some other Order of Religion. *Man. Fra- verum, pag. 7.

Letter of Attorney, (Littera Attornetia) Is a Writ- ing, authorizing an Attorney to do any lawful Act in the stead of another, to give Seisin of Lands; receive Debts, or for a third Person, &c. And let- ters of Attorney are either General or Special. *Wryt. Symb. par. 1. Ste. 7. B. 2. c. 13. The Nature of this Instrument is to give the Attorney the full Power and Authority of the Maker, to accomplish the Act intended to be performed: And sometimes these Writ- ings are revocable, and sometimes not so: but when they are revocable, it is usually a bare Authority only: and they are irrepealable when Debts, &c. are assign- ed to another, in which Case the Word irrepealable is inferred. In Cases of Letters of Attorney, the Authori- ty must be strictly pursued: If it be to deliver Live- ry and Seisin of Lands between certain Hours, and the Attorney doth not arrive or appear; or in a Capital Mefflage, and he does it in another Part of the Land, &c. the Act of the Attorney to execute the E你觉得 shall be void. *Proc. 675. But notwithstanding the an- cessory Writings for purposing Authorities with greater Strifens and Exactness, yet in Case of Livery and Seisin they have been always favourably expounded of later Times, unless where it hath appeared, that the, un- dertaking was not at all, as if a Letter of At- torney be made to three, two cannot execute it, be- cause they are not the Parties delegated, and they do not all act together, &c.: and generally, to deliver Seisin of Lands, &c. and one of them delivered Seisin of Part of the Land, and after another At- torney being Tenant thereof for Years, gave Livery of the other Part of the Land: This was held good, though made at several Times. 1 And. 247. And if a Man make a Deed of Feoffment of Lands in divers Countries, with the Letter of Attorney, the Livery must be at several Times; otherwise it cannot be made. *Ibid. See 1 Lees. 360. 132. If a Mayor and Commonalty make a Feoffment of Lands, and execute a later of Deed, to deliver Seisin and Livery and Seisin, after the Death of the Mayor, will be good, by Reason the Corporation dieth not. 1 John. 52. In other Cases, by the Death of the Party giving it, the Power given by Letter of Attorney generally determines. A Person made a Letter of Attorney to a Creditor to receive all his Wages and Pay due from a Ship, and afterwards died at Sea; in this Case the Authority was adjudged to be so determined, that all the rest of the Creditors should have a Share in his Administration. *Proc. Cas. 12. 2. perf. 191.

And the Creditors covenant, that if the Debtor shall receive any Molestation or Hindrance from any of them, he shall be acquitted and discharged of his Debt against such Creditor, &c. See my accomp. Conv. Vol. 1.

Letters of Marque, Are extraordinary Refrains for Reparation to Merchants taken and delivered by the Strangers at Sea, grantable by the Secretaries of State, with the Approbation of the King and Council; and usually in Time of War, &c. *Lax Mercur. 173. If a Letter of Marque were ill-wisely and knowingly taken a Ship, and Goods belonging to another Nation, not of that State against whom the Commission is awarded, but of some other in Amity, this amounts to a downright Pir- icy. 2 Bell. Abr. 530. See Reprisal.

We read of Letters Patent to make Denizens, 19. Hen. 6. c. 16. 19 Hen. 5. c. 18. Letters Patent may be granted by common Perfections, but in such Case they are properly Patents; but for Dominion and Military Service, the King's Letters Patent have been called Letters Patent Royal. *Anno 2 H. 6. c. 10. Beasts of a Stranger on the Lord's Ground may be distrained for Rent, though they have not been Le- vant and Cochenth: but it is otherwise if the Tenant of the Land is in Fault in not keeping up his Mouneds, by Reason whereof the Beasts escape upon the Land. *Wood's Inf. 190. GEORGE the Second, &c. To the Sheriff of S. Greeting: Because A B, &c. ought to have paid C. D. twenty Pounds, at the Feall of St. Michael, in the Year of our Reign, &c. as it appeareth to us by In- specion of the Affiants of the said A B, that the said sum hath not yet paid to him, as is said: We command you, that the Leips. Paffure Grounds in several Counties of this Kingdom are called Leips, and used in Doomsday.

Leips. (Libellus) Signifies literally a little Book; but by Us, it is the original Declaration of any Action in a Civil Law. 1 H. 1. c. 3. It eignifieth also a scandalous Report of any Man spread abroad, or otherwise unworthily published, and then called a Publick Libellus, an infamous Libel.

And this is either in Scriptures, and after Scriptures; in Scriptures is when any Writing is composed or published to another's Disgrace, &c. And in Scriptures, where the Perion is not written in a shameful Manner, and with a Publick's Coat, Attes Ears, &c. or a Gallow, or otherwise ignominious Sign is fixed at his Door. 3 Hift. 174. Seneca hath denounciatory Libels Contaminating Libelli, and Bradden Curmulis Fantes; contagious Libels, and infamous Rhimes, which flow from Malice; and the Rumean would not permit their Lives and Fame to be subject to the Injury and Scandal of Poets; for they made an Ordinance, that whosoever should prime to compose any such Verities, were to be punished with Death. Treat. de Leips. 15. "Tis observed in our Law, that a Libel is the greatest Degree of Scandal, and does not die like Words which may be forgere, an Action for which is confined to the Peron; but the Cause of Action for Scandal in a Libel survives. 5 Rep. 125. A Libel is a malicious Affront of another, expressed in Printing or Writing; and sending either to blacken the Memory of one who is dead, or the Reputation of one who is alive, and to expose him to publick Harret, Contempes, or Ridicule: But in a larger Signification, it may be applied to any Defamation whatsoever. Ibid. 121. All Libelli are made against privy persons, and made publick against a privy person, and those against Magistrates deliver the greatest Punishment: If a Libel be made against a private Man, it may excite the Peron libelled, or his Friends, to revenge the Peace; and against a Publick Person, it may excite the Magistrate, and against a publick Person, it is not only a Breach of the Peace, but a Scandal to the Government, and shits up Sedition. Ibid. And although a private Peron or Magistrate be dead at the Time of making the Libel, yet it is punishable; as it has a Tendency to the Breach of the Peace. 2 Hift. 125. And with Regard to this Con- sideration, it is far from being a Judication of a Libel, that the Contents thereof are true, or that the Peron upon whom made had a bad Reputation; for in the greater Appearance there is of Truth in any malicious Investiqting, and the more provoking it is, the better it is. 125. Mor. 657. It is not Material whether the Matter be true or false, if the Proclamation be by Information or Indictment; but in Action on the Cause, one may justify that the Matter is true. 5 Rep. 125. Hift. 253. When any Man finds a Libel, if it be against a private Peron, he ought to bound it, or deliver it to a Magistrate; and where it concerns a Magistrate, he should deliver it prefently to a Magistrate. Ibid. If a Libel be found in a House, the Matter cannot be punished for Framing, Printing and Publishing it: but it is said he may be indicted for having it, and not delivering it to a Magistrate. 1 Vint. 51. If a Printer print a Libel against a private Person, he may be indicted and punished for it; and so he may who prints a Libel against a Magistrate, and much more one who does it against the King and State: Nor can a Peron in such a Cause excuse himself by saying they were dy- ing Speeches, or the Words of dying Men; for a Man may at his Death justify his Villany; and he who pub- lishes it is punishable: And it is no Excuse for the Printing or Publishing a Libel, to say he did it in the Way of Trade, or to maintain his Family, but then he should deliver it to the Magistrate. 1 Paol. 982, 986. Also if Bookkeepers, &c. publish or sell Libels, though they know not the Contents of them, they are punishable. It has been re- solved, where Persons write, print, or sell, any Pamphlets, scandalizing the Publick, or any private Perons, Perfon, such filibab Books may be fified, and the Perfon punished by Law; and all Perfons expofing any libel, or writing any defcalous, licentious or reflecting on the Government, may be punished: Alfo Writen of News, though not fancialous, licentious, or reflecting on the Government, if they write it felf open, is adjudicable to be punifhable.

Spenf. Tri. 472. One was indicted for a Libel in flaundalizing the King’s Witneffes, and reflecting on the Juflice of the Nation, and had Judgment of Pifary and Fine. Iuf. 3 Parl. 90. A Person for defcalizing the Lord Chancellors, afcertaining, that he had done Injufice, and other defcalous Matters, was fentence to pay 1000l. Fine, to ride on a Horse with his Face to the Tail from the Fobe to Canterbury, with his Fault written on his Head, to acknowledge his Offence in all the Courts at Westminster, and in the Pilfary, and that one of his Ears should be cut off at Westminster, and the other in Cheapside, and to fubfer imprisonment during Life. Fap. 135. One who exhibited a Libel again the Lord Chief Juf policemen, directed to the Chief, called better Juf pio, a v. furred Juf. C. f. had Judgment to flay in the Pilfary, was fined 1000 Marks, and bound to the Good Behouvor during Life. Cr. Car. 135. The Perfon of the Gnome in the Jingle of the A. against the King’s Declaration, fettling forth, that it was founded in a fip的事情, Power, which had been declared illegal in Parliament, C. was called a fional Juf who was known to be a good Soldier, but an illiterate, C. this will amount to a Libel. Had. In the making of Labels, if one Man deflates, and ano other writes a Label, both are guilty, for the Writing is a Label; and if after another he afcerifns his Approbation of what is contained in the Label, and the fifth Reducing a Label into Writing may be fide to in the Writing, but not the Compouing: If one repeats, another writes, and a third approves what is written, they are all Makers of the Label; because all Perfons who concur to an unlawful Act are guilty by Law. The defcalizing a Label is the Genus; and Compouing and Contriving is one Species; Writing, a second Species; and procuring to be written, a Third; and one may be found guilty of Writing only.

Seft. 2419. If one writes a Copy of a Label, and does not deliver it to others, the Writing is no Publication: But it has been adjudged, that the Copying a Label, without Author ity, is Writing a Label, and he that thus writes is a Contriver; and that he who hach a written Copy of a known Label, if it is found upon him, shall be liable to the Punishment of the Law; but if such Copy be not publicly known, then the bare having a Copy is not a Publication. 2 Seft. 417, 5 NEL. AV. 1122. Writ ing a Copy of a Label is Writing of a Label, as it has the fame pernicous Consequence and if the Law and Men might write Copies, and print them with Impunity. 2 Seft. 419. And when a Label ap pears under a Man’s own Hand writing, and no Author is known, he is taken in the Manner, and it turns the Proof upon him; and if he cannot produce the Compo ler, it is hard to find that he is not the very Men.

Had. If one reads a Label, or hears it read, and laughts at it, it is not a Publishing; for before he reads or hears it read, he cannot know it to be a Libel: Though if he afterwards reads or repeats it, or any Part thereof, in the Hearing of others, it is a Publication of it: yet if Part of it be repeated in Mirth, without any mali cious Purpofe of Defemafion, it is faid to be no Offence. 9 R. 59. Mr. 1662. Every one convicted of Pub lishing a Libel, ought to be elloned the Contriver or Procourer: The Procourer and Writer of a Label have been held to be both Contrivers; alfo the Procourer another to publish it, and the Publishers are both Con viers: And the Contriver, Procourers, and Publishers of a Label, are punifhable by Fine, Imprisonment, Filbo ry, or other corpoal Punishment, and the Difcretion of the High Court of Treson. C. Mr. 637. 5 Rep. 152. 3 Inf. 174. 3 Cr. 17. In Informations and Law Proceedings there are two Ways of defcribing a Libel, by the Sebole, and by the Words LI

Words: I the first is vast and absolute, and so is the power of the Sentence in the Book and in the Words, and all to which every Word is a Mark, so that if there is any Variance, it is fatal; in the other Declaration the Sense, it is not material to be very exact in the Words, be cause the Matter is described by the Sense of them.

Salk 660. One great Intention of the Law in pro hibiting Labels against Persons, is to prevent Men from eavouring their own Judges of Complaints, and to oblige them to refer the Decision to the Law, any Ecclesiastical Matter, the Defendant makes a Sub mise in B. R. to have a Prohibition, and such Surmise be insufficient, the other Party may shew it to the Court, and the Judges will discharge it. 1 Law. 102, 128.

This Libel used in Ecclesiastical Proceedings, consists of three Parts. 1. The major Proposition, which flaws a just Cause of the Petition. 2. The Narration or Manuscript of the Petition. 3. The Conclusion, or con cal Immunities. The Right of Juvelience, accord ed from our Kings by the Papal Power, was at first the only Thing challenged by the Clergy as their Libertas Ecclesiastica; but by Degrees, the Church Liberty, they contended for a Freedom of their Persons and Possessions from all secular Power and Jurisdiction, as appears by the Canons and De crees of the Councils held by Rome, and Archbishop of Cantebury at Merton, Anno 1258. And at London, beyond the ordinary Subject. Brad. But in a more general Signification, it is said to be a Power to do ture is ever an Advocate for this Liberty; it being

When Money is to be paid as a Truant, is not within the Statute of Limitations; March 1521. 2 Fewr. 37. This is brought against a Sheriff for Money levied in Execution of a Judgment, it is not within the Statute; because the Action is brought against the Defendant as an Officer, and the Law is that when the Officer is the Defendant, the Time of the Action to fix him, the Defendant was at that Time a Member of Parliament, and then the Civil Wars began, and continued till such a Day, and that he brought his Action within Six Years after the Wars ended, &c. On a Denial the Return was quashed, because the Defense was adjourned ill and it was held that the Plaintiff ought to have filed an Original, which is no Breach of Privilege. Carv. &c. 25th June, 1642. A Defendant, under Parliament. The King is not within the general Acts of Limitation; nor Ecclesiastical Persons, for Lands belonging to their Churches. 11 Rep. 74.

Limitation of Estates, is a legal Sense, imports how long the Estate shall continue, or is rather a Qualification of a preceding Estate. A Limitation is generally by such Words as Esquire; or by such Terms as Tenants in Common, &c. and if there be not a Performance according to the Limitation, it shall determine an Estate without Entry or Claim; which a Condition does not. 10 Rep. 41. 1 Inf. 40. It is taken for the Compulsory and Time of an Estate: As where one doth give Lands to a Man, to hold to him and his Heirs Male, and to him and the Heirs Female, &c. here the Daughters shall not have any Thing in it so long as there is a Male, for the Estate to the Heirs Male is first limited. Co. Litt. 3, 13. If a Limitation of an Estate be uncertain, the Limitation is void; and the Estate shall remain as if there had been no such Limitation. Co. Eliz. 216. But a Thing that is limited in a Will by plain Words, shall not be afterwards made uncertain by general Words which follow it. Hill. 25 Car. B. R. Where a Devise is to the eldest Son, upon Condition that he pays such Legacies; and if he refuses, the Land shall remain to the Legates: On his Refusal the Executors may extinguish the Estate, at the lesser by way of Limitation. Noy. 51. And in all Cases, where after a Condition, an Intereft is granted to a Stranger, it is a Limitation. 1 Lew. 209. Co. Eliz. 204. It was held by 10c. 17, that the Statute of Limitation's 1 Ed. 1, ought not to be taken strictly; but all Limitations within the Meaning of it are to be supported: And therefore Words of an express Condition be not ordinarily construed as a Limitation; yet when an Estate is to remain over for Breach of any Condition, which is by the express Words thereof, it should be intended a Limitation. 3 Camp. 16. All Lands may be given and limited to one in Tail, Remainder to another, Remainder in Fee, &c. Though a Limitation of an Estate cannot begin after the Determination of an absolute Estate in Fee-simple, for that would be to foilder Perpetuities to be made, which the Law abhors. 2 Litt. Abr. 173. Limitations of Estates against Law, creating a new Form of Property, is extreme, will not be suffered to take Effect. 10c. Cent. 82

Children out to School; which Liberty was anciently denied to those Parents who were servile Tenants, without the Consent of the Lord; and this Prohibition of educating Sons to learning, was owing to this Reason; for Fear the Son being bred to Letters might enter into Orders, and so fop or divert the Services which he might otherwise do as Heir to his Father.

Libertas. (Fr. Livre, i. e. Ingenia Gesserum, or Literes, i. e. Traders) Hath three Significations. In one Sense, it is used for a Suit of Clothes, Cloth, Gown, Hat, &c. In another, a Nobleman or Personage gives to his Servants or Followers, with Cognizance or without; mentioned in the 1. R. 2. c. 7, and divers other Statutes; And formerly great Men gave Liberties to several who were not of their Family, to engage them in their Quarrels for that Year; but afterwards it was ordained, that no Man of any Condition whatsoever, should give any Liberty but to his Dewheliks, his Officers, or Counsell learned in the Law.
By 1. R. 2. it was prohibited on Pain of Imprisonment; and the 1. Hec. 4. c. 7, made the Offenders liable to Random as the King's Will. 1. Stat. which Statute was further confirmed and explained, Ann. 2 & 3 Hen. 4, and 8 Hen. 6. c. 4, and yet this Office was to deeply rooted, that Edward 4. obliged to confirm the former Statutes, and granted the Possession of them, adding a Penalty of 5L. on every one that gives such Liberty, and the like on every one retained for Maintenance either Writing, Oath, or Promise, for every Month. 8 Ed. 4. c. 2. But most of the above Statutes are repealed by 3 Car. 1. c. 4.
Liberty in the second Signification, was a Delivery of Possession of Lands, Tenements or other Real Rights, and the tenants which held of the King, in Capite, or Knights Service; as the King by his Prehngs have a primogeniture of all Lands and Tenements to holden of him. Stat. 1 Edw. 12. In this sense a Liberty was the Will which lay in the Heir of Age, to obtain the Possession or Seisin of his Lands at the King's Hands. F. N. B. 155. By the Statute 12 Car. 2. c. 14. All Warohips, Leases, Liberty of Seisin. (Latinam Seisina) Is a Delivery of Possession of Lands, Tenements and Heredi-taments, in person that one hath right to the same, being a Ceremony in the Common Law used in the Conveyance of Lands, &c. where an Easne of Fee simple, Fee tail, or other Freehold palatia. Brunt. Rel. 2.

Libers. Symb. 18. And it is an Extension of familial of the willing Departing of him who makes the Liberty, from the Thing whereof the Liberty is made; and of the willing Acceptation of the other Party receiving the Liberty; Britt invented that the common People might have Knowledge of the passing or Alteration of Easnes from Man to Man, and thereby be better able to try in whom the Right of Poffsession of Lands and Tenements were, if the same should be contested, and they should be impræselfed on Juries, or otherwise have to do concerning the same.
Web. Ibid. This Liberty may be made of a House, Lands, or any Thing corporeal but not of incorporeal Things. Where a House and Lands are conveyed, the House is the principal, and the Lands accoany; and there the Liberty must be made, and put upon the Land. 2 Rep. 31. 4 Law, 374. And of Li-certy and Seisin there are two Kinds; a Liberty in Deed, and Liberty in Law. Liberty in Deed is when the Person for taketh the Ring of the Door, &c. and delivereth the same to the Feoffee, in the Name of Seisin. 1 Inj.

48. 6 Rep. 26. And Liberty in Deed may be either by Word, or by Some solemn Act; or by Words, and out some solemn Act, if the Feoffor and Feoffee are on the Land. Wood's H. 257. Liberty in Law is when the Feoffor himself being in View of the House or Land, Doth Make the Feoffor, after Delivery of the Deed, I give to you under Land, etc. to you and your Heirs, go into the same and take Puffinon accordingly; now if the Fee-feoff enters on the Land, during the Life-time of the good Fee-feoff and Leafe, 11 Th. 48. 52. If a Deed of Feoffment be delivered upon the Land, in the Name of Seifin of all the Lands, it will be a good Leavy and Seifin; but the better. Do not make a Leafe of the same Lands, though it may make the Deed, it shall not amount to Leavy and Seifin, without those Words. 11 Th. 52. 181. If one makes a Feoffment to four Persons, and Seifin is delivered to Three of them, in the Name of All for the Eatee is vested in all of them. 3 Rep. 56. And if Lands lie in divers Places in one County, Leavy and Seifin in one parcel in one Place, in the Name of the Reit is sufficient; though if the Lands lie in several Counties, it is otherwise; for then Leavy and Seifin must be in every County. Lit. 61. No Person ought to be in the House, or upon the Land, when Leavy is made, but the Fee-feoff and his Executors; all others are to be removed from it: If the Leffe Feoffor makes Leavy and Seifin, the Leffe entering upon the Land concerning it, the Leavy is void. 21 Ed. 321. A Leffe enfeoffed a Stranger, and came to make Leavy and Seifin, the Leffe's Wife being in the House, the Leffe enters, and by Force turns the Wife into the Backside, which was Part of the Land let, and then he makes Leavy in the House, in the Name of all the Lands; as the Woman was remaining at the white House, and concerning the Leavy, the Leavy was held void; but if the had voluntarily gone out of the House, upon Part of the Land; or the Leffe had turned her into the Street, so then he would not have been upon any Part of the Land; it had been good. 8 Dall. Rep. 94. If a Man agrees with me to make a Feoffment upon Condition, and after makes a Charter of Feoffment without any Condition, but then makes Leavy and Seifin, in the Name of All for forman Charter, this is absolute without any Condition; for the Leavy is not made according to the Agreement, but according to the Condition. 154. 154. If a Person enfeoff another, as a Security for the Payment of Money, and afterwards makes Leavy of Seifin to him and his Heirs generally; the Eatee hath been helder to be upon Condition, since the Interest of the Parties was not changed, but continued at the Time of the Leavy. 1 Th. 222. And where a Charter of Feoffment is made, and in the Deed there is no Condition; but then makes Leavy and Seifin, the Leffe Feoffor makes Leavy of Seifin to the Feoffee by Force of the Deed, he expelling the Eatee, makes Leavy of Seifin upon Condition, the Feoffment is void as if it had not been made. Lit. Soc. 350. 2 Down. Abr. 13. A Man makes a Leafe for Years, Remainder to another for Life, in Tail or in Fee: Here Leavy and Seifin in Deed must be made to the Leefe for Years; without which nothing passeth to him in Remainder, it being for the Benefit of him in Remainder, and not the Leffe which hath only a Term: And if the Leffe entereth, before Leavy and Seifin, made to him, the Leavy will be void. Lit. 60. 1 Th. 49. Wood's Inf. 218. A Leafe for Years is granted to A. B. with Remainder to his right Heirs, whereon Leavy is made; the Remainder is void, because there is not any Person in eft, who can pretely take by the Leavy; and every Leavy ought to have its Operation pretently. 4 Leon. 3. There was a Leafe made to a Man and his Wife, and their Daughter, to hold from Michaelman next, and the Leffe made Leavy after Michaelman; this was adjudge good, being made by the Leffe him self; but it had been otherwise, if it had been to be done by Attorney, or if the Leffe had made Leavy before Michaelman. 2 Red. Rep. 109. Leafe for twenty Years to a Man to commence from a Time past; and after the Expiration of the said Term, then to him and his Wife, and their Son, for their Lives, and the longer Lifter of them, with a Letter of Attorney to make Leavy and Seifin, &c. It is a good Leasy for Years, with Remainder for Life, if Leavy and Seifin be made by the Attorney at the Time of executing the Leasy; but if the Liberty and Seifin be made by the Attorney some Time afterwards, in such Case it is said the Leasy is void. Note 134. A Man makes a Letter of Attorney to make Leavy or Sale by Force of the Deed, which may be contained in the same Deed; and a Letter of Attorney may be like-wised made to receive Leavy and Seifin. 5 Rep. 91. 1 Inf. 49. 52. The Nature of making Levey of Seifin is thus: The Parties to the Deed, Grantor and Grantee, or the Attorneys by them authorized, come to the Door of the House, or some Part of the Land; and there having declared the Cause of their Meeting, in the Presence of Witaners, they read the Deed or the Contents thereof; and if by Attorney, the Power of Attorney; and then, if it be a House they take the Ring, Latch or Key of the Door, (all the People being out of the House,) or if it be Land, a Cloot of Earth, and a Twig or Branch of one of the Trees there by; and the same Ring or Key, Cloot, Eftc. with the Deed they deliver to the Grantor, or his Attorney, laying the usual Words, viz. I A B. do hereby deliver unto C D. Puffinon and Seifin for this Mynefrage or Tenement, &c. To hold to you, your Heirs and Assigns, according to the true Intent and Meaning of this Indenture, &c. And afterwards, if it be a House, to the Grantor, &c. enters first alone, and shuts to the Door; and then he opens it, and lets in others. Accomp. Conv. 36 Ed. Vol. 1.

M. Magna Graeta, The great Charter of Liberties granted in the ninth Year of King Hen. 3, is so called, either for the Excellency of the Laws therein contained, or because there was another Charter called the Charter of the Forth established with it, which was the same in the two first Articles and of great importance in the troubles of the Obtaining it, and the remarkable Solemnity in denouncing Excommunication and Anathema; against the Breakers thereof: And Spelman calls it, Angiliss consonant Anglicarum Libertatwn Diplomwn & Sura Ancilla. But notwithstanding this very solemn Confirmation of this Charter, the very next Year King Henry invaded the Rights of his People, till the Barons levied War against him; and after various Successes, he confirmed this Charter, and the Charter of the Forth, in the Parliament of Marlbridge, and in the 2nd Year of his Reign. And his Son King Edward 1. confirming their Charters, in the 14th Year of his Reign made an Explanation of the Liberties therein granted to the People: adding some which are new, called derivit super Chartas: And Magna Charta was not only then confirmed, but more than thirty Times since. But a Man cannot be guilty of Maintenance, in respect of any Money given by him to another, before any Suit is actually commenced: Nor is it fair to give another Advice, as to what Action is proper to be brought, what Method to be taken, or what Counselor or Attorney to be employed or for one Neighbour to go with another to his Counsel, so as he do not give him any Money: And Money may be lawfully given to a poor Man, out of Charity, to carry on his Suit, and be Maintenance: Attorneys may lay out their Money for their Clients, to be repaid again; but not at their own Expendence, on Condition of no Purchase no Pay, if they carry on the Cause. First, 13 Geo. 3. 18. 3 Roll. Abr. 138. 2 Inf. 56. 54. It is said that if a Man of great Power, not learned in the Law, tells another who asks his Advice, that he hath a Good Title, it is not a Maintenance. 1 Hawk. C. 17. If a Man is paid by a Cafe any Person who is no Lawyer, and that hath no Interest in the Cause, shall take upon him to do the Port of a Lawyer; this will be unlawful Maintenance. And after a Suit is begun, no Man may encourage either of the Parties, or yield them any Aid or Help, by Money, or the like; but he that hath Interest therein: But to lead another Money to maintain his Law-Suit, is no Maintenance. 22 H. 6. 10 Edw. 4. 3. 2. Sop.Abr. 406. If a Person hath any Interest in the Thing in Dispute, though on Contiguity only, he may lawfully maintain an Action relating to it, as if Tenant in Tail, or for Life, be impleaded, he in Reversion or Remainder, &c. may maintain the Defense of the Suit, with his own Money; and a Leitor may lawfully maintain his Leitor. 2. Roll. Abr. 115. A Lord may justify maintaining a Tenant, in Defense of his Title; and the Tenant may maintain his Lord: One bound to warrant Lands may lawfully maintain the Tenant impleaded; and a Man may maintain those who are endesc'd of Lands in Trust for him, concerning those Lands, &c. An Heir apparent, or the Husband of such an Heir, may maintain the Ancellor in a Action concerning the Inheritance of the Land whereof he is seized in Possess. A Master maintains his Servant, and affirms where he is in Possess with Money, but not in a real Action, unless he hath some of his Wages in his Hands; and a Servant by Resin of a Master, may maintain his Master in all Things, except laying out his own Money in the Master’s Suit. 1 Hen. 252, 243. 1 In 568. No Man may obtain or buy any pretended Right or Title to any Land, unless the Seller hath taken the Profits a Year, or the Loss of a Year’s Profit of the Value, &c. And none shall unlawfully maintain any Suit concerning Lands, or retain any Peron for Maintenance, by Letters, Rewards or Promises, under the Penalty of 10s. for every Offence, to be divided between the King and the Professor. 2 H. 8. cap. 9. But maintaining Suits in the Spiritual Court, is not within the Statutes relating to Maintenance. Corp. Eam. 55. Though Maintenance in a Court Baron, is as much within the Parview of the Stat. 1 R. 2. as Maintenance in a Court of Record. 1 Hen. 255. A pretended Right to Copyhold Lands sold, is within the Stat. of H. 8. 4 Rep. 26. If I. But a Remainder-main in Fee, may obtain the pretended Title of a Stranger. 1 In 569. 3 In 76, 77. And a Peron who hath good Right and Title, at the Time of the Bargain or Lease, will not be within the above Statute, although neither he nor his Ance- tors have been in Poffecion thereof, &c. for a Year before. 25 Ed. 7. The Buying of a Lease for Years, is within the Act: Though if a Peron make such Lease to try a Title in Ejezison, unless it be to a great Man; it is out of the Statute. 1 In 570. 35 Ed. 74. A Leafe having good Right to Land, but not in Poffecion, made a Leafe of it, and did not feal it on the Land; it was adjudged within the Stat. 23 Hen. 3. 1 Law. 106. The Law will not suffer any Thing in Action, Entry, &c. to be granted over; this is to prevent Titles being granted to Men of Substance, to oppress the meaner Sort of People. 1 In 571. And where a Bond was given for Performance of Covenants in a Lease, and after the Covenants being broken, the Lease affiled both the Lease and Bond to another, and then the Affiger was held in Damages; so it would have been if the Lease had affiled the Bond and not the Leafe, and afterwards the Covenants were broken in the Bond in Suit. Guild. St. 3. 2 Nbr. Abs. 1142. By the Common Law, Perons guilty of Maintenance may be proceeded by Indemnity, and be fined and imprisoned; or by Action, &c. And a Court of Record may commit a Man for an Act of Maintenance done in the Face of the Court. Harl. Rep. 79. 1 In 568.

Manners, (From the Fr. Mauver, or Mauver, i.e. Mauver a Terrier.) To be Taken with the Manner, is one of the Things having a Name with the same about him, as it were in his Hands: which is called Plagiatus in Theol. 5. P. C. 129. Such a Criminal is not bailable by Law: And anciently if one guilty of Felony or Larceny had been freshly purified, and taken with the Manners, and the Goods to found upon him had been brought into Court with him, he might be tried immediately, without any Appeal or Indictment, and this is said to have been the proper Method of Proceeding in such Manners which had the Franchise of Infangthys. Mannor, Manuarium, derived from the Fr. Mautier, i.e. Malefactor, or from Mauver, of abjuring, because the Land (of it does not usually reside there) is an Ancient Royalty or Lordship, formerly called Barony, consisting of Demesnes and Services, and of a Court Baron, as incident to it: It is a noble Kind of Fee, granted out partly to Tenants for certain Services. vicies to be performed, and partly referred to the Use of the Lord's Family, with Jurisdiction over his Tenants for their Farms or Eatables. And as to the Original of Manors and Villages, that after the Conquest there were certain Circuits of Ground granted by the King or Conqueror to some Barons or Men of like worth, for them and their Heirs to dwell upon, and exercise Jurisdiction, more or less within their Territories, as the King thought fit to grant, performing such Services, and paying yearly Rent for the same, as he by his Grant required; and that afterwards their great Men allotted Part of their Lands to other meaner Men, referring again to themselves Rents and Services; and by that Means, as they became Tenants to the King, to the Inhabitants became Tenants to them. Heri. Miss. Rev. 1. And at this Time a Manor rather signifies the Jurisdiction and Royalty Incorporale, than the Land; for a Man may have a Manor in Gros, that is the Right and Interest of a Court-Baron, &c., and another enjoy all the Land belonging to it. Kirch. 4. Bract. liv. 5. tract. 3. c. 28. A Manor may be compounded of divers Things: as of an House, Arable Land, Meadow, Pasture, Wood, Rents, Adwordon, Court Baron, &c. And it comprehends Meadows, Lands, Woods, &c. Mitch. 4. Eneas. And it is said a Feodage may be a Manor. If it be a Royalty, &c., to be held of the Perfon by certain Services. Paib. 22. Eliz. By a Grant of the Demesnes and Services, the Tenant and Royalty of the Manor is transfert to one, and the Services随之 one, the Manor is gone; but if one die without Issue, and the Manor descends to no other who had the Manor, it is revived again, for the Sevance was by Act in Law. Jefi. 122. 3 Sail. 25. 40. A new Manor may arise and revive by Operation of Law. *Lev. 201. A Manor cannot be without a Court Baron. And it must be Time out of Mind; at this Day a Manor cannot be made, because a Court Baron cannot now be made. Jefi. 58. 108. It may contain one or more Villages or Hamlets; or only great Part of a Village, &c. And there are capital Manors, or Honours, which have other Manors under them, the Lords thereof perform Customs and Services to the Superior Lords. 2 Ew. 67. 2 Roll. Abs. 72. There may be also customary Manors granted by Copy of Rents, by Feodation, or by Grant of other Manors. 4 Rep. 26. 11. Rep. 17. But it cannot be a Manor in Law, if it wanteth Freholds Tenants: nor is a Copyhold Ma- nor, without Copyhold Tenants: If all the Freeholds MODULE or come to the Lord by Purchafe, the Man- nor is lost: so if there are no Suitors in a Court Baron, but one, or there be only one Copyholder in a Cup- hold Manor. For the Freholds should be Feerholders, or Suitors at least. 2 Ew. 58. Lit. 75. 2 Roll. Abs. 121. But it is said, if there be one Frehold Tenant, the Seigniory continues between the Lord and one Tenant. Aed. 257. 1 Nolf. 7. 154. The Custom remains, where Tenements are divided from the rest of the Manor, the Tenants paying their Services; and he who hath the Freehold of them, may have a Court of Service. Ew. 103. *Alemis. (Manor) An Habituation, or Farm and Land. Spal. See Manor. *Shane. (Manor a Manors.) Among the ancients, Romains was a Place appointed for the Lodging of the Prince, or Soldiers in their Journey; and in this Sense we read Primus Maniforem, &c. It is with us most commonly used to go with their Houses within their Fee; otherwise called the Capital Missions, or Manor House. Some say it is a Dwelling of one or more Houses without a Neighbour; and Manes. bovis is taken in Law for any House of Dwelling of another; in Cafes of committing Burglary. Ew. 3. CS. Inf. 64. The Law of Manes, accord- ing to Sir Edward Coke, seems to be a certain Quantity of Land: Hadi vel Manfa, and Manap, are mentioned in some old Writers and Charters. Hadi, 6. 6. And that which is ancient Latin Authors termed Hida, was afterwards called Manap. — Man- apio epistolis consentia ex pluralibus Domestibus vel una, que est habitatab una vel laina vii vii; sitiam et citis vel manes vel manua vel manata vel collata ex pluralibus viis. Bract. liv. 5. tract. 5. p. 1.

In a Manuscript, Hircismidium, from the Sex. Man- frauts is the unlawful Killing a Man without any pre- tended Malice; as when two Persons meet, and upon some falling out, the one kills the other. It is done in a present Heat, on a sudden Quarrel, and upon a just Provocation; and without any deliberate Intention of doing Mischief: And it differs from Murder only, in that it is not done with foregoing Malice; and from Be- yondenaed, having a present Intent to kill. Staw. P. C. 1. 129. 9. This Crime is Felony; but for the full Time admits of Clergy: And there can be no Accesories to this Offence before the Part, because it is done within a Premotion. P. C. 217. In the Laws of Canutus, the same Diffinition was made between Murder and Manuslaughters, as now: for we find, if a Man were killed with malice and perversely tate, the Offender was to be delivered to the Kindred of the Slain, &c. But if on his Trial, the Fault was proved not to be wilful, then he was refuged to the Bishop, &c. Leg. 53; Manuslaughters must be put on a sudden Quarrel, where the Party guilty doth nor appear to be Mafter of his Temper, by talking calmly on the Quarrel, or afterwards in other Dis- course, whereby the Offender may perhaps be cooled. Cromp. 23. Rel. 56. Therefore if two Persons meet together, and in driving for the Wall, one of them kills the other, this is Manuslaugh- ter: And so it is if, upon a sudden Occasion, they had gone into the Fields and fought; and one had killed the other; for all is continued Aff of Pal- mation, on the first fatal Occasion. Jefi. 58. 108. H. P. C. 48. And if two Persons who have formerly fought on Malice, are afterwards to all Appearance reconciled, and fight again on a fresh Quarrel, and one of them is killed, it shall not be construed it was not, unless they were moved on the old Grudge, unless it appear by the whole Circumstances of the Fact. Haw. P. C. 82. If two Men fall out on a sudden quarrel, and one breaks his Sword, and a Stranger coming, suddenly, fers him fighting with another, and fides with him and kills the other; this is only Manuslaug- ter. Also if a Man's Friend is assuaged, and he in Vindication of his Friend, on a sudden takes up a mithievous Infriment, and kills the Enemy of his Friend, this is Manuslaughter: So where a Person in returning another injuriously restrained of his Liberty, by pretended Pre-ff-Masters, &c. kills any of them. H. P. C. 77. Plac. 101. Rel. 46. 135. But if the Person killed were a Bailiff, or other Officer of Justice, refixed by any one in the Due Execution of his Duty; it would be Murder. Kefo. 67. 86. If a Mafter go with Malice to kill a Person, and his Servants being with him know nothing thereof; and then they join in the Affault and Murder: it is not Manuslaughter: But in the Servants: 'Thoug he the Mafter have Malice, and he tells his Servants of it, and that his Intention is to kill the Party, and they go with him; the Mafter doth in like as they kill him, it is Murder in both Mafter and Servants. Dyer 26. 9 Rep. 66. Plac. 100. There were two Men, Men in an inner Chamber, quarrelling, and together by the Ear. A Brother of one of them floundered at the Door, that could not get in to cry to his Brother to make him sure, and presently after he gave the other a mortal Wound; this was held Manslaughter in him that stood at the Door. 1. Trin. 1. J. 4. Theat. A.D. 453. Several Perions having forcible Poffiffion of a House, afterwards killed the Perion whom they had held, as he stood at the Door to forcibly regain the Poffiffion, and to fire the House; and they were adjudged only guilty of Manuflaughter, notwithstanding they did the Fact in Maintenance of a delinquent Party, for so much was made in Faut him: Yet if in such, or any other Quarrel, whether it were drunken or premeditated, a Justice of Peace, Confiable, or even a private Person killed in endeavouring to keep the Peace, he who kills him is guilty of Murder. 1. Han. 85. It had been adjudged, that upon a Killing on a Fudden Quarell, if a Man be so far provoked by another Words or Gestures, as to make a Puff at him with a Sword, or strike at him with any other such Weapon as manifestly endangers his Life, before the other’s Sword is drawn, and thereupon a Fight ensues, and he who made such Assault kill the other, it is Murder; for by assisting the such in a Manner, without giving him an Opportunity to defend himself, he, on the contrary, killed the Man. But in the Case, if he who draws upon another in a Fudden Quarell, make no Puff at him till his Sword is drawn, and then fighting with him kill him, he is guilty of Manuflaughter only; because by giving the other Time to be on his Guard, he threw his Intent is not so much to kill as to combat with the other, according to the common Notions of Honesty, and as to Provocations, no Trespass, Breach of a Man’s Word, or Affront by Words, &c. will be thought a just Provocation to excuse the Killing of another. But if the Assault be made upon another Words, as giving the Lie, or calling another Son of a Whore, both Parties suddenly fight, and one kills the other, this is Manuflaughter: And if one upon angry Words assaulted another, by calling him a Dog, and he that assaulted draws his Sword and immediately kills the other, this is but Manuflaughter; for an Indignity was offered to the Slayer, from whom he might reasonably apprehend that there might be some further Design upon him. 1. 1.6. 5. 15. There is a Manuflaughter punishable as Murder, by Statute: By the 1. 6. 8. If any Perion shall smit another, not having then a Weapon drawn, or not stricken first, so that he dies within six Months, although it were not of Malice aforethought, it is Felony without Benefit of Clergy: But this doch not extend upon Persons afflicting others to Discontent, or by Misfortune, &c. with no Intent to commit Manuflaughter; and the Statute relates to the Party only that actually gave the Stroke, or stabbed the other, and not to those that were aiding or abetting. H. P. C. 8. A Blow given, or Weapon drawn at any Time during the Quarell, before the Thrift or Strab given, is within the Statute; and drawing out a Poflo, and leying it at the Party Kiling, or throwing a Pot, Bottle, &c. at him, are within the Equity of the Words, having a Weapon drawn. 1. Law. 255, 256. So if the Party killed have a Cudgel in his Hand; Clergy shall be allowed. G. 154. Manumission (Manumissio) Is the Freeing a Villain or Slave out of Bondage: which was formerly done several Ways: Some were manumitted by a Person the Sheriff, or Proclamation in the County, &c. and others by a Charter; one Way of Manumission was for the Lord to take the Bondman by the Hand, and say, I will that this Man be free, and then throwing him forward out of his Hand. Marriage, (Marriage) is a civil and Religious Contract, whereby a Man is joined and united to a Woman, for the Ends of Procreation; and signifies not only the lawful Joining of Man and Wife; but also the Intest of being a Ward or Widow in Marriage, in our ancient Laws. Meg. Chart. c. 6. And Marriage is likewise applied to Land given in Marriage; and that Portion which the Husband receives with his Wife. Bradl. lib. 2. cap. 34. Gloss. lib. 7. c. 1. In this Sense the Towns are divers Waterds by Marriage, &c. Reg. 171. There's further a Term called Duty of Marriage, signifying an Obligation on Women to Marry such in a Lawful Manner, who formerly held Land by the Value of Marriage with personal Services, in order to render them to their Husband's Cred. Marriage generally is the Conjunction of Man and Woman in a constant Society and Agreement of Living together; till the Wife is divorced by Death or by Breach of Faith, orsome notorious Misbehaviour, defruative of the End for which it was intended. It is one of the Rights of Human Nature; and was at some Time a State of Bondage, for Preservation thereof; and Nothing more is requisite to a compleat Marriage by the Law of England, than a full, free, and mutual Consent between Parties, not disabled to enter into that State, by their near Relation to each other, Infamy, Prencraft or Impovercy; and so to the Solemnization of Marriage, this is regulated by the Law and Customs of the Nation where we reside; and every State allows such Privileges to the Parties as it deems expedient, and denies legal Advantages to those who refuse to solemnize their Marriages. In the State of England, they cannot dissolve a Marriage celebrated in another Manner, Marriage being of Divine Institution, to which a full and free Consent of the Parties is necessary. Before the Time of Pope Innocent III. there was no Solemnization of Marriage in the Church; but the Man came to the House where the Woman inhabiteth, and led her home to his own House, which was all the Ceremony then used: And it has been since held, that if a Man and a Woman are married by a Priest in a Place which is not a Church or Chapel, and without any Solemnity of the Celebration of Mass, yet it is a good Marriage. Manc. s. Reg. 170. 1 Ed. 64. Marriages by Rempe Pris, where Orders are acknowledged by the Church of England, are deemed to have the Effects of a legal Marriage in some Insances; but Marriages ought to be solemnized according to the Rites of the Church of England, to intitle the Privileges attending legal Marriage, as Dower, Thirds, &c. And by Statute, Papal Recusants convicted, married otherwise than according to the Rites of the Church of England, by a Minister lawfully authorized, and in some open Church, &c. shall be disabled, the Man to be Tenant by the Curate, and the Woman to be Jointure, Widow, or Widow's Estate, &c. 3 Jac. 1. c. 5. sufficient to give Title to a personal Elate. 1 Law. 53. Wood's Jfl. 59. But in the Case of a Diftrict, married to a Woman by a Minister of the Congreg- tion, who was not in the Orders; it was held, that when a Husband demands a Right to him as Husband, by the Ecclesiastical Law, he ought to prove himself a Husband by that Law; to invite it to him: and not withstanding the Wife, who is the weaker Sex, and the Children of this Marriage, may insist themselves to a temporal Right by such Marriage; yet the Husband shall not, by the Repute of the Marriage, unless he have a substantial Right; And this Marriage is not a meer Nullity, because the Law of Nature the Contract is binding; for though the positive Law of Man ordains Marriage to be made by a Priest, that Law only makes this Marriage irregular, and not expressly void. 1 Salk. 119. Marriages contracted betwixt lawful Persons, being solemnized in the Face of the Church, and conformed, were declared valid, notwithstanding any Pre-contract, non consumenta, by Stat. 32 H. 8. c. 38. But this was repealed by 1 Stat. 6 Ed. 4. 13. And all Marriages solemnized by Justices of Peace, during Oliver's Uperation, were ordained to be good and valid, as if solemnized according to the Rites and Ceremonies of the Church. Stat. 13 Car. 2. c. 33. Those Marriages that are made in an ordinary Course, are to be sitting in the Church, and other Ceremonies appointed by the Book of Common Prayer. 2 Stat. 6 Ed. 21. By the Ordinances of the Church, when Persons are to be married, the Bann of Matrimony shall be pub- lished in the Church where they dwell several Sundays, in the Space of twelve Service ; and if at the Day appointed for their Mar- riage, any Man do allege any Impediment; as Pre- contract, Condonability, or Affinity; Parents not consent; or under Age, they shall be bound to marry, and become bound with sufficient Sureties to prove his Allegation, then the Solemniza- tion must be deferred until such Times as the Tribunal, or any Judge, in his Law, may lawfully set. But Marriages made within the Degrees, are in- censurable and unlawful. 1 Inst. 24. 2 Inst. 684. Mar- riage is forbidden to those who are of kindred lineally; also between such as are in the transverse or collateral Line, until the fourth Degree be past. Wife, and he answers, I will; it is demanded of the Woman, if she will take the Man to her Husband, and the answer, I will; by this Marriage, and necessary in Contracts of Marriage, that both Parties use the same Words or Expriences; for if one Party says I will marry Thee, and the other an-

If a Father or Mother promise Marriage for their Child, the Silence of the Child being present and hearing the same, hath been adjudged a Consent to the Contract. Ibid. 69. And Contracts of Marriage may be by absent Parties, by Mediation of their Proctors, or by Mediators or Letters; when by Proxy is it especially the business of Attorneys to convey Matrimony or Spousals for the Party in his Name, with such a Woman, et al. And the Proctor says, I do contract Marriage with Thee, in the Name of such a Woman, &c. or such a Man doth contract Marriage with Thee by his Proctor; to which the Woman answers, I do take him to my Husband by the Proctor his Proctor; and both Parties are to continue in the same Mind until the Contract is finished, before for that the Proctor may be revoked, and then the Contract will be void. Swinl.

A Match by the Proctor of the one, and the other; the Contract or Letter is good; unless it appear the Party differs before the other contracts thereto, and the mutual Consents of the other Parties ought to be first immediately, or shortly after, or it will not be good. Ibid.

By Marriage with a Woman, the Husband is entitled to all her Estate real and personal; and the Effects of Marriage are, that the Husband and Wife are accounted one Person, and he hath Power over her Person as well as Estate, et al. 1 Inf. 357. The Marriage of two Persons doth knit them so fast together, as that a Woman cannot give anything to another, if she be his Wife by Deed, during the Coverture; but by Will and Devise he may. 2 Ann. 11. But notwithstanding Marriage, in some Cases the Husband and Wife are considered as divers Persons; and if one of them may perform an Act to another: As when they do it in autum, where a Feudament is made to one of them, and Letters of Attorney to the other to give Livery to the Feudor, et al. 4 Perk. All the Goods and Chattels personal of the Wife, are by the Marriage given to the Husband by Law; so that he may dispose of, fell or keep them whilst he lives, and give them away when he dies: And that whether he survives her, or not. 1 Inf. 209. And all the Chattels real, the hath in Possession in his own Right, by the Marriage the Man shall have, and those by Executed in his Life time he may give, grant, et al. and in Case he survives her, he will have them absolutely. 2 Sop. 419. It is true, that although all the Husband hath before the Coverture is his own, be it Goods or Lands, and the Wife has immediately nothing therein; yet all that is the Wife’s by their Marriage together shall be the Husband’s. Ibid. The Husband’s debts and obligations of this Marriage Bond was adjudged good. 3 Cro. 576: Tiv.

There being divers Advantages by Marriage, to the Man and the Woman; therefore on Promise of Marriage, Damage the other, the Party may refuse to marry; but the Promise must be mutual on both Sides to ground the Action. 1 Sali. 24, and if there be Separate Promises of Marriage, as the Woman’s Promise to the Man is a good Consideration to make his Obligatory; so his Promise to her is a sufficient Consideration to make hers binding: And though no Time for Marriage be agreed on, if the Plaintiff aver that he offered to marry the Woman, and the refused, Action lies against her, and Damages are recoverable. Corb. 497. If a Man and a Woman make mutual Promises of Intermarriage, and the Woman gives the Woman 100 L. in Satisfaction of his Promise of Marriage, it is a good Discharge of the Contract. Ibid. 156. By Statute it is enacted, no Action shall be brought upon any Agreement on Consideration of Marriage, except it be put in Writing, and signed by the Party to be charged, and in Writing, within Six months from the Time of the Party refusing afterwards, according to the Dignity of the Party. Cra. 53. When a Person promises to give his Daughter Wedding-Clothes on the Marriage, the shall have two Suits, one for the Wedding-Clothes, and the other for the Money given afterwards, according to the Dignity of the Person. Cra. 53. Contracts and Bonds for Money to procure others, have been held void in Equity: And where-ever a Parent or Guardian influets upon private Gain, on the Marriage of Children; Covenant or Obligation for it shall be void. Cra. 53.
A Man and a Woman intending to enter into intermarry, he enters into Articles with her before their Marriage, by which he agreed to settle such Lands upon her, &c. And in pursuance of such Articles he did before the Settlement made, the Widow in Equity shall have the Articles executed, and hold the Lands for her Life, &c. 2 Pet. 1. 43. In Case Articles are entered into before Marriage, and afterwards a Settlement is made different therefrom, the Court of Chancery will set up the Articles against it; but where both are limited before the Marriage is entered into, and at a Time when all Parties are at Liberty, such Settlement will be taken as a new Agreement between them: This is the general Rule, unless the Deed of Settlement is expressly mentioned to be made on Marriage of the Marriage Articles, &c. whereby the Intent may still appear to be the same.

True's Case, 15. Articles of Marriage were made for settling Lands on the Husband and Wife, and the Heirs Male and Female of the Body of the Husband by the Wife, &c. and a Settlement was drawn contrary to these Articles, long after which the Husband suffered a Recovery, and devised the Land to others: it was here held to be no Bar to the Heirs Female, who were Deceased to have the Land. 2 Pet. Williams 349, 357. Yet it is said, where Relief is to be given in Equity, a Settlement shall be only on the Persons who claim as Purchasers, as the Share of the other is, and all Remainders after to the Husband's Heirs of his Body, or his Right Heirs, are voluntary and not to be avoided. 1 Pet. 35. But though a Term to raise Daughters Portions, payable at the Age of Eighteen or Day of Marriage, in a Marriage Settlement, is limited in Remains, to commence after the Death of the Father generally; or if it be in Case he die without issue Male of his Wife, and the die: with without such Issue, leaving a Daughter, &c. In Equity, the Time of the Settlement is limited to the Time of the Death of the Father; but if a Female, when she is eighteen Years old, she married; because every Thing is happen'd and past which is contingent, for its Impartiality there should be Issue Male of the Husband when he is dead, and as to the Father's Death, that is not contingent, but certain, by Reason all Men must die: But if there is no Contingency not yet happen'd, as if the Daughters are to be unmarried, or not provided for at the Time of the Father's Death, &c. it is otherwise.

Salk. 159. Upon Marriage, the Settlements generally made on the Husband, to be held to the Husband for Life, after his Death to the Wife for Life for her Inheritance, and to their Issue in Remainder, with Limitations to Trustees to support contingent Issue, and Leaves to Trustees for Terms of Years, to raise Daughters Portions, &c. and they are made several Ways, by Lease and Release, Fine and Recovery, Covenant to keep quiet to Ufe, &c. Accor. Consn. 143. These Settlements the Law is ever careful to prefer, especially that Part of them which relates to the Wife; of which the may not be devolved, but by her own Fine: And if a Woman about to marry, to prevent her Husband's Disposal of her Land, conveys it to Friends in Trust, and they with the Husband after Marriage make Sale of the same; the Court of Chancery will decree the Husband to recover the Land and convey it to her.

Tibbl. 43. Where a Woman on Marriage, by the Man's Consent makes over her Effe, to her own Disposal, the Produce or Inheritance thereon, he can also make of: And if the Wife has a separate Maintenance settled on her by the Husband, she may by Writing in the Nature of a Will, give a separate Maintenance to the Husband; and shall have the same hefied, in Case the Trustees hold, it and shall not be liable to his Debts.

Prev. Case, 225, 44. But where a Settlement is made on the Husband, to be wholly in his Power, and equivalent to it; here the Wife's Portion, though it be out on Bonds, &c. which upon the Death of the Husband by Law survives to the Wife, shall in Equity be subject to the Husband's Bond Debts, after his Death, to the Real Estate of the Heirs. 2 Pet. 63. And it has been said before held, that if after the same, and Debts of her's appear; the Husband shall be accountable for the Debts of the Wife, so far as he had any Money or Effe of hers. 2 Pet. 256. If a Man in mean Circumstances, marry a Woman of Fortune, upon Suggestion of Locrancy in the Wife by her Friends, the Court will order her Effe to be so settled, that the may not be her own upon her limited and husband to give it to him from her Children, by him or any other Husband, &c. 54. 110. Marriage is dissolved by the natural Death of the Husband or Wife, or by Divorce: and who is a Marriage is dissolved by the Death of the Husband, Dower, &c. survives to the Wife, where no Settlement is made of the Husband's Land, &c. and Bano and Time and Chancery.

Marshall (Marshall). Is a French Word, signifying as much as Tribunus militum, with the ancient Romans; and Marshall may also come from the German Marschall, i. e. Rigaum Magister, which Homann in his Feuds under verb. Marchalcius derives from the old Word March, which signifies a Horse; and others make it of the Sax. Mar, i. e. Exequi Sarch, Praefectus. In France there are Marshall or the Camp, called Marshall of France: And of the Ne-Bility and Dists, in Poland, &c. With us there is severall Officers of this Name; the Chief whereof is the Earl Marshall of England, mentioned in the Stat. 1 Hen. 4. c. 2. and 15 R. 2. cap. 2. &c. whole Of-force consists especially in Matters of War and Arms, as well as in this longer, as in other Countries; and this Office is very ancient, having formerly greater Power annex'd to it than now; it has been long he-nereditary in the Family of the Duke of Norfolk. The next is the Marshall of the King's Hoofe, otherwise called Knight Marshall; and his Authority is exercised in the Palace, in bringing and detaining all Pisas of the Crown, and Suits between chieof the King's Hoofe and other Persons within the Verge, and punishing Faults committed there, &c. 18 Ed. 5. c. 7. 17 Ed. 3. sid. 6. & c. 6. and 2 H. 4. cap. 13. Corp. Jurif. 123. Fleta mentions a Mar-

There are other inferior Officers called Marshall, as Marshall of the Temple in Elys. Ann. 15 Ed. 1. cap. 10. Marshall of the King's Bench, Stat. 5 Ed. 1. c. 8. who hath the-Custody of the Prison called the King's Bench Prison in Southwark. This Officer gives Attendance upon the Court, and takes into his Custody all Prisoners committed by the Court; he is liable for his Absence, and Non attendance is a Forfeiture of his Office. Hill. 2 & 2 Car. 2. There is also a Mar-

Marriage. Is the Law of War, that depends upon the full and arbitrary Power of War and Peace of the King, or his Lieutenant; for though the King does not make any Laws but by common Consent in Parlia-tity of it to guard against Dangers that often arise, he ufeth absolute Power, so that his Word is a Law. Smith's de Repub. Angl. lib. 2. cap. 4. The Marshal Army, being never intended to be executed upon others, who ought to be ordered and governed by the Laws to which they are subject, though it be a Time

MERCHANT

MERCHANT, (Mercur) is one that buys and trades in any Thing: And as Merchandize includes all Goods and Wares, so every one that can buy, sell or trade in any such Article is called a Merchant. The Word Merchant formerly extended to all Sorts of Traders, Buyers and Sellers. But every one that buys and sells is not at this Day under the Obligation of a Merchant; only those who trade in the Way of Commerce, by Importation or Exportation, or carry on Business by Way of Emption, Vendition, Barter, Permutation or Exchange, and which make them his Living to buy and sell, by a continued Assiduity, or frequent Negotiation, in the Mystery of Merchandize, are esteemed Merchants. Those that buy Goods, to reduce them by their own Art or Industry, into other Forms than they are of, and then to sell them, are Artificers and not Merchants: Bankers, and such as deal by Exchange, are properly called Merchants. The Merch. or Merch. Comp. 23: Merchants were always particularly regarded by the Common Law; though the municipal Laws of England, or indeed of any one Nation, are not sufficient for the ordering and determining the Affairs of Traffick, and Matters relating to Commerce; Merchandise being so universal and extensive that it is impossible; therefore the Laws of England, or rather the Laws of the several Nations take special Knowledge of; and the Common and Statute Laws of this Kingdom leave the Causes of Merchants in many Cases to their own peculiar Law. But in the Reign of King Ed. 4, a Merchant Stranger made Suit before the King’s Privy Council, for several Bales of Silk feofiously taken from him, whereas it was moved, that this Exemption of a Merchant from the Laws of Common Law; but it was answered by the Lord Chancellor, that as this Suit was brought by a Merchant, he was not bound to sue according to the Laws of the Land. 13 Ed. 4. In former Times it was conceived, that tho’ Laws that were prohibitory against Foreign Goods, did not bind a Merchant Stranger: But it has been a long Time since ruled otherwise; for in the Leagues that are now established between Nation and Nation, the Laws of either Kingdom are excepted; so that as the English in France or other Foreign Country in Amity are subject to the Laws of that Country where they reside; so must the People of France, or any other Kingdom, be subject to the Laws of England when resident here. 13 Hen. 7. 12 Ed. 4. English Merchants are not restrained to depart the Kingdom without Licence, as all other Subjects are; they may depart, and live out of the Realm, and the King’s Obedience, and the same is no Contumacy, they being excepted out of the Statute 9 R. 2. c. 2. And by the common Law, they might pass the Seas without Licence; though not to merchandise. Mich. 12 & 13 Eliz. Dyer 1267. By Magna Charta it is enacted, that all Merchants strangers in Amity, not publicly prohibited, shall have safe Conduct to come into, depart out of, and remain in England; and to travel by Water or Land in and through the same, to buy and sell, &c. 9 Hen. 3. c. 30. And if any Disturbance or Affront be offered them, or any other Merchant in a Corporation, and the Head Officer there do not provide a safe Conduct, the Franchise shall be forfeited; and the Disturber shall answer double Damagers, and suffer one Year’s Imprisonment, &c. by Star. 9 Ed. 3. c. 1. All Merchants (except Enemies) may lawfully come into England with their Goods and Merchandise. 14 Ed. 3. Merchant Strangers may come into this Realm, and depart at their Pleasure; and the Statute 4 Chas. 2. &c. 1. And Merchants alien shall be used in this Kingdom, as Denizens arc in others, by the Statute 5 Hen. 4. c. 7. No Merchant shall be impelled for another’s Debt, whereas he is not Debtor, &c. And if a Difference arise between the King and any Foreign State, Alien Merchants are to have four Days Notice, or four Days Time, to tell their Effects and leave the Kingdom. 27 Ed. 3. c. 17. All Merchants may buy Merchandizes of the Staple: And any Merchant may deal in more Merchandizes than one; he may buy, for his own Use, any Goods or Merchandizes, to his own Transport all Kinds of Merchandizes. 27 Ed. 3. c. 3. &c. 38 Ed. 3. c. 2. Merchant Strangers are to find Sures that they shall not carry out the Merchandize which they bring into England. 18 Ed. 2. c. 21. And when they bring in any Merchandise into the Realm, and sell the same for Money, they are to deliver it upon other Merchandizes of England, with exporting any Gold or Silver in Coin, Plate, &c. on Pain of Forfeiture. 4 Hen. 4. c. 15. 5 Hen. 4. c. 9. The same extend as well to Denizens as strangers and in strict Law, they ought not to receive any Gold in Payment. 8 H. 6. c. 24. 3 H. 7. c. 8. And the Reale of those Laws were, to preserve and keep the Gold and Silver within the Realm; and at the same Time increase our Manufactures, by encouraging their Exportation abroad. Foreign Merchants arc to sell their Merchandise at the Port where they land, in Goods and not by Retail. 1 R. 3. c. 9. And Merchant is to be laden and unladed at certain Ports, and in the Day-time under Penalties. 1 Eliz. c. 11. All the King’s Subjects are to have a free Trade to and from France and Flanders, and Portugal. 3 Jac. 1. c. 6. It shall be lawful for Merchants to transport Iron, Armour, Piloth, Muflon, Saddles, Swords, Bridles, &c. 14 Jac. 2. c. 4. Merchants, &c. corrupting or adulterating any Spirituous Wine, or felling the same adulterated, are liable to Penalties, by W. & M. S. c. 1. c. 34. On Importation of Tobacco, Merchants have an Allowance of 8 per Cent. 12 Ann. c. 8. Vide Cohus of Merchants.

There are Companies of Merchants in London for carrying on considerable Joint Trade to foreign Parts, &c. The Merchants Adventurers, the Company established in England for the Improvement of Commerce, which was erected by Parliament by King Ed. 1. merely for the Exportation of Wool, &c. before they knew the Value of that Commodity, and at a Time when we were in a great Misfortune, to Trade. The Company of Merchants trading to the North, called the Mercers or Ruffia Company, was established by King E. 6. and encouraged with additional Privileges by King Queen Mary, Queen Elizabeth, &c. The Barkery Merchants decayed towards the latter End of Queen Elizabeth’s Reign, out of their Ruins arose the Levant or Turkey Company, who first trading with Venice, and then with Turkey, furnished England that Way with the East India Commodities: This Company hath very considerable Factories, at Cavannahola, Smyrna, Aleppo, &c. From the flourishing State of the Levant or Turkey Company, in the Reign like-wise of Queen Eliza. sprang the Old East India Company, who having upon our Ships of Force, bought them from the East India Company, in their Favour, were able Masters of that advantageous Traffick; until at last a New Company was incorporated by King William and Queen Mary 15 W. 3. on their landing the Government. Two Millions of Money and bought the Companies after the Expiration of a certain Term, were by Articles united. In the 21st Year of Queen Elizabeth, the East India Company of Merchants was erected; and in the 1st Year of Queen Anne, it was ordered that Company was confirmed, with full Power to trade in Norway, Sweden, Poland, and other East India Countries. The Royal African Company had their Charter granted. granted them in the 14th Year of King Car. 2. and by the 10th, they are to maintain all forts. &c. King Charles 2. also by Commission under the Great Seal of England, constituted his Royal Highness James Duke of York, (afterwards King Jem. 2.) Edward Earl of Lincoln & London, and others, to be a Council for the Royal Fidels of England, and declared himself to be the Protector of it; and in the 29th Year of his Reign, he incorporated them into a Company. King Will. 3. in the fourth Year of his Reign, established a Greenland Company. By Stat. 9 Ann. to pay the Debts of the Army and Navy, &c. amounting to near Ten Millions, the South Sea Company of Merchants was erected; who having advanced that Money, the Duties upon Wines, Vinegar, Tobacco, &c. were appropriated as a Fund for Payment of the Interest, after the Rate of 6 l. per Cent. &c. "The Company is to have the sole Trade to the South-Sea; and others trading theretofore shall forfeit their Ships and Goods, and double Value: And the Corporation is to continue for ever; but the Funds are subject to Redemption by Parliament; this Company had their Capital Stock very much enlarged in the Reign of King Geo. 1. And to raise Money last, were empowered to make Calls or take Subscriptions, &c. as they thought fit; and on this Foundation, the late South-Sea Scheme was executed: But to retrieve Credit, afterwards Pairs of the Stock of the South Sea Company was ingrafted into the Capital Stock of the East India Company and the Bank of England; and after that, half the Stock was converted into Annuities at 41 per Cent. Since which a further Reduction thereof had been made. This short History of our Companies of Merchants, which is so very great, and great Pitying for, and at length become double Use, i.e. to enlarge Commerce, and supply the Necessities of the State, sufficiently shews the Progress and Incresce of our Trade and the Wealth of the Nation: Though I must not believe observe that they are a Kind of Mo- nopoles erected by Law; and if the Power granted them is abused, use of false Consequences; for which I need only instance the ever memorable Year 1720, when the Sub-Governor and Directors of the South-Sea Company incurred a Fortitude of their Eftates by Speculating, that is, Mbth to hold any Offices, &c. for their vile Conquest, which tended to the Ruin of the Publick. Over and above these Companies, there are the Dutch Merchants; those that trade to the West Indies; the Canary Merchants; Italian Merchants, which trade to Leghorn, Venice, Stamb, &c. The French and Spanish Merchants, &c. "Merchants, (Mercurium Loc) Was the Law of the People here called the Mercians. And British distinctions be- tween Adventure and Misdemeanor; the first he makes to be mere Chance; as if a Man, being upon or near the Water, be taken by some Hidden Sickness, and so fall in and is drowned; or into the Fire, and is burnt; Misdemeanor he says it, where a Person comes to his Death by some outward Violence, as the Fall of a Tree, the Running of a Cart-wheel, Stroke of a Horse, or such like. Brit. c. 7. Standard con- fuses Misdemeanor more largely than British understand- ings in; and says, it is where one thinking no Harm carelessly throws a Stone, wherewith he kills another, &c. This is old harsh all, and another Signification in the Use made of it by Law; which is where it is taken for a Word of Art, appropriate to a Writ Right, so called because both Parties have put themselves upon the mere Right, to be tried upon the Grand Aliquot; so as that which in 41 all other Afligis is called an Ilios, in a Writ of Right is termed a Mifs; But if in the Writ of Right a collateral Point be tried, there is called an Ilios. To join the Mifs upon the Mifs, is as much as to say, to join the Collateral Points, i.e., to join upon this Point, whether has the more Right, the Tenant or Demendant. 1 Inf. 294. 17 Ed. 3. c. 16.

Mifs are taken for Taxes or Tailages, &c. And at Chester they have a Mifs book, wherein every Town and Village in the County is rated what to pay towards the Mifs. The 26 Hen. 8. c. 26, ordains, that Lords shall all have such Mifs and Profits of their Lands as they had in Times past, &c. And Mifs is sometimes corruptly used for Mens, in Law French Men, when it signifies as a Mens, a Free Man, as in such a Mens, or as a Mens, in some Manors is such a Mensage or Tenement as answers the Lord a Heriot at the Death of its Owner. 2 Inf. 518.

one Name for another, Misnaming Names of qua fi rei nationes, and was invented to make a Difficu lity between Peron and Peron; and where a Per on is described, so that he may be therein dffin ited and distinguished from another Peron or in some Cases the Miskate of the Name shall not avoid the Grant. 1 Rep. 20. 21. And if the Name of a Person is mistaken; the Judges ought to give him a small Miskate therein, to make good a Consent, &c. and so as to support the Act of the Party by the Law. Habs. 123. But the Christian Name ought always to be permitted, and the Law is not so pre cise as to Surnames, as it is of Christian Names. Pap. 57. 1 Lif. 199. Misprision of Clerks in Names are unanswerable. And Peter and Paul, have been adjudged one and the same Name, 2 Co., 425. 1 Lawns 146. Modus Decimandi, Is when Lands, Tenements, or some annual certain Sum, or other Profit, hath been given Time out of Mind to a Parson and his Successors, in full Satisfaction and Discharge of all Tithes in Kind, in such a Place. 3 Co. Rep. 47. And it must be paid in Cities and Towns, as in London, for Houses, in lieu of the Tithes of the Lands on which the Houses were built: And there may be a Modus Decimandi for personal Tithes. 2 Inst. 557, 639. A Modus ought to be Chancery and for the Benefit and Advise of the Parson; and is supposed to be of the full Value of the Tithes, at the Time of the original Conveyance of it; and if it does not now come up to that Value, it shall be intended that the Tithes are improved, or that Money is become of less Value than it was when the said Place was given off. 5 Co. Rep. 152. 4 Inst. 460. But one Tible must not be paid in Consideration of another: it is to be something different from the Thing that is due, where the Tibles were due by Day or by Course, and by Course due by Day, and it must be something as certain and durable as the Tible: All which are necessary to make a good Preception. 1 Roll. Abr. 650. 1 Co. 276. 466. 475. 4 Inst. 60. A Modus arises either by Concession, Custum or Preception: A Composition is an Agreement entered into by Deed, executed under Hand and Seal, that such and such Tibles shall be discharged by the Payment of Tibles, paying some annual Payment, or doing something for the Benefit and Advantage of the Parson, &c. which is a legal Exemption from Payment of Tibles for ever, if made before the Stat. 13 Eliz. c. 10. Custum is what gives a Right to a whole County, City, Town or Parish, and must be common to all within the Limits where it is served to be; and Preception has an effect to the Right of some particular Perfon, with respect to some particular House, Farm, &c. And the Ecclesiastical Laws allow forty years to make a good Custum and Preception: but by the Common Law, it must be beyond the Memory of Man. 1 Roll. Abr. 653. Const. Perf. comp. 139. A Layman, Lord of a Manor, may prescribe Du modus Decimandi, for himself and his Tenants; and so may a private Paran for his own Lands, or Part thereof, &c. Though in Cases of Preception, it may be to be discharged of a particular Sort of Tibles; for a Preception Du modus Decimandi generally, would undo the Clergy, and therefore it is not good where there is not sufficient left for their Maintenance, or it may be there where is a competent Livelihood for the Parish. 2 Rep. 47. 1 Co. 784. 1 Roll. Abr. 653. A Layman cannot prescribe by the Common Law Du modus Decimandi; but he may do of common Lands; for lands in his Hands, by Grant from Parish, Patron and Ordinary. 2 Rep. 44. A Parish, &c. may not prescribe Du modus Decimandi, though it may prescribe Du modus Decimandi. 1 Roll. Abr. 653. But Tibles due by Custum only, are not within the Rule against Preception in Du modus Decimandi by Laymen; for by the like Custum Persons may be discharged from the Payment of such Tibles. Wed. Inf. 179. And spiritual Persons and Corporations may prescribe Du modus Decimandi, to be discharged absolutely of Tibles, and may prescribe Du modus Decimandi, and may be such Proprietors. 2 Rep. 44. 1 Roll. Abr. 653. 614. 4 Co. 512. A Parson may sue in the Spiritual Court for a Modus Decimandi for the Rate of Tibles; but if the Parson is dispensed, or a Culfon is to be tried, it must be tried in the Common Law Courts: And where a Modus is pleaded in the Spiritual Court to a Demand of Tibles in Kind, a Prohibition lies, upon Supposition that the Spiritual Court will not admit of any Plea against Tibles. 2 & 3 Ed. 6. c. 13. So by Nonpayment of the Consideration: or by Payment of Tibles in Kind, for so long Time, that the Preception for a Modus Decimandi cannot be proved: Though a short Interruption 'tis said shall not destroy it. 1 Roll. 912. 4 Inst. 43. MOELTIR, or MOELTIRIN Latins. These were the Laws of Demolultus Molentius, sixteenth King of the Britons, who began his Reign above four hundred Years before the Birth of our Saviour, and they were famous in this Land till the Time of William the 111, called the Conqueror. This King was the first who published Laws in Britain, and which those of Queen Merina, were translated by Gildas out of the Briti into the Latin Tongue. Older's Primer. 26.

MONJESTRUM, or MONEY of Tenders. Is allowed by K. H. 8. c. 28. and Abbot.

MONETACTIUM, Signified a certain Tribute paid by Tenants to their Lord every third Year, that he should not change the Money he had been coined, formerly when it was lawful for great Men to coin Money current in their Territories; but not of Silver and Gold: It was discontinued by the Stat. 1 Hen. c. 2. The Money Monegargum is likewise said for a Money, and the Right of coinage or minting Money: Jus Arti- ficii comedii Monetae.

Money (Moneta) is that Metal, be it Gold or Silver, that receives Authority by the Prince's Impress to be current; for as Wax is not a Seal without a Print, so Metal is not money without Impression. Ca. Leg. 1. Money is said to be the common Measure of all Commerce, through the World, and consists principally of three Parts; the Material wherein it is made, being Silver or Gold; its Denomination or ex- tremely Value, given by the King, by Virtue of his Prerogative; and the King's Stamp thereon. Holt's Hist. P. C. 189. It belongs to the King only to put a Value, as well as the Impression on Money; which being done, the Money is current for so much as the King him limited, 2. Ind. 575. Any Piece of Mo- ney coined is of Value as it bears a Proportion to other current Coinage. Its Value is fixed by the King's Stamps. And though there is no Act of Parliament, or Order of State for Guineas, as they are taken; yet being coined at the King's Stamps on them, they are lawful Money, and current at the Value they were coined and uttered at the Mint. 2. Salk. 446. But it has been observed, that Guineas were originally coined for 20s. according to the twenty Shilling Pieces of Money, and that legally, no more ought to be demanded for them: Also that in legal Proceedings, they should be mentioned as peces 20s. quin. Guineas, cat- eter. 2. Mod. Rep. 7. If an Action is brought for Damages, the Value of Guineas may be given in Evidence to the Jury: But if the Action be for mo- ney Guineas, the Value of the Money must be brought in in the De- claration, to ascertain the Deb. Money, tenting it abroad. The King by Procla- mation in what Tribes and on what subjects, not exceeding one Year, to lend or advance Money to any foreign Prince or State, without Licence under the Great or Privey Seal; and if any Person knowingly offend in the Premisses, he shall forfeit treble the Val- ue of the Money lent, &c. two Thirds to the King, and the other to the Informer: But Perons may deal in foreign Stocks, or Money carried in any Cases abroad, established before his Majesty's Procla- mation. Stat. 3 Geo 2. c. 5.

Money in Court. In the proceedings, Money de- manded is oftentimes brought into the Court, either by a Rule of Court, or by pledging a Procuri in Cur- ium of the Money; and then if the Money is not paid into Court, the Plea will not be received. The Mo- ney must be brought into Court, upon the Plea of a Tender: And the Defendant may at any Time, pen- ding an Action on Bond with a Penalty, bring the Mo- ney and Costs into Court, and it shall be a good Satis- faction and Difcharge, by Stat. 4 & 5. Anw. c. 16. If a Defendant pay Money, or Part, into Court, and it is struck out of the Declaration, though the Plain- tiff is Nonuit, he shall take the Money out of Court, for by paying into Court, the Defendant admitted that it was due; but if the Defendant brings Money into Court upon a Tender and makes it good, and the Plaintiff takes it off upon the Tender, and it is found against him, then the Defendant shall have the Money out of Court. 2 Salk. 597. Money may be brought into Court upon an Action of Debt for losses in Replevin, when the Defendant avows for so much Rent arrear, the Plaintiff hath been admitted to bring it into Court: And in Covenant, &c. where a Breach is alleged for Non-payment of Rent, the Defendant may bring the Money due into Court. Ibid. In a Quantum Meruit it hath been denied; though it was granted in such Cause. Partch. Aem. 8. And it is said, where an Action is brought by an Executor or Admin- istrator, the Defendant cannot bring the Money into Court. 2 Salk. 596.

These were the first Religious: They lived in a cloistered Life, i. e. Monopolus, (From Monos, one, &c. et misce word) Is an Allowance of the King by his Grant, Commission or otherwise, to any Person or Persons, for the sole Buying, Selling, Making, Working or Using of any Thing, by which other Persons are restrained of any Freedom or Liberty that they had before, or hindered in their lawful Trade. 3 Ind. 181. It is defined to be where the Power of Selling any Thing is in one Man alone; or when one shall impede, and get into his Hands such a Merchandise, &c. as none may sell or gain by them but himself. 11 Rep. 86. All Masters of this Nature ought to be tried by the Common Law, and not at the Councl-Table, or any other Court of that Kind; and the Making use of or procuring any unlawful Monopoly, is as it is enjoined by the Common Law, and not by any other Law. 3 Idf. 181, 182. By Statute, all Monopolies, Grants, Letters Patent and Licences, for the folle Buyings, Sellings, Making of Goods and Manufacturers are declared void, except in some particular Cases; and Persons grievied by putting them in use, shall recourse thereb unto Damages and double Costs, by Action on the Statute; and delaying such Actions, before Judgment, by Colour of any Order, Warrant, &c. or delaying Execution after, incurs a Praemunire: But this does not extend to any Grant or Privilege granted by A.D. of Parliament, nor to any Grant from the Crown to Corporations or Cities, &c. &c. And the Creditor holding the Land upon this Agreement, is in the mean Time called Tenant in Mortgage, and holdeth the Estate upon the Condition in the Deed: But generally till Failure is made of Payment, the Mortgage holds the Land; and if Failure be made, and the Mortgagee doth enter into the Land, the Mortgagee hath an Equity of Redemption in the Court of Chancery; and may call the Mortgagee to Account for the Proceeds. [C. 39. 35. 3]

Vol. 205. In a Mortgage is contained a Proviso, that if the Money be paid at the Day, the Debtor shall be void: And on the Mortgagee's paying the Interest of the Money, Mortgages are continued a long Time without disturbing the Possession or Parties. Law Secret 103. A Forfeiture in Fee, or a Lease for Life or Years, &c. may be made with a Provision or Condition, that if the Feodar or Grantor, or their Heirs or Executors, pay the Feeble or Grantee, &c. such

Sum of Money at a certain Day, then the Feodar,

C. may re-enter; and this hath been a common Condition in a Mortgage, or of Estates upon Condition in a Deed: In the former Case of Mortgage, the Mortgagee keeps Possession till Failure; but here the Possession belongs only to the Mortgagee. C. 39. 33.

Lit. 352. But as by their ancient Kind of Mortgages, if the Money were not paid on the Day, the Estates became absolute, and was subject to the Dower of the Wife of the Feeble, as also all other his real Charges and Incumbrances, C. on this Accords the Courts of Equity have maintained the Right of Redemption, against all Perfons that come in under the Feodar: because the Payment of the Mo-tgage in the Deed does put the Feeble in his former State, and since the Lands were only a Pledge for the Money. 1 Ed. 21. 31. 39. Car. 190. A Mortgage is answerable in Chancery, when he comes into Possession of the Land, and for all the Perforce he may have had not for the

Mortgage, he might have made; unless there were Fraud: No

Allowance shall be given to the Mortgagee for his Pains and Trouble, who manages the Estate himself; but if he employs a Skilful Person, and gives him so much a Year, that must be allowed, for no Pardon is bound to be his own Bailiff. Test. 155. 1 Fbr. 316. 476.

Where a Man makes a Mortgage for Years or never, he may without entering on the Premises, or the Mortgagee's joining, assign the Mortgages and the Mortgage by the Covenant to enjoy till Default of Payment, but Tenant at Will to the Mortgagee. 1 Ed. 21.

Lit. 246. Though if one who is in Mortgage in Pofcession, assigns his Mortgages, without the Affent of the Mortgagee, he shall pay the Debtor out of the Land, before and after Assignment, though it be assigned only for his own Debts: he being under a Trust for that Purpose. 3 Cen. Cai. 5. An old Mortgage seems to be another, ought to be assumed as a new Mortgage from the Time of the Assignment: And as a Mortgage, where the Mortgage is forfeited, shall have Interest for his Interest: so shall an Assignment for all at Intrest due from the Time the Mortgage was alligned.

1. Dean. Rep. 218. For when a Mortgage al-lines the Mortgage, all Money paid by the Alligee, if due at that Time, shall be accounted Principal to the Mortgage, whenever it comes to notin.

Hod 68. But an Agreement made at the Time of a Mortgage, will not make future Intrest Principal, before any Intrest is grown due; the Intrest must be first due before an Agreement concerning it may make the same Principal, 2 Salis. 449. If a Man mortgaghe his Land, upon Condition that if the Mortgagee and J S. pay twenty Founds such a Day to the Mortgagee, that then shall he re-enter, &c., and the Mortgagee die before the Day; in this Cafe J. S. alone may pay the Money; but it is otherwise fo long as the Mortgagee lives, for during that Time J. S. may not tender the Money without him; if he do, it will be no Performance of the Condition. Co. Litt. 219. Not only the Mortgagee, but his Heir, being interested in the Condition, may pay the Money in lieu of the Heir, and the Mortgagee having Time during Life to pay it, do not pay the same; his Heirs or Executors, &c., shall not in such Cafe be received to pay the Money after his Death. 1 Inst. 206. Executors of the Mortgagee shall have Money due on the Mortgage, where a Mortgagee in Fee dies before the Day of Payment, unless the Heir be particularly named; and where the Heir is named, if the Day of Payment he paid, it is as much as if no Person had been appointed, and then the Law appoints it to the Executor; as the Money first came out of the Person Edition, and the Executor more represents the Tenant than the Heir. 1 Inst. 210, 2 Femur. 346. Chanc. Rep. 284. If Heirs and Executors are named, it is may be paid to either. A Man mortgaghe Lands for Payment of such a Sum to the Mortgagee, his Heirs, Executors or Alligee; the Mortgagee died, and made the Heir within Age his Executor, and the Mortgagee paid the Money at the Day to the Heir; it was held, that the Heir had not the Money as Heir, but that it should be Affect in his Hands as Executor. 3 Law. 59. But it hath been adjudged, that upon a Mortgage of Land in Fee, with Condition to pay to the Heirs or Alligee of the Mortgagee, the Heirs and not the Executors shall have the Money. Chanc. Rep. 88. When the Heir of the Mortgagee is to recover the Estate mortgagd, and there is no Deed of Affect in the Hands of the Mortgage-ee, the Mortgagee Money shall be paid to the Heir, if the Condition was to pay it to him; or if it was to pay it, to his Heirs or Executors. But it is otherwise if it was to be paid to the Executors only. Chanc. Rep. 83. 3 Salis. 241. Mortgages have been looked upon as Part of the Personal Estate, except a Mortgage in Fee otherwise declare the same. Chanc. Rep. 286. The Personal Easte of the Mortgagee Ball also in Favour of the Heir, be ap-

-pin, so far as he may, if there be personal Af-

-ects to pay all Legacies. 2 Salis. 430. And though such personal Easte be Deviled away by Will among Rela-

-gagee and before the Bonds, for it is but a bare Right; And the Relate not being by Fraud, therefore it was not Affets in Equity. 3 Koh. 307. It has been decribed, that where a Mortgagee lends more Money upon Bond to the Mortgagee, he shall not redeem, unless he pay the Money due on the Bond as well as on the Mortgage: Though if he mortgage the Equity of Redemption, the Money paid towards the Mortgage shall be not affected by this Bond, because 'tis but a persona-l Charge upon the Mortgage. 3 Salis. 240 See Prud. Chanc. 407. In Equity it is allowed, that if -Lands are thence mortgagd, the third Mortgagee may buy in the first Incumbrance to possess his own Mort-

-get; and he shall hold against the second Mortgagee, as if he had bought by the first, and he shall hold against the first, and all his own Money he lent on the last Mortgage. 3 Femur. 538. And a Purchaser upon valuable Consideration, pur-chasing a precedent Incumbrance, shall possess his Easte against any Person that hath a Mortgage sub-sequent, &c. A Mortgage without Notice of a former Incumbrance, boys in an Incumbrance previous to that Incumbrance, which precedes his Mort-

If a Mortgagee retaining the Possession levies a Fine to another Mortgagee, this shall not bar the first Mortgagee. 1 Law. 272. But in a late Cafe, a second Mortgagee, with a just Title to the Estate, may be paid in Equity before the first Mortgage without the Deeds. In a Cafe a first Mortgagee is a Witness to a second Mortgage of the Land, &c., though he hath no Notice of his having any Interest in the Contents thereof, yet as the Preceptum is that he might be acquainted with it, this shall give a Pre-ference to the second Mortgage. 1 P. Whittam 594. And if a Person being also the Mortgagee as well as the Mort-gagee, inquires of a prior Mortgage, whether he hath any Incumbrance on the Estate, and he doth not own the same shall null his Action. 2 Femur. 534. By Stat. 4 W. & M. 31. c. 16, where Mortgagee makes a second Mortgage, and do not discover the first, the second Mortgagee may redeem, &c. A Jurisdiction of mortgaged Lands was decreed to pay the Mortgage Mo-oney for Redemption, and hold over, till the and her Executors should be paid with Interest. Chanc. Rep. 27. And where a Devise of Land mortgagd, was to one for Life, and Remainder to another in Fee; it was adjudged, That Tenant for Life should pay one third, and he in Remainder two thirds, to redeem. Ibid. But 'tis otherwise Prud. Chanc. 44. The Inheritance in Lands mortgagd is in Law in the Mortgagd before the Mortgagee; he hath purchased the Land as it were upon valuable Consideration, as the Law will intend; And though the Mortgagee may redeem, yet it is not certainly known whether he will or no; and if he do not, the Estate is absolete in the Mortgagee. A Mortgage is enforced in Possession on executing the Mortgage; if the Mortgagee is not paid, whereby the Land is forfeit, he may bring Ejection without actual Entry; but where a Condition is to be done, he must give actual Entry. 1 Barn. & Adr. 203. After twenty Years, (the Time of Eas-

-try limited by Stat. 21. Jac. 1.) when no Demand has been made of the Money, or Interest paid, &c. Mortgages are not relivable in Chancery, unless there be extraordinary Circumstances to induce it, as in Case of Feme Cooperis, Infano, &c. 2 Femur. 540. It has been however held, that Mortgages of Lands are not within the Statue of Limitation; though that Act may be a proper Direction to go by; indeed sometimes Equity has allowed Length of Time to be pleaded, in this Case; may be the Mortgage to be defended as a Fee, without Claim by the Mortgagee, and the Mortgages would be intensified with a long Account. 1 Chanc. 101. after 17. £2. 313. -claiming such Lands, if the Person who hath a Mortgage, without notice of a former Incumbrance, shall redeem, shall pending the Action pay to the Mortgagee, or bring into Court, all the principal Money ing, &c. as to the Right of Redemption be not controversial, &c. Where a Mortgagee Conveys after Default to make further Assurance, for the subsistence failing, &c. this Assurance to be made must be absolute, because the Estate is to be so: But it shall not, Mortmain, (Med. Mortem, i. e. Dead Hand, from the Fr. Mort, ixe. Mort, and Mens, Mans) is where Lands and Tenements are given or alienated to any House of Religion or Corporation, sole or aggregate, Ecclesiastical and Temporal, and their Successors, without the Consent of the King and the Sees, &c. which may not be done without Licence from the King: And the Reason of the Name proceeds from this, that the Services and other Profits due for such Lands, should not without such Licence come into Hands as it were dead, and be so dedicated to pious Uses as to be absolutely different from other Lands, and never to return to the Donor, or any Temporal or common Use. And because the Lords had nothing from the Aliences for by Alienation in Mortmain they lost their ancient, and many Services which were heretofore due to them, as Bodles Politick never die, nor can perform personal Service, commit Treson or Felony, &c. This occasioned the Statutes of Mortmain, by the power of the King or other Lord of whom the Land is holden, may enter into Lands so alienated. 1 Infr. 2. 2 Infr.

75. The Foundation of all the Statutes of Mormain was Magna Charta. By the 9 H. 2. c. 96. It is decided, that it shall not be lawful for any to give his Lands to any Religious House, and to take the Land again to hold of the same House. Gr. upon Pain that the Gift shall be void, and the Land shall accrue to the Lord of the Fee. This Statute is intended to extend to Lands, which a Religious House kept in their own Hands, though they gave them not back again to hold of the same House.
2 Infr. 75. But Ecclesiastical Persons hold of any Gift or Lease, or by Reason of any other Title, receive the same, or by any other Craft shall appropriate Lands in any wise to come into Mortmain, on Pain of Forfeiture; and within a Year after the Alienation, the Land so conveyed may be recovered; and if it do not, then the next immediate Lord, from Time to Time may enter in Half a Year; and for Default of all the Lords entering, the King shall have the Lands so alienated for ever, and may enjoin others by certain Services, &c. As this Statute extended only to Gifts, Alienations, &c., made between Ecclesiastics and others, they found out an Evasion of all of this Statute; for pretending a Title to the Land, which they meant to gain, they brought a seignior Action against the Tenant of the Land, and he by Conven and Collation was made Default, and thence they recovered the Land, and entered by Judgment of Law: So that the Stat. 15 Ed. I. c. 32. was thought necessary; by which it is to be inferred by the Country whether the Demesnaut had a just Title to the Land; and if so, then he shall recover Seilin; but if otherwise, the Lord of the Fee shall enter, by Stat. 4 Ed. I. Lord Luke Etketh in 1300, not be alienated in Mortmain, where there are mean Lords, without their Consent declared under Hand and Seal; nor shall any Title pass where the Donor reserves nothing to himself. Notwithstanding all these Statutes, Ecclesiastical Persons (not being able to get Lands by Purchase, Gift, Lease, or Recovery) procured Lands to be conveyed by Feoffment, or in other Manner, to divers Persons and their Heirs, to the Use of them and their Succeedors, whereby they took the Profs. 2 Inf. 75. To bar this, the Stat. 19 Ed. I. c. 59. was made, which Statute enacts, that no Feoffment, &c., of any Lands and Tenements, Advenues or other Possessions, to the Use of any Spiritual Persons, or whereof they shall take the Profits, shall be made without Licence of the King, and of the Lords, &c., upon Pain of Forfeiture. And by 23 H. 8. c. 10. against superfluous Uses, Forfeitures, Fines, Recoveries, Grants, Devises, &c., of Lands, to the Use of any Parish Church, or to have perpetual Oboe, or continual Service of a Priest for ever, or for forty Years, &c., to the Prejudice of the King and other Lords, is in Case of Lands aliened in Mortmain, shall be void: Though this last Statute extends not to Corporations, where there is a Custom to devide Lands in Mortmain; as in London, a Freeman that pays Scot and Lot, may devise all his Lands in the City in Mortmain, without Licence. 1 Roll. Abr. 556. And notwithstanding this, or any of the before-mentioned Statutes, any Man at the Discretion of the Bishop may give Lands, Tenements, &c., to any Burse of any Minister, and their Heirs, for finding a Preacher, Maintenance of a Church, or support of Churches, Relief of the Poor, &c., or for any like charitable Uses: Though it is good Policy on every such Estate to reserve a small Rent to the Feoffor and his Heirs, when the Feoffor shall be feared to his own Use, and not to the Use of the Feoffor; or if a Consideration of a small Sum be express'd, the 23 H. 8. cannot by any Pre- tence make void the Use. 1 Rep. 24. 1 Ed. 70. Wind. Inf. 591. By the Statute 59 Eliz. cap. 5. the Gift of Lands, &c., to Hospitails is permitted without obtaining Licences of Mortmain. Owners of Inheritance may also annex them to the Parish or Vicarage where they lie, or settle them in Trust for the Curates, where the Parsonage is improper, and no Vicarage endowed, without Licence of Mortmain; And a Clerk could convey with any Benefit thereunto. Cure shall not amount to 100 L. per Annum, the Incumbent may purchase to him and his Successors, &c., without Licence in Mortmain. 32 Ed. I. c. 7. But by ancient Statutes, the King's Licence may be had for authorizing of Lands, and the Writ of Aliquot pro quo is still out of Common Law to inquire concerning the same. 27 Ed. I. Prolatas, Clerics, &c., shall not be imprisoned for purchasing Lands in Mortmain, on producing the King's Charter of Licence. 18 Ed. 3. And it is declared lands for the King to grant for a Permon, both of those that are his Tenures and Succesors, Licence to alien in Mortmain; and purchase and hold in Mortmain in Perpetuity, &c., without incurring any Forfeiture, by Stat. 7 & 8 H. 3. c. 37. 'A Grant of an Advenion in Fee, or an Appropriation of an Advenion, hath been adjudged a Mortmain; but an Appropriation of Tithes, which are Things meerly Spiritual, or a Grant of an Annuity, that chargeth the Person only, cannot be Mortmain, to be forfeited. 1 Inf. 2. 304. 2 Inf. 561. 5 Rep. 46. 9 Rep. 66. A late Statute has ordained, that no Minors, Lands, &c., shall be given, granted to, or settled on any Permon, Bodies Politick or Corporate, for any Effeate whatsoever, or charged in Trust for charitable Uses, unless done by Deed intended, and sealed at least twelve Months before the Death of the Donor or Granter, and inrolled in Chancery within six Months after executed, &c., And except as to Grant of Tenures, under a Valuable Consideration; or by the two Universities, or Colleges of Eton, Wind- chester, &c., Statute of Mortmain, g Geo. 2. c. 50. A Mortmain, (Mortmain) is defined to be a Gift left by a Man at his Death to his Parish Church, in a Reconcilement of personal Tithes omitted to be paid in his Life-time: Or it is that Beasf or other Cattle movable, which, after the Death of the Owner, by the Custom of some Place is due to the Parson, the Vicar, or Priest of the Parish, in lieu of Tithes or Offerings forgott, or not well and truly paid by him that is dead. Terms de Ley 449. Mr. Selden tells us, that the Usice anciently was to bring the Mortmain along with the Corps when it came to be buried, and deliver it to the Church as a Satisfaction for the suppressed Negligence and Oblivion that had been guilty of in not paying his personal Tithes; and from thence it was called a Causa pretendi. Sid. Hid. Toches 287. A Mortmain is not properly due to an Ecclesiastical Incumbent from any but those only of his own Parish, to whom he ministered spiritual Instruction, and had Right to their Tithes; but by Custom in some Places they are paid to the Incumbent of other Parishes, when the Corpse of dead Bodies pass through them: And the Bishops of Bangor, Landaff, St. David's, &c., formerly had Mortuaries of Priests, till taken away by the Acts 13 & 14 Ann. 6. 6 & 7 Geo. 1. When the Diocese of Chester shrank, it was said to be a Custom for the Bishop to have a Mortmain on the Death of every Archdeacon, to the End that the Incumbent might receive the Jurisdiction of the see, of his belt Beasf, Saddle and Bridle, and belt Gown or Cloak, Hat, and upper Garment under the Gown, &c., Car. 172. Before the Stat. 21 H. 8. Nov. hirses were payable in Beaufort given to the Lord for a Heriot, the second belt for a Mortmain: &c. was it only De malori Averio, sed de maloribus? And Mortuaries (that is one who sold them on Legitimous Proclam's quisque per Anima Defuncti.) It hath been held, that such a Right was vested in the Parson to have the second belt Beasf for a Mortmain, (where by Custom in some Places they are paid to the Incumbent of other Parishes) that he might prefer it to the Lord for a Heriot, ever he could find it; but they are now rated to be paid in Money. 2 Inf. 491. Clergyman, Law 474. No Mortmain is originally due by Law, but by Custom Enlarged and confirmed by several Statutes. Writs were held as due Deben, and the Payment of them was enjoined as well by the Statute De Cor- respens et Libellis. 15 Car. 2. c. 24. The In- cumbents, &c., And by the 21 H. 8. cap. 6. Value, no Mortuary is to be paid; and no Mortuary is to be paid by any Feome Covert or Child, Persons not keeping House, &c. If one happens to die in a Place where he does not reside, by this Statute the Mortuary shall be paid in the Place where he had his whole Abode; no Person shall pay Mortuary in more than one Place; and no Mortuary shall be demanded of any in such Places where Mortuary are due by Culsum, and have used to have been paid: Also there is a Pravtil in the Statute, that in Places where Mortuaries have been of less Value than as aforesaid, no Person shall pay any more than has been accustomed. If a Person, Vicar, &c. take or demand more than is allowed by the Statute for a Mortuary, he shall forfeit all he takes beyond it, and 40 l. more to the Party grieved, to be recovered by Action of assizes, &c. Since this Statute, whereby Mortuaries are reduced to a Certainty, an Action of Debt will lie upon the said Statute in the Courts of Common Law, for Recovery of the Sum due for a Mortuary, being by Culsum as afore-aid, although before that Statute they were recoverable only in the Spiritual Court: But as such Actions have never been brought, it is evident that they are still recoverable in that Court only. Action in Court. In the Courts of Chancery, King's Bench, &c. Mortuaries are made by Barristers and Counselors at Law, and that conducts their Civil Causes: And where any Motion is made in Chancery, that is not of Courte, generally an Affidavit of the Facts alleged must be read in Court: And if Motion is made on the General Rules or Lige of the Court, and are not of Courte, but granted or denied as the Court thinks fit, on hearing Counsel on both Sides, Notice is to be given in Writing to the Solicitor of the other Party, or his Clerk in Court, expressing every Thing moved for, which must be served two Days at least before the Day on which the Motion is to be made, whereof Affidavit must also be made. Pract. Seric. 17. In B. R. one ought not to move the Court for a Rule for a Thing to be done, which by the common Rules of Practice may be done without moving the Court for it: Nor shall the Court be moved for the doing what is against the Practice of the Court: One ought not to move for several Things in one Motion. Nor if a Motion hath been denied, the same Matter may not be moved again by another Counsel, without acquitting the Court thereof, and having their Leave for the fame: But every Person who makes a full Lemma Argument at the Bar, is allowed by the Court a Motion for his Argument. 2 Litt. Ab. 209, 210. If there be divers Rules of Court made in a Cause, and the Party intends to move thereon, he must produce the Rule that was laid made in the Cause, and move upon that; But it is necessary to have all the Rules and Copies of the Affidavit, to justify the Court how the Cause hath been proceeded in, and how it stands in Court; though the last Rule is the most material: And where a Motion is made to set aside a Rule grounded on an Affidavit, a Copy of the Affidavit must be produced, that the Court may be informed upon what Grounds the Rule was made and judge whether there be Cause shown upon the Motion sufficient to set aside the Rule. Pack. 1 Cor. B. R. Hil. 1649. If any Thing be moved to the Court upon a Record, the Record is to be produced in the Court, or the Court will make no Rule upon such Motion. Hil. 12 Cor. B. R. One Party ought not to surmise another by a Motion in Court, but to move in convenient Time, that the other Party may have Time to be heard. Pack. 23 Cor. It is against the Practice of the Court to move for an Attachment, or any Matters in Law, upon the last Day of the Term, except the Cause is in Chancery. Monday is a special Day for Motions in B. R. by the ancient Courte; but they are made upon any Day, as the Business of the Court will permit: The three or the two last Days of the Term are apt to be kept the Motion, and Crown Office Causes; and the last Day chiefly for Motions to prepare Business against the next Term or Affid. A Litt. 202, 210. In the Chancery, during the Term, every Thursday is a Day for Sealing, and Motuus; and Wednesday and Saturday days are Days for Motuus, as are the first and last Days of the Term: In Vacation, only Seal Days appointed by the Lord Chancellor, are Days of Motuus. Shurmer. (Is derived from the Sax. Mund, i.e. Mundaco, Mundaco, Bric, frater) And is mentioned among divers Crimes, as Spid frath, Lord Majestac, &c. Spid Gall. Some would have Mundreco to signify an Infringement of Privileges; though of later Times it is expounded Cassifororum fradastinum, a Breach of Munds, by which Name Dutches and Faces are called in many Parts of England; And we say, when Lands are fenced in and hedged, that they are named.

Targus, (Maragum) Is a reasonable Tell, to be taken of every Cart and Horse coming laden through a City or Town, for the Building or Repairing the publick Walls thereof, due either by Grant or Pre- fcription: And it seems to be a Liberty granted to a Town by the King, for the Collecting of Money towards the Waging of the same. 3 Edw. 1. c. 50. 2 Inf. 222. The Service of We and Labour done by Inhabitants and adjoining Tenants in Building or Repairing the Walls of a City or College, was called Maragum operato, and when the publick Duty was commuted into Money, the Tax so gathered was called Marague. Paroch. Anc. 114. And in the City of Chester, there are two ancient Officers called Mrugens, being two of the principal Aiders chosen to see the Walls kept in good Repair, for the Maintenance of which they receive certain Tolls and Collections.

Murder, (Murdom, from the Sax. Merc, whence, as it is said, comes the barbarous Latin Mordum & Murdum; i.e. Mens Mordae, though I think the Word Mordre, evidently comes from the Lat. Meri duri) is a Word in Use long before the Reign of King Cenatus, which some would have to signify Mens Mordae; and sometimes the Saxons expressed it by Mordendi & Murdendi, a deadly Work: But I cannot find that the Sax. Merch relates to a violent Death, but generally Merci. Anciently Murder signified only the private Killing of a Man, as appears by the Laws of King Hen. 1. And it was not Murder, except the Party slain was an Eng- lishman, and no Forger; though by the Stat. 14 Edw. 3. c. 4. the Killing of any Englishman or Po- riger, living under the King's Protection, through Malice prepone, and whether committed openly or se-crety, is declared to be Murder, S. P. C. lib. 1. cap. 1.

P. C. 78. By Murder at this Day, we understand the wilful and felonious Killing of any Man whatsoever, upon Malice forethought; so as the Party wound-hed or hurt die within a Year and a Day after the Fact;
And if one dies in that Time, through disorderly Living, it shall be no Excuse, the Wound shall be judged the principal Cause of his Death; but if one wounded die after that Time, the Law will presume he died a natural Death. 3 Inf. 73. H. P. C. 55.
A. 26. If a Man receives a Wound, that is not mortal; but either for want of Help, or by the Neg-left thereof, it turns to a Fever, &c. which causes the Party’s Death, it is Murder: And so it is, where a Man has some Disease, which would permissibly terminate his Life in half a Year, and another wounds him, that is Malice preparata, &c. If by his Application of the Party, or those about him, of unwholesome Medicine, the wounded Peron dies; if this plainly appears, it is not Murder, by Huh Ch. Jiff.
Inf. 54. Peron may be committed in divers manners; as by Weapon, Poison, Cruelty, Breuising, Smothering, Strangling, Starving, &c. And where a Peron is another, if he strike him at his Floor, if he be at his one lays Poison to kill a Peron, and another takes it, and dies, they are Murder: Also if a sick Man be laid in the Cold, whereof he die, or an Infant is laid under Leaves or Trees, &c. and suffered to be destroyed by Vermin, they are Killing. 3 Inf. 51.

if a Man have an Ox, or Horse, which he knows to be mischivous, by being used to gore or strike those who come near them, and do not tie them up,

Owner may be indicted, as having him feloniously killed him. Ped. 123. H. P. C. 53. 1 Hawk. P. C.

ment compel a Man to accuse an innocent Peron, who

S. P. C. 36. 3 Inf. 91. All the above Cases show Malice in so where a Prisone, by the Deeds of the Guarder, comes to an unmentionable End; if one is execr contrary to the Direction of the Law; or if a Peron kill a Man that is adjudged to Death; or one who has no Authority shall execute the Judgments; if a Peron feared to be whipped, is whipped with that Rigor that he die of it, &c. But one under the Age of Dicration, or Non Compus Menti, cannot be found to be a Murderer, by Circumstances that the Infant did hide the Body, &c. it is Felony. H. P. C. 43. 3 Inf. 4, 6, 7. If an Infant under twelve Yeats old, hath an extraordinary Wit, that it may be presumed he knows what he does, and he kill another, it may be Felony and Murder: otherwise it shall not. 3 H. 7. 13. Plead. 101.
It is Malice Plead, that a Man, which is either express or implied; it is express, when it may be evidently proved there was formerly some ill Will, and the Killing is with a sedate Mind, and formed Design of doing it: And implied, where one kills another suddenly, having nothing to defend himself, as going over a Stile, or the like. 5 Inf. 51. H. P. C. 47.
Such Murder as is occasioned through an express Purpose to do some personal Injury to him with a Stile, is properly laid to be of express Malice: And such as happens in the Execution of an unlawful Action, principally intended for some other Purpos, and not expressed in its Nature to do a personal Injury to him in particular that is killed, is most properly Malice implied. 259. 150. He that doth a cruel and vo-untary Act, whereby Death ensues, doth it of Malice prepared in the Eeume of the Law: And if a Peron in cool Blood, maliciously and deliberately does another in such a Manner, beyond any apparent Intent of Challencement, that he die, it is Murder by express Malice, although he did not design to kill him. H.
P. C. 49. 50. 63. 147. 135. But if a Peron on any Provocation beat another so, that it might plainly appear he meant not to kill, but only to challenge him; or if he refrains himself till the other hath put himself on his Guard, and then in fighting with him killeth him, he shall not be guilty of Murder but Manslaughter. 1 Hawk. P. C. 85. When one excutes his Revenge, upon a sudden Provocation, in such cruel Manner, with a dangerous Weapon, as thows a malicious Intention to murder; and by this and such Acts, it is express Malice and Murder from the Nature of the Fact. 55. 61. 150. A Man chides his Servant, and upon a sudden provocation, having a hot Iron in his Hand, ran it into the Servant’s Belly, of which he died, this was adjudged Murder.
64. If a Peron is trepassing upon another, by breaking his Hedges, &c. and the Owner upon Site thereof take up a Hedge Stake, and give him a Stroke on the Head, whereby he dies, this is Murder, because it is a violent Act beyond the Proportion of the Provocation. H. P. C. And where a Boy was on a Tree in a Park cutting of Wood, and the Keeper bid him come down, which he did; and then the Keeper bruck him several Blows with a Cudgel, and afterwards with a Rope tied him to his Horse’s Tail, and the Horse ran away with him and killed him: this was held to be Murder out of Malice, the Boy having come down at the Keeper’s Command. Cre. Car.
139. H. P. C. A Man’s Son was beaten, and complaining of it to his Father, the Father in Anger beat the other Boy with a Cudgel whereas he died; the Law shall adjudge it to be upon such sudden Occasion, and Arming of Blood, that he made the Assault, and not upon Malice, unless it be found; and if the Distance of the Place where he was beaten is not Mile, it is not material, being all upon one Pullion.
Cra. Fac. 256. And it is the same in Case of a Brother, Cousin, Servant, &c. It is only Manslaughter not Murder. 2 Ellis. 211. If two having Malice fight, and the Servant of one of them, not knowing of the Malice, killeth the other, this is Murder in the Masser, and but Manslaughter in the Servant: Though if there be a Controversy to kill a Man, but no Malice against his Servant: if the Servant be false, the Malice against the Master shall be continued to extend to his Servant; and the Killing the Servant is Murder.
Dyer 138. 1 Martin. If two Persons meet and fight in cool Blood, on a precedent Quarrel, and one is killed: Or if a Peron in a quarrel appears to be in a Misster of his Temper, and kills another, it is Murder.
1 Hawk. P. C. 81. For where two Persons fight after a former Quarrel, it may be presumed to be out of Malice: and when two Men fall out in the Morning, and meet and fight in the Afternoon, if one of them is killed, this is Murder: their After-Meeting is Malice. 41. 57. If a Man upon a Quarrel with another, tells such other that he will not strike him, but will give him a Pot of Ale to strike him, and the other strikes him, and he kills the other, he is guilty of Murder: this being only a Cover
Cover to his malicious Intention. H. P. C. 48. And whom he as aforesaid killed, he shall be included one of Malsice; if he prove not the contrary. Kel. 27. A Man assaults another Perfon with Mallice, although he he afterwards driven by the other to the Wall, and kill him there, his Defence, he is wholly in the same respect, as is the Artiller in respect of his fi last Intent. H. P. C. 47. Kel. 58, 129. But if the Party assailed fi the Wall, and being fi first purifies, kills him, it is only Man- slaugher in his own Defence. Branc. 3. Ed. 5. If one resolves to kill the next Man he meets, and doth kill him, it is Murder: here Mallice is implied against all Mankind. Kel. 57. By poisoning, and where one kills another without Provocation, Mallice is im- plied; as where any Magistrate or Miniller of Justice is killed in the Execution of his Office: a Sheriff, Constable or Watchman, doing their Duty, or any other that comes in Aid of the King's Officer; and if a Watchman be killed in playing at Night-walkers, it is said to be Murder. 3 In. 13. Cr. Law. 280. Kel. 60, 128. In these Cases, it is a very high Contempt of the Laws, for a Perfon to execute his Revenge against the person who has no Way offended him but by doing their Duty, and the Matchless thing is in doing it with the inhumanity which he did in a sudden Affray. Gr. 1. Hawko. P. C. 8. And if a Ballif is killed in executing a lawful Office, viz. it is Murder: Nor is it any Excuse to the Perfon, that the Process was erroneous; or that the Arreall was in the Night: that the Officer did not tell him for what Cause he arrested him; or that he did not show his Warrant, Gr. 2. being a Ballif commonly known. 9 Rep. 68, 69. Cr. Law. 380. 486. But if a Ballif who is not executing his Office is killed, it is not Murder; for he ought to be daily executing his Of- fice, by serving the Process of the Law, wherein he is as- sedo as Penitent Regni & Legii. Cro. Car. 572. Lill. Abr. 21. Therefore where the Warrant by which he is given him no Authority to arrest the Par- ty: as where a Ballif arrests a wrong Perfon, or J. S. a Baronet, by Force of a Warrant to arrest J. S. Knight, or if a good Warrant is executed in an un- lawful Manner; as if a Ballif be killed in breaking open a Door, or Window to arrest a Man; or perhaps if he arrest one on a Sunday: since the Stat. 29 Car. 2. c. 7, which by all such Arrests are made unlawful, and he is slain: Mallice shall not be implied to make it Murder, but the same shall be Man slaughter only. H. P. C. 46. Cro. Car. 372. 13 Rep. 49. 1 Henri. 8. If a Ballif comes to a House to arrest a Perfon, and the House being locked they attempt to break in, whereupon the Son of the Perfon intended to be arrested, breaks the Door, and kills one of the Ballif; it is murder. Jones. 429. A Perfon was arrested, and another not knowing the Cause of the Struggle, but seeing Swords drawn, and to prevent mischief, came and defended the Party against the Ballif, and the Ballif was killed; it was resented to be no Murder in the Perfon doing it, but that all that were present and assisting, knowing of the Arrest, were principal Murderers. Kel. 16. Though it has been held in such a Case, that the Per- fon offending is Guilty of Murder, whether he knew that the Perfon flane were an Officer or not; for all Persons, who seeing Persons engaged in it, takes Part with one Side, and fights in the Quarell, without knowing the Cause of it, especially where the Fight is begun in Opposition to the justice of the Case, he being aforesaid as a Ballif, and the Laws on a small Occasion, and must at his Peril take heed what he doth. 1 Sid. 160. D. in Manner and Form aforesaid, against the Peace of our said Sovereign Lord the King, his Crown and Dignity.

MURDER, or Homicide justifiable. There is a Killing that is justifiable; as if a Persson attempts to commit Murder, Robbery, or other Felony, a Man or any of his Seruants may lawfully kill him. 2 Inst. 316. See Statute 24 H. 6. c. 5. If a Person in Defence of the Possession of a Room in a Publik House kill another who attempts to turn him out of it, the Killing the Affiant hath been holden to be justifiable. Kel. 51. Hen. 8. 3. In the Defence of the Possession of a Man's Goods, against him that would wrongfully take them away, Killing cannot be justified; except he be a Thief. Wood's Inst. 381. If a Woman kills a Man attempting to ravish her, it is justifiable. H. P. C. 39. Those who are engaged in a Riot, or forcible Entry, &c. in Opinion to a Justic's Command, or lawful Warrant: Or if Trespassers in a Forest or Park, will not forbear, but defend themselves: If a Felon will not suffer himself to be arrested, and refusing to obey any Arrest on lawful Warrant, defends himself; or if one either with or without a Warrant, pursues a Felon upon Hoe and Cry, and he flies for it: If a Prisoner affrights those that conduct him to Gaol, or his Gaoler, in endeavouring to escape: or a Person arrested, refit the Sheriff, &c. the Killing thee is justifiable; but a Sheriff cannot kill one that flies from the Execution of a Civil Process: And as no private Person hath this Authority, upon an Arrest in a Civil Matter, as he hath upon an Arrest for Felony; to neither hath the Sheriff this Power, unless he be by the Warrant: as when an Offender cannot be taken without Killing, &c. for if he might be taken without killing him, it will be elusum lignum. 3 Inst. 211. When he speaks not at all, and shall be suspected whether he stand Mutes, or is safe, and by the Act of God; and if by the latter, then the Judge ought to inquire whether he be the same Person, and of all Pleas which he might have pleaded in his Defence, if he had not been Mute. 2. When the Prisoner pleads not directly, or will not put himself upon the Inquest to be tried, and a Person forgoing him Mute, and refuses to take any Indemnation, he shall be taken as one who stands Mute. 2 Inst. H. P. C. 236. Also if a Prisoner on his Trial peremptorily challenge above the Number of Jurors allowed by Law, this being an implied Refusal of a legal Trial, he shall be dealt with as one that stands Mute, and according to some Opinions be hang'd. Subigeftifus, A Ship or Barge that Noble men use for pleasure, with fine Chambers and other costly Ornaments. Law Lat. Diet.

Subigeft, Signifies the Fleet or Shipping of a Prince or State; or an Armament at Sea. The Navy of England it has been observed, excels all others for three Things; viz. Beauty, Strength and Safety; for Beauty their Ships of War are to many Floating Palaces; for their Strength so many moving Citizens; and for Safety, they are the most defensive Walls of the Land: And as our naval Power gains us Authority in the most distant Climes, so to the Superiority of our Fleet above other Nations, renders the British Monarch the Arbiters of Europe. The Kings of England in ancient Times commanded their Fleets in Person; and the renowned King, Artus, famous for his hardlike Achievements, vindicated the Dominion of the Sea, making Ships of all Na- tions sail our Ships of War, by lowering the Top- sail, and striking the Flag, as in like Manner they shall do the Ports upon Lands, by which Submis- sions they are put in Mind that they are come into a Territory, wherein they may not dare to approach; a Sovereign Po- wert and Jurisdiction, and receive Protection from it. And this Duty of the Flag, which has been constantly paid to our Ancillaries, serves to impinge Reven-ues in Foreign Parts, and adds new Courage to our Seamen: and Reputation abroad, is the principal Sup- port of any Government at home. King Edward Suc- cessor an Arthur, sinned himself Sovereign of the nar- row Sea; and having sailed out a Fleet of four hun- dred Sail of Ship, in the Year 937, sailing about Britain with his mighty Navy, and arriving at Con- stantinople, was there met by eight Kings and Princes of foreign Nations, come to do him Homage; who gave him an Acknowledgment of his Sovereignty, rowed this Monarch in a Boat down the River Dee, himself steering the Boat; a marine Triumph which is not to be paralleled in the Histories of Europe. Cassius, Caesar’s Successor, said the ancient Tribune called the Downfall, for the Guarding of the Sea, and Sover- eignty of them; with the following Emblems, ex- pressed, viz. Himself sitting on the Shore in his Royal Chair, while the Sea was flowing, speaking. "To be done iin to, Oe in the sea." And Egypt, Alford and Edberth keep up the Domin- ancy and Sovereignty of their Predecessors; nor did the succeeding Princes of the Norman Race, wave this great Advantage, but maintained their Right to the the four adjacent Seas surrounding the British Shore: The Honor of the Flag King John challenged, not barely as a Civility, but a Right to be paid by all, and the Persons refunding, he commanded to be assaulted, and taken as Enemies; and the same was ordained not only to be paid to whole Fleets, bearing the Royal Standard, but to those Ships of Privilege that wear the Prince's Ensigns or Colors of Service; this Decree was confirmed and bravely adhered by a Fleet of five hundred Sail, in a Royal Voyage to Ireland, wherein he made all the Veils which he met with in his Way, in the eight circumjacent Seas, to pay that Duty and Acknowledgment, which has been maintained by our Kings to this Day, and was never contester by any Nation, unless by those who attempted the Conquest of the entire Empire. It was Trade that gave Occasion to the bringing of mighty Fleets to Ships to Sea; and upon the Increase of Trade, Ships of War were necessary in all Countries for the Prevenation of it in the Hands of the just Proprietors: And in ancient Times the several Counties of England were liable to a particular Taxation for building Ships of War, and fitting out Fleets, every one in Proportion to their Estates and Riches; so that the largest Counties were each of them to furnish a First Rate Man of War, and the others every one to build one in Proportion; but this Method has been long disused, and the Fitting out our Navy for many Ages has been always thrown into the Publick Charge. King Edw. 3. in his Wars with France, had a Fleet of Ships of War, so numerous, that they amounted to seven hundred Sail: But King Hen. 8. it is said, was the First that began to build a New Royal in England; he built a Ship called the Great Henry of one thousand Tons, the largest Ship that had been then seen in this Kingdom, (though now our First-Rate Ships of War, contain at least two thousand Tons, are moored with above one hundred Cannons, and carry above one thousand Men.) He fitted out a Royal Fleet, constituted a Navy Office, &c. And in this King's Reign, and the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, our Royal Navy was in a most flourishing Condition, being most commended by our valiant Nobility; and it is remarkable, that there are Lifts of the Fleets of Queen Elizabeth, which was the largest, but there was but one private Gentleman a Captain, all the rest being Lords and Knights: So high was the Esteem for Service at Sea in those Days, when our Princes ruled with the most commanvatorial Glory: But the Opinion of serving at Sea in late Times has been very much levell'd, it has since been declined by the Nobility and Gentlemen. The New Royal of England is at this Time in a very flourishing State; for Number of Shipping, and Strength and Force of the Ships, it was never, perhaps, more formidable than now; and when compleat, it is divided into three Squadrons, distinguished by the different Colours of the several Flags, viz. Red, White, and Blue; the principal Commanders whereof bear the Title of Admiral, and each has under him a Vice-Admiral, and a Rear-Admiral, who are likewise Flag-officers. There are belonging to his Majesty's Navy, fix great Yards, viz. Chatham, Deptford, Woolwich, Portsmouth, Sheerness, and Plymouth; fitted with several Docks, and furnished with Stores of Timbers, and Amenities of the first Order. The Management of the New Royal, there are several Officers of Trust and Authority, besides the Commanders of the Admiralty; as the Treasurer, Governor General, Commissaries of the Navy, Commissioners of Victualling Office, &c. The Principal whereof hold their Offices by Patent under the direction by the Act of Parliament, and the Sum of 500,000l. was appropriated for Building of twenty-seven Ships of War, with their Gens, Rigging, &c. And the Act 6 Ann. c. 15. enacted, That over and above the Ships for the Line of Battle, forty-three Ships or all Conditions being Captains and Commodores, for the better preferring such Ships as shall be made Use of in the Trade of Great Britain; four of these Ships are to be Third Rates, and sixteen Fourth Rates, and the rest of sufficient Force to guard our Commerce: They are to attend in certain Stations; and the Lords of the Admiralty may direct the Commanders of the Navy, or some one or more Persons resident at such Places as his Majesty shall appoint, to superintend and oversee every Thing relating to those Cruizers; also the Commanders of the Admiralty have Power to order any of the said Ships to be employed in the Line of Battle, in Case of Necessity. This Statute likewise empowers the Commanders of the Admiralty, during War, to grant Commissions to Privates and Commanders of Ships, for the Taking and Seizing Ships and Goods of Enemies. For the Furling of Mariner for the Flee, by 7 Eliz. 5. 3 & 4. it is enacted, That Persons, Men, Watermen, &c. above the Age of eighteen Years, and under fifty, capable of Sea Service, who shall resign their Servants to the King's Service in the Navy Royal, to the Number of thirty Thousand, shall have paid to them the yearly Sum or Bounty of 40l. besides their Pay for actual Service, and that whether they be in Service or not; and none but such Mariners, &c. are as registered, shall be capable of Presentment to any Commission, or be Warrant Officers in the Navy. And such registered Persons are excepted from serving on Juries, Parish Offices, &c. Also from Service abroad after the Age of fifty-five Years, unless they go voluntarily; and when by Age, Wounds, or other Accidents, they are disabled for future Service at Sea, they shall be admitted into Greenwich Hospital, and there be provided for during Life: And the Widows of such Seamen as shall be slain or drowned, not of Ability to provide for themselves, shall be likewise admitted into the said Hospital; and their Children educated, &c. But if any regimented Seamen shall withdraw his Commission from the King's Service, in his Ships or Navy; or if any such Mariner relinquish the Service, with the Consent of the Commanders of the Admiralty, he shall for ever lose the Benefit of the Act, and be compelled to serve in his Majesty's Fleet for six Months without any Pay. By a subsequent Statute 6 & 7 Ann. Watermen plying on the Thames, Medway, and运用, are under Notice given by the Commanders of the Admiralty to the Company of Watermen, to appear before the said Company, to be tried by his Majesty's Fleet; or on the Thames, Medway, and运用, and be disabled working on the Thames for two Years. The Regulating of Seamen is the grand Necessity for the Fleet; but there are other Ways and Means of supplying Mariners for the Navy Royal, and Training up of Persons in the Sea Service; For the Stat 2 Ann. c. 6, provides, that poor Boys, whose Parents are chargeable to the Parish, may be Churchwardens and Overseers of the Poor, with the Consent of two Justices of the Peace, be placed our Apprentices to the Sea Service, until the Age of twenty-one Years, they being above the Age of 16. And the Statute 9 & 10 William 4. 3 & 4. provides, that all Sailsmans above 16. Sixteen Years of Age, may be imprisoned for Service in the Fleet, when the Owners or Makers of the Ships, or others, as the management of the New Royal, there are several Officers of Trust and Authority, besides the Commanders of the Admiralty; as the Treasurer, Governor General, Commissaries of the Navy, Commissioners of Victualling Office, &c. The Principal whereof hold their Offices by Patent under the direction by the Act of Parliament, and the Sum of 570,000l. was appropriated for Building or Soldier, in or belonging to the Fleet shall behave himself with Contempt to his superior Officer, being in the Execution of his Office, he shall be punished according to the Nature of his Office by the Judgment of a Court Martial. 20. Any Person concealing any traitorous or mutinous Practice or Deception, shall suffer Death, or such Punishment as a Court Martial shall think fit. Any Person finding Cause of Complaint of the Unwholesomeness of Vitals, or upon other just Ground, he shall quietly make the same known to his Superior, who, as far as be is able, shall cause the same to be presently remedied; and no Person upon any such or other Pretence shall attempt to stir up any Disturbance, upon Pain of such Punishments as a Court Martial shall think fit to inflict. 22. Any Person striking any his superior Officer, or drawing or offering to draw or lift up any Weapon against him, being in the Execution of his Office, shall suffer Death. And any Person pretending to quoad with any his superior Officer, being in the Execution of his Office, or disobeying any lawful Command of any his Officer, shall suffer Death, or such other Punishment as shall be inflicted upon him by a Court Martial. 23. No Person shall sleep upon his Watch, or negligently perform his Duty, or forfake his Station, upon Pain of Death, or such Punishment as 28. Murder. 29. And Beggary or Sodomy shall be punished with Death. 30. Robbery shall be punished with Death, or such Punishment as a Court Martial shall deem him to deserve. And all others do their Endeavours to detect and apprehend all Offenders upon Pain of being punished by a Court Martial. 31. And any Person forging and full Pay, guilty of Mutiny, Defection, or Sedition, in any Part of his Majesty's Dominions on Shore, when in actual Service relative to the Fleet, shall be liable to be tried by a Court Martial, and suffer the like Punishment as if the Offence had been committed at Sea. 33. Every Person in actual Service and full Pay, committing any in any Place of his Majesty's Dominions, any Crime punishable by these Articles, shall be liable to be tried and punished as if the Crime had been committed at Sea. 34. All other Crimes not Capital, not mentioned in this Act, shall be punished according to the Laws and Customs used at Sea. No Person to be imprisoned for longer than two Years. Nighthawk per Burke, or per Billam. Is the Judgment given against the Plaintiff in an Affion, either in Bar of his Affion, or in Abatement of his Writ or Bill, &c. Cit. Litt. 363.
In the Court above, the Judges there give Judgment for the Party for whom the Verdict is found: And the Trials by Nisi prius are for the Eafe of the Country, the Partie, Jurors, and Witness, by saving the Charge and Trouble of coming to Westminster; but in Matters of great Weight and Difficulty, the Judges above, upon Motion and Information, will oftentimes Certifies to be tried there, though laid in the Country, and then the Jurors and Witnesses in such Cases must come up to the Courts at Westminster for Trial at Bar: And the King hath his Election to try his Suits at the Bar, or in the Country.

2 13 Ed. 1 c. 50. having ordained, that all Pleas in either Bench, which require only an early Examination, shall be determined in the Country; and the Judges of Afflict, by Virtue of the Writ appointed by that Statute, commonly called the Writ of Nisi prius, if it has been granted, may sit and hear a Cause joined in the King's Bench upon an Indictment or Appellate, whether for Treason or Felony, or a Crime of an inferior Nature, committed in a different County from that wherein the King in Council, or the Judges, were sitting in the proper County by Writ of Nisi prius: But as the King is not expressly named in this Statute; and it is a general Rule, that he shall not be bound except named, it is said, with an exception where the Writ of Nisi prius ought not to be granted, without his special Warrant, or the Affirm of his Attorney: though the Court may grant in Appeals in the same Matter as any other Affirm. 2 13 Ed. 4. 4 Ed. 16. 13 Ed. 1 c. 50. 2 Hawe. P. C. 411. Jurisdictions of Nisi prius have power to record Non suits and Defaults in the Country as the Days allowed, and are to report them at the Bench, &c. and are to hear and determine Conspiracies, Confederacies, Cheats, &c. by 12 Ed. 2 c. 4. 4 Ed. 3 c. 11. Nisi prius shall be granted in Attainders; but that which cannot be determined before the Julies upon the Nisi prius, shall be adjourned to the Bench where they are Jurisdiction; and the Julies before whom Inquisitions, Inquests, and Jurisdiction, shall be taken by the King's Writ of Nisi prius, are impowered to give Judgment in Felony and Treason, &c. and to award Execution by Force of their Judgment. Stat. 5 Ed. 14 Hen. 8. c. 1. It was held by Hale, that the Jurisdictions of Nisi prius have not any original Power of determining Felony, without special Commission for that Purpose; and by Virtue of the Acts 27 Ed. 1 & 19 16. 9. they have Authority to determine such Felonies only, as are sent down to be tried before them; in which Case, the Jury being finished, they may proceed to Trial and Judgment as if Jurisdictions of Gaol Delivery. 2 Hale's Nisi. P. C. 41. The Chief Justice of the King's Bench, Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, and Chief Baron of the Exchequer, and in their Abolish two other of the Judges, &c. as Jurisdictions of Nisi prius for the Country of Middlesex, shall try Causes upon Writs of Nisi prius on the 3rd of the Month following the End of the Term, and joined in B. R. and C. B. and the Exchequer, which were formerly only triable at Bar, in the Term-time, or in one or four Days after each Term. 2 Edw. 12. And the Time is enlarged to eight Days after the End of any Term; also any one Judge or Baron may try Causes, &c. according to the Statute 12 Edw. in the Absence of the Chief, and all Sheriffs, Officers, Parties and Witnesses, are required to attend. &c. by the 12 Edw. 1 c. 51. The Authority of Jurisdictions of Nisi prius in the Country, is annexed to the Jurisdictions of Afflict: and the Court above will take Judicial Notice of what is done at Nisi prius; being entered on Record. 2 Hawe. 409. Nomination, (Nomination) Is a Power that a Man hath, by Virtue of some Manor or otherwise, of ap- pointing a Clerk to a Patron of a Benefice, by him to be preferred to the Ordinary. The Right of No- mination a Man may have by Deed: and in such Case, if the Patron refuse to preface the Nomine, or prefers another, he may bring a Quaere Impedit; for he who is to prefer, is only an Instrument to him who nomi- nates: and the Person who hath the Nomination is in Effect the Patron of the Church. Plowd. 272. Morr. 47. A Nominate must appoint his Clerk within six Months after the Avoidance; if he doth not, and the Patron prefers his Clerk before the Bishop hath taken any Benefit of the Laiple, he is obliged to admit that Clerk; But where one hath the Nomination, and an- other the Preferment, if the Right of Preferment should afterwards come to the King, it is said he that hath the Nomination will be admitted to the Prefer- tinent; because the King who could possess can- not be subservient to the Nominate, it being contra- ry to his Dignity. Hugh's Parl. Law 26. 77. Right of nomination, &c. 35. 36. 37. 38. 39. Right of nomination, &c. 35. 36. 37. 38. 39. Whereof the Nominate curruptly agrees to nominate within the Statute of Simon, &c.

Famine Millstrem. King Edw. 2. sent his Let- ters to every Sheriff in England, requiring an exact Account and Return into the Exchequer of the Names of all the Villages, and Pelfeillors thereof in every Country; which being done accordingly, the Returns of the Sheriffs all joined together, are called Nomina Pillarum, still remaining in the Exchequer. Anno 9 Ed. 2.

Nomine Beare, Is a Penalty incurred for not paying of a Rent, &c. at the Day appointed by the Lease or Agreement for Payment thereof. 2 Loll. 221. If Rent is refused, and there is a Nolle Prosequi on the Non-payment of it, and the Rent be behind and unpaid, there must be an actual Demand thereof made, before the Grantee of the Rent can disfrain for it; the Nolle Prosequi being of the same Nature as the Rent, and issuing out of the Land out of which the Rent doth issue. Hilk. 22. 133. And where a Rent-Charge was granted for Years, with a Nomine Parece and Charge of Rent, it was not paid on the Day on the Rent's being behind, and the Term expired, the Court was moved that the Grantee might disfrain for the Nomine Parece; but it was held that he could not, because the Nomine Parece depended on the Rent, and the Distress was gone for that, and by Consequence for the other. 2 Noll. Abbr. 1182. See Stat. 8 Ann. 17. When any Sum of Nomin Parece is to be forfeit- ed for Non-payment of Rent at the Time, &c. Demand of the Rent ought to be precisely at the Day, in respect of the Penalty: And Debt will not lie on a Nomine Parece, without a Demand. 7 Rep. 29. Cr. Ex. 358. Style 4. If there is a Nomine Parece, of such a Sum for every Day, after Rent becomes due, it has been a Question whether there must be a De- mand for every Day's Nomine Parece, or one Demand for many Days: And by the better Opinion it hath been held, that for every Day there ought to be a Demand; and that one will not be sufficient for the Whole: But where a Nomine Parece of 40s. was lim- ited quodlibet die proximo the Fest Day on which the Rent ought to be paid, it was adjudged that there was but one 40s. forfeited, because the Word Parece relate to the very next Day following the Rent Day; and so likewise when the Rent became due and unpaid at the next Rent Day after that, and so on. Palm. 207. 2 Noll. Abbr. An Allignment is chargeable with a Nomine Parece incurred after the Allignment, but not before. Moor. 357. 2 Loll. Abr. 221. Though a Proviso is mentioned to be Nomine Parece, it would be a paying of a collateral Sum; it is no Nomine Parece, if it be not of a Rent. Law. 1156.

Nom-ability, Is an Exception taken against the Plaintiff in a Case, upon some juj Ground, why he cannot commence any Suit in Law; as Praemunia, Outlawry, Excommunication, &c. F. N. B. 35. 65.

It has been adjudged, where a Condition of a Bond is to have harmeless from all Suits in general, Non Damnificatus may be pleaded; and if it is in a particular Suit or Thing, there the Defendant must set forth how he hath done harmeless and discharged; but where a Suit is upon a Counter-Bond, the Plea of Non Damnificatus is good. 8 W. 3. Is the general Plea to an Action of Trepsalis, whereby the Defendant absolutely denies the Fact charged on him by the Plaintiff; whereas in other special Pleas, the Defendant does not deny the Fact to be done, but alleges some Reasons why he lawfully might do it. And as the Plea of Non Calp. is the general Answer in Actions of Trepsalis, being Actions criminal civilly or professedly so; it is likewise in all Actions criminally followed, either as the Suit of the King or any other, where the Defendant denies the Crime for which he is brought to Trial. Rep. 126. The Defendant pleads Non est fallum prædicto was made and delivered without a Date, and that the Plaintiff put a Date to it, and Non est fallum; this was held made upon a Damnification, for the Defendant confesses the Deed, by saying fallum prædicto. and afterwards denies it; though he might have said generally, Why is not this a Money Deed? for here the Parties are jointly bound in a Bond, and an Action is brought on it against one only, he cannot Plead Non est fallum, or Demurr in that Case; but may have his Plea in Abatement of the Writ. 5 Rep. 119. Is an Absurd of Calling; or Interjection of a Sorrow: And the seven Antiphons, or alternate Hymns of seven Verses, &c. sung by the Choir in the Time of Advent was called O, from beginning with such Exclamation. In the Statutes of St. Paul’s Church in London, there is one Chapter De facie O. Liber Sextus. MS. f. 86.

[Oath, (See, Book, Part, Juramentum).] Is an Affirmation or Denial of any Thing, before one or more Persons who have Authority to administer the same, for the Discovery and Advancement of Truth and Right, calling God to Witness, that the Tethyma is true; therefore it is termed Sacramentum, a Holy Band or Tie: And it is called a Corporal Oath, because the Witness, when he swears by his Right hand, upon and toucheth the Holy Evangelion, or Book of the New Testament, &c. It is a Thing, in which the Person is charged with any Matter by Bill in Chancery; &c. Juramentum praejudiciale, where any one is produced as a Witness, to prove or disprove a Thing: And Juramentum triunum, where any Persons are sworn to an Issue, &c. 3 Nili. 1881. All Oaths must be lawful, allowed by the Common Law, or some Statute; if they are administered by Persons in a private Capacity, or not duly authorized, they are Coram non Jure, and void; and those administering them guilty of Oath. A High Leaseman, for doing it without Warrant of Law, and punishable by Fine and Impri sonment, 3 Stat. 715: 4 Stat. 278. 2 Roll. Abr. 327. One that was not liable on the Behalf of a Plan, or Person indicted of Treason, or other Capital Offence, upon an Indictment at the King’s Suit, could not formerly be examined upon his Oath for the Prisoner against the King, though it might be examined without giving him his Oath; But by a late Statute, Witnesses on the Behalf of the Prisoner upon Indictments, must be sworn to depose the Truth in such Manner as Witnesses for the King: and if convicted of wilful Perjury, shall suffer the Punish ment indicted for such Offences. 1 Ann. c. 9. And the Evidence for the Defendant in an Appeal, whether Capital or not, or on Indictment or Information for a Misdemeanor, was to be upon Oath before this Statute. 2 Savd. P. C. 434. A Person that is to be a Witness in a Cause may have two Oaths given him, one to speak the Truth to such Things as the Court shall ask him concerning himself, or other Things. 2 Pet. 3, 1. Evidence in the Cause; and the other to give Tethyma in the Cause in which he is produced as a Witness: The former is called the Oath upon a Peyer or. Pau. 25 Car. B. R. If Oath be made against Oath in a Cause, it is a New Form to the Court which Oath is true; and if such Oath the Court will take that Oath to be true, which is to affirm a Verdict, Judgment, &c. as it tends to the Issue, 2 Pet. 3, 1. And the Court will rather believe the Oath of the Plaintiff than the Oath of the Defendant, if there be Oath against Oath; because it is supposed that the Plaintiff hath Wrong done him, and he is forced to fly to the Law to obtain his Right. Ibid. A voluntary Oath, by the Consent and Agreement of the Parties, is lawful as well as a compulsory Oath.

and in such Case, if it is to do a Spiritual Thing, and the Party fail, he is liable in the Ecclesiastical Court, yet before that, &c. and if he do a Truth, and fail therein, he may be punished in B. R. Adjudged on Affirmation, if the Defendant would make Oath before such a Person, the Plaintiff promised, Cos. Civ. Cas. 406. 3 Stat. 715. By the Common Law, Officers of Justice are bound to take an Oath for the due Execution of Justice. 2 Trin. 2 Car. 1. B. R. Though the Promise of Officers be broken, they are not punished as Perjuries, like unto the Breach of Affirmatory Oaths, but their Offences ought to be punished with a severe Fine, &c. 2 Wood’s Inst. 427. An Except of the End of a legal Oath, was added, No harm God at his holy Done, i.e. Judgment; and our Ancestors did believe, that a Man could not be so wicked as to call God to witness any Thing which was not true, but that if any one should be proscribed, he must continually expect that God would be the Revenger: And hence probably the Injunctions of Criminals, in their own Oaths, and for great Offences by the Oaths of others, were allowed. Malmb. lib. 2. c. 6. Leg. H. I. c. 64.

This extends not to Commissaries, and other Parish Officers, nor to Bailiffs of Manor, &c. 13 W. 3. c. 6. The Stat. 1 Ann. c. 22. obliges the receiving the Abjuration Oath, with Alterations: And by 4 Ann. c. 8. the Oath of Abjuration is settled after the Death of Queen Anne, without Issue. Also the Oath of Abjuration, with further Alterations relating to the Protestant Succession, is required 17 W. 3. to be taken by the 1 Geo. I. c. 13. R. and the Officer shall be adjudged Papist Recusant Convict, and forfeit Lands, Goods, &c. But it hath been held that a Person cannot be said to refuse the Oaths unless they are read or offered to be read to him. Oaths must be taken in the very Words expressed in the Act, and cannot be qualified yet using the Words in Confiscate, instead of my Confiscate, or Sea of Rome, instead of Sea of Rome, is not material. 1 B. Obit, (Lat.) Signifies a Funeral Solemnity or Office for the Dead, most commonly performed when the Corpse lies in the Church uninterred: Alfo the Anniversary Office. 2 Cr. 21. Dy. 513. The Anniversary of any Person's Death was called the Obit, and to observe such Day with Prayers and Alms, or other Commemoration, was the Keeping of the Obit: And in Religious Houses they had a Regifter, wherein they entered the Obit or Annual Days of their Founders and Benefactors, which was thence termed the Obitsuary. The Tenure of Obit or Chanery Lords is taken away and extind, by the Stat. 1 Ed. 6. c. 14. and 15 Ed. 2. c. 19.

Obidity, Gifts or Offerings made to the King by any of his Subjects, which in the Reigns of King John and Hen. 3. were so carefully tended, that they were entered into the Fine Roll under the Title of Oblation; and if not paid, clereed a Duty, and put in Charge to the Sheriff. Philius of Parvistry. In the Exchequer it signifies old Debts, brought as it were together from precedent Years, and put on the present Sheriff's Charge. Prad. Exch. 78.

Objections, (Obliqutes) Are thus defined in the Canus Law: Discantur, quaecumque à his falsis Fabuliphrum Christianis offerentes Deus & Ecclesia, jure se facie facere mobiles sunt. Specim. de Concil. Tom. 1. p. 313. The Word is often mentioned in our Law Books, and formerly there were several Sorts of Objections, viz. Obliqutes Alterius, which the Priet had for laying Malice; Obliqutes Defensionis, which were given by the Lai Wills and Testaments of Persons dying to the Church; Obliqutes Mortuorum, or Funerale, given at Burials; Obliqutes Parviterum, which were given by Parson's penes; and Obliqutes Postecutori. &c. The Chief or Principal Feasts for the Obliqutes of the Alter, were All Saints, Christmas, Conditiones and Easter, which were called Obliqutes puerum principis; and of the Canonical Offerings from the Parishioners to the Parish priest, solemnly laid on the Alter, the Mal or Sacrarnent Offerings were usually Three pieces at Christmas, Two pieces at Easter, and a Penny at the other principal Feasts: Under this Title Obliqutes were comprehended all the accustomed Does for Sacramentals or Christian Offices: and the usual Custom was, when they were giving Mal sail and other Prayers for the Deceased, Kristen's Gigf. Obliqutes funerale were often the best Horse of the Deceased, delivered. delivered at the Church-Gate or Grave to the Priest of the Parish; to which old custom we owe the Office of the Burial, &c. And at the Burial of the Dead, it was usual for the living friends to offer liberally at the Altar for the souls of the Dead, and for the good Estate of the Soul deceased, being called the Gift. It is true this Usage still prevails, where the Rails of the Communion Table in Churches, is a Tablet conveniently fixed, to receive the Money offered at Funerals, according to the Quality of the Deceased which has been placed at the Disposal of the Church and is said to be included in the Act 8 & 9 W. 3. for Recovery of small Tithes under 40l. by the Determination of Jutileks of Peace, &c. Const. Parch. Compl. 157. 178.

Objection (Objection) is a Bond, containing a Penalty, with a Condition annexed for Payment of Money, Performance of Covenants, or the like; and it differs from a Bill, which is generally without a Penalty. Objections have, though a Bill may be a Penalty on the Statutes, is plain, where at the Rails of the Communion Table in Churches, is a Tablet conveniently fixed, to receive the Money offered at Funerals, according to the Quality of the Deceased which has been placed at the Disposal of the Church and is said to be included in the Act 8 & 9 W. 3. for Recovery of small Tithes under 40l. by the Determination of Jutileks of Peace, &c. Where an Outlawry is pleaded, it must be sub- ject to the Statute; otherwise the Plaintiff may refuse it; but if he accepts the Plea, he shall not afterwards demur for that Cause. 1 Salk. 217. An Attor- ney brought an Action of Debt by Bill of Privilege, and after Judgment the Defendant was outlawed, who brought a Writ of Error to reverse it; and it was ad- judged that Proces of Outlawry did not lie upon such Judgment, because there was no Capitis in the original Action. 1 Law. 239. A Judgment in Debt was had against several Defendants, and a Capital and Judgment was sued for against one of them, upon which he was outlawed; and afterwards he brought a Writ of Error to reverse it. And as it was settled, that a Writ of Error is not good for Error that it comes to have been awarded against both; and fo it was held. Cor. Eliz. 648. Two Persons were outlawed, one of them moved, that upon filing common Bail he might have Leave to reverse the Outlawry; and ad- judged that the Writ of Error to reverse it, must be brought in the Name of both the Defendants; and where one appears, the other is to be summoned and forfeited, or he shall be adjudged guilty as to him who does not appear, but he must give Bail to appear and answer the Action. 2 Salk. 450. An Outlawry grounded upon an Indictment on the Statute against Forcible Entry, preferred against several Persons, may be reversed as to some of the Parties, and Stand good as to others that are outlawed, upon the same Indictment: For the Outlawries against them are several, and not entire, and the Proceedings to the Outlawry may be good as to some of them, and as to the others may not be good. Hill. 22 Cas. B. R. 2 Lod. Abr. 263. If a Person pleads upon the Return of the Exigent, Alias, or Pharise, he may be admitted by Mo- tion to reverse the Outlawry, without putting in Bail: If he comes in by Capite Corpus, he shall not be admitted to reverse the Outlawry, without appearing in Per- son, as in such Case he was obliged to do at Common Law; or putting in Bail with the Sheriff for his Ap- pearance upon the Return of the Capit Corpus, and for doing what the Court shall order. Appearance by At- torney is an Indiscretion by the Statute 4 Eliz. 5 W. & M. c. 18. And the Bail is to be special or common, in this as in other Cases; but Treason and Felony are ex- cepted out of the Act. 2 Salk. 450. It is said that on Outlawry the Party ought to appear in Person, and submit himself to his Trial; and it must be ex gratia, if he is admitted to affign Errors before. 3 Salk. 263. In Case of Outlawry for Felony, the Errors to reverse it are to be certainly alleged in Writing, and be su- ficient, before a Writ of Error shall be allowed. Foz. Cont. 161. Persons outlawed for Felony cannot be bail'd, being attained in Law; they may appear in Person, and plead Error in Avoidance of the Outlawry, Q. B. 239. 1797. 4 Co. 105; but in Salk. 450, 109. They may be reversed, by Writ of Error, or Plea; and it has been observed, that few Outlawries are reversed for Felony, as few are reverse- d, because the Statutes relating to the same are not purged, as the Statutes 1 H. 5 cap. 5. 6 H. 6. cap. 1. 8 H. 8. cap. 10. By the Statute 3 Ed. 6. c. 111. Out- lawry against one for Treston, being out of the Realm, or beyond Sea, shall be good in Law: And if the Par- ty within one Year after the Outlawry, or Judgment thereby, shall return to England, and traverse the Indictment whereupon he was outlawed, he shall be admitted to such 'Travers, and being acquit shall be discharged of such Outlawry. Since this Statute, and the 26 H. 8. c. 15. In Case of Treston one is barred of his Writ of Error, if he does not come in within a Year after the Outlawry, while he was out of the Realm, as before noted; and if an Outlawry of Treston or Felony is reversed, the Party must plead to the Indictment. Wind's Inf. 639. Sir Thomas Armstrong was outlawed for High Treason; and being taken in Holland, was brought into England, and he declared that he might have Leave of the Court of B. R. to reverse the Outlawry, and be tried by Vir- tue of the Statute of 6 Edw. 6. alluding that it was not a Year since he was outlawed, but it was declared, because he had not rendered himself according to the Statute, to have the Benefit thereof, but was appre- hended, and brought before the Chief Justice; there- fore a Rule was made for his Execution. 3 Mod. Rep. 47. It hath been adjudged, that if a Man commits a Murder, and, after the Exigent awarded against him, he fled out of the Realm, and thesheriff, after the Exigent, shall not reverie it for that Cause; because he fled on Purpose to avoid the Law, and therefore by his Ab- sentence he shall have Benefit of the Law; but if the Attorney General, &c. confers that he was beyond Sea both before and after he was outlawed, the Out- lawry may be reverie. 2 Cre. 464. 2 Nef. Abr. 1222. 1223. In a Civil Cause, if the Appellant before he is returned outlawed, he may apprehend the Exigent, &c. And where a Defendant is beyond Sea, in Pri- son, &c. the Award of the Exigent may be reverie. As to that Power of the Outlawry, as to the Power of a Defendent is not easy to be taken, or hath not suffi- cient Estate in the County to be summoned; if, where the Party is well known, it is sufficient, and may be arriv'd, the Plaintiff outlaw him, he shall be order- ed to reverie it at his own Expense. But where Motion was made upon Alibavt, that the Defend- ant lived publickly, and therefore to order the Plain- tiff to reverie the Outlawry at his own Charge, it was not granted; because the Charge is small in C. Pallium, Is a Word often mentioned in our old Hilorians; and Durandus tells us, that it is a Garment made of White Wool, after the following Manner, viz. The Name of St. Agnes every Year, on the Feast-Day of their Saint, offer two White Lambs on their Altar of their Church, during the Time they sing Agnus Dei in asole Mass; which Lambs are afterwards taken by two of the Canons of the La-teran Church, and by them given to the Pope's Sub-decanos, who put them to Pasture till Shaving-time, and then they are shorn, and the Pall is made of their Wool, mixed with other White Wool: The Pall being thus made is carried to the Lateran Church, and there placed on the High Altar by the De-canos of that Church on the Bodies of St. Peter and St. Paul's and after a usual Washing, it is carried away in the Night, and delivered to the Subdecanos, who lay it up safe. And because it was taken from the Body of St. Peter, it signifies the Pleasure of Ecclesiastical Power; and therefore it was the Prerogative of Popes, who pretend to be the immediate Successors of that Saint, to invest other Prelates with it, which at first was done nowhere but at Rome, but afterwards at other Places. Durandus:

Papists. Are those who profess the Popish Religion in this Kingdom: And since the Reformation there have been many Statutes concerning them. By the 35 Ed. cap. 2. Par, is a term in exchange, where a man to whom a bill is payable receives the acceptor just so much in value, &c. as was paid to the drawer by the remitter. Merch. Diet. And in exchange of money, Par is defined to be a certain number of pieces of the coin of one country, containing in them an equal quantity of silver to that of another number of pieces of the coin of some other country; as where thirty-six shillings of the money of Holland, have just as much silver as twenty shillings English money: And Bills of exchange drawn from England to Holland, at the rate of thirty-six shillings Dutch for each pound sterling, is according to the par. lock's conf. of money, pag. 18. Paragone, (Paragone) signifies equality of name, blood, or dignity; but more especially of land, in the partition of an inheritance between coheirs: hence comes to dispargone, and Dispargoneation. Co. Lit. 166. Paragon, was commonly taken for the equal condition between two parties to be contracted in marriage: for the old laws of England did strictly provide, that young heirs should be disposed in matrimony cum paragone, with persons of equal birth and fortune, sine dispargoneatione. Paragon, (compounded of two French words, par, i.e. per and monach, ascendere) signifies in our law the highest lord of the fee, of lands, tenements, or hereditaments, F. N. B. 135. As there may be a Lord Mone, where lands are held of an inferior lord, who holds them of a superior under certain conditions, as in Lord of a Lord, or the lord of the lord: and all honours, which have manors under them, have lords paragon. Also the king is chief lord, or lord paragon of all the lands in the kingdom. Co. Lit. 166. Paraphernalia, or paraphernalia, (from the gr. ἄρση, πραξις, and φερον, dus) are those goods which a wife challenges over and above her dower or her husband's fees, as furniture or ornaments for her chamber, wearing apparel, and jewels, which are not to be put into the inventory of her husband. The death of a wife, after the death of her husband, may claim her paraphernalia or necessary apparel for her body, and cloth given her to make a garment, &c. besides her dower; so that the husband cannot give them away by will; but the shall not have excessive apparel, beyond her rank. Pearl Necklaces, Chains of Diamonds, Gold Watch, &c. may be included under paragon, if they were usually worn by the wife, and were suitable to her quality and the fashion of the times, and they are allows to pay debts and legacies; provided the hus-band does not give them away by will. 1 Rol. It was adjudged in the Vizcuns's Berrow's case, that paraphernalia ought to be allowed to a widow, having regard to her quality and degree; and that her husband being a Vizcoun, she shall be allowed her jewels to the value of 500 marks, &c. 2 Lew. 166. Cru. Cas. 347. 2 Nisi. Abr. 1235. All the wife's wearing apparel, more than that which is necessary and convenient, is a chattel in the husband; and after the husband's death shall go to his executors. Pardol. Edin. 9. Parcertes, (parcertis) a. la. rem in particular. Agr. 527. Signs of two of a common. Parcertes according to the course of the common law, and parcertes according to caput, parcertes by the common law, are where a man or woman feiled of lands or tenements in fee simple or fee tail hath no issue but daughters, and death, and the tenements defered to such daughters, who enter into the lands descended to them, they are called parcertes and are but as one heir to their ancestor; and they are termed parcertes, because by the writ de partibus faciendo the law will constrain them to make a partition, as excellent by the common law, and caput, &c. Co. Lit. 243. 1 Jef. 164. And if a man feiled of lands in fee simple, or in tail, death without any issue of his body begotten, and the lands defend to his Sire, they are Parceners; and in the same Manner where he hath no Sire, but the Ladis attacheth himself to the Heirs, or the Kin in equal Degree, they are also Parceners: But where a Person hath but one Daughter, the same shall not be called Parcener, but Daughter and Heir, &c. Lit. Sept. 124. If a Man hath issue two Daughters, and the eldest hath issue divers Sons and divers Daughters, and the youngest hath issue divers Daughters; the eldest Son of the eldest Daughter shall have the issue only inherit, but all the Daughters of the youngest shall inherit, and the eldest Son is Co-parcener with the Daughters of the youngest Sitter, and shall have one Money, viz. his Mother's Part, so that Men descending of Daughters, may be Parceners as well as Women, and shall jointly plead and be impleaded, &c. 1 Inf. 164. Now are Parceners by the Common Law, but either Females, or the Heirs of Females, which come to Lands or Tenements by Defeint. Lit. 154. Parceners by Custom is where a Person seied in Fee-simple of one Part of the Tenant called Goodwill, within the County of Kent, &c. hath Issue, divers Sons, and dies; such Lands shall descend to all the Sons as Parceners, by the Custom, who equally inherit and make Partition as Females do, and a Writ of Partition lies in this Case, as between Females, &c. Lit. Sept. 125. Woman and Man have but one Freehold: But between themselves they have in Judgment of Law several Fireholds, to many Purposes; for one of them may inculpate the other of her Part; and the Parceners is not favored by the Death of any of them; but if one dies, her Part shall descend to her Issue, &c. 1 Inf. 164, 165. If one Parcener make a Feudum in Fee of her Part, this is not a Partition, but, once the Partition between the Writs of Partition shall lie against the other Parceners and the Feudit. 1 Inf. 167. Though if two Co-parceners by Deed alien each their Parts to another in Fee, rendering to them Two and their Heirs a Rent one of the Land, they shall have the Rent in Course of Parceners because their Right in the Land out of which the Rent is reaped was in Parceners. Ibid. 160. If there be two Parceners, and each of them taketh Husband, and have Issue, and the Wives die, the Parceners is divided, and here is a Partition in Law, and Partition of Lands held in Tail, by the Death of one Sitter without Issue is made void, and the other Sitter as Heir in Tail will be intitled to the whole Land; and a Writ of Forfeiture where the other Parcener hath alien. New Nat. Br. 476. And a Writ of Nuper dedit lies for one Parcener deforced by another, &c. F. N. B. 197. If any Parceners or their Isses be divided, they must join in an Affidavit against the Difficult; so if they have Cause to bring any Action of Wills, &c. 1 Inf. 55, 158. Two Parceners are of Land, one enters and claims the Whole, and is divided, the alone may maintain Affidavit: but if the Difficult be of Rent, the other Parceners must be named, or the Writ shall stand. Frank. Cont. 41, 42. The Partition of one Parcener, &c. of Land, without an actual Officer, gives Partition to the other of them. Ibid. 150. Dyur. 128. One factor was at the Docket of the Deeds concerning the Land against another, as they belong to one as well as the other. 2 Rawl. Abr. 31. Parceners are to make Partition of the Lands defended; and the Co-parceners as Co-parceners shall have them, and the others have Contribution from her out of some other Inheritance, left by the Antecessor; but if there be no such Inheritance, then the eldest shall have the ancient Pretense for one Time and the Youngest for another Time. Dyur. 129. Parceners cannot make Partition &c. as for one to have the Land for one Time, and another for another, &c. if he is to have his Part absolutely: But where there is an Advoceon defended to them, they may preside by Turns; and if there be a Common, &c. which may not be divided, one may have it one Year, and another for another Year, &c. 1 Inf. 165. An Advoceon is an Inuit Thing, and yet in Effect the same may be divided between Parceners; so they may preside by Turns: And if there be Coperacers of an Advoceon appertaining to a Manor, and they make Partition of the Manor, without mentioning the Advoceon; the same is ill appertaining, and they may preside by Turns. 3 Rep. 79. If two Parceners be of an Advoceon, the eldest hath Privilege to preside first; not in respect of her Person, but Estate: And if one Parcener be a Rent granted to her upon a Partition made, to make her Part equal with the other, she may disclaim for the Arrears of such Rent of common Right; and she shall have all the Grand of the Rest, because it is not annexed to her Person only, but to her Estate. 3 Rep. 32. If there are two Parceners of a Manor, and on Partition made, each of them hath Demesnes and Services allotted in this Case each of them is said to have a Manor. 1 Leon. 26. Davit. 61. A Partition may not be of Franchises, as Goods of Fellow, Wall, Ely, Epexe, &c. which are casual. 5 Rep. 145. A Writ of Partition between Parceners may be made Four Ways, viz. First, when they themselves divide the Lands equally into so many Parts as there are Parceners; and each choose one Share or Part, the Elder first, and to the one after another, &c. Secondly, When they make Agreement to chuse certain Friends to make Division for them: Thirdly, Partition by drawing Lots, where having divided the Lands into as many Parts as there are Parceners, and written every Part in a different Scroll, being wrapt up, they draw each of them one out of a Hat, Bekon, &c. And Fourthly, Partition by Writ De Partitione facienda, which is by Competition, where some agree to Partition and others do not; and when Judgment is given out of a Writ of Partition, it is that the Sheriff shall go to the Lands, and by the Oaths of twelve Men make Partition between the Paries, to hold them in Seignory, without any Mention of Preference to the eldest Sitter, &c. Lit. 148. 1 Inf. 165. But if there be a Capital Message on the Land to be divided, the Sheriff must order that wholly to the eldest of the Parceners. 1 Inf. 165. The Partition made and delivered by the Sheriff and Judges, ought to be return'd into the Court under the Seal of the Sheriff, and the Seals of the twelve Judges; for the Words of the just Partition, by which the Sheriff doth command the Sheriff to make Partition are, Ajustatis tamen ludeinans, &c. & Partitionem inde Seilii factam et per quos Sacramentum Partitionem illam feceris, &c. If Partition be made by Force of the King's Writ, and Judgment thereof given, it shall be binding to all Parties, because it is made by the Sheriff, by the Oath of twelve Men, by Authority of Law; and the Judgment is, that the Partition shall remain firm and stable for ever. 1 Inf. 171. In a Writ of Partition was, unless the Judgment was, &c. Partition fact; and before it was executed by the Sheriff, a Writ of Error was brought; and it was adjudged that a Writ of Error doth not lie upon a first Judgment, because this is not like other Actions, where Error lies before the Habers faciait Scipioam is returned, and the Judgment is final; but it is not so in this Case, as there shall be another Judgment. i.e. Quod Particis habitis manant, which cannot be till the Partition is made and returned by the Sheriff. *Herby 36, *Day 67. Where two Persons hold Lands pro indivisa, and one of them have his Part in Severality, and the other refuseth to make Partition by Deed, there lies the Writ De Partibus facianda against him who refuses, directed to the Sheriff; and he must be present when the Partition is made; and if it is objected before the Return of the Writ, that he was not present, it may be examined by the Court; but after the Writ is returned and filed, *'is too late. *Cas. Elin. 9. A Writ of Partition was taken forth, and the Sheriff made Partition, but was not upon the Land; and on Motion that the Return might not be filed, but that a new Writ might be awarded, because the Sheriff was not on the Land, the Court filed the Filing, and on examining the Sheriff, ordered a new Writ. *Cas. Cet. 9. 10. On Writ of Partition to the Sheriff to make Partition of Lands, Part of the Lands were allotted to one, and the Jury would not sit the Sheriff to make Partition of the other Part; which appearing upon the Return of the Writ, the Court was moved for an Attachment against the Jury, and a new Writ to the Sheriff. *Coxh. 165. Partition was bought by Tenant in Fee for one of the Moieties, against Tenant for Life of the other Moiety, on the Stat. 32 H. 6. c. 32. And though it has been resolved, if Partition be made between one that hath an Estate of Inheritance, and another who hath a particular Estate for Life; that the Writ ought to be fram'd upon the Subject, and to be made special, ficting forth the particular Estate: Yet it was held that the Writ was general. *Galt. 84. 2 Lux. 1015. A Partition may be made by Statute of any Estate of Freehold, or for Term of Years, *Cas. de Mandos, Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments whereof the Partition is demanded; and if after Proceeds of Pass return'd upon a Writ of Partition, and Affidavit of Notice given of the Writ to the Tenant in the ADDITION, and a Copy left with the Tenant in Possession at least forty Days before the Return of the said Pass, *Cas. there be no Appearance entered in fifteen Days; the Demander may have his Partition. Then the Court may give Judgment by Default, and award a Writ to make Partition, whereby the Demander's Part or Parcel will be; out generally which Writ being executed, after eight Days Notice, and return'd, and thereupon final Judgment entered, shall conclude all Parties. *Cas. But the Court may suppress or set aside the Writ, if the Sheriff by Reason of Distance, *Cas. cannot be present at the Execution of any Judgment in Partition, then the Under-Sheriff, in the Presence of two Justices of Peace of the County, shall proceed to the Execution of the Writ, by Inquisition, and the High Sheriff is to make the Return, *Cas. Ibid. When the Partition is made and returned, the Persons who were Tenants of the Lands or any Part thereof, being divided, shall continue Tenants of the Lands they held, to the respective Owners, under such Conditions and Rent as before: And no Plea in Abatement shall be said to have been received in any Suit of Partition; nor shall the same be abated by the Death of any Tenant, *Cas. Ibid. In a Writ of Partition the Defendant pleaded, that he himself formerly brought Writ of Partition against the now Plaintiff, and had Judgment to have Partition, and this was held a good Plea; but it was a Question, whether it should be pleaded in Bar or Abatement, or by Way of Ephop.

3 Rep. 45. 2 Litt. abr. 251. A General Pardon by Act of Parliament, or by a Sentence of the Courf; but if it hath Exceptions of Offences or Persons, the Court cannot take Notice of it, nor can the Party have Benefit thereof until it pleads it, and swears that he is none of the Persons, &c. excepted. 3 Inf. 253. 1 Lev. 25. He that will take the Benefit of a general Pardon, is to plead the Statute by which it is granted, that the Court may judge whether his Offence is pardoned or not, which they cannot do if the Pardon be not pleaded, and the Party do not shew that he is comprised in the Pardon. 2 Litt. abr. 258. Sometimes Advantage is given to the Offenders by the Act itself without Pleading: And it has been held, where a Statute Pardon contains Exceptions in the Body of the Act, he who pleads such Statute, to inuite himself to the Benefit thereof, must aver himself not to be a Person excepted; but when the Exception follows in a direct Clause, by Way of Prejudgment, he must prove he is not comprised in the Exception; and the Court will not take the Pardon into Consideration; and it is the practice of the Court to inuite him to the Benefit thereof, as well as when it is granted by the Statute itself. 1 Vent. 134. 3 Salt. 266. A Charter of Pardon of the King under the Great Seal, cannot be allow-red unless it be pleaded; and he who pleads it ought to produce it feb pede sigilli: And it will be Error to allow a Man the Benefit of it, if it be not pleaded. H. P. C. 250. If there be Varicance between the Record on which a Man is convicted or attainted, and his Charter of Pardon: if there be no Repugnancy that the same Person or Thing are meant in both, it may be supplied by proper Averments: as that he is the Person intended in the Indictment, and the Pardon. &c. And there are some Instances in the old Books, upon such Variances the Court took an Enquiry of the Officer, whether the same Person was meant in both Records: Alfo if such variant Pardon be pleaded without any Averment, the Court may give a farther Day either for the Party to perfect his Plea, or to purchase a better Pardon. 2 Haul. 598. Pardon for Treason cannot regularly be pleaded, until the Pris-nor is charged with Indictment for the Offence committed. 4 Rep. 43. The Sentence of the Pardon is an Argument of Guilt; and he that pleads it, con-cifeth the Fault: But a Person may waive it, if it be not a general Pardon by Parliament, which cannot be waved. 4 Inf. 255. If a Peer hath a Pardon, he must plead it before the Judges of the Court where he is indicted. Wood’s Inf. 673. And if one have a Charter of Pardon of Felony, the Court will allow it upon the Prayer of the Party, and on his producing it at the Bar; for if he pray not the Allow-cance of it, the Court cannot tell whether he knows of the Benefit thereof; and he is to do it upon his Knees, to express his Thankfulness for the Mercy afforded him by the Pardon. 2 Litt. abr. 251. Gloves ed by Parliament. And the 7 Geo. 1. c. 20. granted a more gracious, general and free Pardon, without the Exception of the Pardons above named, so that it extended to three Gentlemen; and the late Directors of the South Sea Company for their Conduits in the Year 1730. were excepted out of this Statute. Parents have Power over their Children by the Law of Nature, and the Divine Law: and by those Laws they must educate, maintain, and defend their Children. And," 3 Geo. 1. 65. The Parent or Father hath an Interest in the Profits of the Childrens Labour while they are under Age, if they live with and are maintained by him: But the Father hath no Interest in the Estate Real or Personal of a Child, otherwife than as his Guardian. Hen. I. c. 88. - Si quis parent falsam vel cau-

Pardons, (Parchia) Did anciently signify what we now call the Discharge of a Bill: But at this Day it is the Circuit of Creditor in which the People that belong to one Church do inhabit, and the particular Charge of a Secular Priest. It is derived from the Saxon P.C. enact-Civis, Prophylax, which signifies the Prevent of the Sick of the Parish had the Care, in English Parish, here. This Realm was first divided into Parishes by Hauwric, Archbishop of Canterbury, in the Year of our Lord 636. according to Camden, who reckons 9284 Parishes in England, but other Authors differ in the Number. Camb. Britan, p. 160. It is said that Parishes were ordained by the Lateran Council; but which every Man being obliged to pay Tithes to a Priest, had his Liberty to pay them to whom he pleased. But this was not done by the Council which made the Pardons, and decreed, that every Person should pay his Tithes to his Parish Priest. Hdb. 290. 2 Litt. Abs. 291. The Lord Chief Justice Holk held, That Parishes were instituted for the Ease and Benefit of the People, and not of the Parson; and the Reason why Parishes must come to their Parish Churches, is, because he having charged himself with the Cure of their Souls, that he may be enabled to take Care of that Charge. 3 Salic. 88, 89. A Parish may comprise many Villis; but geneerally it shall not be accounted to contain more than one, except the contrary be showed; because most Parishes have but one Villi within them. Hill. 23 Car. 1. 8 R. And it shall not be intended that there is more than one Parish in a City, if it be not made to appear; for some Cities have but one Parish. Ibid. Where there are several Villis in a Parish, they may have Peace-Officers, and Over-Officers of the Poor of every particular Villi: And an ancient Villi in a Pa-rihi, that Time out of Mind hath had a Church of its own, and Church Wardens and Parochial Rights, and been a Parish within the City, it shall be accounted as 43 Edw. c. 2. to provide for its own Poor, and shall not pay to the Poor of the Parish wherein it lies. Cr. Car. 95, 354. 395. But to make a Villi a re-parked Parish within 43 Edw. it must have a parochial Chapel, Chapel-wardens and Sacraments at the Time that Statute was made, 2 Salic. 501. Parishes in Representation are within that Statute, especially when it has been the constant Usage of such Parishes to chuse their own Over-Officers; who may disclaim for a Poor Tax, &c. a Roll. Rep. 160. 2 Nof. Abs. 1235. Money given by Villi to a Parish, shall be to the Poor of the Parish, as adjudge'd in Equity. Churc. Rep. 154. If a Highway lie in a Parish, the Pa-rihi is obliged to repair the same; and it is the most convenient and equal for the Parishers in every Parish, to repair the Ways within it, if they are able to do it. 2 Litt. 275. And if any Villi, Liberty, &c. that sits to repair their own Highways, shall add the usual Rate levied and employed, find the Ways not sufficiently repaired; the whole Parish may be ordered by judicites of Peace in their Sections to contribute for the Repairing them. Hdb. 235. 2 Inst. 37. By the Stat. 17 Geo. 2. c. 37. Extrarural enclosed Lands shall be affixed to the parochial Rates of such Parish as lies nearest to such Lands, and if any Dispute shall arise touching what Parish such Lands ought to be affixed in, it shall be determined by the Judicatures in Sections.

Parish Clerks. In every Parish the Parson, Vicari, &c. hath a Parish Clerk under him, who is the lowest Officer of the Church. These were formerly Clerks in Orders, and their Business at first was to officiate at the Altar, for which they have a competent Maintenance by Offerings; but now they are Laymen, and have certain Fees with the Parson, on Chrismings, Marriages, Burials, &c. besides Wages for their Maintenance. Cunt. Parf. Canam. 81, 84. They are to be twenty Years of Age at least, and known to be of honest Conversation, sufficient for their Reading, Singing, &c. And their Business constitutes chiefly in Responsial to the Minster, Rending of Leetons, Singing of Psalms, &c. And in the large Parishes of London, they have some of them Deputies under them to the Examinations of the Places, which are more gainful than common Redories. Ibid. The Law looks upon them as Officers for Life: And they are chosen by the Minister of the Parish, unless there is a Canon for the Parishioners. or Churchwardens to cause them; in which Case the Canon cannot abrogate such Cofon: and when cho-fee it is to be ignifed, and they are to be frowned from their Office by the Archdeacon.

Parliamentum, from the Fr. Parler, i. e. loquit, & Mince, noise, to speak the Mind, sometimes called the Commons, the Conclamit (Signs Angleur, Magn num Conclamit, &c.) is a Grand Assemblies, or Convention of the three Estates of the Kingdom; sum-mom to meet the King, to consult of Matters real and refer the Laws. Some Authors say, that the ancient Britains had no such Assemblies; but that the Legence have not been established from the Laws of King Leo, who lived about the Year 712. And William the first, called the Conqueror, having divided this Land among his Followers, so as every put them into several Parties, viz. Lords in the Land in Cappils, the Chief of these were called Baronis; who it is said three years after was affirmed at the King's Court, viz. at Christum, Ely, and Westminster, on whom the King was wont to come in his Royal Robes, to consult of the Publick Affairs of the Kingdom.

This King called several Parliaments, wherein it is noted, that the Freeman or Commons of England were also there, and had a Share in making of Laws:

He by setting the Court of Parliament to established his Throne, that neither his Pont, nor Saitor, could disturb his Tranquillity; the making of his

Laws were by Act of Parliament, and the Accord between Stephen and him was made by Parliament; though all the Times since have not kept the same

Form of assembling the States. D.owdridge's Ann.

Parliament. And according to the same Author, there was a Parliament before there were any Barons: and if the Commons do not appear, there can be no Parliament; for the Knights, Citizens and Burgesses, represent the whole Commons of England, but the Lords only are present for themselves, and none others. Ibid.

Sir Edward Coke affirms, that divers Parliamentes were held before the Conquest; and produces an Instance of one held in the Reign of King Alfred: He likewise gives us a Conscience of a Parliament held by King Abellion, where Mention is made, that all Things were enacted in the great Synod or Council Grants, whereas we are informed, it was Archif, and the Kings, Nobles, Seniors, Aldermen, Witmen, Knights and Commons, were present and voting in them as

Members and Judges: And Sir John Spelman, Counsel, and other Writers, prove the Commons to be a Part of the Parliament in the Time of the Saxons, but not rightly so called; and it is the Opinion of all the Knights, Citizens and Burgesses, Ply's Sovereign Pow.

Parliament. As to the Original of the present House of Commons, our Authors of Antiquity very much say are of Opinion that the Commons began not to be admitted as Part of the Parliament, upon the Footing they are now, until the 45 H. 3. And the Reason for it is, because the first Writ of Summons does not mention of any Knights, Citizens and Parliamenters; is of a much earlier Date than that Time. But the great Charter in the 17th Year of King James, (about which Time the Stitution of Barons, Knights and Members is supposed to begin) was made per Regem, Baronum & Li-berts Hominum suis Regis. Mr. Stiles says, that the Borough of St. Albans claimed by Prefecture in the Parliament, 3 Edw. 2. to send two Burgesses to all Parliaments, as in the Reigns of Edw. 1. and his Prodecessors, which must be the Time of King James; and so before the Reign of King Hen. 3. And in the Reign of Hen. 5. it was declared and admitted, that the Commons of the Land were ever a Part of the Parliament. Stiles's Tit. Hist. 705. Polystr. Pir-gis, Holleleand, Speed and others mention, that the Commons were first summoned as a Parliament held as Salisbury, 16 Hen. 1. Sir Walter Raleigh, in his Treasure of the Prerogatives of Parliament, thinks it was Axon 18 H. 3. 1. And Dr. Heptle finds another Beginning for them, viz. in the Reign of K. H. 2. Thus much for the Original of our Parliament: Which is the highest, and most honourable, and ablest Court reflect and judge of in England; in consequence of the Title of Commons in the Lords of Parliament, and the Commons; and again, the Lords are divided into two Sorts, One, Spiritual and Temporal; and the Commons are divided into Parties, i.e. into Knights of Shires or Counties, Citizens out of Cities, and Burgesses from Boroughs;

Dilicetur, &c. Infl. 109. The Jurisdiction of this Court is so transcendental, that it makes, enlarges, abrogates, repeals and revives Laws and Statutes, concerning Maritime, Civil, Criminal, Martial, Maritime, &c. And for making of Laws and in proceeding by Bill, this supreme Court is not con-considered either for Causes or Persons within any Bounds; nor is it tied down to any certain Rules or Forms of Law, in Proceedings and Determinations: The Court of Parliament hath Power to judge in Matters of Law; and redress Mischiefs and Grievances that happen, especially such as have no ordinary Remedy; to examine into the Corruption of Judges and Magistrates, and illegal Proceedings of other Courts; to redress Errors, and determine on Petitions and Appeals, &c. and from this High Court there lies no Appeal. Ibid.

Affairs of Parliament are to be determined by the Parliament; though the Parliament err, it is not re-erisible in any other Court: And not only what is done in the House of Commons, but what relates to the Commons during the Parliament, and fitting that Parliament, is no where else to be punished but by themselves, or a succeeding Parliament. Sir Robert Adams. Every Court of Justice having Laws and Customs for its Direction, the High Court of Parliament hath its own proper Laws and Customs, called the Laws and Customs of Parliament; innomuch that no Judge ought to give any Opinion of Matters done in Parliament, because they are not to be decided by the Common Law: But the Parliament, in their Judicial Capacity, are governed by the Commons and Statute Laws, as well as the Courts in Westminster.

Hall. 4 Infl. 14, 15; State Trials, Vol. 2, 735. The Lords and Commons in their respective Houses have Power of Judicature, and so have both Houses together: And in former Times both Lords and Commons sat together in one House of Parliament. 4 Infl.

23. The Lords have one that presides as Speaker in common Affairs, usuall the Lord Chancellor; and the Commons have their Speaker, chosen by the House, but to be approved of by the King: The Commons anciently had no continual Speaker, but after the dissolution of Parliament they were agreed to approve upon some Person of great Abilities, to deliver their Resolutions: In the Reign of William Roford, there was a great Parliament held at Reatingham, and a certain Knight came forth and bled before the People, and spake in the Name and Behalf of them all, who was undoubtedly the Speaker of the House of Commons at that Time: But the first Speaker certainly known was Peter de Stowford, 44 H. 3, when the Lords and Commons sat in several Houses, or at least gave their Affeats severally. Lex Cons-stitut. 165. Sir Richard Wolgraves, 5 R. 2. was the first Speaker that made any formal Apology for Inability, as now preserved: Richard Rich, Eqv. 28 H.

8. was the first of our Speakers that is recorded to have made Request for Access to the King. Thomas Mylne, Eqv. 34 H. 8. is said to be the first Speaker that petitioned for Freedom of Speech; and Sir

Thomas Gargrave, 1 Edw. was the first that made the Request for Privilege from Arreett. &c. Sir Iohn Robyn, 17 R. 2. was the first Speaker presented to the King in full Parliament by the Commons: And when Sir Archd Scouler was Speaker, 5 R. 2. It was the first Time that the Commons were required by the King to choose a Speaker. Ibid. 165, &c.

The First Notice of the Prince said it should be done in the House of Commons but by the Report of the House; and every Member of the House of Parliament has a judicial Place, and can be no Wis-cons. 4 Infl. 1. When King Charles 1. being in the House of Commons, and sitting in the Speaker's Chair, asked the then Speaker, whether certain Members, whom the King sometimes preferred to the Speaker, from a Presence of Mind which arose from the Genius of that House, readily answered, That he had neither Eyes to see nor Tongue to speak, but as the House pleased, them to whisper. An Act and having commanded Sir Thomas Gervay, one of the Judges of the King's Bench, to attend the House, should and know their Opinion, whether a Man might be attainted of High Treason by Parliament, and never called to answer; the Judges declared it was a dangerous Question, and that the High Court of Parliament ought to give Examples to inferior Courts, for proceeding according to Justice, and no inferior Court could do the like. Lex Constitut. 161. The House of Lords is a distinct Court from the Commons, to several Purposes, and is the Sovereign Court of Justice, and Dernier Refor: They try Criminal Cases of Impeachments of the Commons; and have an original Jurisdiction for the Trial of Peers upon Indictments found by a Grand Jury: They also try Causes upon Appeals from the Court of Chancery, or upon Writs of Error to review Judgments in B. R.

&c. And all their Decrees are as Judgments; and Judgment given in Parliament may be executed by the Lord Chancellor. 4 Infl. 21. Pass 253. Lex

163, It is said, that the Judicial Power of Parliament is in the Lords; but that the House of Lords hath no Jurisdiction over original Caules, which would be a Subversion of the Subjection of the Commons.

P. 510. Also the House of Commons is a distinct Court to many Purposes; they examine the Right of Elections, expel their own Members, and commit them all as the Lords, to the King to be tried, &c. And the Book of the Clerk of the House of Commons is a Record. 4 Infl. 356. 4 Infl. 23. The Commons coming from all Parts are the General Inquisitors and Grand Inquisitors of the Realm: to present public Grievances and Delinquents to the King and Lords to be punished by them: And any Member of the House of Commons, has the Privilege of im-peaching the highest Lord in the Kingdom. Wood's Infl. 45. As the House of Lords seems to be polietically constituted for the Support of the Rights of the Crown, and the Guard of the Liberties and Comprehension of the People's Liberties. The Commons in making and repealing of Laws, have equal Power with the Lords; and for laying of Taxes on the Subject, the Bill is to begin in the House of Commons, because from thence the greatest Part of the Money arises, and it is they that represent the whole Commons of England, for which Reason they will not permit any Alterations to be made by the Lords in a Bill concerning Money:

And as formerly the Laying and Levying of new Taxes have cauased Rebellions and Comotions, this has occasioned, particularly 9 E. 3. when a Motion has been made for a Subsidy of a new Kind, that the Commons have defrayed a Conference with that of their several Counties and Places, whom they have represented before they have treated of any such Matters. 4 Infl. 34. There are no Places of Pre-cedency in the House of Commons, as there are in the House of Lords; only the Speaker has a Chair or Seat, fixed towards the upper End, in the Middle of the House; and the Clerk, with his Affeats, sits near him at the Table, but below the Chair: The Members of the House of Commons never had any Robes, as the Lords ever had, except the Speaker and Chamberlain; and the Officers and Attorneys of the Clerk and Attorney of the Law do during the Term-Time. If a LORD be absent from the House, he may make another Lord his Proxy; though a Member of the House of Commons cannot make a Proxy. Wood's Infl.

18. No Knight, Citizen or Burgel of the House of Commons, shall depart from the Parliament without Leave of the Speaker and Commons assembled; and the same is to be entered in the Book of the Clerk of the Parliament, and delivered to the Lord Speaker. 2 P. 2. M. Information were preferred by the Attorney General against thirty nine of the House of Commons for, deserts without Licence, whereby six of them submitted to Fines; but it is uncertain whether any of them were ever paid. The Calling of the House is to discover what Members are absent, without Leave of the House, or just Causes; in which Cases Fines have been imposed: On the Calling over, such of the Members as are present, are marked; and the Defaulters being called over again the same Day, or the Day after, and not appearing, are sometimes summoned, and sometimes sent for by the Sergeant at Arms, Lex Convocation. 159. Forty Members are required to make a House of Commons for Dispatch of Business; and the Business of the House is to be kept entirely a Secret among themselves: In the 25th Year of Queen Elizabeth, Arthur Hall, Esq.; Member of Parliament, for publishing the Conferences of the House, and writing a Book which contained Matters of Reproach against some particular Members, derogatory to the general Authority, Power, and Providence of the House, and prejudicial to the Variability of the Proceedings, was adjudged by the Commons to be committed to the Tower for six Months, fined 100 l. and expelled the House. But the Speaker of the House of Commons, according to the Duty of his Office, as Servant to the House, may publish such Proceedings as he shall be ordered by the Commons assembled; and he cannot be liable for what he does that Way by the Command of others, unless all those other Persons are liable. The Case of William Williams, Esq. If any Member of either House, for Speech in Debate, after the Debate is over he is called to the Bar, where commonly on his Knees he receives a Reprimand from the Speaker; and if the Offence be great, he is sent to the Tower. When the Bill of Attainder of the Earl of Strafford, was passing the House of Commons, Mr. Taylor, a Member of that House, opposed it with great Violence and Assiduity, and being heard to explain himself, was commanded to withdraw; whereupon it was resolved he should be expelled the House, he was made incapable of ever being a Member of Parliament, and should be committed Prisoner to the Tower, there to remain during the Pleasure of the House: And he was called to the Bar, where he knelt down, and Mr. Speaker pronounced the Sentence accordingly. And Sir John Eliot, Denell Hall, and another Person having spoken these Words, (viz. The King's Privy Council, his Judges, and his Council learned in the Law, have confided in his Prerogatives, under his feet the Liberties of the Subject, and of this House,) an Information was brought against them by the Attorney General; and further, that the King having signified his Pleasure to the House of Commons for the Adjournment of the Parliament, and the Speaker endeavouring to get out of the Chair, they assaulted, U. C. detained him in the Chair, upon which there was a great Tumult in the House, to the Terror of the Commons there assembled, and against their Allegiance, in Contempt of the King, his Crown and Dignity: The Defendants pleaded to the Jurisdiction of the Court; and refused to answer but in Parliament; but it was adjudged, that they ought to answer, the Charge being for a Conspiracy, and felony Acts to prevent the Adjournment of the Parliament, which may be examined out of it; and not answering, Judgment was given against them, that Sir John Eliot Should be committed to the Tower, fined 2000 l. and the other two were tried and imprisoned. C. C. 150. Members of Parliament are not only privileged from Arrest, but likewise in an extraordinary Manner for Affairs, Menaces, U. C. Sir Robert Brading made an Assault upon Mr. Waddington, a Member of the House of Commons, in the Vicinity of the House going up to Parliament, and Sir Robert was fast for u. by the House, and committed to the Tower. An Ass. 17: 1. C. 1. two Speeches pulled privately in the House between the two Members, and on of them going down the Parliament Stairs struck the other, who catching a Sword in his Man's Hand, endeavored to return the Stroke; and up a Complaint to the House of Commons they were both ordered to attend, where he who gave the Blow was committed to the Tower during the Pleasure of the House. Affidavit being a Member coming to the Bar, attending in Parliament, the Officer shall pay Double Damages, and make fine and Ransom, U. C. Stat. 17: 16. After another Presentation, the may they attend the public Service of the House try, have Privilege of Parliament for themselves and their Menaal Servants, to be free from Arrests, Subornations, Citations, U. C. and for their Goods to be free from Distresses: And this Privilege of Parliament doth generally hold in all Cases except in Tresession, Felony and Breach of the Peace, Stat. 24: 21. There are many remarkable Cases of our Books treating of the Privileges of Parliament relating to Arrests of Members of the House of Commons, and their Manservants, upon the Manner of the Lords, and of the Comittee of Confoundment, Release, &c. The 3rd Year 20. King Jac. Sir Thomas Shirley, a Member of Parliament, was arrested Four Days before the Sitting of the Parliament, and carried Prisoner to the Tower; on which a Warrant issued to the Clerk of the House for a Habeas Corpus to bring him to the House, and the Sergeant was fast for in Calthy who being brought to the Bar, and committed to the criminent, was executed for that Time: But on hearing Counsel at the Bar for Sir Thomas Shirley, and the Warden of the Fleet, and upon producing Precedent, Simpso the Prosecuter, who caused the Arrest to be made, was ordered to be committed to the Tower and afterwards the Warden refusing to execute the Writ of Habeas Corpus, and the Delivery of Sir Thomas, being denied, was likewise committed to the Tower; though on his agreeing to deliver up Sir Thomas on a new Warrant for a New Writ of Habeas Corpus, and the Delivery of Sir Thomas, being made was discharged: This Affair taking up some Time the House entered into several Debates touching their Grievances, and how to make the Case of the Queen might be satisfied, which produced three Effectuals First, Whether Sir Thomas Shirley should have Privilege? Secondly, Whether pretently, or to be defended? And, Thirdly, Whether the House should petition the King for some Course for securing the Debt of the Party, according to former Precedents and saving himselfe the Window of the Law. To which Quesstions were resolved; and a Bill was brought in to secure Simpso's Debt, U. C. which all occasioned an Act 1. Jac. 1. cap. 15. for Relief of Plaintiffs in Writs of Execution, where the Deducts in such Writs are arrested, and set at Liberd: by Privilege of Parliament, by which a fresh Prosecution and new Execution may be had against them when that Privilege ceases. Lex Convocation, 147. And 19 Jac. 1. one John, a Servant to Sir James Whitchurch, a Member of the House of Commons, was arrested by two Bailiffs, who being told Sir James Whitchurch was a Parliament Man, answered, that the had known greater Men's Servants than his take from their Mates in Time of Parliament: And that the apprehension, they were both taken to prison as at Pardon of the House and Sir James Whitchurch, on their Knees, that they should both ride on Horse bare backed, back to Back, from Westminster, 7 E.
to the Exchange, with Papers on their Breefs signifying to Officers of Sequefters; all which was to be executed prefunctuadly, Sedente Curia. Ibid. In Affion of Debt upon a Bond, conditioned that B. B. should render himself at fuch a Day and Place to an Arreat; the Defendant pleaded, that by Right of Parliament, the Members, &c., and their Servants ought not to be arrefted by the Space of forty Days before the Session begins, nor during the Session, nor forty Days afterwards; and that B. B. was at that Time Servant to such a Member of Parliament, fo as he could not render himself to be arrefted: Upon Deference to this Plea, it was adjuged ill, becaufe he might have rendered himfelf at the Time and Place; but then it would be at their Peril if he was arrefted. 1 Brumm. 81. The Commons in Parliament claim Privilege for forty Days before and after each Session and Prorogation. 2 Lev. 72. Though the Statute 12 W. 3. c. 3. ordains, that Affions may be proceeded in any of the Courts at Wifhimur against Perfon(s) intitled to Privilege of Parliament, after a Diffolution or Prorogation, until a new Parliament is called, or the fame is refiftemed: And after Adjunction before fourteen Days, and the respective Courts may proceed to Judgment. 24 Edw. 3. 1. &c., until the Parties shall enter a common Appearance; and the Real-Parties, who have Edates of the Defendants may be sequefted for Default of Appearance; but the Plaintiff may not arreft the Parties. And where any Plaintiff shall be flayed or prevented from Proceeding by Privilege of Parliament, he shall not be barred by any Statute of Limitation, or Nonfuit, Diftiffment, or his Suit distrifed for Want of Execution; but as the Rifing of the Parliament shall be at Liberty to proceed to Judgment and Execution. And by 2 Aen. c. 8. Actions may be proceeded against Officers of the Court, or in any Place, for Forfeiture or Breach of Truth, &c., and fafl not be flayed by Colour of Privilege: But fuch Officer being a Member of Parliament, is not fubjeå to Arreft during the Time of Privilege, but Summons, Attachement, &c. By the 11 Geo. 2. c. 24. Any Perfon may proceed a Suit in any Court of Record, against any Peer, or Member of the House of Commons, or other Person intitled to Privilege, in the Intervals of Parliament, or of Sessions, if above fourteen Days; and then the Proceedings or Protagonies, are to give Judgment, and award Execution: And no Proceedings in Law against the King’s immediate Deputies, at any Court, to be delayed under Colour of fuch Privilege; only the Perfon of a Member of Parliament, &c., shall not be arrefted or impiioned. A Defendant who was a Member of Parliament, brought a Letter from the Speaker to the Court of King’s Bench to flay Proceedings; but the Court would not allow it, but told him he might bring his Writ of Privilege. Lord T. was Judgment was had against the Defendant, and afterwards he was chosen a Member of Parliament, and after his Election he was taken in Execution, yet he had his Privilege; though the Book tells us minus, 33 Edw. 3. And where Judgment being had against a Defendant, and he was taken in Execution in the Morning, and about three Hours afterwards was chosen a Member of Parliament, the House agreed, that being arrested before he was chosen, &c., he shall not have his Privilege. Moot 340. 1 Nift. Attr. 177. The Courts of Wifhimur may judge of the Privilege of Parliament, where it is incident to a Suit the Court is proceed of: And Courts may proceed to Execution between the Sessions of Parliament, notwithstanding Appeals lodged, &c. State Trials, 2 Ves. pag. 66, 209.

Election of Members of Parliament. The Parliament of England, by the Writs of Privilege, is called; and for one Member out of Clymer, at least forty Days before the Parliament begins: And the Commons are elected by the People; and every Member, though choife for one particular Place in the whole Kingdom. Aflor asAttendance of this Nature is for the Service of the Publick, the whole Nation has fome Intrinsic concern, that the King may not grant an Exemption to any Perfon from being elected as a Knight, Citizen or Burguth in Parliament; and for that Elections ought to be free. 29 Hen. 6. But an Alien cannot be elected of the Parliament for he is not the King’s Liege Subject; though if an Alien were Naturalized by Act of Parliament, he was eligible till the Stat. 12 W. 3. c. 2. A Man attained of Treffion or Felony, or one outlawed, &c., is not eligible; nor shall fuch Perfon be fufferd in the House of Parliament. 4 Inf. 48. A Perfon under the Age of twenty-one Years, may not be elected to fit in Parliament; neither can any Lord fit there, until he be of the full Age of twenty-one Years. Ibid. It was formerly held, that Mayors and Bailiffs of Towns Corporate were not eligible; but now they may be elected. And fo may a Sheriff of a County, for another Shire. 4 Inf. 53 H. None of the judges of the King’s Bench or Common Pleas, or Any Baron of the Exchequer, or any Judge of a Court of Judicial Pleas, can be chosen Knight, Citizen or Burgouth of Parliament, as it is now holden, and because they are Affidants in the Exchequer of the Exchequer, and Clergymen are not eligible to be Knights, Citizens or Burgouths of Parliament, they being of another Body, one of the Conversation. Ibid. Any of the Professions of the Faith, and the Clergymen in the Practice of the same, are eligible; but Ann 6 H. 4. a Parliament was fummoned by Writ, and by Co- lour of a certain Ordinance, it was forbidden that any Lawyers should be chosen; by Reason whereof my Lord Coke obferves, this Parliament was fruitless: And the prohibitory Clause inferred in the Writs was against Treffion and Felony, and against the Right, and cannot be disabled by Ordinance without Act of Parliament. By Stat. 12 W. 3. c. 2. no Perfon who had any Office or Place of Profit under the King, by Appointment or Prorogation, is to serve as a Member of the House of Commons. And by 4 & 5 Ann. no Member of Parliament may enjoy any Office in the Government, and fit in the House at the same Time by Virtue of his former Election; for by the Acceptance of any Office, his Election is void: But he may be elected again, on a new Writ issued out, and fit in the House; and Officers in the Army or Navy, receiving any new Commission, need not be re-elected 5 Ann. When Perions are incapable of being elected, the Election shall be void; and Siting or Voting in the House of Commons they shall forfeit 500 l. And the Statute 1 Geo. 1. c. 36 enacts that no Man having any Penfion from the Crown, either in his own Name or in Trust for him, shall be elected a Member of Parliament; and Peniitomers preliminarily elected to and Vote, shall forfeit 50 l. for every Day. &c. The Act mentions only a Penfion for any Term or Number of Years, and not a Penfion during Pleasore, according to the 4 Ann. c. 8. 'Tis now enacted, that no Perfon who shall be a Commissioner of the Treafury, Chancellor of the Exchequer, Commissioner of the Admiralty, Paymaster of the Army, Secretary of State, &c. shall be capable of being a Member in any Parliament, which shall hereafter be summoned or holden. Stat. 15 Geo. 2. c. 22. But this Statute does not exclude the Secretaries of the Treasury, or of those other Offices; or any Person having an Office for the benefit of any Knighthood or Chivalric Order in the Shire, to be resident in the County, for which they are chosen; as likewise Citizens and Burgesses elected shall be resident in and free of the same Cities and Towns, as were the Day of the first and Town of Sum- mons, and they are to be notable Knights of the Shire to be elected at the first and Town of Summons. They are to be notable Knights of the Shire, who have not an Estate of Freehold or Copyhold for life, or some greater Estate to his own Use, of wood, a year, above and over what will satisfy all Incomparables; and a Citizen and Burgess 30. per Ann., of which Oath is to be made at the Request of a Candidate, or two Persons having Right to Vote; and if any Person be elected and returned not qualified, the Return shall be void. 9 Ann. cap. 5. And none shall be qualified by Virtue of any Mortgage, where the Equity of Redemption is in any tenth the Mortgage shall have been in Possession seven Years before the Election: Though the eldest Son of a Peer, or of any Person qualified to serve as a Knight of the Shire, shall not be in- capable of being elected. Members of Parliament shall take the Oaths to the Government before they Sit and Vote in the House; or shall be adjusted Popish Recusants, and be disabled to sit in Parliament, and liable to certain Forfeitures. Stat. 5 Eliz..cap. 1. 50 Car. 2. c. 1. And this Statute is confirmed and enforced by the 13 & 14 H. 8. c. 6. The Election of Knights of the Shire, is to be made by the Majority of People dwelling in the Counties, having each of them Lands or Tenements to the yearly Value of 40l., before qualified to serve at the Election, shall be qualified to serve at the Election: And no Person is to be admitted to vote in any Election of a Member to serve in Parliament, who is under the Age of twenty one, or to be intitled to any Vote by Reason of any Trust or Mortgage, or if the Trust or Mortgage be not in actual Possession, and receive the Rents and Profits of the Estate; But the Mortgagee or Creditor is to be intitled to the Election, and may vote for the same, or any other Person intitled to the Election. And all Conveyances of Lands, Tenements, &c. in order to multiply Votes, or split and divide the Interest in any Houses or Lands, among several Persons, to enable them to vote, shall be void and of none Effect. By the 10 Ann. c. 22. none shall have a Voice for the election Knights of the Shire in Right of any Lands, who has not been charged or intitled to the publick Taxes, Church Rates and Parish Duties, in such Proportion as other Lands and Tenements of 40l. per Annum, lying within the same Parish; and for which he shall not have received the Rents and Profits, to be intitled to have received the same to the full Value of 40l. or more, to his Provision. 28th Ann. The Election except such Lands or Tenements come by Devise, Devise, Presentation to some Church, or Promotion to an Office, to which a Freehold is annexed; and Persons not having any Law for it. This ex- tends not to refrain Persons from voting for Knights of the Shire, in respect of any Tithes, or other incumbrances Inheritance, or Measurages, &c. belonging to Officers, by reason the same have not been actually as tiled to any publick Taxes; or in regard to Lands not taxed in all Taxes, they may not have been generally as tiled to some one or more of the said Rates, &c. by 12 Ann. c. 5. All Estates and Conveyances made to any Person in a fraudulent Manner, on purpose to qualify him to vote, to be of no Effect. To Conditions to defeat or determine such Election or to convey the same, shall be taken against the Person executing the same, and a Copy of all Bonds, &c. for Redemption shall be void; also Persons voting by Colour of such Conveyance, incur a Forfeiture of 40l. The above Statutes, for preventing fraudulent Conveyances to multiply Votes on Electing Knights of Shires, are made to extend to Lands or Tenements, for which any Persons shall vote for the Election of Members to serve in Parliament for any City or Town, that is a County of its own. If any Person votes at such Election as a Freeholder, not having his Estate a Year before, and as tiled as described in the Act 10 Ann. c. 23. liable to the Penalties imposed on unqualified Voters. 13 Geo. 2. c. 10. Persons refusing to take the Oaths of Affirmation, &c. are made incapable to vote for Members of Parliament. 1 Geo. 1. c. 13. By the Stat. 18 Geo. 2. c. 18. No Person shall vote for the Election a Knight of the Shire in England and Wales, in Respect or Right of any Measurage, &c. which has not been charged or intitled to the Land Tax twelve Calendar Months next before the Election. But not to refrain any Person from voting in Right of any Rents or Chambers, in the hands of the Crown, &c. and of any Measurages or Seals belonging to any Office, in regard they have not been actually as tiled to the Land Tax. No Person shall vote at such Elections without having having a Freehold in the County, of the clear yearly Value of 40l. over and above all Rents and Charges, or without having been in the actual Possession or Receipt of the Proffits above twelve Calendar Months, unless the same came to him by the Time and Place of the same, but by Devise, by Devise, Marriage, Marriage Settlement, Devise or Promotion to any Benefice or Office; or shall vote in Right of any Freehold granted to him fraudulently, or vote more than once at the same Election, under the Penalty of 40l. No publick Tax, Rate or Aailability, shall be deemed a Charge on any Freehold. At every Election of a Knight of the Shire in England and Wales, the Sheriff shall erect, at the Exence of the Candidates, both for taking the Poll, not exceeding the Number of Rapers or Hundreds in the County, or the Number of aliened Polling Places, and Affix at each Booth the Name of the Raper, &c. for which such Booth shall be allotted, and depute a proper Clerk at each Booth for taking the Poll, at the Exence of the Candidates, not exceeding a Guinea a Day each Clerk; and shall make a Lift for each Booth, of all the Town, Villages, &c. lying in the Raper, &c. for which such Booth is allotted, and deliver a Copy thereof to any Candidate on Request. And no Sheriff or Clerk appointed to take the Poll for any of the said Booths, shall admit any Person to vote for any of the Lands, &c. sworn to be lying in some Parish, Town or Place, not mentioned in the Lift made out for such Booth, unless such Lands, &c. lie in such Town, &c. not mentioned in any of the Lifts made out for all the said Booths. And the Sheriff shall allow a Cheque Book for every Poll Book for each Candidate. By the Stat. 19 Geo. 2. c. 28. the like Provision is made as in the case of the preceding Act, touching the Qualification of Electors of Members of Parliament, to serve for such Cities and Towns in England as are Counties of themselves. No Person to vote in Election a Knight of the Shire, unless he have a Right to vote in respect of Lands, &c. unless he have Lands, &c. in the same City or Town, of the yearly Value of 40l. over and above all Rents and Charges, and Charges, &c. at Journ. The Sheriff to allow each Candidate a Circque Book for each Poll Book. The Sheriff is to proceed to Election within eight Days after Receipt of the Write, and give three Days Notice of the Election. As to who are or ought to be the Electors in Boroughs, it hath very much excluded the British House of Commons: In the 22 Jac. 1, it was resolved, that where there is no Charter or Custom to the contrary, the Election in Boroughs is to be made by all the Householders, and not by any of inferior Degree; And in Opinion whether the Commons or the Capital Burgesses of a certain Borough in Lincolnshire, were the Electors of Memers of Parliament, ante Car. 1, it was agreed, That the Election of Burgesses in all Boroughs did of common Right belong to the Commoners, and that nothing could take it from them but a Preferication and confound Usage beyond the Memory of Man. It has been known, That the Commonalities of Cities and Burghs are only the ordinary and lower Sort of Citizens, Burgesses or Freemen; and that the Right of Election of Burgesses to Parliament in all Boroughs, belongs to the Commoners, viz. the ordinary Burgesses or Freemen; and not to the Mayor, Aldermen and Common Council: Though the Meaning of the Words Commonalities, Civicuratum et Burgurum, has always signified, rightfully understood, the Mayor, Aldermen and Common Council, where they were to be found; or the Street-ers and Balliff, and Capital Burgesses, or the governing Parts of Cities and Towns, by what Persons forever they were governed, or Titles called. The only City or Borough in which this has happened in this Age, with Relation to the Determinations of a Commitee of Privileges and Elections, was the Case of Aisyby and White, concerning the Borough of Aisyby and White, by Writ of Election, &c. Which gives a Right for an Elector who is denied his Vote? In this Case the Debates ended in the following Resolutions, viz. That the Qualification of Electors and of Perfons elected, is recognizable only before the Commons in Parliament; and that the examining and determining the Qualification or Right of any Elector, &c. belongs to them, where the Act of Parliament give no particular Direction; that whoever shall prosecute any Action, &c. which shall bring the Right of Electors to the Determination of any other Jurisdiction, than that of the House of Commons, except in Cases specially provided for by such Jurisdiction, shall be guilty of a Breach of the Privilege of the House. Several Persons were committed to Newgate by a Warrant signed by Robert Harley, Speaker of the House of Commons, for prosecuting Actions at Law against the Confabulians of the aforesaid Borough of Aisyby, who refused to take their Votes at the Election of Members of Parliament, &c. in Contempt of the Jurisdiction and Privileges of the House; and this Matter being returned by Helen Cooper severally, and the several Persons Defendants brought into Court, their Council moved that they might be discharged, for that the Proce-duction of a Suit at Law could be no unlawful Act, nor a Breach of the Privileges of the House of Commons: Three Judges were of Opinion, that the House were the proper judges of their own Privilege; but Holc Chief Justice held, That the Authority of the Commons was circumvented by Law; and if they should exceed that Authority, then to say they were Judges of their own Privilege, is to make their Privilege of no more value than what they would have to be; and that if they should wrongfully imprison, there could be no Redress, so that the Courts at Wittingham could not execute the Laws upon which the Licens of Aisyby were founded. In Action on the Café, by a Burgess of Aisyby, against the Confabulians of the Said Borough, for refusing to receive the Plaintiff's Vote in the Election of a Member of Parliament; the Plaintiff had a Verdict, but the Judge was arrested by the Opposition of the Act of Parliament, and the Law is not maintainable, because the Confabulians acted as Judges, and the not Receiving the Plaintiff's Vote is Damages for an actual Breach of the Privilege of the House; the Plaintiff's Vote was foreclosed, his Vote will be received; that the Right of electing Members to serve in Parliament, is to be derived in Parliament, and the Plaintiff may prosecute the Election for the whole, and after it is determined there, he may then bring his Action, and not before. Holc Chief Justice contra, That the Plaintiff had a Right to vote; a Freetholder has a Right to have a Vote by Reason of his Freehold; and it is a Real Right, and the Value of his Freehold was not material till the Stat. 8 H. 6. which requires it to be made 40s. 4d. &c.; That in a Ratione liberi servitutis in Counties; in ancient Boroughs, they have a Right to vote rationes Burgagii; and in Cities and Corporations, it is rationes Fran-chiae, and a personal Inheritance, voted in the whole Corporation, but to be used by the particular Members; that this is a noble Privilege, which entitles the Subject to a Share in the Government and Legislation, and that if the Plaintiff hath a Right, he must have a Remedy to assert that Right, for Want of Right and Want of Remedy is the same Thing; that Refusing to take the Plaintiff's Vote is an Injury, and every Injury imports a Damage; and that where a parliamentary Matter comes in incidentally to an Action of Property, in the King's Court, it must be corrected there; and the Commons can- not judge of the Matter; the Parliament cannot judge of the Injury, nor give Damages to the Plaintiff, and he hath no Remedy by Way of Petition: And according to this Opinion of those gentlemen there was an Action brought against the House of Lords, and the Action was reversed upon a Writ of Error brought in the House of Lords. 1 Salk. 19. Mod. Coa. 45. This Case occasioned great Disputes between the two Houses of Parliament the Lords insisting, That if the Commons only could judge of the Right of their Electors, they would in Effect chuse their Electors, &c. And the Commons alleging, that if the Right of Electors might be determined in the Courts of Law, from whence Causes are removed by Writ of Error into the House of Lords, the Lords would become Judges of their own Electors, or should chuse, and consequently who were duly elected Members of the Commons House, whereby the Commons would lose their Independence, and be subjected to the Lords, &c. But the Parliament being soon after prorogued, the Dispute was dropped. By the Common Law of England, every Commoner hath a Right not to be subjected to Laws made without their Consent; and because such Consent cannot be given by every individual Man in Person, by Reason of Number and Confusion; that Power is lodged in their Representatives, elected and chosen by them, viz. Knights, Citizens, &c. 3 Salk. 18. And in several Counties, the Citizens and Burgesses were formerly chosen in the County Courts, with the Knights of Shires, and jointly returned, &c. For there are commonly four or five Citizens or Burgesses sent from the respective Cities or Boroughs to the County-Courts; and there they were chosen, with full Power for themselves and their several Communities, to do and conform to such Things, as by the Common Council of the Kingdom assembled in Parliament, should be ordained and enacted; and that by this Act 14 Edw. 4, among the Parliament of Ed. 3, &c. among the Parliament of Ed. 5, &c. among the Parliament of Ed. 7, &c. among the Parliament of Ed. 14 Edw. there appears to be an Appointment and Return of Burgesses, by the Lord of a Town, &c.
Form of an ancient Writ for Election of Members of Parliament.

To the Sheriff of, &c. Greeting: Be it known to you, that we, the Lords of our Realm, and to our Liege Subjects, that we have determined to proceed to the Election of Members of Parliament, to represent us in the next Cort, and to be present in the next Session of Parliament. We therefore command you, that you cause an Election to be held, and that the Writs be issued for this purpose. We further command you, that you make a special arrangement to ensure the free and fair election of Members of Parliament. We further command you, that you take all necessary measures to ensure the free and fair election of Members of Parliament. We further command you, that you make a special arrangement to ensure the free and fair election of Members of Parliament. We further command you, that you take all necessary measures to ensure the free and fair election of Members of Parliament. We further command you, that you make a special arrangement to ensure the free and fair election of Members of Parliament. We further command you, that you take all necessary measures to ensure the free and fair election of Members of Parliament.

The Return of the Writ, thereto inclosed, was thus:

As Sheriff, by virtue of this Writ have caused to be chosen in the County of, &c. two Knights, and of every City of the same County two Citizens, and of every Borough two Burgesses, the half, most able, and discretest Knights, Citizens and Burgesses of the County, City and Boroughs aforesaid, according to the Tenor of the Writ. By the Stat. 7 H. 4. cap. 15. the Election of Knights of the Shire is to be made in the following Manner: At the next County Court, after the Delivery of the Writ, Proclamation is to be made by the Sheriff of the County, of the Day and Place of the Parliament, and that all such as there present shall attend at the Election of Knights of the Shire; and then in full County, a free and indifferent Election shall be made: And after such Choice, the Names of the Parties chosen, are to be written on an Indenture under the Seals of the Electors; which Indenture is sealed and handed to the Writ, shall be the Sheriff's Return thereof. And by the 25 H. 6. cap. 7. it is enacted, That the Sheriff after Receipt of the Writ, shall deliver a Precept under his Seal to every Mayor and Bailiff of Cities and Boroughs within his County, reciting the Writ, and requiring them to cause two Citizens and Burgesses to come to the Parliament; and such Mayors and Head Officers, are to make Return of the Precept to the Sheriff, by Indenture, &c. that he shall be enabled to make a good Return of the Writ. The Sheriff is to make Election between the Hours of eight and eleven in the Forenoon; and if any Knight, Citizen, or Burgess, returned by the Sheriff shall be put out, and the Name of another put in, diverse Penalties are incurred; Sheriffs acting contrary to this Statute, and not returning a Member duly elected, are subject to a fine of £100, recoverable by Action of Debt; and Officers of Corporations, making false Returns, liable to a Penalty of 40l. It has been adjudged that this Act should be made of any Knight of the Shire, betwixt eight and eleven of the Clock in the Forenoon; if the Election be begun within that Time, and cannot be determined in those Hours, it may be made after. 4 Inf. 48. And if any Electors give their Voices before the Precept for Election is read and published, it shall be of no Force for after the Precept is thus read, &c. they may alter their Votes and make a new Election. Ibid. 49. The Stat. 7 & 8 W. 3. cap. 7. ordains, if any Person shall return a Member to serve in Parliament for any Place, contrary to the Determination in the House of Commons of the Right of Election for such Place, the Return so made shall be judged a false Return; and the Party making it may be prosecuted, and double Damages with Costs recovered against him: Officers willfully and falsely returning more Perons than are required to be chosen by the Writ or Precept, the like Remedy may be had against them; and all Contracts, Promises, &c. to return any Member of Parliament, are not only declared void, but the Males or Givers of the Contracts, &c. or of any Gift or Reward to procure a false or double Return, shall forfeit 1000l. one Third to the King, another to the Informer, and the other Third to the Person of the Place, to be recovered in any Court of Record at Winsor, &c. By 7 & 8 W. 3. cap. 25. When any new Parliament shall be called, there shall be formuas between the Title and Returns of the Writs; the Lord Chancellor, &c. is to issue out Writs for Election of Members of Parliament, with as much Expedition as may be; and the several Writs shall be delivered to the proper Officers for Execution, who are to issue the Day of the Receipt on the Back of the Writ, and forthwith make out the Precepts to each Borough, &c. which are to be delivered to the Officers of every such Borough, within three Days, and they must likewise order the Day of Receipt, and immediately cause public Notice to be given of the Time and Place of Election, and proceed to Election thereupon in eight Days: For election of Knights of the Shire, the Sheriff is to hold his County Court at the most publick and usual Place, and there proceed in the Election at the next Court, unless it fall out to be within six Days after the Receipt of the Writ, and then the same is to be adjourned, giving ten Days Notice of the Election; if the Election be not determined on View, but a Poll is demanded, the Sheriff is to take the same, and likewise a Jury, and he or his Under-Sheriff shall appoint and swear Clerks for that Purpose, &c. The County-Court is not to be adjourned to any other Place, without the Consent of the Candidates; nor shall any unnecessary Adjournments be made, but the Poll to proceed; also every Sheriff, &c. is to deliver a Copy of the Poll to any Person deeming it; and Officers for every wilful Offence against this Act, are subject to a Forfeiture of 1000l. And by 6 Geo. 2. cap. 23. the County Court for electing Knights of the Shire in Parliament, may be adjourned over from Day to Day, until the Election, &c. is determined; but not to a Monday, or Friday, &c. only, which will be void. The 10 & 11 W. 3. directs, That the Sheriff or other Officer having the Execution and Return of Writs of Summons for Parliament, shall on or before the Day of Meeting of the Parliament, and with all Expedition, not exceeding fourteen Days after Election, make Returns to the Clerk of the Crown in Chancery to be filed, on Pain of forfeiting 500l. And the returning Officer, within twenty Days after the Election, is to deliver the Summons to the Clerk of the Peace, all the Poll-Books on Oath made before two Justices, to be preferred among the Records of the Sessions of the Peace, &c. 10 Ann. cap. 23. In double Returns, it has been for - merly a general Practice in the House of Commons, that neither one nor the other should sit in the House, until it be decided: Anno 1640. two Returns made for Great Marlmere, and in both Indenture the Petitioner was refused, and he was submitted to fit, but the others ordered to withdraw until the Question was determined: And in the same Year, it was ordered, That where some are returned by the Sherif or such other Officer as by Law hath Power to return, and others returned by private Hands; in such Cause, those that are returned by the Sheriff or other Officer, shall fit until the Election is quashed by the House. Ordin. 1640. If one be duly elected Knight, Citizen, or Burgess, and the Sheriff, or another, return another, the Return must be returned and amended; and he that is duly elected, is to be inducted, for the Election is the Foundation, and not the Return. 4 Jeff. 45. In Affidavit of the Café, the Plaintiff declared, that he was duly elected a Member of Parliament for such a Borough, and the Defendant returned two other Persons; and that he petitioned the House of Commons, and was adjused to be duly elected, and his Name ordered to be inserted in the Roll, and the Name of the other to be raze out: The Plaintiff had a Verdict; but it was adjused in Affidavit of the Café, that this Declaration was not founded on the Act 7 & 8 W. 3. because that Stat-te gave an Action where there was none before, and that the Party must be laid agreeable by law, or, which not being done, the Defendant had Judgment. 2 Salk. 104. The Court will not meddle in an Action upon a double Return, until it is determined in Parliament. Leg. & Andr. 78. It hath been held that for a double Return, no Ac-ction lay before the Statute 7 & 8 W. 3. cap. 7. because it is the only Method that the Sheriff had to secure himself: and when the Right was decided in the Parliament, then one Indenture was taken off the File, so that it is not then a double Return; neither can the Party have an Action for a false Return, for the Matter may be determined in the House whether true or false; and if so, there will be an Inconvenience in contrary Resolutions, if they should determine it one Way, and the Courts at Law another Way; but after a Diffusion the Action may be for a false Return, as then the Right cannot be determined in Parliament. 2 Salk. 103. A double Return is of the same Nature with a false Return, as to Action on the Cafe: in both it is grounded on the Fality; but there is another Reason why this Action will not lie for a double Return. (Note:) because the Law doth not take any Notice of such a Return, it is only allowed by the Ulige of Parliament; and in Courts where the proper Officer cannot determine who is chosen; therefore when he doubts, he makes a double Return, and submit-t the Choice to the Determination of the House of Commons; and if that House doth admit the Return, and make Determinations on them, it will be hard for the Law to judge of a Man to the Ac-ction only for submitting a False to be determined by a Court, which hath a proper Jurisdiction to determine it: And by Reason of the Variety of Opinion, that an Action in this Cafe would lie, and which hath been enacted by 3 & 8 W. 3. cap. 7. that the last Determination of the House of Commons concerning the Right of Election, is to be pursued. 3 Lev. 114. 1 Nef. Abr. 30. A Member elected and returned for several Places, is not to make His Choice for which Place he will serve; and if he do not, by the Time which the House shall appoint, the House may determine for what Place he shall continue a Member; and when he shall go out for the other Place. Candidates are not to make Presents of Money to, or treat, &c. Electors, commanded to clue their Speaker, which they having done, two or three days afterwards he is pre-ten to the King, and after some Speeches is al-loved, and last down to the House of Commons; where the matter proceeds. 12 Rep. 115. A Parliament cannot begin on the Return of the Writs, without the Presence of the King, in Person, or by Representation; and by Representation two Ways, either by a Guardian of England, by Letters Patent under the Great Seal, when the King is out of the Realm; or by Commission, to certain Noble Lords or Members of Parliament, when his Majesty is at Home. 4 Inf. 6, 7. And if any Par-lament is to be held before a Guardian of the Realm, there must be a special Commission to begin it; a Parliament, but the Title of the Writs of Summons is to be in the Guardian's Name: And by an ancient Law, if the King being beyond the Seas, causeth a Parliament to be summoned in this Kingdom, by Writ under the Privy Seal, but Lieutenant of the King, and after the King returns hither, the Parliament shall proceed without any new Summons. 8 H. 5. In the fifth Year of King Henry the Eighth, Parliament was held, before John Duke of Bedford, Brother to the King, and Guardian of the Kingdom, Ann. 3 Edw. 4, a Parliament was begun in the Presence of the King, and prorogued to a further Day; and when William Gough, Archibishop of York, the King's Commissioner by Letters Patent, held the same Parliament, and made an Ad-junction of Eliz., the Queen Commission under the Great Seal, reciting, that for uregent Occasions the same could not be present in her Royal Presence; did authorize John Whitgift Archithe same to a Question, which he submits to the House, and is put to the Vote: And a Question is to be put, after the Bill is read a second Time, whether the Bill shall be committed, which is either to a Committee of the whole House or a private Committee, as the Importance of the Bill shall require; and this Committee is to report their Opinion of the Bill, with the Amendments, to the House, the Chairman having caused the Clerk attending to read the Bill, and read it himself, putting every Clause to the Question, &c. The Chairman makes this Report at the Side Bar of the House, reading all the Alterations made, and then delivers the same to the Clerk of the Parliament, who likewise reads all the Amendments, and the Speaker puts the Question, whether they shall be read a second Time? And if that be agreed unto, he reads the Amendments himself, and puts the Question, whether the Bill so amended shall be ingrossed, and read a third Time some other Day? And then the Speaker takes the Bill in his Hand, holds it up, and puts the last Question, whether the Bill be read a third Time? And all the Votes are for it, then the Bill passes; and it is sent up to the House of Lords, where, when it is twice read, the Question is to be for Commitment; or if it be not committed, then it is to be read a third Time; and the next Question to be for its Passing; and upon the third Reading of the Bill, any Member may speak against the whole Bill to throw out the same, or for Amendment of any Clause thereof; and if it be amended, it is to be sent back again to the Commons for their Concurrence, and being returned, is then passed in the House of Lords, and ready for the Royal Assent. If a Bill passes in one House, but a Demur happens upon it when sent to the other House, in this Case a Conference is demanded; wherein certain deputed Members of each House meet in the Painted Chamber, and Debate the Matter; and when they have agreed, the Bill passed is brought to the King in the House of Lords, where having his Royal Robes on, he declares the Royal Assent, by the Clerk of the Parliament, Præsid. Sive. in Parl. 397, 398. As for private Bills, Leave is to be obtained by Petition, &c. to bring in the same; and the Substance thereof is to be fet forth, until which a Bill is not to be offered; and when the Petition is read, and Leave given to bring in the Bill, wherupon it is accordingly brought into the House, the Petition consulted and affected by it may be heard by themselves or Counsel at the Bar, or before a Committee; and is then referred to whom such Bill is to be referred, and (in Case of a Peer, he shall be admitted to come within the Bar of the House of Commons, and fit covered on a Stool whilst the fame is debating.) And when the House is heard on both Sides, and the House is satisfied with the Contents of the Bill, it is committed, and passed, &c. All Bills, Motions and Petitions, are by Order of Parliament to be entered on the Parliament Rolls, although they are denied, and never proceed to the Estabishment of a Statute, together with the Answers. Lex Constitution. 1.54. The Speaker of the House of Commons is not allowed to peruse or diffusse in passing of a Bill, only to make a short Narrative of it; opening the Bill, so that all may understand it; if any Question be upon the Bill, he is to explain, but not enter into Argument or Dilpute: and he is not to vote, except the House is equally divided: When Mr. Speaker declares to speak, he is to be heard without Interrupting; and when the Speaker stands up, the Member standing up is to sit down: If two stand up to speak to a Bill, he that stands up is to be heard against the Bill, if it be known, is to be first heard; otherwise he that was first up, which is to be determined by the Speaker: No Member is to be taken down, unless by Mr. Speaker, in such Cases as the House do not think fit to admit; and if any Person speak imprudently, or beides the Question, the Speaker is to interrupt him, and show the Member to which the Speaker shall be further heard: But if he speaks not to the Matter, it may be moderated: And whatsoever hibes or disturbing any Person in his Speech, shall answer it at the Bar of the House. In the ensuing Laws, and other Proceedings in Parliament; the Lords give their Voices in their House, from the pousse Lord Writs, etc., in the Character, or Not Content, The Manner of Voting in the House of Commons, is by Yes and No; and if it be difficult to determine which are the greater Number, the House divide, and four Tellers are appointed by the Speaker, two of each Side, to Number them, the ayes going out, and the No's staying in; and thereof Report is made to the House. When the Members of the House go forth, none is to sit, until Mr. Speaker rises from his Seat; and then all the Rees are to follow after.

Payment of Money before the Day appointed, is in the Law called a Day for it, because, in the Preeminence of Law, be any Prejudice to him to whom the Payment is made, to have his Money before the Time; and it appears by the Party's Receipt of it, that it is for his own Advantage to receive it then, otherwise he would not do it: Yet it is said, that the Defendant must not pled, that the Plaintiff accepted it in full Satisfaction; but that he paid it in full Satisfaction. 5 Reg. 117. Payment of a lesser Sum in Satisfaction of a greater, cannot be a Satisfaction for the Whole, unless the Payment be before the Day: Though the Gift of an Horse or Robe, &c. in Satisfaction, may be good. Ibid. And where Damages are uncertain, a less Thing may be done in Satisfaction of a greater. 4 Med. Reg. 89. Upon Schwartz ad Divem pletum, it is good Evidence to prove Payment at any Time after the Day, and before the Action brought; and Payments, although after the Day of Action, to any Attornv which relates to a Debt, upon Bill, Bond or Judgment, or Siete facias upon a Judgment. 2 Litt. Abr. 282. Statute 4 & 5 Ave. But though Payment after the Day, is good by Way of Discharge, it will not be so by Way of Satisfaction. 4 Med. 250. Payment is no Plea to Debt on a Covenant, or an Obligation, without Acquittance; but if the Obligation have a Condition, it is a Condition. If a Fee or Bond, be for Payment of Money, and no Day is set, Damages cannot be recovered till a Demand is made. Bridge. 20. For Payment of Rent, there are said to be four Times; 1. A voluntary Time, that is not satisfactory, and yet good to some Purpose; as where a Lessee pays his Rent before the Day, this gives Selfish of the Rent, and enables him to whom paid to bring his Action for it. 2. A Time voluntary and satisfactory in some Cases; when it is paid the Morning of the Day, and the Lessee dies before the End of the Day, this is a good Payment to bind the Heir or Executors, but not the King. 3. The legal, absolute and satisfactory Time, which is a convenient Time before the last Instalment of the last Day, and then it must be paid. 4. Is satisfactory, and not voluntary, but coercive, when forced and recovered by Suit at Law. Co. Litt. 200. 10 Reg. 127. Pract. 172. Payment of Money shall be dis-ferred by him who pays it, and not by the Receiver, &c. 2 Reg. 117. Co. Eas. 68. In the Payment of a Tenant's Debt by Executary, they are to pay their fines; on judgments, Mortgages, Rent due by Lease, &c. then Bonds and Bills, &c. 1 All. Abr. 927. Vide Bond and Rent.

Becah, A Duty or Impediment for Maintenance of a See: Paro: Also the Dignity of the Lords or Peros of the Realm.
Becah, (Paro) Signifies in our Common Law those that are imprisoned in an Inquest for the Trial of any Man, and convicted or clearing him of the Offence for which they are Imprisoned; being by the Law and Customs of England, every Man is to be tried by his Peers or Equites. Kitch. 78. Magna Charta, 9 H. 3. c. 29. And as every one of the Nobility being a Lord of Parliament, is a Peer or Eques to all the other Lords, though they are of several Degrees; so the Commons are Peers to one another, although distinguished as Knights, Esquires, Gentlemen, &c. 2 Inf. 109. 3 Inf. 31.
Becah, Of Peers. The Word Peer denoted originally one of the same Rank and Condition; afterwards 'tis said it was said for the Valets or Tenants of the same Lord, who were obliged to serve and attend him in his Courts, being equal in Function; there were termed Peers of Fees, because holding Fees of the Lord, or for that his Benefices in Court was to fit and judge under their Lord of Difupes arising on Fees: But where there were too many such in one Lordship, the Lord usually chose our Twelve, who had the Title of Peers, by Way of Distinction and Eminence; from whom it is said we derive our common Juries, and other Peers, Convoo.
Becah of the Statutes, (Paro Regni, Personae.) Are the Nobility of the Kingdom, and Lords of Parliament; who are divided into Dukes, Marquesses, Earls, Viscountes and Barons: And the Reason why they are called Peers, is for that notwithstanding there be a Distinction of Dignities in our Nobility, yet in all publick Actions they are equal; as in their Voices of Parliament, and in Paddling upon the Trial of any Nobleman. S. P. C. lib. 5.
And this Ap­pealation seems to be chiefly borrowed from France, from those noble Peers that Charlesmus inscribed in that Kingdom, called Paros vel Patriae Francia, but we have applied this Name to all our Lords of Parliament, and have no let Number of Peers, for they are more or less at the King's Pleasure. All Nobility and Peerage is grounded on the Crown; and created either by Wit, or Letters Patent: The Calling up a Lord by Wit is the most ancient Way, and gives a Fee simple in a Baronet, without Words of Inheritance, wit. To him and his Heirs; but the King may limit the general Estate of Inheritance to Heirs Male, or the Heirs of the Body: And as soon as the Peer called fits in Parliament by Virtue of his Wit, his Blood is ennobled, and he is a Peer; but if he dies before he fits in Parliament, he is not, the bare Direction and Delivery of the Wit having no Effect. 1 Inf. 9, 16. But Creation by Letters Pat­ent is good, and makes the Peerage sure, although he never fits in Parliament, and his Heirs shall inher­it the Honour proper to the Words of the Patent: Though the Persons created must in this Case have the Inheritance limited by apt Words; as to him and his Heirs, or the Heirs Male of his Body, Heirs of his Body, &c., otherwise he shall have no Inheritance. 1 Inf. 2. Inf. 48. The King may create either Man or Woman Noble for Life only: And a Peer may be created for Life, by Act of Parliament; for instance, if a Duke take a Wife, she is a Dutchess in Law by the Inmarriage; &c. to a Marquis, Earl, &c. 1 Inf. 89. 69 Rep. 97. Also the Dignity of an Earl may devolved to a Daughter, if there be no Son, who shall be a Comer; and if there are many Daughters, it is said, the King shall dispose of the Dignity to which Daughter he pleases. 1 Inf. 106. Words Inf. 46. 56. It has been resolved in the House of Peers, that a Peer's Wife is presumed a Baron to Parliament by Writ, and fasting die, leaving two or more Daughters, who all dying, one of them only leaves Issue a Son, such Issue has a Right to demand a Seat in the House of Parliaments. Before the Times of King Ed. 7. there were but two Titles of Nobility, viz. Earls and Barons: The Barons were originally by Tenure, afterwards created by Writ, and after that by Patent; but as to Earls, they were always created by Letters Patent. Said. 536. And King Hen. 6. created Edmund of Holland, Earl of Richmond, by Patent, and granted him Precedency before all other Earls. Queen Mary, also, likewise granted to Henry Radclyffe, Earl of Safoyn, a Privilege by Patent beyond any other Noblemen, viz. that he might sit at any Time of the Parliament, like unto the Grandees of Spain; and some few others of our Nobility have had conferred on them this Honour. The State 8th. H. 8. 16. states the Precedency of the Lords of Parliament, and great Officers, &c. After whom, the Dukes, Marquesses, Earls, Viscounts, and Barons, take Place according to their Anteity; but it is declared, that Precedency is in the King's Discretion: The State &c. was summoned to Parliament by Writ, Annu 3 Ed. 8. and William his Son, Annu 3 Ed. 6. was disabled by Attaining, and the Claim of any Dignity during his Life, but was afterwards called to Parliament by Queen Eliza- beth, and sat there as prince Lord, and died; and then Thomas, the Son of the said William, petitioned the Queen in Parliament to be admitted to the Place of the Place of his Grandfather; and all the Judges to whom it was referred were of Opinion that he should, because his Father's Disability was not abjourned by Attaining, but only personal and temporary during his Life; and the Acceptance of the new Dignity by the Petitioner shall not hurt him, so that when the old and new Dignity are in one Person, the old shall be preferred. 1 Rep. 1. A Dignity of Earl, &c. is a Title by the Common Law; and if a Parent be disburled of his Dignity, the regular Course is to petition the King, who indorsed it and sends it, like Chancery, Steinefs, Prorog. 72. 22 Edw. 3. And where Nobility is gained by Writ, or Parent, without Outright, it is receivable by Record; but when it is gained by Minister of State, as by Marriage, or where Defents are pleaded, Nobility is receivable per Patis. 22 Affli. 24. 5 Salk. 223. A Person petitioned the Lords in Parliament to be tried by his Peer; the Lords disallowed his Petition, and disallowed the Petition: And it was held in this Case, that the Defendant's Right upon his Letters Patent, which could not be cancelled but by Sixe facias: and that the Parliament could not give Judgment in a Thing which did not come in a judicial Way before that Court. 2 Salk. 510. 511. 3 Salk. 223. Where Paternity is claimed in Salk. 223. as by a Sibyl, he must plead, that he is unam Patrum Requi Anglie: but if the Claim be ratified Nobilitatis, he need not plead otherwise, to procure to his Creation. 4 Inf. 15. 3 Salk. 233. There are no feudal Barones at this Day: But there are Barons by Succession, and those are the Bishops, who by Virtue of ancient Barones held the King, (unto which the Possessions of their Bishopricks have been converted) are called by Writ to Parliament, and have Place in the House of Peers as Lords Spiritual: The Tenure of Bishops are held by their Service, to attend in Parliament when called; and that is in the Nature of a Barony; and all the Bishops together, it hath been said, made one of the three Estates in Parliament; but this is denied, because they have separately from the other Lords no negative Vote, &c. And though the Bishops are Lords of Parliament, and called by the King, and have a Vote, with an Answer, yet they shall not be tried by the Peers, as they do not fit in Parliament by Reason of their Nobility, but of their Dignities which they hold in Right of the Church: They are not of the Degree of Nobility (their Blood is not anointed, nor their Parasae hereditary) so that they are not of acommon Jury: And when one of the Nobility is to be tried by his Peer in Parliament, the Spiritual Lords must withdraw, and make their Petition. 1 Inf. 70. 95. 110. 5 Inf. 20. 4 Inf. 21. Some Bishops, as it appears, have been tried by Peers of the Realm: but it hath been seen impeached by the House of Commons, as upon special Occasions many others have been who have not been Peers: And the Bishops may claim all the Privileges of the Lords Temporal; saving they cannot be tried by their Peers, because the Bishops cannot in like Cases pass upon a Trial of any other Peers, they being prohibited by Canons to be Judges of Life and Death, &c. When a Lord is newly created, he is introduced into the House of Peers, by two Lords of the same Faction in the House, and the King at Arms going before, and his Lordship is to present his Writ of Summons, &c. to the Lord Chancellor; which being read, he is conducted to his Place: And Lords spiritual, where Nobility comes down from the Ancestor, and is enjoyed by Right of Blood, are introduced with the same Ceremonies, the presenting of the Writ excepted. Lex Quaest. 279. A Noblemen, whether a Native or Foreigner, who has his Nobility from a Foreign State, although the Title of Dignity be given him, (as the highest and lowest Degree is assigned to his Grace,) he is not acknowledged in all our legal Proceedings, nor Notice is taken of his Nobility, for he is no Peer: And the Laws of England prohibit all Subjects to receive any hereditary Title of Honour or Nobility, of the Gift of any Foreign Prince, without the Consent of the Sovereign. Ibid. 80. 81. Though Dignities of Para- sages are granted from the Crown, they cannot be transferred to the Crown, except it be in order to new and greater Honours, nor are they transferable over, unless they relate to an Office: And notwithstanding there are Influence of Rarions being transferred, and wherein one Branch of a Family fat in the House of Peer, by Virtue of a Grant from the other Branch, particularly in the Reigns of Hen. 3. and Ed. 2. Their Precedency have been disallowed; and the Duke of Bedford, who in the Reign of King Edu. 4. was degraded for Poverty, and Want of Possessions to support him, was not on his Peer, but by the Authority of Parliament; And as Dignities may not be transferred or transferred, without Authority of Parliament; so it hath been held, that Honour and Parasae cannot be extinguished by Act of Parliament, the King and Kingdom having an Interest in the Parasage of every Lord. Lex Quaest. 85. 86. 87. An Earldom confides in Office, for the Defence of the Kingdom; and of Bouts and Possessions, &c. and may be instated as any other Office may, and as it concerns Land; But the Dignity of Parasae cannot be transferred by Fine, because it is a Quality affixed to the Blood, and is merely Personal, that a Fine enacts touch it. 2 Salk. 509. 3 Salk. 223. A personal Honor or Dignity may be forfeited, on committing Treson, &c. for it is im- plied by a Condition in Law, that the Person digni- fied shall be loyal; and the Office of an Earl, &c. in An. Roy. 227. 366. & Defenses dennis tempore Bell, therefore he forfeits it when he takes Counsel or Arms against the King. 7 Rep. 32. 2: Neff. Aug. 323. All Peers of the Realm are locked upon as the King's brethren in Parliament; And all the Privileges belonging to the Parasage, they are very great. At Common Law, it was lawful for any Peer to retain as many Chaplains as he would seat by his Grace. And we have a Vice-Pride, where they shall not be tried by the Peers, as they do not fit in Parliament by Reason of their Nobility, but of their Felony whereby it was granted at Common Law, if it be not outlawed by some statute made since the 26th of King Edward I. & P. 17th. A Peer of the Realm are to be tried by their Peers in Parliament. Magna Charta, c. 29. and 15 Ed. 5. c. 8. But Noblemen of France, Ireland, etc. and Sons of Dukes or Earls who are Noble, and have the Title of Lords, but are not Lords of Parliament, shall not be permitted to have this Trial. 2 Ed. 5. 30. A Peer shall be tried by his Peers, on Indictment for Treason, Murder or Felony though in Appeal of Felony, he shall be tried by Freeholders: And Indictments of Peers for Treason or Felony, are to be tried by Freeholders of the County, and such shall plead before the Lord High Steward, 1 Ed. 15. 3 Ed. 28. On the Trial of Peers in Criminal Matters, all the Peers who are present in the Conge, in the County of the Peer, are to be duly summoned twenty Days at least before the Trial, to appear and vote at the same; every Peer is at Liberty to take the Oath required by the Act 1 W. & M. c. 3. The Peer being indicted for the Treason or Felony, before Commissioners of Oyer and Terminer, or in the King's Bench, if the Treason or Crime is committed in the Country of Medullion; then the King by Commission under the Great Seal, constitutes some Peer (generally the Lord Chancellor) Lord High Steward, who is Judge in such Cases; and the Commission commands the Peers of the Realm to be attendant on him, also the Lieutenant of the Tower, with the Princes, etc. A Certificate is awarded out of the Chancery, to remove the Indictment before the Lord High Steward: And another Writ issues for the Bringing of the Prisoner; and the Lord Steward makes his Precepts for that Purpose, assigning a Day and Place, as in Westminster Hall included with Scaffold, &c. and for summoning the Peers, which are to be Twelve and above at least present: At the Day, the Lord High Steward takes Place at Westminster, with a Clerk of State; his Commission is read by the Clerk of the Crown, and he has a White Rod delivered him by the Usher, which being return'd, the Proclamation is made, and Command given for Certifying of Indictments, &c. and the Lieutenant of the Tower to return his Writ, and bring the Prisoner to the Bar; after that, the Steward as Attorney returns his Precept with Names of the Peers summoned, and they are called over, and answering to their Names are recorded, when the Treason or Crime is committed in the Realm thus adjourned, the High Steward declares to the Prisoner at the Bar, the Cæsura of their Assembling, affirms him of Justice, and encourages him to answer without Fear; then the Clerk of the Crown reads the Indictment, and arraigns the Prisoner, and the High Steward gives his Charge to the Peer; this being over, the Lord Steward produces their Evidence for the King; and if the Prisoner hath any Matter of Law to plead, he shall be assigned Counsel; but if he pleads Not guilty, and has nothing to add, the Place is given to the Bar, for the Court are instead of it; after all the Evidence given for the King, and the Prisoner's Answer heard, the Prisoner is withdrawn from the Bar, and the Lords that are Judges go to some Place to consider of their Evidence: But the Lords can admit no Evidence, but in the Hearing of the Prisoner; they cannot have Conference with the Judges (who attend on the Lord High Steward, and are not to deliver their Opinions before hand) but in the Prisoner's Hearing; nor can they fend for the Opinion of the Judges, but in the Court; and the Lord Steward cannot collect the Evidence, Evidence, or confer with the Lords, but in the Presence of the Prisoner; who is at first to require Justice of the Lords, and that no Question or Conferences be had but in his Presence: Nothing is done in the Absence of the Prisoner, until the Lords come to agree on their Verdict; and then they are to be judicious as Juries until they are agreed, when they come again into Court and take their Places; and the Lord High Steward, publicly in open Court, demands of the Lords, beginning with the Worthy Lord, whether the Prisoner, calling him by his Name, be guilty of the treason, &c. whereof he is arraigned, who all give in their Verdict, and he being found Guilty by a Majority of Votes more than Twelve, is brought to the Bar again, and the Lord Steward acquitting the Prisoner with the Verdict of his Peers, passes Sentence and Judgment accordingly: After which, an O Ser is made for disposing of the Commission, and the White Rod is broken by the Lord High Steward; whereupon breaks up this Grand Assembly, which is extenuated the most solemn and architectonic; the King hearing of it, sent down to the House of Commons, &c. The Lord High Steward gives no Vote himself on a Trial by Commission: but only on a Trial by the House of Lords, while the Parliament is fitting: Where a Peer is tried by the House of Lords in full Parliament, the House may be adjourned as often as there is Occasion, and the Evidence taken by Parcels; and it is hitherto adjudged, that where the Trial is by Commission, the Lord Steward, after a Verdict given, may take Time to advise with the Lords; or, in the Office consigns till he has given his Judgment. But the Tiers may not separate upon a Trial by Commission, after the Evidence is given for the King; and it hath been resolved by all the Judges, that the Peers in such Case must continue together till they agree to give a Verdict. State Trials, Vol. 2, fol. 702. fol. 703. fol. 707. 2 Hen. iv. 425. A Peer of the Realm arraigned in Parliament, must be tried by before a Lord Justice, if he appear not, he shall be outlawed; and he cannot waive a Trial by his Peers; for if a Peer on Arraignment before the Lords refuse to put himself upon such Trial, he shall be proceeded against as one who stands mute: But if one who has a Title to Parage, be indicted and arraigned as a Commoner, and plead Not guilty, and put himself upon his Country; it hath been held, that he cannot afterwards suggest that he is a Peer, and pray Trial by his Peers. 3 Inf. 50. Kel. 57. Dalj. 16. It is said a Writ of Error lies in the King's Bench of an Attainder of a Peer before the Lord High Steward. 2 Hen. v. C. 452. If a Peer be attainted of Treason or Felony, he may be brought before the Court of Star Chamber, and determined what being in his State, he has to say why Execution should not be awarded against him? And if he plead any Matter to such Demand, his Plea shall be heard, and Execution ordered by the said Court, upon his being adjudged against him. 1 H. 7. 2d. pl. 15. Br. Cor. 129. Fina. Cor. 49. Likewise the Court of King's Bench may allow a Plea of Indulgence in such Indictment in that Court: But that Court cannot receive his Plea of Not guilty, &c. but only the Lord Steward on an Arraignment before the Lords. 2 Inf. 49. The Sentence against a Peer is made against the same as against a common Subject; though the King forgives all but Beholding, which is a Part of the Treason. But the Lord Steward being attainted of Murder, had Judgment against him to be hanged by the Neck until he was dead, which Sentences were executed: If Execution be not done; the Lord Steward may by Precept command it to be done according to the Judgment. 3 Inf. 57. Trial by Peers is a Practice very ancient: In the Reign of Will. i. called The Common Treason of Ulric of Ulrico, Tragedy of a Peer for conspiring to receive the Donners into England, and depose the Conqueror, was tried by his Peers, and found guilty of the Treason, per Judicium parium: but living in Prison his whole Life, he was beheaded. Inf. 50. The Duke of Suffolk, 28 H. 6. being accused of High Treason by the Commons, put himself upon the King's Grace, and not upon his Peers, and the King alone adjudged him to Banishment: but he fost for the Lord Chancellor, and all the Lords that were in Town to his Palace at Wymington, and also the Duke, and commanded him to quit the Kingdom in their Presence: The Lords nevertheless entered a Preeul to favr the Privilege of their Peers: and this was deemed no legal Banishment, for the King's Judging was that Manner was no Judgment at all: he was extravagantly bid to abdicate himself out of the Realm, and in doing it he was taken on the Sea and slain. The Cate of the Lord Chancellor, Counts, Judges of K. H. 8. was very extraordinary: this Lord was attainted in Parliament, and condemned and executed for High Treason, without being allowed to address to his Father: And several great Persons during this Reign were brought to Trial before Lords Commissioners. Ann. 32 Car. 2. the Lord Stafford was tried for Treason; and after he was condemned by Evidence was given for the King, and the Protector had summons'd up all his Objections to the King's Evidence, he interred upon several Points of Law, and the Court of Star Chamber, 20 July, 1674. 13 Car. 2, upon the question of his Peers, and Masters, handed to the Lords, to determine whether they were not competent Witnesses who swore against him, that they swore for Money: and whether a man could be condemned for Treason by one Witness, there not being two Witnesses to any one Point, &c. But the Points interred upon being overruled, he was found Guilty by a Majority of twenty four Votes; and was executed on Tenor's Day, 9 August, 1674, two Weeks under Banre, Deponent of Dignities, Lords, &c. Perjury. As we have Noblemen of several Ranks; so we have Noble Women, and these may be by Creation, Dicent, or Marriage: And first, King Hen. 8. made Anna Bulls, Marchioness of Pembroke; King James I. created the Lady Comyns, Wife to Sir Wil. Comyns, Baronet of London, at the Life-time of her Husband, without any Addition of Honour to him; and also the fame King made the Lady Finch Village, Baroness of Audley, and afterwards Countess of Winchelsea, to her and the Heirs of her Body: And the late King Geo. 1. made the Lady Schawburngh, Duchess of Kendal. A Woman Noble was not to be married to a commoner, but if he did so, the Degree of Nobility, fell remaneth Noble; but if the be noble by Marriage only, the loseth her Dignity if the marry afterwards a Commoner; though not if the second Husband is noble, and inferior in Dignity to the first Husband: And by the Curtesy of England, Women noble by Marriage always retain their Nobility. 1 H. 7. 50. Mamer. 60. 62. Cae, Or. 3 Eliz. cap 9. And not only in a Court of Record, but in any other lawful Court, as a Court-Barony, or Perjury may be committed,

Man be convicted of Perjury at the Common Law, a Pardon will release the Party to his Testimony, but not in a Conviction on the Statute, for there he must reverse the Judgment before he can be reforled, and Disability is Part of the Judgment. 2 Salk. 513.

than elsewhere. And as an Offence for which the Party may be indicted, either by the Common Law, or upon the Statute 3 Eliz. by which the Punishment is enlarged, but the Nature of the Offence is not altered by that Statute; and in many Causes an Indictment will lie at Common Law, when it will not be upon the Statute; for though a Person may be indicted at Common Law for a false Affidavit taken before a Muster in Chancery, but not on the Statute; because this is not Perjury in a Muster relating to the Proof of what was in a Life. Style 536. Sid.

Perjury than that of Witnesses; but Persons perjurying themselves in their Actions in Chancery, or in the Exchequer, by Affidavit, or Swearing the Face against another, Or. may be punished for the Perjury at the Common Law; which is esteemed the fairest Way to prosecute for Perjury, or Suboration of Perjury.

In an Indictment of Perjury, upon an Anwser in Chancery, it was ruled, That the Complainant in Chancery is no Witness pending the Suit but if the Bill be dismissed he is a Witness. And in this Cause, there being both the Oath of the Prosecutor, and at Common Law may be in an immaterial Thing in an Answer in Chancery; but if one swear falsely to an Interrogatory, in a Thing not material charge-of therein, this is not Perjury, because he who admits the Oath had not Power to admonish it, but in Matters charged in the Interrogatory. Sid.

hath not Authority to do it; or when a Court hath no Authority to hold Plea of the Cause; there Perjury cannot be committed. 3 Salk. 269.

lawful Authority, and any False be made therein, if it be not in a judicial Proceeding, it is not punishable as Perjury by the Common or Statute Law; as where one takes an Oath to the Government, or duly to perform an Office, &c. and breaks it. Read. on Stat. 2 Edw. 1., s. 94. Indictment will not lie at the Seclusions before Judges of Peace, for a Perjury at Common Law; though it will for a Perjury upon the Stat. 5 Eliz. that Statute giving the Judicature Jurisdiction. 1 Salk. 496. It is said a Man may be indicted for Perjury upon a voluntary and extrajudicial Oath; a Man being cited where a Percur rote the Daughter of another, and made Oath before a Justice of the Peace, that he had her Father's Consent, and in this order to get a Licence to marry her; he was indicted and convicted thereupon. 1 Feol. 370. On Indictment for Perjury, for that the Defendant swore at a Trial by Oath, that a Person was on such a Day in London, to be arrested; this was material, as the Iffice to be tried was concerning the Arresting him by the Sheriff, and it was proved that he was in Smootheward at that Time, and the Defendant being found Guilty was fined 20l. Sid. 692. A Person was indicted for Perjury, and convicted of Swearing that he was a Servant in W. when in Truth he was Servant to his Servant, and fined 10l. Allen 79. If any false Oath hath Relation to his Perjury, & there may be Things circumstantial which amount to this Crime, when they send to prevent Discovery of the Truth: To swear to the Credit of a Witness, if it be false, is Perjury. Comber. 46. Perjury in Witness, if it is not of Consequence in the Decision of the Cause, though it is a false Oath, it is not to be punished as Perjury: But if a false Oath be given by a Man attended with Circumstances, which make them Reasons of his Remembrance of a Thing, to strengthen the Substantiial Part of his Evidence, by this Means the Jury may be induced to the Giving of a Verdict, and he may be guilty of Perjury. 3 Inst. 167. 1 Ealf. Answr’d, That it was, where the Truth of it was, that it was paid only for one of them by Agreement; such Witness ought not to be punished for Perjury; for as the Case was, it was no Way material whether it was paid for one or both. 2 Ral. Rep. 41. To make an Offence of Perjury, it must be wilful and deliberate, and not committed through Surprise, Inadvertency, or Mistake of the Question; and the Deposition is to be direct and absolute, not as the Percur swearing thinks or believes, 2 Edw. 1., s. 167, 265. Nothing which the Party offers upon his Belief is admissible for Perjury. Sid. 498. It must be false, in excess of Words or Intention, to make it Perjury: For Falldom in Intention may be punished by the Common Law, though the Words be true: And if one knows not what he swears, it is a false Oath in him, so that one may swear the Truth, and yet be perjur’d, as where the Plaintiff in an Action sued two Men to swear the Value of his Goods, who never saw or knew them, although that which they swore was true, yet because they knew it not, it was a false Oath in them, for which the Procurer and the Witnesses were fined in that Case in the Chamber. 3 Inst. 166. 2 Ral. Rep. 77. But here it’s held, a Man ought not to be drawn into a confunding Perjury. 2 Salk. 414. Perjury may not be in a private Matter, howsoever wilfully to the Oath may be Upon this Ground it hath been helden, that a false Oath taken by one upon the Making of a Bargain, that the Thing sold is his own, is not Perjury. 1 Haw. 173. An Indictment for Perjury may be preferred against one for taking a false Oath rashly, and for want of Consideration, in a Court of Record; and he may be convicted and fined thereupon, but the Fine shall be more moderate than where committed out of Malice. The Words Wilfully and Carelessly must be intended in the Prosecution upon the Statute; and an Indictment was held ill, because it did not allege that the Defendant voluntarily swore, 2 Edw. 1., s. 166. 1 Cr. 147. Perjury or Subornation of Perjury, in Proceedings on an Indictment, is not within the Statute, which mentions only Lands and Goods; and under the Statute, 5 Lev. 230. 2 Law. 211. And if a Person procure another to take a false Oath amounting to Perjury, he does not take it, though the Person who implicated him is not guilty of Subornation, yet he may be punished by Fine. Read. Stat. 4 Vol. 356. Whereas a Plaintiff loses his Action by a false and perjured Witness produced on the Part of the Defendant, it is said he cannot have an Action against that Witness, till he is indicted and convicted; unless it is such a Perjury, or in such a Court, that an Indictment would not lie for it. Sid. 90. 3 Salk. 390. On Motion to amend an Information for Perjury, it was granted, giving Notice to the Defendant what they would amend; and he flew Cuse why they should not take it. 4 Inst. 170. An Acquittal upon an Indictment of Perjury is no Plira to a good one, and the Party may be indicted de novo; but an Acquittal upon a good One is peremptory. Med. Ca. 167. A Person was found guilty in an Information for Perjury, and upon several Affidavits the Court was moved for a new Trial; though it was denied, except the King’s Council would consent, notwithstanding it appeared to the Court that there was Cause for a new Trial. Sid. 49. Sir John Tacklorn being acquitted of a great Debt, by the Perjury of Remouch and Holz, it was ordered, that the Perjury, and the Trial being appointed, the Witnesses who could prove they were arrested and committed, so that they could not be present at the Trial; and this being done by the Contrasence of Sir John, he was found guilty of the Misdemeanor on an Information, and fined 1000 Marks, and committed for a Month: But the Court would not grant a new Trial to Perjury. Sid. 140, 155. An Indictment for Perjury will not be quashed for any Insufficiency until the Marius are tried, and ‘tis Time enough to move to quash it after a Verdict; and no Cursorem shall he had to remove an Indictment for Perjury or Forfery; for when they are removed, they are seldom proceed on. Sid. 34. 2 Ral. Abbr. 972. Indictment at Common Law is to be brought where a Witness for the King swears falsely; or he may be punished by Information: And the Offence of Perjury, if prosecuted by Indictment, it will be local; but if otherwise on Information. 3 Inst. 164. 1 Vent. 182. Person guilty of Perjury, by a late Statue, shall, over and beside the Punishment already inflicted by Law, be sent to the Tower for One Year; and upon for a Time to be on Cartership for Seven Years, or may be transported to the Plantations for seven Years in like Manner as Felons, 2 Gen. 2, c. 35.

Allo the Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports may make Pilot, by Ignorance or Neglect, shall occasion the Loss of a Ship, he is to pay 100 Livres Fine, and be for ever deprived of the Exercise of Piloting; and if he do it deliberately, he shall be punished with Death. Lex Mercat. 70, 71. The Laws of Olera ordain, That if any Pilot shall deliberately misguide a Ship, that he may be sane, he shall be put to a rigorous and unmerciful Death, with his Goods Chased. And if the Lord of the Place where a Ship shall be thus lost, shall abet such Villains in Order to

25. And by the Laws of Olera, if the Fault of a Pilot, he so notorious, that the Ship's Crew in the apparent Wreck, they may lead him to the Harshes, and drive off his Head; but the Common Law denies this basty Execution; An Ignorant Pilot is le-tended to pass thee, under the Ship's Keel, by the Laws of Denmark. Lex Mercat. 70. Masters of Ships shall not oblige Pilots to pass through dangrous Places, or to steer Courses against their Will; but if there be a Difference in Option, the Master may in such Case be governed by the Advice of the most expert Mariners. Ibid. Before the Ship arrives Pirates, (Pirate.) Are common Sea Robbers, with-no Superior or over Power to bind and depend on Pillage and Depredations at Sea: But there are Influences wherein the Word Pirate has been freely taken for a Sea Captain, as a Nay. Pirate means is not communicable to such, neither are they capable of enjoying that Privilege, which lawful Nen-cies are entitled to in the Captions of another.

And if a Pirate shall attack a Merchant Ship at Anchor there, this is not Piracy, because it is not done upon the High Sea, but it is a Robbery, at the Common Law, the Aft being in corpora Maius. And if the Crime be committed either upon or in great Rivers within the Realm, which are looked upon as common Highways, there it is Piracy.

It has been held, that Piracy being an Offence by the Civil Law only, that it shall be included in a State of speaking generally of felonies, as to Benefit of Clergy, which shall be confined only of those Felonies which are such by our Law as are those Piracies which are committed in a Port or Creek, within the Body of a County. If a Ship be riding at Anchor at Sea, and the Mariners Part in their Ship, and the Roll on Shore, so that necessary left in the Ship; and a Pirate shall attack her, and commit a Robbery, the name is Piracy. And where a Pirate assaults a Ship, and takes men at sea, they are liable by the Law, in order to the Selling them for Slaves; this is Piracy. But the Taking by a Ship at Sea, in great Necessity, of Vintners, Cables, Ropes, &c. out of another Ship, is no Piracy; if that other Ship can spare them, and paying as giving Security therefore.

A Pirate takes Goods upon the Sea, and sells them, the Property is not thereby altered, no more than if a Thief upon land, and had and sold them.

Yet by the Laws of England. If a Man commits a Piracy upon the Subjects of any other Prince, and brings the Goods into England and sells them in a Market, the name shall be binding and the Owners be concluded.

When Goods are taken by a Pirate, and afterwards the Ship is conquered and taken by the other, by the Law the Admiral may make Restitution of the Goods to the Owners; there are fellow Subjects of the Captor's, or belong to any State in Amity with his Sovereign, on paying the Costs and Charges, and making the Captor an equitable Compensation for the service. And if a Pirate at Sea assails a Ship, and in the Engagement kills a Person in the other Ship, by the Common Law all the Persons on board the Pirate Ship are Principals in the Murder, although none enter the other Ship; but by the Law, they who gave the Wound only shall be Principals, and the Rest Accessories, if the Parties can be known.

There is, however, that there cannot be an Accusation of Piracy, by the Law of this Realm; but if it happens, that there is an Accusation from the Sea, such Accusation may be punished by the Civil Law, before the Lord Admiral: And it was made a Doubt, whether one, who was an Accusatory on land, was liable to be tried by the Admiral, within the Parvus of 28 Oct.

Though this is settled by 12 & 13 W. 3, which provides that Accusatories to Piracy, before or after, shall be impleaded and arraigned according to the 1st Statute.

In Cafe the Subjects of a Prince in Enemy with the Crown of England, enter the Sea and Sailing against the English Nation, and a Robbery is committed by those who are after-wards taken; it is Felony in the English, but not in the Strangers: But in ancient Times it was Petit Treason in the English, and Felony in the Strangers.

And if any Englishmen, or others, do commit a Piracy upon the Subjects of any Prince or State in Amity with the Crown of England, they are within the Stat. 28 & 29.

If the Subjects of any Nation or Kingdom in Amity with England, shall commit a Piracy on the Ships or Goods of the English, the name is Felony, and punishable by this Statute: And Piracy committed by the Subjects of France, or of any other Country in Friendship with us, upon the British Seas, is properly punishable by the Crown of England only.

A Piracy is attempted on the High Seas, if the Pirates are overourse, the Takers may immediately inflict a Punishment, by hanging them up at the Main-yard End; though this is under- where no legal Judgment may be obtained. And hence it is, that if a Ship shall be on a Voyage to any Part of America, or the Plantations there, on a Discovery of those Parts; and in her Way she is attacked by a Pirate, but in the Attempt the Pirates is overcome; the Pirates may be forthwith executed, without any Solennity of Condemnation, by the Maritime Law.

By the Administration of Justice to the Seamen, all Robberies and Felonies committed by Pirates at Sea, &c. shall be enquired of, heard and determined in any County of England, by the King's Commissions, if any such Offences had been committed in this Kingdom; and such Commission shall be directed to the Lord Admiral, &c. and three or four other Persons, as shall be named by the Lord Chancellor, who shall hear and determine such Offences after the common Course of the Laws of the Kingdom used for Felonies and Robberies, &c. and award Judgment and Execution against Perjury inflicted on the Statute, as against Felons for any Felony done upon the Land; and the Offenders shall suffer such Pains of Death, Loss of Lands and Goods, as if they had been Attainted of such Offenders committed on Land, &c.

This Statute doth not alter the Offence of Piracy, but leaves it as it was before, viz.

Prelacy only by the Civil Law; but given a Trial according to the Common Law, and inflicts Pains of Death, &c. as if the Offenders had been convicted of any Felony done upon the Land.

If the Blood is not shed in execution of this Statute, the name of Felony may be used in the Criminal Register of the Seamen, and the Name of Piracy, &c. as if the Offenders had been convicted of a Felony at Common Law; but says not, that the Blood shall be required.

Likewile the Officer is to be tried on the Statute, to forfeit his Lands, &c. if he is not authorized by the Maritime Law.

Piracies, Felonies and Robberies committed in or upon the Sea, or in any Harbor, where the Admiral hath Jurisdiction, may be tried at Sea or upon the Land, in any of his Majesty's Han-and Plantations, &c. abroad, appointed for that Purpose, by Commission, under his Seal, or Seal of the Admiralty, directed to such Commissioners as the King shall think fit; that they may commit the Offenders, and call a Court of Admiral-ity, consisting of seven Persons at least; or for Want of seven, any three of the Commissioners may call others; and the Persons so assembled may proceed according to the Course of the Admiral, paid for Maintenance of Death, and order Execution of the Criminals, &c.

And Commissions for Trial of the said Offences within the Jurisdiction of the Cinque Ports, shall be directed to the Wardens of the said Cinque Ports, and the Trial to be by the Inhabitants of the same Ports. And by the said Statute 11 & 12 W. 3. if any natural born Subject of England, or person in the Seas, shall commit Piracy against any of his Majesty's Sub-which the Aisbon is framed, or it is but a Diversce, and not a Plea. A General Plea is drawn on a little Piece of Two-penny flamy Paper, without Coun-tel's Hand, only the Defendant's Attorney's Name is written in it; to signify to the Plaintiff's Attorney for entering it: Special Pleas are drawn up in Form, setting forth the Matter pleaded, &c. and must be filed by Counsel, or they will not be received: A Foreign Plea is to be ingrilled in Parchment, and signed by Counsel, and be put in upon the Oath of the Defendant, that the Plea is true. Prac. Attors. Ed. 1. pag. 80. And when a Defendant hath pleaded, the Plaintiff answers the Defendant's Plea, which is called a Replication; and the Defendant answer's the Plaintiff's Replication, by a Rejoinder; which the Plaintiff may answer by a Sur-rejoinder; and sometimes, though seldom, Pleadings come to Rebuttal, in answer to the Sur-rejoinder; and Sur-rejoinder. 6 b. r. 51. In good Order of Pleading, a Person ought to plead, 8th, To the Jurisdiction of the Court, 28th, To the Perfor of the Plaintiff, and next of the Defendant. 39th, To the Wir. 47th, To the Acton of the Court, 48th, To the Con- stitution of the Court. 50th, To the Plea itself in Bar thereof: A Plea to the Jurisdiction is a foreign Plea, because it alleges that the Matter ought to be tried in another Court, &c. Pleas to the Perfor have been formerly 8th, 9th. Villenge, Outlawry, Excommunication, the Party an Alien, out of Protection, and professed in Religion; but the bill is now no Plea. The Plea to the Wir. &c. is for Variance between the Wir and Record, Death of Parties, Mifnomer, Jointenancy, &c. and may be to the Wir and Bill, or Court together. The Cow of a Plea to the Court or the Wir, are Variance between the Wir and the Court, Specially or Record, Incurtancy, &c. and all these are properly Pleas in Abatement. Plea to the Action of the Wir is where one pleads such Matter which sheweth the Plaintiff had no Cause to have the Wir brought. And a Plea in Bar to the Act both itself, is where the Defendant pleads a Plea, which is sufficient to overthrow the Aisbon of the Plaintiff. Kitch. 95. Lit. 95. Pleas in Bar, such as a Release, the Statute of Limitations, Agreement with Satisfaction, &c. destroys the Plaintiff's Action for ever: But Pleas in Abatement are temporary and dilatory, and do not destroy the Action, only stop the Wir for a while, till the Defect is removed; as where there is some Fault in the Wir or Declaration, Mifnomer of the Defendant, where the Plaintiff is excommunicate. &c. A Plea to the Jurisdiction, of Mifnomer, of any other Plea in Abatement, cannot be pleaded after an Imparsion: though a Plea in Bar may, because that goes to destroy the Action. 2 Web. 457. Pleas in Bar may come after a Conttinuance, or general Imparsion: but if such Plea be first pleaded, the Defendant shall not be admitted afterwards to plead in Abatement of the Wir, which is allowed to be good by Pleading in Bar to the Action: Yet Matter of Record may be flown in Arrest of Judgment, and thereby the Wir be absed. Hoo. 280, 281. By Imparsion a Wir or Bill is admisted to be good, so that after it is Abatement ought not to be received; but if it be accepted, and the Plaintiff doch demur to it, the Demurrer is good: A Demurror hath pleaded in Abatement, and before he pleads directly in Bar, he may demur to the Declaration of the Plaintiff; as he may where he is advised that the Declaration is insufficient, &c. Prac. Act. 175. 516. It has been weighed, 'That where a Plea is in Abatement, if it be of Necessity that the Defendant must discole Matter of Bar, he shall have his Erection to take it either by Way of Plea, a Med. &c. May the Defendant have no Advantage by Pleading in Abatement, or by Demurring in Law, he may afterwards plead in Bar, and before he pleads any Special Matter in Bar, he may plead in general, &c. A Release or Defeasance; Acceptance of other Things; Tender of Amend; Concord or Accord; Abstemmation; Productions both in Fact or Law, &c. For a Special Limit-tation of Actions; Difficult of the Plaintiff; Priveral Matters pleadsable in Abatement, may be pleaded in Bar. Prac. Ators. Ed. 83. Alfo he may plead another Action depending of the fame Nature, for the fame Thing, &c. and if a Person mitaking his fir Plea, bring another Action without determining the first, then Plea may be pleaded. 5 Salk. 592. There is likewise a Plea Pat. Harris Conccmmance, where the Defence has pleased, &c. and in a Trial there happens some new Matter, which will avoid the Action: It may be pleaded after Issue joined, at any Time before the Verdict; but after Verdict, and before Day in Bank, there is no Day to plead it; so that the Remedy is by Addic Quareli. Co.

T. Fac. 454. A Defendant in any Suit, &c. with Leave, may plead several Matters; but if any of which is insufficient, all the rest shall be given: And no dilatory Plea shall be allowed in any Court of Record, unless the Truth of it be proved by Affidavit of some Probable Matter; and as it is thrown. 4 & 5 Ann. cap. 16. When a Declaration, or Bar, are defective in Circumstances of Time, Place, &c. this may be helped by the Pleading of the adverde Party to it; but not to be thrown out. &c. Prac. Act. 211. 1 Dow. Abt. 116. If the Defendent plead a dilatory and frivolous Plea, to hinder the Plaintiff from going to Trial; the Court, on Motion, will order the Defendant to plead forth a Plea as he shall think fit, or to accept of a Demurrer to his dilatory Plea, on Arguing whereof, if the Plea be not good, the Court will not after permit him to amend it; and when a dilatory Plea in Abatement is over ruled, there shall be a Rejoindur Oyer, except an Issue be joined on it. 6 Mod. 102. And if Plea in Bar of the Plaintiff's Pleading be ruled, judgment shall be given against the Defendant. Lino. 42. Where it is doubtful between the Parties, whether a Plea be good or not, it cannot be determined by the Court on Motion, but there ought to be a Demurrer upon the Plea; and on Arguing thereof, the Court shall judge of the Plea whether good or bad: And no Advantage can be had of double Pleading, without special Demurrer. 2 Lit. Abt. 510. Lino. 422. But though the Court is to judge of Pleadings, they will not direct any Person how to plead, notwithstanding the Master be the Plaintiff, nor will they be directed as to their Peril, and Counsel are to advise, &c. If the Plaintiff's Attorney will contest, the Defendant may plead in general, without moving the Court; but if he will not contest, it cannot be done without moving the Court. Trin. 16 c. A Defendant may waive his Special Plea, and plead the general Plea, if there be no Joiner in Demurrer. 3 Salk. The Defendant, before Joiner in Demur-mer, may amend his Plea; and to after Joiner in Demurrer, before argres: And where a Defendant has demurred, and the Plaintiff joined; the Court will oftentimes allow him to withdraw his Demurrer, and plead to the Action, if the Plaintiff hath not been put by a Term. &c. A Demurrer had Leave to plead de novo in four Days, within which Time he ought to have pleaded in Chief; but instead of that he pleaded an Oultlawry of the Plaintiff. &c. and the Plaintiff the Prophet: &c. 510. The page contains a mixture of Latin and English text, discussing legal matters. The first paragraph deals with the concept of pleading, the role of the plaintiff, and the necessity of providing a good faith effort. It mentions that the plaintiff must ensure that the case is brought to court properly, citing several legal references to support this point. The second paragraph discusses the necessity of obtaining a judgment in court, emphasizing the importance of a proper legal process. The text reflects a historical legal context, with references to specific legal terms and statutes.
to illise, or there be a Demurrer, the Pleas are to be given to the Clerk of the Paper, who gives Rule for the Defendant to repine, &c. Special Pleas are left till the Clerk of the Paper, and the Plaintiff's Attorney is to take a Copy thereof from him, for which he pays 6 d. per Sheet, and put in his Replication; and then he carries the Declaration to him, who will make up the Paper-Book, and write a Rule on the Side: This Paper-Book is to be delivered to the Defendant's Attorney, and he must pay for every Piece of his Copy, and 10 d. a Folio for his Pleadings, &c. And if the Defendant doth not receive the Paper-Book, and return it to the Attorney for the Plaintiff, on his calling for it, it to be entered in four Days; then a New Process may be entered for Want of a Plea. See 6 Med. 21.

Comr. 253. All Pleas are to be in English, and not in Latin, by the late Statute: That Each Plea is to have its proper Conclusion; and regularly all Pleas that are affirmative conclude, And this be his Plea to verify, &c. A Plea in Abatement begins, That the Defendant ought not to answer to the Bill, &c. and concludes to the Declaration thus: Whereupon he pleads Judgment of the Bill, or Declaration afterpaid; and that the Bill be quashed, &c. In a Plea in Bar, the Defendant in the Beginning says, That the Plaintiff ought not to have or maintain his Action against him, and concludes to the Action, &c. Plurality, (Pluralitas) Signifies the Plural Number; mostly applied to such Clergymen who have more Benefices than one: And Solos mentions Priories and Quadratides, where one Parson hath three or four Livings. Solos, Tit. Hem 687. Plurality of Livings is, where the same Person retains two or more Spiritual Preferments, with Cure of Souls in which Case the gift is void 156 facts, and the Patron may prefer it, if the Clerk be not qualified by Dispen- sation, &c. for the Law volds Residency, and it is impossible that the same Person can reside in two Places at the same Time. Common Pars. Caumen 94. By the Common Law, no Ecclesiastical Person can hold two Benefices with Cure simul et simul, but that upon taking the second Benefice, the First is void: But the Pope by Uteration did dispense with that Law; and at first every Bishop had Power to grant Dipsensions for Pluralitas, till it was abrogated by a General Council, held Amy 1573, and this Conjunction was removed till the Statute 2 & H. 8. c. 15. Mon Arch. 2. Nosl. Arch 1721. The Stat. 21 H. 8. c. 15. ordains, that if any Parson having one Benefice with Cure, of the Yearty Value of 8 l. or above, in the King's Books, accepts of another Benefice with Cure, and is instituted and invested, then the first shall be void: So that there may be a Plurality within the Statute; and a Plurality by the Charters, 1526. The Power of granting Dipsensions to hold two Benefices with Cure, &c. is vested in the King by the aforesaid Statute: And it is not to be negatived, as it is necessary to consid- er for a Plurality, where the King pretends a Chaplain to a second Benefice; for such a Pretend-

The Poor out Law takes Notice of, are of three Kinds, 1st, Poor by Dependency and Debt, as the Aged of Decrepit, Fatherless and Helpless, Poor under Sicknes, and Persons that are Idols, Lunatics, Lame, Blind, &c. theie the Overseers of the Poor are to provide for, and be supported by the Parish; such as Housholders doan't lay nor rest by Fire, Water, Robbery, &c. or by Loss in Trade; Poor Persons overcharged with Children. Labours that are disabled, and the having Ability, are to be fed to work, but if not able to work, they are to be relieved with Money. 3dly, Poor by Prodigality and Debtorship, also called Stealer of Poor, as idle lyonous Persons, Pirliters, Vagabonds, Strumpets, &c. which are to be sent to the House of Correction, and be put to hard Labour, to maintain themselves; or Work is to be provided for them. 4thly, Poor are those who have a free Butler, and if they become impotent by Sicknesse, or if their Work will not maintain them, there must be an Allowance by the Overseers of the Poor for their Support. Duid. 32, Eliz. c. 53. Before the Reign of Queen Elizabith we had no such Thing as settled Laws for the Relief of the Poor; for as History tells us, our Abb. Bie, and Monasteries, stilled with the Benevolence and ancient Hospitality of Lords of Manors, till the Time of the Reformation, were a sufficient Provision for the Poor of this Kingdom: But I find, by the 3d. Eliz. c. 32 to 35. c. 7. Relief was to be of the kind that could not Labour: The 2 H. 8. c. 1. ordain'd, that Hospitols founded for impotants Poor, were to be visited, and by 23 H. 8. c. 25. Governers were to grant Poor's Tickets, that they might be kept aged Poor and impotent Persons; and compe those that were able, to work and go to Service: And then in the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, several particular Laws were enacted for the Relief of the Poor, appointing Collectors and Overseers, &c. For by the 5 Eliz. c. 3. Relief of Parishes is to be gathered by Collectors, and weekly distributed to the Poor; and none shall be permitted to beg openly, &c. And the 43 Eliz. c. 2. enacts, That the Churchwardens of every Parish, and two or three House-keepers, shall be nominated yearly in Every Week, or within one Month after, by Two or more Judges of the Peace of the County, dwelling near the Parish under their Hands and Seals to be Overseers of the Poor; and they with the Consent of Two such Judges, shall set to work the Children of these Persons who are not able to maintain them, and all Persons who have Lands and Houses, to maintain themselves, or use none.

Trade to get their Living, and shall raise weekly, or otherwise, by a Tax, on every Inhabitant and Occupier of Lands, &c. such a Sum as they shall think fit in the Year, viz. Twelve Shillings for Ten, Eighteen Shillings for Twenty, Twenty-four Shillings for Thirty, Thirty-six Shillings for Forty, and so on, in every yeare, to be given by each Judge, to the Head Officer of the Corporation, and another to two Judges of Peace as aforesaid. And where in any Place or Town shall be yearly tenned, every Judge of the Division where such Duit shal happen, and every Mayor and Head Officer of a Corporation, &c. shall forfeit 5 to the Use of the Churchwardens and Overseers, by the Quarter-Sections. The 3 Car. 1. c. 4. ordains, That the Church wardens and Overseers of the Poor, mentioned mentioned in the 43 Edw. may, with the Consent of two or more Justices of Peace, or of one Justice where there shall be no more, set up any Trade or Occupation for Implying or better Relief of the Poor of the 14 Edw. c. 2. by 3 or 4 Perons coming to settle in a Parish, and renting a Tenement under the Value of 10s. a Year, on Complaint by the Church-wardens and Overseers of the Poor of the 15 Edw. which Certificate shall oblige the said Parish of Place to receive and provide for them and their Families, whenever they become chargeable to, or ask Relief of the Parish to which they remove and the Certificate is given and then, and no Parish shall receive any Persons and their Children, (though born in that Parish, not having acquired a legal Settlement) shall be removed back to, and settled in the Parish from whence such Certificate was brought: Poor receiving Relief of any Parish, upon the Shoulder of the right Sleeve of their Coats, are to wear a Badge or Mark, with a large Letter of the Name of the Parish wherein they are Inhabitants, cut either in Red or Blue Cloth; and such Poor neglecting or refusing to wear such Badge, any Justice of Peace may punish them, by ordering their Allowance to be abridged or withdrawn, or committing them to the House of Correction, there to be whip'd and kept to hard Labour; and if any Church-warden or Overseer shall receive any Poor not wearing a Badge, he shall forfeit 20s. one Half to the Informer, and the other to the Poor. By 37 Edw. c. 2. 11 a Parson coming into any Parish by a licence to settle, shall gain a legal Settlement there, unless he goes first to take a Licence or Tenement of 10s. per Annun, or execute some Annual Office in such Parish. And that 15 & 16 Edw. makes the 15 & 14 Edw. 2. perpetual, (excepting what concerns Corporations) declares, that no Apprentice or hired Servant to Persons coming into a Parish by a Certificate or Settlement of their own Settlement in such Parish, except the Master be afterwards legally settled. The Stat. 2 Ann. c. 6. impairs Juries of Peace, and Church-wardens and Overseers, with Concerning two just Men, to place out poor Boys, of Parents chargeable to the Parish, Apprentice to the Sea Service, and the Church-wardens and Overseers, to pay the Master with a Boy 21 Edw. 100s. for Cloathing and Bedding, which shall be allowed in their Accounts; and these Apprentices are to be conveyed to the respective Ports to their Masters by the Overseers, and the Children born as is provided for Vagrants; and the Indenture to be sent to the Collectors of the Customs of such Ports, Cts. The 38 Edw. c. 6. provides, that Church-warden and Overseers of each Year, such Persons as any Wife or Children are left upon the Parish, by Persons who have Eaten, Cts. which might keep them, by Warrant from two Justices of Peace, may seize to much of the Goods and Chattels, and receive so much of the Rest of the Husband or Father, as the Justice shall order for the Keeping of such Wife or Children, which Order of the Justices is to be confirmed at the next Quarter Sessions, and then the Goods and Chattels may be disposed of; and the Overseers, Cts. shall be accountable to the Sessions. And the Stat. 6 Wm. 1. c. 7. enacts, that no Justice of Peace shall order Relief to any poor Person till Oath be made of scannable Caufe, and that such Person had been refused Relief by the Overseers of the Poor of his Parish, Cts. and until the Justice had summoned the Overseers to throw Cause why Relief Should not be given; and Persons to whom any Justice shall order Relief shall be registered in the Parish Books as other Poor, and the Church-wardens and Overseers are not to bring to the Parish Book any Money given to Poor, (unless they are indisposed and included in the Book) that are not registered or registered. Poor, on Pain of 2s. Penalty, to be levied by Dillets and Sale, by Warrant from two Justices, and for Want of Dillets to be committed to Goal for forty Days; but Persons approved may appeal to the next Quarter Sessions of the County, Cts. And there shall be kept in every Parish a Book, wherein the Names of all Persons that receive Relief shall be registered, and the Overseers, and the Parishioners are to meet at a Specialle yearly in Easter Week, or other time, when the Book shall be examined, by calling over the Persons, and inquiring into the Reasons of their taking Relief, and then a new List shall be made of such Persons as they think fit to allow and receive Collections; and no other Persons shall receive Collection, unless by Authority under the Hand of one Justice, or by Order under the Authority of the Overseers. Statute 8 & 9 Wm. 3. c. 50. gives Leave to poor Persons to remove to other Parishes for Work and the better Maintenance of their Families, by Complaint from the Church-wardens and Overseers of the Poor, under Hand and Seal, attested by two Witnesses, and allowed and subscribed by two Justices of Peace, owning and acknowledging them to be Parishioners lawfully elected at the Place from whence they came;
the Benefit of their Work for their better Maintenance, and to prevent Persons refus'd to be so lodged and kept, shall be struck out of the Parth-Books, and not be intituled to any Collation; and where any Parth, &c. shall be too far from to purchase or hire Hood, though in the Present Parth, with Content with, and upon the Sign of Justice, in manner and Form of Approval of a Justice of Peace, may unite in doing thereof; and the Poor may be also lodged and maintained in other Parishes by Churchwardens and Overseers, on Pay. But no poor Person, or their Apprentices, or Children, shall gain a Settlement in such Parishes: No Person shall be deemed to have acquised a Settlement in any Parish, by Virtue of any Purchase of an Estate under 50s. Value, for any longer Time than such Person shall inhabit in the Estate purchased; and Persons taxed or aforesaid on the Scavenger's Rate, or to the Highways, and who shall pay such Rates, shall not thereby gain any legal Settlement in a Parish: And in Case of Appeals from Orders for Removal of Poor, none shall be confirmed upon in the Querent Parishes, unless reanonable Notice be given; and if the Julicess determine in Favour of the Appellant, he shall be allowed the Expenses incurred in Relief of the poor Person, before Time of the Removal and Determination of the Appeal, to be recovered by Dittreis, &c., by Order of the Julicess, as Costs and Charges, by Edict. The Witness, to Certificates of knowing any poor Persons to be legally settled in a Parish, are to make Proof on Oath of the Exe-allow of the same; and then the Council shall be allowed and taken as Evidence in all Courts, &c.

And when Overseers of the Poor of any Parish do remove back any Certificate Persons, becoming chargeable to the Parish to which they were settled, they shall be reimbursed the Charges in maintaining and removing such Persons, being aforesaid by a Julicess of Peace, by the Overseers of the Poor of the Parish, to which removal, leviable by Dittreis and Salt of Goods, &c. Stat. 3 Geo. 2 c. 29. See 6 Geo. 2 c. 31. Every Parish is to keep their own Poor, by the Dall. 73. The Overseers may Licence poor Persons to be settled in Alms in their own Parishes; and if any Inhabitants relieve Poor at their Doors, not being of their own Parishes, and having such a Licence, they shall forfeit 10l. Dall. 157. And in present Emergencies, Overseers are to provide for Poor, and it is Discretionary to give them Money, or Viscuits, &c. Style 246. 1 Keb. 366. If Julicess of Peace in Sessions, &c., make Orders for Maintenance of Persons who are not imposters, but able to work, or having any Thing to live upon; those Orders are against Law. Dall. 166. A Father has been ordered to make an Allowance to his Son's Wife; while his Son was beyond Sea; And if the Father of Children leaves the Parish, and there is a Grandfather to be found; this Grandfather, if he be of Ability, is chargeable with keeping the Children, and not the Parish. 2 Bull. 2 Litt. 333. A Father in Law, or a Grandfather in Law, married to the Mother or Grandmother of Children, of Ability to keep them, is within the Stat. 34 Eliz. Style 284. A Husband marrying a Grandmother, having an Estate with her sufficent, shall be chargeable to the Relief and Maintenance of the Grandchild, during the Life of the Grandmother; but after her Death he is under no Obligation to do it: And where a Grandmother is unable to relieve her Grandchildren, and marries with a Man of Ability, he is not to be charged to maintain his Wife's Grandchildren; also if the Husband, after Marriage, becomes to be of Ability, the Grandmother, at the Time of the Marriage, having no thing, he shall not be bound to keep the Children.

2 Bull. 345. A Person was ordered by a Julicess in Sessions to pay so much a Week towards the Support and Maintenance of his Father, till that Court should order the contrary; and it was held good; and it an Estate of 30l. would be given to that Father, the Justice might be applied to: Otherwise if a Time was limited. 2 Salk. 534. Rates and Assesments for providing for and relieving of the Poor of Parishes, made by the Overseers of the Poor, are usually ap-the Relief of the Poor. 2 Keb. 251. Persons are to be taxed according to the twin Estate they have in the Parish; and this Tax may be on lands or Goods; and when charged on Goods, they are rated according to the usual Value of Lands, one 100l. Stock of Goods, or Goods pretend to have in his Occupation, and a Stock of Goods and Wares beside, as a Tradesman, Draper, Grocer, &c., may be taxed for both; but not for such Stock or Goods with which he is able to maintain his Lands, nor for the Profits of Lands for which he cannot has been already taxed as Occupier, though for other Stock.

3 Keb. 287. 2 and 3 Will. 4, c. 2. A Farmer or Occupier is to be charged to the Poor's Rate, and not the Landlord, who shall not be taxed for his Rent, for then the Land would pay twice; though if he be put under the Rate of the Parish, he shall be taxed for that: And for Personal Estate, the Party must be charged only in that Place where the Goods are at the Time of the Assesment; if he hath any other Goods in the Parish, the same Goods, and not the Goods he is in afflicted, to the Value he is charged, and is disfrain-Med. Co. 241. The most reasonable and the common Way of taxing Lands for Relief of the Poor is by a Pound Rate; and if the Overseers make an unequal Rate, they may be indicted and for it. 1 Keb. 173. Churchwardens and Overseers of the Poor of a Parish, made a Rate for the Relief of the Poor, which was confirmed by two Juliess of Peace; but all was rated upon the Real Estate, and none on the Personal, and therefore upon Appeal to the Sessions the Rate was quashed, and the Overseers, &c. ordered to make a new Rate upon the Real and Personal Estates; which they afterwards did, but with a very great Inequi-utility on the Real Estates, whereupon several Persons appeal'd again, and this Rate was likewise vacated.

In B. R. it was oblish'd, that the Sessions had no Power to vacate whole Rates; but adjudged that they may quash whole Rates, and refer it to the Churchwardens and Overseers to make new Rates, or they may make a new Rate themselves. 2 Salk.
483. Churchwardens and Overseers may not tax particular Persons, and not the whole Parish; but the Julicess having a Stock of lands, or Goods, may not relieve the whole Parish, which is to contribute to the Parish of another: Or the Julicess may 'allow the Parish in a certain Sum, and leave it to the Parish Officers to collect the same out of the Occupatory Persons. 2 Bull. 532. 2 Salk. 480. It has been

Money for Relief of the Poor: And no Overseers are not bound to lay out Money till he has it: and if he does not make a new Rate for Relief of the Poor, stice’s Warrant, the Court may levy the Poor’s approved from this Allowance to the Quarter Sessions, and they disallowed the Account, and ordered the Poor settled in Parish. Settlements of Poor are gained three Ways: first, by Statute; or when a Child claims a Settlement in a Parish, because his Father was there settled: By being born in a Parish: and by Counterpart as to the Tithe of Clergy, if the Father has a legal Settlement, the Child is to be settled where the Father is: And if the Father have no legal Settlement, the Child regularly gains a Settlement in the Parish where he was born. 2 Balf. 251. But this Settlement by Birth may be defeated several Ways: 168. If the Parent is removed by an illegal Order; and from the Order an Appeal is duly made, pending which the Child shall be in Care of the in-Considering the Order, the Child shall be sent back with the Mother. 2 By Particular: if a Woman near her Time is clandestinely sent to another Parish, and there delivered, 3. If a Woman with Child be sent to the House of Correction, and is there delivered, the Child shall not gain a Settlement by its Birth in the Parish where the House of Correction is: but in the Parish where the Mother dwells when sent to the House of Correction, as the Place where she had otherwise probably been delivered. 2 Balf. 328.

2 Sa. 715. If a Travelling Woman, having a small Sucking Child, shall be apprehended for

PO

Abortion, and be sent to the Gaol, and afterwards arraigned and hanged, this Child is to be sent to the Place of its Birth; there to be delivered and maintained. 169.
If the fame be known: but otherwise it must be sent to the Town where the Mother was apprehended: And Children born in common Genus, their Parents being Priests, are to be administered at the Charge of the County. Dalf. 157. If a Man and his Fa-imily be legally turned out of a Parish, and during that Time he shall have a Sucking Child, nor can they be sent to the Place of their Birth, or left Habituation, but according as they are able or important shall be sent to work, or relieved in the Town where so settled: a Woman or her Husband and Child, then they may be taken up and sent to the Place of their Birth. Dalf. 148, 160. Baffard Children gain a Settlement by their Birth: but they have been preserved in preventing any Charge to the Parish, if a single Man with Child come into a Parish, by a Justice’s Warrant to remove her to the Place of her last legal Settlement: Baffard of Vagrancy must be committed to the Mother while Nurse-Children until seven Years of Age; and then be sent to the Parish where born. Balf.
Till seven Years of Age, Children are accounted Nurse Children; yet afterwards they must have Maintenance from the Parishes where they themselves were settled: If a poor Man settled at A. marries a poor Woman, who is settled at B. and has Children by a former Husband, the Wife shall be sent to him with A. and the Children under seven Years old shall be removed, but only for Nuture; so that they shall be kept at the Charge of the Parish from whence they are removed: But the Children above seven Years of Age are not removable.
2 Sa. 470, 482. Generally a Wife is to be sent to, and settled with the Husband, though he be but an Inmate or Servant; as all Children are generally to be sent to, and settled with the Parents: But if a Man hires a Husband in A and being there with his Wife and Children, he shall afterwards bind himself to se-provide to one in B, his Wife and Children are not to be sent to B. but are to remain still at A. where they were once settled. 20. A Man being in A has the Middle of a Core, but is afterwards adjudged, where a Man served and had Board Wages, and lay out of his Master’s House in another Parish, he gained a Settlement in the Parish where he lived and served, and was in the Parish where he lay. Palf.

11 Gen. 1. Med. Cof. in L. 3. E. 570. A Man and his Wife fetched at one Parish, came privately in to another Parish, and there a Child was born; then the Father died in the King's Service; the Qesion was, Who should keep the Child? Per Hol Ch. Jul. The Death of the Father does not alter the Child's Settlement; which must be settled where the Father was last settled as well as the Mother. Cumb. 320. Settlement gained by Customary, is where a Person continues in some other Place than that in which he was before legally settled; and such Customary makes a Settlement: Formerly, every one who was settled as a Native, Husbandholder, Apprentice, or Servant, for a Month, without his Complainants in the same or another Parish, they were, lawfully settled. Dalh. But since this Month has been enlarged to forty Days, where a Person shall come into a Parish, and Rent a Tenement under 10 l. per Annum, by the Statute 13 & 14 Car. 2. 3 W. & M. And by Statute, Renting 10 l. a Year; Executing a publick Office in the Parish on a fixed or fixed Account; Paying a Share to the Parish Taxer, as Church or Poor Rates, &c. Living as a hired Servant for a Year in the Parish, being unmarried, &c. and Servant or being bound as an Apprentice in a Parish, all make a legal Settlement: So that a Person being settled by any such Means, and not having acquired a Settlement elsewhere, if he falls into Poverty, shall be settled by Relief from the Parish where he last gained such a Settlement; and where he is settled his Family must follow him. Wood's Lif. 94. It has been held, that a Settlement which has fallen within the Settlement under the Statute 13 & 14 Car. 2. That coming into a Parish publicly, taking a Houfe, and being rated to the rate or the Parish Book is sufficient Notice; the Statutes being for the protection of persons paying yearly contributions, and not publick ones, which the Parish can take Notice of it itself. Show. 11. A Person rented a House of 5 l. per Annum in a Town, and his Landlord died, and whilst he lived in the Parish, he took his Freedom of the Corporation, and voted as a Freeman at the Election of Bailiffs. And it was adjudged, that since that then the Statute of Wills, 1641, making a Settlement that is not within the Words of the Statute, which implies a Negative to any Thing else not contained in it; and since the Statute of Wills is not intended to imply a Settlement, for 'tis an Act which relates to the common Body, and not to the Parish. 2 Salk. 554. A Man rents two Tenements of 5 l. per Annum each, he thereby gains a Settlement; but if he rent a Piece of Land of 10 l. a Year, and there is no House belonging to it, it is otherwise. Hill. 1710. If one Rents a House of 10 l. per Annum, by continuing therein forty Days, he gains a Settlement, within the Meaning of 13 & 14 Car. 2. By Parker, C. R. Renting a Water mill of 10 l. per Annum, &c. makes a Settlement; for a Mill is a Tenement 2 Salk. 556. But no Settlement can be legal in any Parish, when the Residence of the Party is obscure and uncertain, as coming now and then, and lying in Barns, Outhouses, &c. or where the Party is under Dilliance by Officers. 3 & 4 W. & M. A poor Man appointed to be a Parish Clerk, and executing the Office a Year, has been adjudged to make a good Settlement; and the same evidence is to prove the same Settlement whether he came in by Appointment of the Parish, or by the Election of the Parishioners; for he is in for Life; and this is Executing a Publick Office, and Charge within the Meaning of the Statute 3 & 4 W. 3. 2 Salk. 516. A Servant was hired first from Lady Day to Michaelmas, and from thence he was rated; and this was received to be a good Settlement, for there was a Hiring for a Year: But it must be one intire Hiring, and one intire Service (though different Times are men- tioned) for one whole Year, that must make a Settlement according to the Statute. Hill. 10 W. 3. A Servant, who had a Master in one Parish, his Master lives there Half a Year, and then at B. another Half Year; adjug'd the Servant is settled in the same Place, for the Statute does not tie the Service down to one Place. Though if a poor Man be hired for a Year, to serve in a Boat which plies between one Place and another by this Service, he gains no Settlement. Alias, a Servant, who has been employed in a Parish for one Year, married before the Year was expired; and it was held, that he could not be removed, and that upon performing his Service he would be in a Settlement. 2 Salk. 572. A Man hired a Maid Servant for a Year; but the falling sick, her Master turned her out of his Service: The Servant in her Passage to the Place of her Native Place, begged for Relief, and the was sent for in a Grant to the Parish where she was born; whereupon she was sent back by that Parish, to the Parish where she was an hired Servant; and by Ordered Sessions she was settled at the Place of her Birth: This was removed by Cetennari into B. R. and the Court determined the Settlement to be at the Parish where she was an hired Servant, and not where she was born. Style 168. A Peron is a Lodger in any Parish, his Servant acquires a Settlement: If a Servant continues in the Service of a Visitor in a Parish, he gains a Settlement there, unless the Visitor removes him, and the Parish knew that he was brought or came thither on Purpose that he might have such Settlement: And though a Visitor or Ministers are only Visitors, and no Lodgers, yet their Tenants may be laid to be hired in every Parish where they serve. Med. Cof. in L. 3. Ep. 50, 51. If an Apprentice be bound to one who is a Licensed Settlement. Who says that an Apprentice continues forty Days in the Service of his Master, there it is said, he will have a Settlement; and where ever any Person serves the last forty Days of his Appreication, that he has an Settlement. Hill. 4 An. An Apprentice bound to a Master living in one Parish, and serving some Part of his Apprenticeship in another Parish, cannot have a Settlement over to another Master in another Parish; and this was held a good Settlement in that Parish where he last served, for it shall be intended it was but a Continuation of his Apprenticeship. Hill. 10 W. 3. Med. C. in L. 3. Ep. 69. A Peron served an Apprenticeship in a Parish, where he married and had several Children; his Wife dying, he married another Woman, who had a Term for Years in another Parish, to which Place he removed, and resided there for a Year; afterwards he returned to the first Parish, was rated to the Poor, lived there two Years, and then he died: In a short Space after his Death, his Widow and Children were removed, by an Order of two Justices to the other Parish where he had lived a Year; but upon Appeal to this Order at the Sessions, the Sessions adjudged them to be Inhabitants settled in the first Parish. Mix. 3 Jar. 2. Where a Man lives in a Parish, and hath Lands of his own there, or in Right of his Wife, this will make a Settlement; but if he hath Land in one Parish, and lives in another, the Land will not make a Settlement of him in that Parish where he last lived, though he does not live, 2 Salk. 556. If a Man be settled where he will, he cannot, though likely to become chargeable to the Parish where he goes to reside in, be removed from his Settlement, though he goes to reside there; 2 Salk. 416. But see Stat. 9 Gen. 1. supra. Some Years ago, a Man who was not legally settled in a Parish, but had lived there some Time, procured a Certificase, by Virtue of which he went into another Parishes; after which, the Parishes whereby he came to him again; and upon Enquiry found that he was never lawfully settled with them, but had gained a Settlement in another Place, before he left the Parishes, and thence it was removed by him by Order: The Parishes to which he was removed appealed, because those who had given the Certificates, had owned him to be an Inhabitant settled with them; but the Certificate was held only to be an Evidence of a Settlement, and thereafter the first Order was confirmed. Tit. 2 Ann. 3 Salk. 350. It has been since adjudged, That a Certificate con-ccludes the Parishes giving it, not only against the Parishes to which it is given, but as to all other Parishes. Post. The Law distinguishes none who are lawfully settled, nor permits it to be done. If one had but hired a Houk, he had a Certificate therefrom to say he was heathen; he may be indel-ced: also it is easy to remove any out of the Parishes who ought not to be put out, and the Perons removed may be sent back. Dalh. 107. And if a Parishes shall have a false Idea who they are, and on other Certificates to them, to go and wander and beg in B, that he may be sent to A, and doth so, he shall be sent back to A, and be removed there. Whereupon the two Justices of Peace of one County, found a poor Peron to a Parishes in another County, two Justices of the County whence such Peron is sent, cannot make an Order how he shall be sent back, or send him to any other Place; the Town to which such Peron was sent, hath no other Remedy than by Appeal to the Seelions of that County from whence the Party was sent. Salk. 481, 482, 483. If an Order of Seelions upon an Appeal is good and binding; but if it does not appear that the Case came before the Juices in Seelion by Way of Appeal, it may be quashed; for without that they have no Jurisdiction: If a poor Family, after Order of Seelions for their Removal on Appeal, return to the Parishes from whence they were removed, the Seelions must see their Order of Settlement obeyed; though if such poor Family go into another Parish not concerned in the Appeal, two Justices of Peace ought by an Original Order to remove them, and to be set to be executed by the Seelions Order. 4 Salk. 481, 482, 483. The Seelions having made an Original Order for Removal of a poor Peron to a third Parishes, after an Order of two Justices, it was quashed upon Motion: And adjudged, that the Seelions could only confirm, or reverse the Order of Settlement of the two Justices; and therupon a new Order might be made by two Justices for Removal to the third Parishes, &c. 2 Sa. 275. A general Order to remove a Man and his Family is not good; it must be particular, for some of the Family may be chargeable, and others not: And where Justices make such Orders of Settlement, it must appear, that the Parties are likely to become chargeable; and that the Peron removed is removable; and contain an Adjudication of the past Settlement of the Party, &c. 2 Sa. 484, 485, 491. 5 Mo. 149, 321. And according to the Opinion of the Lord Chief Justice Holt, the usual regular Way to proceed on the Statute 14 Geo. 2, in removing a poor Parson, is for the Justices of Peace to make an Order, in the Name of the Justices of the Parish, to remove the Perons to the Parishes to which they ought to be sent, and to deliver in the Record at the next Seelions, to be kept among the Records; and this Record may be removed by Certificates and Order of 1 Salk. 484. But on Motion in B. R. to set aside an Order for the Settling a poor Peron in a Parishes, first thither by Warrant of two Justices, and confirmed in the Se-elions, upon an Appeal: The Court refused to enter into the Merits of the Case; the Order of Seelions being in this Case final, unless it be made appear that there is Error in the Court, or that there is Error in the Power of the Parishes, or that the Case is mis-presented. P. b. 29 Geo. 2. F. 510. And it is a Standing Rule in the Court of King's Bench, That if upon an Appeal, the Order of a Judge is either affirmed or quashed, upon the Merits of the Case, in relation to Settlements, it shall be conclusive between the two Parishes. P. b. 10 Geo. 2. The Order of two Justices not appealed from, binds the Parishes upon which it is made, till a new Settlement is gained: An Order reversed is final only between the Parties; but an Order confirmed, &c. is final to all the World. 3 Salk. 472, 473. A poor Peron who is not a Bell, as well as the Parishes, may appeal from an Order of Removal, though it has been objected that Appeal is only given to the Parishes aggrieved. By a privilege Rep. 253. And where a poor Peron is visited with Sicknes, he ought not to be removed from the Parishes where he is, further to endanger his Health; and if two Justices, by Order to remove him, it is a Misdemeanor in the Justices. Mod. C. in L. & E. 326. On Appeals to Justices in Seelions, they are to issue Orders to both Parishes, to be served without Charge, and then to proceed, &c. 5 Geo. 2. v. 19. By Law, the Place that the Poor were last legally settled at, is the Place that is to be served by Order. 5 Geo. 2. v. 19. By the Stat. 17 Geo. 2. c. 5. The Churchwardens and Overseers of the Poor are to give public Notice in Church, of every Rate allowed for the R. of the Poor the next quarter; and if the Rate has not been levied, the Rate shall be void, and permit every Inhabitant to inspelt the fame, paying 1s. 2d. and to have Copies thereof, paying 6 d. for every 24 Names, under the Penalty of 50 l. By the Stat. 17 Geo. 2. v. 5. If a Woman wandering and begging, be delivered of a Child in a Parishes to which the Child does not belong, she may be committed to the House of Correction till the next Session, where the Justices may order her to be whipp'd, and detained in the House of Correction not exceeding six Months. The Churchwardens of the Place where the Child is to be delivered, shall be paid all the Charges by the Treasurer of the County, and the Settlement of the Mother shall be deemed the Settlement of the Child, though it be a B. R. By the Stat. 15 Geo. 2. c. 48. The Churchwardens and Overseers of the Poor shall yearly, within 14 Days after other Overseers shall be nominated, deliver to such succeeding Overseers an Account of all Sums received, or rated and not received by them, and of all Goods in their Hands, and Monies paid by them, and of all other Things concerning their Office, which Accounts shall be verified by Oath. Any Peron affected may insfpect such Account paying 6 d. and have Copies paying 6 d. for every 500 Words. Peron not accounting, &c. as aforesaid, may be committed until the Rate shall be paid. If an Overseer dies, removes, or becomes insolvent before the Expiration of his Office, two Juices may appoint another in his Room. If any Overseer removes, he shall before his Removal account as aforesaid, under the same Penalty. And if any Overseer dies, his Executors shall within forty Days deliver over all Things belonging to the last Settlement, and the Complaint of the Churchwardens and Overseers, and upon that to make a Warrant or Order under their Hands and Seals to the Church wardens, &c. to receve the Perons to the Parishes to which they ought to be sent, and to deliver in the Record at the next Seelions, to be kept among the Records; and this Record may be removed by Certificates and Order of 1 Salk. 484. But on Motion in B. R. to set aside an Order for the Set-

Tender
Tender of Amendes be made before the Action brought. Succeeding Overseers may levy Arrears to reimburse former Overseers. If any Perfon remove out of the Parish, and another comes to occupy the House, &c., he left, the Perfon removing, and the Perfon coming in, shall be liable to pay to the Ratepayers, in Proportion to the Time he occupied the same. Fair Copies of all Rates for the Poor, shall be entered in a Book within 14 Days after all Appeals determined, and all Perfon’s allotted shall have Access to them. See Pagrants.

Form of an Appointment of Overseers of the Poor.

WHEREAS Complaint has been made unto me, that A. B. of your Parish, Labourer, is very Poor and Impotent: And the said A. B. hath made Oath before me, that, by Reason of Age and Sickness, he is not able to provide for himself and his Family, so that they must necessarily perish, unless timely relieved; and that, if no such Overtures of the Poor of your Parish, and have been refused Relief by them; and the said Overseers, having been also summanded to show Cause why Relief should not be given, and afford them some Redress; These are therefore required you to pay to the said A. B. the Sum of 2s. per Week, for and towards the Support and Maintenance of the said A. B. and his Family, until the said A. B. shall be able to provide for the same, or until you shall be ordered to the contrary. Given under my Hand and Seal, &c.

Form of an Order to remove a Perfon to his Place of Settlement.

WHEREAS it appears to me T. G. and J. L. Efors of two of your Magistrates, that any or the Complaint of the Parish for the County of, &c. (see above) the Quorum on the Complaint of N.O.P. R. &c. Churchwardens and Overseers of the Poor of the Parish of, &c. in the County aforesaid, that B. A. being on, &c. left settled in the Parish of, &c. in the County of, is now come into the Parish of, &c. aforesaid, to endeavour to obtain a Settlement in the said Parish, not having done any Act as the Law requires to make him a Parishioner there, whereby he is likely to become chargeable in the Parish of, &c. aforesaid: And whereas it appears by the Oath of, &c. that the said B. A. was last legally settled at the Parish of, &c. which we need not adjudge accordingly: Now unto the aforesaid justice, do hereby order you the Confidant of, &c. to remove and convey the said B. A. from the said Parish of, &c. unto the aforesaid Parish of, &c. the Place of his last legal Settlement, and to deliver him to the Churchwardens and Overseers of the Poor there, or some or one of them; hereby also requiring you the said Churchwardens and Overseers of the said Parish of, &c. to receive the said B. A. as your lawful Parishioner, and provide for him accordingly.

Perpetual Pensions In Gaol, how relieved and discharged, &c. See Priests. And your Perfon intitled with the Plague, to be relieved by a Tax, &c. Stat. 1 Jac. 1. c. 31. See Plague.

Pope, (Pope) was anciently applied to some Clergymen in the Greek Church; but by Usage is particularly appropriated in the Latin Church to the Bishop of Rome, who, from its coming to occupy the See of St. Peter, and which very probably had great Authority there. As to the Ingressions of the Sea of Rome, it is said to be the general Opinion, That Christianity was first planted in this Island by some of the Eastern Church, who were very probably of the Order of the Pope, and Dr. Filmer has a long, but disconnected and somewhat curious History of this Subject.

The Saxons being concerned about the Year 660, by Perfon’s sect from Rome, and wholly devoted to the Interests of the Church, it could not be expected that such an Opportunity of evincing the Jurisdiction of that See should be wholly neglected; and yet there are few Instances of the Papal Power in England before the Normans Conquest, though four or five Perfon’s were made Bishops by the Pope at the first Convocation, and there was an Instance or two of Appeals to Rome, &c. But the Pope having honoured and supported William the First, in his Invasion of this Kingdom, made that a Handle for enlarging his Jurisdiction; and in this King’s Reign, began to send his Legates hither; and after he prevailed with King Hen. 2. to give up the Donation of Church Goods by the Pope, and in the Time of King Stephen, gained the Prerogative of Appeals; and in the Reign of King Hen. 3. he exempted all Clerks from the Exigence of the Pope. Indeed this King did at first bounteously withold those Innovations; but upon the Death of . who, for having violently opposed the King, was burnt in some of his Satchels, the Pope got such an Advantage of the King, that he was never able to execute the Laws he had made; and not long after this, by a general Excommunication of the King and People, for several Years, because they would not suffer an Archbishop to be imposed on them, King John was reduced to such Straits, that he surrendered his Kingdom to the Pope, to receive them again, and hold them under the Rest of the Popes; a thousand Marks: And in the following Reign of King Hen. 4. partly from the Predis of our own Church Benefices, which were given by the Pope, and others atid by the Pope, for amongst other Things, the Pope at the Court of Rome, and partly from the Taxes imposed by the Pope, there went yearly out of the Kingdom Seventy Thousand Pounds Stirling, a very great Sum in those Days, the Nation being thus burdened and under a Necessity, was obliged to provide for the Prerogative of the Prince, and the Liberties of the People, by many strict Laws. And hence in the Reign of King Edu. 1. it was declared in Parliament, That the Pope’s taking upon him to dispose of English Benefices, to whom it was not to be lawful to appoint, was a Presumption upon the right Convocation; and High Treason upon the second. 5 Eliz. In the Constitution of which Statute, it has been held, That he who knowing the Contents of a Papal Book, written beyond Sea, brings it over, and secretly sells it, or secretly conveys it to a Friend; or having read the Book, or heard of its Contents, doth after in Diffcourage, or to the prejudice of the Good, &c. is in Danger of the Statute; but not he who having heard thereof, buys and reads the same. Popey. There are several Statutes made against Persons perverting or withdrawing others to refusing to assist the Sheriff or Justices of Peace herein, may be fined and imprisoned. 12 R. 2. cap. 8.
13 Hen. 4. cap. 2. 2 Hen. 5. cap. 8. Lamb. 513, 516, 517. Cap. 46. 2 V. b. cap. 131. Justices of Peace, having a just Cause to fear a violent Resistance, may raise the Paff in order to remove a Force in making an Entry into or detaining of Lands: And a Sheriff, if Need be, may raise the Power of the County to assist him in the Execution of a Precept of Re- fliction; and therefore if he make a Return there-to, that he could not make a Re infliction by reason of Resistance, he shall be adjourned. 1 Hawk. P. C. 152, 156. Also it is the Duty of a Sheriff, or other Minister of Justice, having the Execution of the King's Write, and being refused in endeavouring to execute the same, to raise such a Power as may effectually enable them to quell any such Resistance; though it is laid not to be lawful for them to raise a Force for the Execution of a Civil Proceed, unless they find a Reliction. 1 Inf. 153. 3 Inf. 161. It is lawful for a Sheriff, Contable, or other Peace Officer, or for a private Person, to assemble a competent Number of People, and sufficiently armed, to stop or repel Rebels, Enemies, Rioters, &c. But herein the same must be great Caution, lest under a Pretence of keeping the Peace, the same turn into the Bane of it; and Sheriff's justices of Peace, &c. are punishable for using any needless Violence, or alarming the Country in these Cales, without just Grounds. 1 Hawk. P. C. 156, 157.

Pottage, Is an infinitive Mood, but used subordinately for a Possibility as we say, such a Thing is in puffa, that is, it may possibly be. See in off.

Puffiti or Freeate, Signified in the Law where a Man hath a Son and a Daughter by one Woman or Wenter, and a Son by another Wenter, and dies, if the first Son enters and dies without Issue, nor having made an actual Entry and Seal, then the younger Brothe by the second Wife, as Heir to the Father, shall enjoy the Estate; and not the Sister. 1 Inf. 11, 15. Lands are settled on a Man, and the Heirs or Body, and he hath issued a Son and a Daughter by one Woman, and a Son by another, and dies; and then the eldest Son dies before any Entry made on the Lands either by his own Act, or by the Possession of another, the younger Brother shall inherit, he claiming as Heir of the Body of the Father, and not generally, as Heir to his Brother; yet if the elder Brother enter, and by his own Act, hath gained the Possession; or if the Lands were sealeed for Years, or in the Hands of a Guardian, then the Possession of the Lease or Guardian doth well the Pen in the elder Brother, and then upon his Death the Sister shall inherit as Heir to her Brother, for there is Puffiti featuri. 3 Rep. 42. There can be no Puffiti in a Dignity; in such Case the younger Brother is Haeres Natus: The Lord Gryl being created a Baron to him and his Heirs, had Niece a Son and a Daughter by one Wenter, and a Son by another; and after his Death, the eldest being possided of the Barony, and dying without Issue, it was adjudged, that the younger Brother, and not the Sister should have it. 3 Sex. Cap. 137. 2 Nell. Abr. 325. Possibility, (Puffiti, good Puffiti) Is either actual, where a Person actually enters into Lands or Tenements defended or conveyed to him; or in Law, when Lands, &c. are defended to a Man, and he hath not actually entered into them: Also before, or until an Office is found of Lands escheated to the King by Attainer, he hath only a Puffiti in Law. Bradbury, 17 Long. 147. Puffiti upon the Memory of Man, establishes a Right: but if by the Knowledge of Man, or Proof of Record, &c. the
and it was adjudged, that it should not bind the Wife, the Husband having only a Possibility to have it, if he then Dobt his Life, till then. Hl. 17 Eliz. 2. 2 Nelf. Ass. 1274. If Husband and Wife are Tenants in Special Tail, and the Husband and Wife should die at the same time, the Wife's Estate is turned into a Possibility, and only reducible by Entry, if the survive. Hl. 257. Where a Lease is made for Life, the Remainder to the right Heirs of T. S. this is good: for by common Possibility J. S. may die during the Life of the Tenant for Life. 2 H. 7. 13. 3 Slop. Abr. 36. A Man made a Lease to his Brother for Life, and that he be married, and his Wife should survive, then should it have for her Life; the Lease before he married, made a Possession of the Lands to another, and afterwards the Lees before he married, then the Lees married, and died, and his Wife survived: And it was held, that the Remainder to the Wife for Life was gone by this Possession, and the Possibility of her having it was included in the Possession, which is likewise barred. Mor. 554. A Tenant possessed a Lease for Years, devised the Profits thereof to W. R. for Life, Remainder to another; and afterwards the Deveis for Life entered with the Assent of the Executor, and then he in Remainder for Life affiled his Interest to another, and after the Deveis for Life died; is it not good? This is indictable; and notwithstanding what the Deveis for Life was living, he in Remainder had only a Possibility to have the Term, for the Deveis for Life had an Interest in it so soon, and might have survived the whole Term. 4 Rep. 64. The Deveis of the Possibility of a Term is void, as where a Term is devised to A for Life, Remainder to B and C. and devise this Remainder to C. and dies; and then, A. A. C. c. void. An Executor of B shall have it. 3 Lev. 427. A Possibility founded on a Trust, differs from a mere Possibility; the frit may be devised, but the other cannot. Mor. 808. 2 Nelf. Ass. 1274.

Post Conquestum, were Words inferred in the King's Title, by King Edward, 1. c. 10, and confidently used in the Time of King Ed. 3. Claeg. 3 Ed. 3.
Post Diet, is a Word, which is returned upon the Day assigned, for which the Controversy had a Place to be heard, whereas he hath nothing if it be returned at the Day.
Post-Dispensation, is a Word, that lies for him who having recovered Lands or Tenements by Privity good reddit, on Default or Redispensation, is again dispossessed by the former Differior; then shall he have this Word, and recover double DAMAGES, and the Party shall be punished by imprisonment, &c. Stat. 23. 3. c. 36. Reg. Orig. 2507 F. N. 150. The Word of Post-Dispensation ought to be brought by the Parties who first recovered, or some of them, and of the same Land which was recovered, or Part thereof, and against the same or some of them, against whom the Recovery was: But if a Man recover by a Privity good reddit, and after he is dispossessed by him against whom he recovers, and the Differior makes a Privity, and takes back an Estate to him and another, a Post-Disension may be had against him and his Jointtenant; and if he let forth the Land by Default, &c. do so dispossess him and recover, and make a Privity to another Person, he recover'd shall have this Word against the Differior, although he be not Trespassor on Land; for in a Word of Post-Dispensation, the Demandant shall not have Judgment to recover the Land; but the Sheriff shall restore the Plaintiff to his Possession, if the Differior be found, and take the Defendant, and keep him in Prison, according to Stat. 38 Ed. 4. 425. And the Defendant is not to be delivered out of Prison, until he hath paid a Fine to the King, and without the King's Special Command, upon a Certiorari to remove the Record into B. R. whereupon, on a Word shall go to the Sheriff to deliver him. Ibid. Nonnullum is no plea in a Post-Dispensation, for the Defendant ought to answer the Disnnenement. W. nis. 2. c. 36.
Post-Diet, is the Return of the Judge, before whom a Cause was tried, after a Verdict, of what was done in the Cause; and is known on the Back of the Nisi prius Record: It begins, Post-Diet, and ends, &c. whereof it is so called. 1 Litt. 357. A Post-Diet is a Record of the Court, truaulted with the Attorney in the Cause by the Clerk of the Affile; and the Attorney to whom it is intrusted, is to deliver it into the Office, that the Judgment may be entered by it of the Officer of the Court. Triun. 165. It is brought into Court at the Day in Bank, and recorded therein, and delivered back to the Attorney, who gives a Rule for Judgment upon it; and if there be no Rule to the contrary, after the Rule for Judgment is out, the Attorney brings his Post-Diet to the Secretary, who signs his Judgment, and then he enters all this Matter upon the Iffte Roll. 2 Litt. 357. The Court may play the Bringing-in of the Post-Diet, and entering up the Judgment upon a Verdict, if they find Cause to do it, for any undue Practice in the Proceedings in Trial: And if the Party for whom the Verdict is paid, will not bring in the Post-Diet, upon Notice given by the other Party, that he intends to move in Arrears of Judgment; the Court, on Motion will order Judgment to be played, until four Days after the Post-Diet is brought in, allow'd to walk in Arrears of Judgment. Mich. 23. Car. B. R. Although the Verdict given be prejudicial to the Plaintiff, he ought to bring in the Post-Diet; for he must abide by the Trial. There is no general Rule of Court for the Clerk of Affile, &c. to bring in the Post-Diet into the Court of B. R. by a Precise Time; but if it be not returned in convenient Time, the Court may be moved at a Rule for a Bar for a Rule to bring it in speedily. If the Clerk of Affile hath maltaken in drawing up the Post-Diet, he may amend it by his Notes, before it is filed; and the Return of a Post-Diet hath been amended by the Memory of a Judge, who tried the Cause. Posteriority, (Posteriority) Signifies the Being or Coming after, and is a Word of Computation and Relation in Tenures. The Correlative whereof is Priority: As a Person of any Age, Land or Tenements of two is Preceded, or holds of his ancestor Lord by Priority, and of his latter Lord by Posteriority. Stauned. Post-Fine, is a Duty to the King for a Fine formerly acknowledged in his Court, paid by the Cog-mile after the Fine is fully paid, and it is so much, and Half Timbered, was paid to the King for the Post-

Postures, is a Word that signifies the second Son, or one born afterwards, often mentioned in BRooton, Glawes, Etca., and other ancient Law-writers. And as to Pygmaia and Animari, it was by all the Judges of ancient judicature adjudged that another after the Difcent of the Crown of England to King Jam. 1. were born in Sculein, were not Aliens here in England; But the Animari, or those born in Scotland, before the said Difcent, were Aliens here, in respect of the Time of their Birth. 6 Tax. 7 Rep. Calvin's Cafe. Children of Persons attainted of Treason, born after the King's Pardon, may inherit Lands; though not those born before, &c. 1 Inc. 391.

Post-Termouth, is the Return of a Word, not only after the Day for the Return thereof, but after the Term; on which the Coffers Breuiam of the Court of Common Pleas takes the Fee of 20d. It is also used for the Time. 2 Litt. 357.
Postulation, (Pygmaia) Signifies a Request, Suit or Petition. Formerly when a Bishop was translated from one Bishoprick to another, he was not elected to the new Set; but he wrote in Law in Elocus now pereat Eligius and the Presence was, that he was married to the first Church, which Marriage could not be dissolved but by the Pope; thereupon he was pertected, and he contesting to the Petition, the Bishop was translated, and this was said to be by Pyla-lation: But being an Uproarion and against our Law, it was restrained by the Stat. 16 R. 2. and 9 H. 4. c. 8. Since which Translations of Bishops have been by Election, and not by Pygmaia. 1 Janes 160. 1 Salk. 157. Pygmaia were made upon the un-

Bouquet, is an Authority which one Man gives to another to Act for him; and it is sometimes a Refe-ravation which a Person makes in a Conveyance for himself to do some Acts, i.e. to make Leases, or the like. 2 Litt. Adv. 359. And Powers are either Applied to Act for themselves, or to do something for others; and to have the Power to do so. In the first Case, the Power is annexed to the Estate, and derived out of it; but in the other Case, 'tis collateral to it. 3 Salt. 276. A Poofitt, Fine or Recovery, will destroy a Power coupled with an Interest in the Party himself; though not a collateral Power. As for Inheritance: Lands are devolved to W. R. in Tail, Remainder over, with a Power given to him in a Joynure for a second Wife, &c. The Tenant in Tail, in the Life-time of his first Wife, suffered a common Prestation, A Reward or Recompense; among Merchants it is used for that Sum of Money, which the Purchaser gives to the Seller, for securing the future Return of any Ship or Merchandise. Stat 19 Car. 1. c. 1.

Prestation, Is taken either for a Writ so called, from the Words therein Praestationem facias, or Praemiserit facias, &c. signifying to forewarn or bid the Offender take heed; or it is the Offence on which the Writ is granted. The Church of Rome, under Power of her Supremacy, formerly carried Things to that Height in this Kingdom, that King Ed. 3. in the 27th Year of his Reign made a Statute against those that drew the King's People out of the Realm, to answer and sue for Things belonging to the King's Court; which greatly restrained this Liberty of the Pope: But notwithstanding, he still adventured to continue his Mandates and Bulls, insomuch that King Rich. 2. made several Statutes against them, but most expressly that of 16 R. 2. cap. 5, commonly called the Statute of Praemunire, which ordains the Punishment of this Offence, viz. The Offenders are to be out of the King's Præsidium, forfeit their Lands and Goods, and be imprisoned and restrained at the King's Pleasures. And if at the Fines they shall not to be found, they shall be outlawed. After him King Hen. 4. in like Manner aggrieved at other Abuses not remedied by former Statutes, in the Second Year of his Reign, added certain bylaws upon the Offenders the same Punishment as likewise did 3 Hen. 5. cap. 4. And by the 24. Hen. 8. cap. 12. to appeal to Rome from any of the King's Courts is made a Praemunire. So his Dean and Chapter refuse to elect a Bishop named by the King, or any Archbishop or Bishop, to confirm him, G. 25. Hen. 8. cap. 37, and Refusing the Title of Supremacy is a Praemunire: And affirming the Authority of the Pope; or contributing to the Maintenance of a Popish Seminary, is the same Offence. 1. Ed. c. 1. 13 Ed. c. 1. and 27 Ed. c. 3. To refuse the Oath of Allegiance, upon Tender, means a Praemunire, 3 Jac. 1. cap. 4. Affirming that his Highness the King of Scots, have a Grace of Power without the King, is made a Praemunire. 13 Car. 2. cap. 1. The Oaths of Supremacy and Allegiance preferred in former Acts are abrogated, and new Oaths substituted by 1 W. 3. c. 8. which is no refusal upon Tender, makes no likeable to the Penalty of a Praemunire: And Counsellors, Attornies, Solicitors, Priests, &c. preaching, as such in any Court, without taking the Oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy, and subscribing the Declaration, is a Praemunire, by the Statute 7 of W. 3. c. 24. If any shall maliciously and directly, by Preaching, or otherwise speaking, affirm that the pretended Prior of Wals hath any Title to the Crown, or that the King with Authority of Parliament, cannot by Law limit the same, &c. it is a Praemunire. 1 W. 3. c. 17. 4 Ann. c. 8. And so in divers other Cases; and most of the latter Statutes refer the Punishment to the 23. Car. 1. and 16 R. 2. making it a Praemunire to sue or bring Causes out of the Realm, in the Court of Rome or elsewhere, or in any other Court, to the Damage of any Person, former or present, held or formerly held, by the Words of Others, &c. That Suits in Equity brought to relieve against a Judgment given at Law, as of the Court of Chancery, is the same; or the Statute 21. Car. 1. and 22. Car. 2. of the 1. Ed. c. 1. is rendered Unnecessary by the Act of 1 W. 3. c. 8. but Suits in the Admiralty, or in the Court of the Constable and Marshal; and Ecclesiastical Courts, for Matters belonging to the Cognizance of the Common Law, are within the Statute, and in that Procure one to sue to the Court Christian, is a Temporal Cause, shall forfeit as much as he shall be adjudged, and in the Degree of a Fine, 6 & 7. Ed. 3. 1. and 2. Est. 661. &c. But it is urged at this Day, that no such Suit in Equity lying Relief after Judgment at Law, &c. is within the Limit, and by the Statute 1 W. 3. c. 8. the Writ of Praemunire runs contra Campus & Domus Regis, and it hath been holden by all the Judges, that when an Ecclesiastical Judge doth not come over the Temporal Laws, which are the Birthright of the Subject, he draweth the Matter ad eadem Esum, and therein he offends contra Campus & Domus Regis, &c. 1. Est. 50. A Prohibition was granted against a Prior, for that the King having recovered speed him in a Quaerimoni prior, he sent his Brother as an Appeal to Rome, and freed there to avoid the Judgment; and upon Party pleading, it was found speed the Defendant, and thereupon the King made Judgment upon the Stat. 37 Ed. 3. in Case of a Praemunire; but it was adjudged, that he should have such Judgment, because the Suit was not brought according to the Statute, but by a Writ of Protection common Law, 9. Rep. 71. And yet it was not referred, That the same, by appointing that the Offender shall incite the Penal and Danger mentioned in the 16. R. 2. of Praemunire, does not confine the Prohibition for the Offenders to the particular Process, but it is a Punishment as well as for the Parties, provied, as for the King, and both may join in one Writ. 3. Est. 155. Dan. 4.

this Offence of Pramunry, that a Man attainted of the same, had his King’s Protection taken from him, that a Man might do to him as to the King’s En-but this Severity and Inhumanity is restrained and Prabhend, (Prabheend) Is the Portion which every Prebendary of a Cathedral Church receives, in Right of his Place for his Maintenance; so Cassinian Priests is properly used for that Share, which every Canon has yearly out of the Common Stock of the Church. And Prabheend is a several Benefice rising from some Temporal Land, or some Church, appropriated towards the Maintenance of a Clerk, or Member of a Collegiate Church, and is commonly named of the Place whence the Profit arises. Prabheends are hastily taken, is that Maintenance which daily produces another; but now it signifies the Rents and Profits belonging to the Church, divided into these Portions, called Prabheends, and is a Right of Receiving the Profits for the Duly performed in the Church, sufficient for the Support of the Parson in that Divine Office where he recites. Decret. Tit. De Prabheend. The Spirituality and Temporality make a Prabheend, but the Spirituality is the highest, and most worthy; and a Person is not a complete Prabheend, to make any Grant, &c. before Indulgence and Indiction. Demonstrations. Preheends are distinguished into these which are called Simple and Dignitary: A Simple Prabheend hath no more than the Revenue for its Support; but a Prabheend with Dignity hath always a Jurisdiction annexed, and for this Reason the Preheend is filled a Dignity, and his Jurisdiction is joined by Prebendation; and Prabheends are some of them desolate; and some are in the Gift of Laymen, but in such Case they must prebend the Preheend to the Bishop, and the Dean and Chapter induces him, and places him in a Stall in the Cathedral Church, and then he is to be called Lexum in Church; as Wellman; for the King collates by Patent, and by Virtue thereof the Prebendary takes Patronage, without Indulgence or Indiction. 2 Roll. Abr. 356. As a Preheend is a Benefice without Cure, &c. a Prabheend and a Patrimonial Benefice are not commensurate Promotions; for one Man may have both with any Avoidance of the Fifth: But though Prebendaries are such as have no Cure of Souls, yet there is a forced Charge incumbent upon them in their Cathedrals where they are resident, and they are obliged to Preaching by the Canons of the Church; and it is not lawful for a Prebendary to possess two Prebendaries in one and the same Collegiate Church. Roll. Abr. 361. Prabheends we find to have an Estate in Fee simple in Right of their Churches, as well as Bishops of their Bishopricks, Deans of their Deaneries, &c.

There is a Golden Prabheend of Hereford, otherwise termed Prabheend Episcopius, who is one of the twenty-eight minor Prebendaries there, and has ex officio the ancient Canon's Place that falls; he was anciently Confratess of the Cathedral Church, and to the Bishop, and had the Offerings at the Altaar, whereby, in respect of the Gold commonly given there, he had the Name of Gold Prebendary. Practisanship, Are Examples or Authorities so follow, in Judgments and Determinations in the Courts of Judicature. Practises have always been greatly regarded by the Judges and Sages of the Law; The Decisions of the Courts are the Book of Law: The Practice of the Courts is the Law of the Courts; and the Court will not reverse a Judgment, contrary to many Precedents. 4 Rep. 95. Etn. 63. 1 Litt. Abr. 344. But now Precedents are not considerates; Precedents without judicial Opinion, upon Argument, are of no Moment, and an Extrajudicial Opinion given in or out of Court, is no good Precedent. Temple 1563. c. 1599, 449. It has been held, that there can be no Precedents in Matters of Equity, as Equity is universal Truth; but according to the Lord Keeper Bridgeman, Precedents are necessary in Equity to find out Equtiy the same as a Guide; and besides the Authority of those that made them, it is to be supposed they did it upon great Consideration, and it would be unsafe to take what has been the Course for a long Series of Time; therefore Precedents were ordered. 1 Med. 357. And states that in Cases, if a Man doubts whether a Case be equitable, or no, in Prudence he will determine as the Precedents have been; especially if made by Men of good Authority and Learning. But Precedents must be shewn by Plaintiffs in Actions, for the Court to go against what is generally hold. 1 Abr. 7.

A Preferrit may be laid in several Persons, where it tends only to Matters of Eastament or Discharge; though not where it goes to Matter of Interest or Profit in a suit for that is a Title, and the Title of one does not concern the other; therefore several Men having several Estates, cannot join in making a Preferrit. 1 Mod. 74. 2 Mod. 250. It was doubted whether this was good, or not, though it was to repair the Highways: but the Inhabitants may prefer for a Way, and by Consequence for necessary Materials to repair it. 2 Levo. 1346. A Defendant pleaded, that within such a Parish, all Occupiers of a certain Cloke belong, if so be there, a Way over the Plaintiff's Cloke, to the Defendant's House; this was held to be ill, for it is not necessary to the Church or Market, which are necessary, of every middle publican. 1 Vent. 186. Preferment, (Proferment) Is properly the A. of a Patron, offering his Clerk to the Bishop of the Diocese, to be instituted in a Church or Benefice of his Patronage, to a vacant Benefice. Anon. the Preferments to all Churches was laid to be in the bishop of common Right, till it has been instanced by the Bishop of London, to the King's benifices, built and endowed Churches; and now if the Patron neg leds to prefer the King, then this Right re turns to the Bishop by Levity, Etc. 1 Nolf. Abr. An Alias Town cannot prefer to a Benefice in his own Right; for if he purchase an Advowson, and the Church becomes void, the King shall prefer after Office found that the Patron is an Alien. 2 Nolf.

nifice in this Realm; nor occupy the same, with Benefices, and the Universities are to prefer, Etc.

no Fraud. Stat. 3. 7. 1. 1 W. & M. 1. 1. 19.
12. All Persons that have Ability to purchase or grant, have likewise Ability to prefer to vacant Be nifices; But a Dean and Chapter cannot prefer the Dean; nor may a Clergyman who is Patron prefer himself, though he may pay it be admittance by the Ordinary, and the Admissible shall be good. An In ferior may prefer to a Vacant, whereas Guarn dians have not Power to do it in Right of the Heir; A Guardian in Saco cannot prefer to a Church, by

But for what he may Account, to which he cannot do for a Preferment, by Reason he is to take Nothing for it; If a Pope Consort hath Title to prefer, the Preferment ought to be in the Name of both Hus band and Wife, and not by her alone: so he may prefer in his own Name during the Coveture; Op parentes are but as one Patron, and ought: to agree in the Preferment of one Patron; if they cannot agree, the Elder shall prefer first alone, and the Bis hop is obliged to admit her Clerk, and afterwards the other in the Order to whom she shall have her Charters; Jointers and Tenants in Commune must regularly join in Preferment, and if either preferente-alone, the Bishop may refuse his Clerk, as he may into the Clerk prefered by the same Part of them; but if there are two Jointers of the said Next Appearance, one of them may prefer the other, and two Jointers may pre fer Interruptedly. The Preferment in Prefer tation was granted to four, Persons, Etc. within Churches and deaneries, Etc. And the Church be coming void, one of the Graeme annexed prefered one of the others; and it was adjudged; the Clerk Prefer-tation by one was good: When an aggregate Corpo ration preferent, it must be under their common Seal, and by the true Name of their Corporation: The King may prefer by Letters Patent under his Privie Seal, and by their Words, see. Darnell & consoci bus; for this amounts to a Warrant for the Bishop to admit the Clerk; it is said the King may prefer by Word, or in Writing under any Seal, who cannot do any other legal Act but by Matter of Record; and in the Opinion of some, the King may prefer to a Church by his Letter sent to the Ordinary, or in habit and indue such a one his Clerk to the Living; but the most sure Way is to have a Preferment un der the Great Seal: it is a Repe of the Bishop, the King shall prefer to the Rectory, unless he grants to the Bishop before he is confounded, a Dispensation to hold it with his Bishopship: and if an Incum bent of a Church is made Bishop, the King prefer ents or grants that he shall hold the Church in Commu nism, which is proof of Preferment, a Grant of the next Appearance or Preferment hath left it, the King having the next Preferment. The King do prefer to a Church by Levity, where he ought to prefer the Pious Juris, and as Patron of the Church, such a Preferment is not good: for the King is desired in his Grant, by intimation, to the Bishop, which may be preferential to him, the Preferment by Levity intitling only that Preferment; The Lord Chancellor's prefer ment is not good in a Bishop's Benefice, 2 Hall. 1 ferment, before his Clerk is indue: and he may do

A Patron may revoke his Preferment before Indue ment, but not afterwards: A Preferment being no more than a Power given to the Ordinary to admit the Clerk, and if the Patron die before Indueation, his Preferment is determined. But this was in the Cafe of the King: for in the Cafe of a common Per son, if he die after Indueation, and before Indueation, the Preferment is not determined by his Death.

whereupon he sued in the Court of Audience of the Archbishop, and had an Indueation to that Bishop, and upon this Right he claimed an Indueation by the Archbishop, on which he was induced; afterwards the Bishop who was induced, granted Indueation up on the Preferment of the other Patron, and his Patron was likewise induced and the Patron W. R. who had been induced and decided before, on a Mor

And where a Church is granted void by Deprivation by the Canon Law, or Reformation, the Patron must have Notice from the Ordinary, to resit another Peron: But if the Church becomes void by the Act of God, as Death of the Incumbent; or by Creation, or Cession, &c. the Patron is bound to take Notice himself of the Avoidance, and to prefus, 2d. Wood's Inst. 154. If a Defendant, on any Cause, resit a Clerk pending a Quere Impedit, and afterwards the Plaintiff obtains a Verdict and Judgment, he cannot by Virtue of that Judgment remove him who was thus resit; but he is to bring a Seire facias against him to throw Cause Quere Executionem non habet; and then if it be found that he had no Title, he shall be abated: Now the Way to prevent such a Prefation, is to take out a Ne admittas to the Bishop; and then the Writ Quere Incumbent lies, by Virtue whereof the Incumbent shall be abated, and put to his Discharge, or let his Title be what it will; but if a Ne admittas be not taken out, and another Incumbent should come in by good Title pendente lite, he shall hold it. 5 Ed. 92. 3 Ed. 93. Where a Peron gets the Fee to his Prefation, which is his Title, he must in his Declaration allege the Prefation to be Temporal or Secular, or may be intende to be Temporal, and then it is no Title; but where the bare Prefation is not his Title, but only in Parsimony of a former Right, in such Case he may allege it generally: As the Incum bency, where he declares that A. B. was seeded of the Manor of D. as of Fee, to which an Adowment was aequpendant, and that being so he prefuted M. B. and afterwards granted the next Avoidance to the Plaintiff: This is good, for here the Plaintiff shews a present Right, and doth not make the Prefation till his Title, 1 Inst. 950. 2 Inst. 181. 3 Inst. 380. If a Church become void in the Life time of a Bishop, he cannot devife the next Prefation; but if the Bishop, or any Incum bency of a Church be devised, or the avoidance of them devised, that upon the next Avoidance his Executor shall resit; this is good, though they devise the Inheritance to another. 2d. 283. Witen a Bishop has his rights of his Bishoprick, and dies, his Executor, nor Heir, shall not have the void Turn: But the King, in whole Hands are the Temporalities, and he hath a Right to prefute, upon an Avoidance after the Seizure, on the Death of the Bishop: Though where an Incum bency was deficient of the Adowment in Fee, and died, upon a Question who should prefute, either his Heir or Executor, the Adowment not descendmg to the Heir till after the Death of his Accessor, and immediately upon his Death the Church was void, and therefore that Avoidance was voided in the Executor: He shall resit, adjudged, that the Heir shall resit, because the Defendant to him, and the Avoidance to the Executor, happened as one and the same Incident, and where two Titles concur in an Infant, the Elder Title shall be preferred. 3 Lev. 47. B. during his Life, and that he died before the Church became void: void; adjudged that this was not an absolute Grant of the next Prefation, but restrained during the Life of the Grantee; wherefore it shall not go to the Executor, unless the Church become void in the Life-time of the Tenant. 2d. A Grant of the next Presentation in a Church.

Right of Presentation may be forfeited in several Cases: As by Absence of the Patron, or by Outlawry, and then the King shall prefer; and if the Outlawry be relented, where the Admonition is forfeited by the Outlawry, and the Church becomes void, then the Presentation is void in the Crown: But if at the Time of the Outlawry the Church was void, then the Presentation is forfeited as a Chapelt, and upon revoking the same, the Party shall be reduced to it. By Appropriation without Licence from the Crown, Right of Presentation may be forfeited; though the Inheritance in this Case is not forfeited, only the King shall have the Presentation in Nature of a Disfet, till the Party hath paid a Fine for his Contempt. By Alieni in Fee of the Admonition, by a Grantee for Life of the next Admonition, a Presentation is forfeited; and after such Alienation the Grantor may prefer, but then he must enter for the Forfeiture of the Grace in the Life-time of the Incumbent, to determine his Estate before the Presentation veils him in the Incumbent’s Death. And by Simony it may be likewise forfeited and lost, where any Person for Money, the Party shall be reduced to it. By Simony, M. 255, 256. 2 Roll. Ab. S. 31 Eliz. See Admonition, Patron, Simony, &c.

Minstrel, (Prinzip) Is sometimes taken at large for the King himself, but more properly for the King's eldest Son, who is called Prince of Wales. It is said by some Writers, that the King's eldest Son is Prince of Wales by Nativity; but others say, the eldest Son of our King is born Duke of Cornwall, and afterwards becomes Prince of Wales on the Day of his Birth he is titled Prince of Wales, a Title originally given by King Edward I. And all his Titles are those of Duke, Duke of Cornwall, and Earl of Chester. Before Edward I. who was the second of Wales, and born at Caernarvon in that Principality, (his mother being that there big with Child by King Edu. 1. to appease the Tumultuous Spirit of the Welshmen) the eldest Son of the King was called Lord Prince but Prince was a Name of Dignity long before that Time in England. Priorities of Debts and Estates. A Priori there depending may be pleaded in Abatement of a fideon ancient Action or Proceeding. A Prior Mortgage ought to be first paid off; and Debts first due should be first paid off; for as the first Creditors advances his Money before his Debtor is incumbented, it is not reasonable he should pay his Debt before the Debtor be discharged of the fideon ancient Encumbrances; But Debts first due must likewise be first prosecuted; otherwise, it is the same with some Cases Priority will not be allowed. It is where the King claims out of every Ship or Vessel laden with Wines, coming twenty Tuns or more, two Tuns of Wine, the same being sold by the King at his Prize, which is twenty Skellings for each Tum; but this varies according to the Customs of France; and at Rome every dark laden with ten Tons of Wine, or above, pays Prize: This Word is almost out of Use, being now called Barring, because the King's chief Butler receives it. 2 Hen. 8. cap. 5. 4 Edw. 10. Caldrosh's Rep. 20.

Prize, (capisco, pradia, from the Gr. Prepera) signifies a Prize or Boscy taken from an Enemy in Time of War, &c. If Ships are laden with contraband Goods, their Ship and Goods may be taken as Prize; and Powder, Shot, Guns, Swords and all other Instruments and Provisions of Arms for Sea or Land, bound for an Enemy from a foreign Nation, &c. shall be taken as Prize; so money, Corn, Vittuals, &c. in Time of Necessity. Let Marsh. 175. Whence a Ship be Prize or not, shall be taken into the discretion of another, and no Prohibition shall be granted: And if a State be commenced between the Captain of a Prize and a Claimant, and the Decree is obtained either by the Ship, or by the Claimant, or by giving Security, such Sentence or Decree shall be put in Execution, notwithstanding any Appeal. Gr. xiii. 820. 2 Edw. 175. But where Vessels were taken in Ports or Harbours, they were adjudged a Purse like the Admiralty, and the Captors to have what should be thought fit; and if any English Vessels fitted by the French as Prize, should be retained, they were to be returned, paying an eighth Part of the Value for Salvage. but where a Felon is taken by Capias, and committed, and break Prison, there needs no such Aver-cement, but hence all appears by Master of Record, &c.

Judgment may be given to answer over. Mod. Cas. 505. Writ of Privilege for the Offences of the Court of Exchequer, that is sued in any other Court than where he tends, to remove the Cause to his own Court. 2 Inf. 552. Stat. 11 & 12 Lev. 3. A Defendant pleaded in the Court of Exchequer, that he was an Attorney of C.B. and upon Demurrer to his Plea, it was objected, that it ought to be concluded with a Perfect Plea to Curia the Writ of Privilege, telling him he was an Attorney, and it was false, and that he ought to have said Non juro per Rrodebonum; but that must be in such Case where he fees forth the Writ, and he may plead Privilege upon the Writ, or Exemplification of the Record of his Admission, or without it. 2 Saull. 545. If Privilege of an Attorney be pleaded with a Writ, the Defendant cannot be deemed to be an Attorney; if without, he may, and then a Certiorari shall be awarded to certify whether he be an Attorney or not. Ibid. In Order of the Court of C.B. the Clerk of the Warrants is to certify that an Attorney's Name is upon the Roll of Attorneys, before he shall have a Writ of Privilege; and Writs of Privilege are to be signed by the Clerk of the Warrants, to show the Person is an Attorney of the Court, or they shall not be allowed. Tri. 29 Car. 2. Tri. 9 W. 3. And to save Arrêt upon Proces, an Attorney must deliver his Writ of Privilege to the Sheriff, and allow it with him; otherwise the Sheriff will not discharge him upon the Writ of Privilege, until he be in the Exchequer for an inferior Court, but he may plead his Privilege and pay his Fine. Fred. Solis. 342. Privilege is not to be pleaded in the Negative; as that an Attorney or Clerk, ought not to be sued elsewhere but in such Court, that is in such a Case, that the Plaintiff is a privileged Person, saying it is usual for them to be sued there, &c. and it should not be pleaded too general. 2 Sid. 164. But for a Saull. 545. In Trepass against an Attorney of C.B. he may plead his Privilege per Jurisdiction to which Plea the Plaintiff demurred; because he ought to have pleaded it in Person, and pleading by Attorney destroys the very Reason of his Privilege, which is his Attending the Court in Person; but the Plea was adjudged good, for he may be sick, or have Business in another Court to attend. Styl. 413. But an Information being brought against a Coffee Broker of B. R. for several Abuses in his Office, he infil'd not to appear in Person, but by Attorney; and it was ruled that he should appear in Person, because he is an Officer of the Court, and is presumed to be always present; and if he doth not appear, Judgment shall be given against him without any other Proceed. Sid. 134. He has been allowed for a Clerk in the Office of Coffee Broker, and a Writ of Privilege signed by the Judges of C.B. to exempt him from being arrested or prefessed, &c. It being the Custom and Privilege of that Court, that the Attorneys and Clerks shall not be prefessed, nor chose in any Office, non voluntate, but ought to attend the Service of the Court. Conv. Car. 8. Though it is said an Attorney shall not be execuc'd by Privilege from Offices which may be executed by Deputy, only those which require personal Duty, as that of Church-warden, Collector, &c. Attor. 50. 2 Litt. Abr. 374. A Waterman's Clerk claimed to be privileged in B. R. but was denied it; for though the Master may be privileged, the Court takes no Notice of the Servant, he having no necessary Dependence on the Court. Mich. 23 Car. And Privilege extends only to such Attorneys, &c. who have an immediate Service on the Court; and not to their Servants; It hath been held, that although an Attorney does not practise, he shall have Privilege so long as he continues an Attorney upon Record. Laro. 1697. Attorneys or Factors of the Offices of the Common Pleas, if sued in B. R. may plead their Privilege, because they owe a personal Attendance to that Court: But a Servant not being sued in the Court of B. R. cannot plead Privilege of C.B. for he is not a

B. though if he is sued in any inferior Court, he shall have his Privilege. 2 Lew. 129. 2 Med. 298. And yet formerly a Serjeant at Law claiming his Privilege to be sued in the Court of C. B. had his Privilege allowed to a Serjeant’s Clerk. Trin. 4 El 8. and 2 El 4. 8 El 6. 8 El 6. 5 Co. 59. A Barrister at Law, attending on the Court, ought to have Privilege to be sued in all transitory Actions for a FINE. 2 Lew. 129. And an Attorney of C. B. Cts. may plead whether he will sue or be sued out of the County of Middlesex; because his Attendance is always supposed to be there. 2 Lew. 370. Where an Attorney is sued as Executor or Administrator, he shall not be allowed his Privilege; nor in a joint Action, with another not privileged; though if the Action may be severed, the Writ of Privilege of one shall not take away the Privilege of the other. 1 Sal. 2. 245. 2 Nell. Abr. 1295. Privilege shall not be allowed to a Man, where his Wife is joined in the Action with him. The Wife of an Attorney of C. B. if he be arrested, shall not have Privilege; but her Husband is to be put in Bail for her; or, where there is to be committed to Prifon; for the Writs of Privilege are privileged only in regard of his personal Attendance upon the Court, and his Privilege is annexed to his Perfon, and concerns not his Wife. Nott. 1. 6 Lew. 571. An Attorney of the Common Pleas was indebted to A. B. who was indebted to C. D. who according to the Custom of London attached the Money in the Attorney’s Hands; and he brought a Writ of Privilege, which was allowed by the Court, because the Attorney was not indebted to C. D. but only by Custom; and the Privileges of those attending the Courts in Westminster, shall not be impeached by Custom alone. Lew. 156. But where Money was attached in London, in the Hands of an Attorney of C. B. it was held, he shall not have his Writ of Privilege, because the Plaintiff cannot follow his Attachment against him in the King’s Bench, but only in the Court of London; and if this Court should stay Proceedings there, then there would be a Purlane of Justice. 2 Lew. 371. 572. One that hath a Suit depending in B. C. is privileged from being arrested in coming to the Court from his House or Lodging, to follow his Cause, and also in the Court, to sit in his House or Lodging; and if he be arrested in so doing, the Court upon Motion made to inform them of it, will set the Party at Liberty, and punish the Perfon that arrested him, if he knew the other had a Suit depending here, and came hither to attend it. 2 Lew. 571. One that was coming to the Court of King’s Bench to attend upon his Cause, was arrested as he was coming, and forced to put in Bail; and on Motion, making it appear to the Court, he and his Bail were both discharged; and the Party that arrested him had been also punished, had he not alleged that he knew not that the Party arrested came about his Business depending in the Court. Mich. 22 Car. 2 B. R. An Action of Affaint, Cts. was brought in the Common Pleas, and the Parties were at Issue, and after the Trial, when the Jury went out to consider of their Verdict, the Defendant in this Action arrested the Plaintiff by Process out of B. C. for an Affaint made before that Time on him; and this appearing to the Court, they ordered him to release the Party from the Affaint, and they set a Fine upon him for the Contempt, which he immediately paid in Court: And the Court declared, that the Suits ought safely to come and go, by the Privilege of the Court, without Vexation: and where. Bull. 85. Where an Action of Assizes is begun, the Plaintiff, before Westminster upon a Suit brought for or against him, shall have the Privilege to be discharged from the Suit below: But this ought to appear by the Examination of the Party. Trin. 172. And if the Defendant be in Execution in any such inferior Court, and he had Cause of Privilege at that Time; if the Affaint of Privilege be delivered before it, he shall be discharged: This otherwise if not delivered till after the Execution. Ibid. Privilege of the Court was prayed to protect a Witness from being arrested in coming to and going from the Court, which was granted. Hill. 165. 2 Lew. 370. In Trafalgar, Febyon, or Brench of the Peace, no Privilege shall be allowed; nor on an Indictment, Cts. It has been adjudged, that where Proceedings are merely against the Suit of the King, as upon Indictments or Informations brought by the Attorney General, in such Cases Privilege shall not be allowed; but where the Proceedings are at the Suit of the King and the Party, as in Case of a common Informer, Cts. there the Defendant may have his Privilege. 1 Laww. 193. If a Pribled Person be not a Pribled Person in another, in a Civil Action, the Person shall not have his Privilege. 2 Lew. 41. 2 Lew. 370. A Pribled Person shall not have his Privilege given in another, nor on an Indictment, nor on a Pribled Motion; but he must plead it, and on Pleading it shall be allowed. Mich. 23 Car. B. R. But there is no Need to plead the Privilege of the Exchequer; for it shall be grant- ed upon producing the Red Book of the Exchequer by a Baron of the Court. 1 Laww. 45. And of later Times, the Party hath been admitted to Privilege of Pribled Person in the Course. 2 Lew. 370. By some Opinions, Privilege may be allowed, after Bail put in; and not after Imparlance: By others, that Privileges of Attorneys may not be pleaded after Bail given in, which allows the Jurisdiction. Cts. 3 Leww. 343. 1 Sal. 1. 2. To see an Attorney privileged, or any Clerk or Officer of the Court of B. C. they are not to be arrested, but he proceeded against as follows: A Declaration is to be filed against the Party privileged, and a Copy of it delivered to him, and then Rules given in order for his Plea; and the Declaration and Rules bil and served. If Time, he will be obliged to plead the same Term; and if he do not appear and plead, after called in Court, Cts. he may be sued in the Court for such Attorney, Clerk or Officer be Plaintiff, and his Declaration is delivered, and the Rules given in Time, the Defendant is to plead the same Term, and cannot impart over to the Party which ought to be pleaded, but he shall, or be remembr’d, for fear of Executions when not thought of. Padr. 295. In B. C. where an Attorney is Plaintiff, he cannot by his Privilege have a Special Bail where other Persons cannot have it; except it be for Fees, as a Ministrant of the Court, in which Case he may. In the Court of C. B. if an Attorney is Defendant in any Suit, it is not required that he shall give in Bail; and by giving Bail, he waves his Privilege: Yet by the Usage of the Court, on Attachment at the Suit of an Attorney Plaintiff, though the Debt be but Sixd. special Bail shall be given. Ibid. 560. 533. A Bill must be filed, though an Attorney agrees to appear and dispone with it; but it may in both Case be filed afterwards: And a Bill cannot be filed against a Person privileged in Vaci- nation, for then he is not present in Court. Hill. and Paph. 9 W. 3. B. R. If without filing a Declaration, an Action is brought against an Attorney, he may bring Attachment of Privilege, and supercede the Action.

And the Sheriffs of London or their Officers are enabled to take the Puffs Com- tains, and such other Power as shall be requisite, and enter such privileged Places to make any Arrest on legal Process, and in Case of Refusal, to break Open Doors; and if such Sheriff, Bailiff, etc., shall neglect with such Force to do their duty, a Court of Law, for executing any Process, they shall forfeit to the Plaintiff 100 l. to be recovered in any of the Courts at Winstins; and if any Person doth refuse the Officers in executing any Process, or any who shall be aiding and assisting to them, he shall forfeit 50 l. fuller Imprisonment, and be set in the Pillory, as the Court of Allents, Great Delivery, etc., shall think fit: Persons refusing any one arrested in the aforesaid pretended privileged Places, are to forfeit to the Plaintiff in the Action 100 l. And by Stat. 16 Car, 1. c. 10. it is enacted, that neither the King, nor the Privy Council, have Authority by Petition, Bill, &c. to determine or dispose of Lands, Tenements, Hereditaments or Goods and Chattels of any Subject. The King with the Advice of his Council, publishes Proclamations binding to the Subject; but they are to be conformable to, and in Execution of the Laws of the Land: It is in the Power of the Privy Council, to inquire into Crimes against the Government, and they may commit Persons for Treason, and other Offences against the State, in order for their Trial in some of the other Courts; and any one or two of the Privy Council may lawfully do it: But they take Cognizance of no private Matters that may be determined by the ordinary Laws in other Courts: yet the Kingdom of Ireland, and the Plantations are in many Respects subject to the Controll, and under the Direction of the Privy Council of Great Britain and Leisontroversies among the Subjects of Jersey and Guernsey, &c. are determined by the Privy Council. 3 Ed. 18. & 45. 55. Wood's Inf. 458. By Stat. 35 H. VII. c. 26. the King, by the Privy Council, on Treason, Murders, &c. done within or without the Realm, may be tried before Commanders of the Army. And the Statute mentioned is in any County of England: This Statute, as far as it relates to Treason committed within the Kingdom, is repealed by 1 & 2 P. M. c. 10. And Persons attempting to kill, or unlawfully assault any Privy Councillor, in the Execution of his Office, are guilty of Felony, without Benefit of Clergy, by the Stat. 9 Ann. cap. 16. And accordingly if one did strike another Person in the House of a Privy Councillor, or in his Presence, the Party offending was to be indicted. 45 Inf. 39. No Person born out of the King's Dominions, except of English Parents, shall be of the Privy Council. 12 W. 3. cap. 2. There is to be but one Council of Privy Councillors in Great Britain: And the Privy Council is not dissolved by the Death of the King; but to continue for six Months. &c. 6 Ann. cap. 6. 7. 23 H. VII. Sir Edward Coke has these notable Conclusions, with Respect to the Proceedings of the Privy Council, that. That it is sufficient with Safety, for a Privy Councillor to give to the King the Council when demanded; and that the True and bell Council is ever given to a Prince, when the Question is to evenly balanced and pronounced, as the Councillor cannot discern which way the King himself inclines; that Resolution should never precede Deliberation, nor Execution go before Resolution; and where upon Deliberation and Decision, any Matter is well resolved by the Council, a Change of it upon some private Information is neither the Custom. &c. The Court of Privy Council is of great Antiquity: The Way of Government in England, it is said, was originally by the King and his Privy Council; though at present the King and Privy Council, only intermeddle in Matters of Complaint on sudden Emergencies; their constant Business being to consult for the Publick Good, Honour and Welfare of the Realm, in Affairs of State. 4 Inf. 53. The Lords and Commons assembled in Parliament, have oftentimes transmitted Matters of high Concern to the King and his Privy Council: And Acts of the Privy Council, whether Orders or Proclamation, were heretofore of very great Authority in England; and in the Reign of King Hen. 8. that King procured an Act of Parliament to be made, that with the Advice of his Privy Council, he might set forth Proclamations, which should have the Force of Acts of Parliament; but the Statute was repealed in the Reign of King Inf. 6. Though Acts of the Privy Council still continued of great Authority until the Reigns of King Charles the First and Second: And by these were

5. Probate of Testaments, (Probaits or Testamentor) is the Exhibiting and Proving last Wills and Testaments before the Ecclesiastical Judge, delegated by the Bishop, or the Superior of the Place, or office, in Evidence that the Party dies: And if all the Deceased's Goods, Chattels and Debts owing to him, were in the same Diocese, then the Bishop of the Diocese, &c. hath the Power to grant a Probate; but if the Goods and Chattels were dispersed in divers Dioceses, so that there were any Things out of the Diocese where the Party lived, to make that is called bona notabilia, then the Arch Bishop of Canterbury or York, is the Ordinary to make Probate by his Prerogative. Blunt.

The Probate of a Will is usually made in the Spiritual Court, and this is done by granting Letters Testamentary to an Executor under the Seal of the Court, by which the Executor is enabled to bring any Action, &c. If such Letters Testamentary are granted to the Party who exhibits the Widow, merely upon his Oath, by swearing that he believes it to be the Last Will of the Deceased; this is called Proving it in common form, and such a Probate may be controverted at any Time: If the Executor, besides his own Oath, produces Witnesses to prove it to be the Last Will of the Deceased, and this in the Presence of the Parties who claim any Interest, or in their Absence, if summoned and they do not appear; this is termed a Probaits pro Tribus, which cannot be questioned after thirty Years. § 2 Nisi. As the Judge of the Spiritual Court only can determine the Validity of Wills for Things Personal; therefore the Probate of such a Will, is undeniable Evidence to a Jury, and it may not be controverted at Common Law. 1 Dods. Raym. 451. A Probate, according to the precedent, is Evidence of a Will only as to Chattels: But if a Will of Lands be lost, it shall be allowed for such a Will concerning Lands. ibid. 731, 735. When Probate is to be granted of a Will, wherein a Legacy is interlaced in a different Hand, and supposing to be forged, the Executor has no Remedy but in the Spiritual Court, or where the Will ought to be proved with a special Referendum as to that Clause. 1 Per. Will. 388. Notwithstanding Appeal from a Will, a Person is complete Executor by the Probate: though the Probate may be altered. If an Executrix, Plaintiff do not conclude with a Prelate in Curia, or the Defendant may demand Oyer of the Will. § 2 Byn. 72. An Executor being made by the Act of the Party deceased himself, therefore the Law intitles him to the Probate of the Will; and the Probate cannot be revoked or altered, which would be Effect to make a New Will, yet it may be superseded by an Appeal: But if Administration be granted to one, this is by the Act of the Court; and if he afterwards become Bankrupt, &c. the Administrator may be replaced. 1 Rep. Rep. 226. Black. 293. 1 Sol. 35. 2 Nisi. Abr. 1501. By the Statute 51 Hen. 8, cap. 5. it is ordained, that on Probate of Wills, § 6 d. and no more shall be taken by the Register, where the Goods of the Deceased do not exceed five Pounds value: and when the Goods of the Deceased are above the Value of 5 l. and under 40 l. the Fee to the Register shall be 2 s. 6 d. and to the Register 1 s. and if the Goods exceed 40 l. in Value, the Judge's Fee is 2 s. 6 d. and to the Register 2 s. 6 d. but this he may refuse, and take a Penalty at his Discretion: And if the Officer takes more than his Due Fee, he shall forfeit 10 l. to be divided between the King and the Party grieved. But if it hath been held on this Bill, and in that case, that a Transcript of the Will must be brought to the Register ready ingrossed, and with Wax to be sealed, so that the Register, &c. may have no thing to do but to annex the Probate to it; and then no Fee shall be taken for such Transcript. § 4 Inf. 356. 1 Est. 166. The Power of granting Probates and Administrations of the Goods of Persons dying, for Wages or Work done on the King's Domains and Yards, shall be in the Ordinary of the Diocese where the Person dieth, or in him to whom Power is given by such Ordinary, exclusive of the Prerogative Court, &c. 7. Discendum, is a Writ which lies where an Action is removed out of an Inferior Court, to a Superior Court, as the Chancery, King's Bench, Common Pleas, by Habes Corpus, Citriourum, or Writ of Privilege; to lend down the Cause to the Court from whence removed, to proceed upon it; which and if the Defendant, upon serving his Attorney with a Copy of the Rule, doth not do, then the Judge will sign a Warrant for a Proceedlea, to remove the Cause back again where the Action was first laid: Also if Ball be put in at the Time, and do not prove good, the Judge will grant a Rule for better Ball to be put in by such a Day, or else to certify the Ball already put in; which and if the Defendant doth not do, the Judge will then likewise grant a Warrant for a Proceedlea. 2 Litt. 377. Where Ball put in on Removal of a Process, the Proceedlea is disallowed by the Court, if the Defendant upon a Rule for that Purposo, and Notice given, refuse to put in better Ball, such as the Court shall approve of. A Proceedlea may be granted, if the Ball makes the Defendant to be in the same Condition as if he had put in no Ball, and until 7 X the Bail is put in and filed, the Court is not sufficient to proceed, and so to proceed in it. Mich. 24 Car. B. R. After a Record returned, and the Defendant hath filed Bail in B. R. on a Cause being remitted, the Bail ought not to be granted; because by giving and filing Bail in this Court, the Bail below is discharged. Sid. 313. 2 Nc. Abr. 1304.
And it hath been held, that by the Common Law, if a Court be once filed, the Proceedings below can never be revived by any Proceedings. Hill. 6 Geo. 2. Hen. P. C. 254. When a Cause by the Crown of London is admissible, and will not be an Action at the Common Law, if upon a Habeas Corpus or Contiversy, brought to remove such Cause into the Court of B. R. it doth appear to the Court; the Court will grant a Proceeding to authorize the Court of London to proceed in the Matter; otherwise the Party that brought the Action would be without Remedy.
2 Litt. Abr. 376. This Writ of Proceeding is called a Proceeding in Legua.
Proceeding an Act Jasper. If a Man Pray in Act of the King, in a real Action, and the Act be granted, it is the acting in the Matter of the Act, shall stay until the Writ of Proceeding in Legua come unto them: And if it appear to the Judges by Proceeding, or by the Party, that the King hath Interest in the Land, or shall lose Rent or Service, &c. there the Court ought to stay until they have from the King a Proceeding in Legua: And then they may proceed in the Plea, until they come to give Judgment; when the Judges ought not to proceed to Judgment, without a Writ for that Purpose. New Nat. Br. 342. So in a personal Action, if the Defendant Pray in Act of the King, the Judges are not to proceed until they receive a Proceeding in Legua. And though they may then procceed and try the Issue joined, they shall not give Judgment until a Writ comes to them to proceed to Judgment. Ibid.

Proctor, (Procurator) Is he who undertakes to manage another Man's Cause, in any Court of the Civil or Ecclesiastical Law, for his Fees: Qui aliena negavit gerendae facultatis.

Proctor of the Clergy, (Procurators Cleri) Are those who are chosen and appointed to appear for Cathedral or other Collegiate Churches; as also for the common Clergy of every Diocese, to fit in the Consuetudinary House in the Time of Parliament. On every new Parliament the King directs his Writ to the Archbishop of each Province, for the Summoning of all Bishops, Deans, Archdeacon, &c. to the Convocation, and generally of all the Clergy of his Province, affixing them the Time and Place in the Writ; then the Archbishop of Canterbury, upon his Writ received, according to Custom directs his Letters, that they be sent to London, as they were in fact Dean of St. Paul's Cathedral; then to cite them perpetually, and them willing to cite in like Manner, all the Bishops, Deans, Archdeacons, &c. and generally all the Clergy of his Province in the Place, and against the Day prefixed in the Writ; but directed that, all the one Proctor be for every Cathedral or Collegiate Church, and not for the whole Body of the inferior Clergy of each Diocese; and by Virtue of these Letters authentically sealed, the said Bishop of London directs his Letters severally to the Bishop of every Diocese of the Province, citing them in like Sort, and willing them not only to appear, but also to attend in the said Deans and Archdeacons personally to appear; and the Cathedral and Collegiate Churches, and the common Clergy of the Diocese to send their Proctors to the Place at the Day appointed; and also will them to certify to the Archbishops the Names of all and every Person so warned by them, in a Schedule annexed to their Letter certificatory: Then the Bishops proceed accordingly, and the Cathedral and Collegiate Churches, and the Body of the Clergy make choice of their Proctors, which being done and certified to the Bishop, he returns them all at the Day, Exceit.

Procurations, (Procurations) Are certain Sums of Money which Parish Frieds pay yearly to the Bishop or Archdeacon, as such Obligations: They were anciently paid in necessity Vindices for the Vidtore and his Charges, and now by the Laws turned into Money: And Complaints were often made of the excessive Charges of the Procurations, which were prohibited by Act of Parliament and Bills; and that of Clement the Fourth is very particular, wherein Mention is made that the Archdeacon of Richmond, visiting the Diocese, travelled with one Hundred and three Horses, twenty-one Dogs, and three Hawkes, to the great Oppression of religious House, &c. Procurator, Is one who hath a Charge committed to him by any Person; in which general Signification it hath been applied to a Virgin or Lady's Ward, who acts instead of another; and we read of Procurator Regulorum, and Procurator Reipublicae, which is a publick Magistrate: All Proctos of Lords in Parliament are in our Law-Books called Procurators: the Bishops are sometimes termed Procurators Excalalorum; and the Advocates of religious Houses, who were to plead the Interests, and plead the Causes of the Societies, were denominated Procurators Monasterii; and from this Word comes the common Word Proctor. It is likewise used for him that gathers the Fruits of a Benefit for another Man; and Procuracy for the Writing or Instrument whereby he is authorized. 3 R. 2. c. 3.

Prodrus Dominus, is a Title often given in our old Books to the Baers of the Realm, or other military Officer under the King, in the Parliament, or the Council, and were no more than Diferits & falsus Dominus, who according to their Prudence and Knowledge were to give their Counsel and Advice.

Profeffors, (Profeffors) is a Direct paid to the Bishop of London, or to the Dean and Chapter of Westminster, for the Body of the inferior Clergy of each Diocese; and by Virtue of these Letters authentically sealed, the said Bishop of London directs his Letters severally to the Bishop of every Diocese of the Province, citing them in like Sort, and willing them not only to appear, but also to attend in the said Deans and Archdeacons personally to appear; and the Cathedral and Collegiate Churches, and the common Clergy of the Diocese to send their Proctors to the Place at the Day appointed; and also will them to certify to the Archbishops the Names of all and every Person so warned by them, in a Schedule annexed to their Letter certificatory: Then the Bishops proceed accordingly, and the Cathedral and Collegiate Churches, and the Body of the Clergy make choice of their Proctors, which being done and certified to the Bishop, he returns them all at the Day, Exceit.

Prohibition. (Prohibitio) is a Writ citing out of the Chancellor, King's Bench, or Common Pleas, to forbid the Spiritual Courts, Admiralty Court, &c. to proceed in a Cause there depending, upon Supposition that the Cognisance thereof being not to the said Courts, but to the Common Law Courts. F. N. B. 39, 40. &c. Or it may prohibit the Judges of any Temporal Court, from proceeding in any Cause out of their Jurisdiction. And the King's Courts, that may award Prohibitions, being informed by the Plaintiff or Defendants, or by any Stranger, that any Court Temporal or Ecclesiastical to hold Plea, where they have no Jurisdiction, may lawfully prohibit that Court, as well after Judgment as before. 2 Inf. 293, 601, 602. 4 Rep. 127. Finch 41. If the Judge, but the Parties; and if the Judge of the inferior Court, or the Party, proceeds notwithstanding the Prohibition, an Attachment may be had against them, &c. in Action of the Cite. But on a Prohibition by the Spiritual Court, the Party may appear, and take a Declaration upon the Suggestion, and go to Trial; and if thereupon in the said Place of the Party, it be shown that the Prohibition, a Writ of Certiorari shall be awarded, with Colli. 2 Litt. Act. 384. Wad. 507. 9 & 10 W. 3. A Prohibition is generally a proper Remedy where a Court exceeds its Jurisdiction; and Prohibitions are granted either pro defecta Jurisdiction, or pro defecta Territoria. In a Prohibition, upon Motion for a Certiorari, it was inferred, that ought not to be granted without pleading or demurring to the Prohibition; but it was held, that an Incuriously in B. R. there were no Declarations or Demurrers upon Prohibitions, and therefore Confinements were granted upon Motions. 1 Viner. 180. 3 Salk. 287. In Cases of Prohibitions, where they were granted upon a Motion, the ancient Court was, that the Party prohibited prohibited out a Tun Certiorari, Querat Confinimentum, dein debet conferre fat Prohibitationes, in which Writ the Suggestion was restated, and also the Prohibition granted therein ad Dominum of the Party. Afterwards this Practice was altered, and the Court came to be the (Vino) upon granting a Prohibition to the Plaintiff, the Court bound him in a Recognizance to proceed in the Attachment of Certiorari against his Defendants, being in the Spiritual Court, &c. after a Prohibition granted, and then to declare upon the Prohibition so that he was the Defendant in that Court; now it becomes Plaintiff in the Court above. Plowd. 472. 3 Salk. 289. If any Matter appears in the Declaration in an inferior Court, which sheweth that the Cause of Action did not arise infra Jurisdiction; or the Subject Matter is not proper for the Judgment of such Court; or if the Defendant who intended to plead in the Jurisdiction is prevented by any Artifice, or his Plea be not accepted or is overruled. In all these Cases a Prohibition will lie at any Time: But not after the Defendant hath admitted the Jurisdiction by pleading to the Action, &c. 2 Salk. 279. A Prohibition lies in all Causes wherein a Habeas Corpus doth lie at Common Law; but it is most commonly granted to the Spiritual Court, where a Cause belongs to the Temporal Jurisdiction: And the Court ought not to deny a Person a Prohibition that prays if, if there be Cause therefore; the Granting Prohibitions being not a discretionary Act of the Court, but ex natura Jurisdictionis; though a Prohibition will not be granted on Motion the last Day of the Term, but sometimes in such a Case, a Rule has been made to Pay Proceedings upon the Terms of the Prohibition. 3 Salk. 383. 4 Salk. 93. Prohibition may be granted to the Court of the Earl Marshal, by the Courts of Common Law, if it exceedeth its Jurisdiction; and it hath been broadly inferred that on the Court of Admiralty, a Prohibition is not Contable and Marshal may also be prohibited, but there having been no Court holden before the Contable and Marshal has been mentioned in our Books on that Head. 2 Nott. P. C. 14. The Court of B. R. may by the Common Law grant a Prohibition to the Court of Admiralty, to stay their Proceedings, if they hold Plea of any Matter which the Jurisdiction of their Court doth not extend to: And the Defendant in the Court of Admiralty may have a Prohibition, after he hath pleaded, although he cannot have an inferior Court; for an inferior Court doth not draw the Matter in Question ad illud Examum, but doth proceed therein according to the Common Law; but the Court of Admiralty doth draw the Matter ad illud Examum, that is to try it by the Civil Law; and therefore, that the Common Law may not be injured, this Court will Rule their Authority at any Time of their Proceedings in the Admirality, though the Defendant by his Incuriously Pleading hath allowed their Jurisdiction.

Prohibition does not lie to the Admiralty to stop proceedings on a Bond made beyond sea, such as a charter-party for carrying goods, nor for a suit for the recovery of money due, nor for a Bond between two Masters, unless the goods shall be brought before some special judge of the Admiralty, as the Court of Lloyd, or the Court of King's Bench. A Prohibition is not sufficient for a脖子, it concerns a layman; for it was never granted, where a Person charged a Penalty by Prohibition, 2 Lev. 203. Salk. 150. If in fixing for Tides, the Boundaries of Parishes come in question, Prohibition lies; because the Bounds of Parishes are to be determined by the Common Law. 1 Cor. 218. And it has been said that a Prohibition is granted to the Complainant in a Libel, and of which the Spiritual Court have original Jurisdiction, they shall not be prohibitory; whereas the Libel is in the hands of the Court, where they have an original Jurisdiction of the Cause, and for Tides; and the Defendant pleads that it is not his Bole, but the Case of another Person: this is irremediable at Law, but may be remedied by a Prohibition, in the Spiritual Court. Sid. 89. 3 Nelf. Abr. 12. A Libel was for Tides; the Defendant an pleaded an Award, and prayed a Prohibition for that an Award is irremediable at Law; but a Prohibition was denied: And it is the same if a Suit is for a Legacy, and the Defendant sues for Payment for a Prohibition, as it is for an Acquittance is pleaded, no Prohibition shall go beyond where the Spiritual Court have a Jurisdiction of the original Matter, if any subsequent Matter should arise, and which is irremediable at Law, shall not deprive the Spiritual Court of their Jurisdiction, though if the Court shall adjudge otherwise upon an Acquittance, or an Award, according to the Common Law, in such a Case a Prohibition shall be had. 1 Roll. 12. 11 East 413. Ecclesiastical Courts, where the principal Cause is of Ecclesiastical Cognizance, may have Masters triable at Law, which come into question; and it is the same if a Thing incident to a Suit in a Spiritual Court is of a Temporal Nature, they must try it in the same Cause and the Court, as it would have been tried at Law, if a Prohibition would be granted; but if the Matter incident is of a Spiritual Nature, they were to try it according to their ownLaw; for Instance, if they require a Written Confirmation of a Will, a Prohibition will not lie, because such Proof is required at Law; but if they require two Witnesses to prove any Thing which has been done out of one Witness to the Payment of a Legacy, 6 Fig. 325. One called another Whoremonger on a Libel, &c. it was urged, that this was a Word of Puffing, and not damatory; but adjudged it is the fame as calling a Woman Whore, which is an Ecclesiastical Standler. 2 Salk. 652. Prohibition will not be Up on a Suit in the Spiritual Court by Husband and Wife, for calling the Husband Cauckold for the Words charge the Wife with Inconsequence, and for that Reason the Libel shall have this Suit in the Ecclesiastical Court, to punish the Defamation that subjecteth her to Penitence in the Spiritual Court: But if the Husband had fed freely, then a Prohibition might be granted; because he doth not infect any other with-breach of the Words. 2 Law. 66. 1 Salk. 991. And yet it hath been ruled, where Husband and Wife libelled in the Spiritual Court for calling the Husband Cauckold; that a Prohibition hath been refused, and that they cannot bring the Case in that Court for that Word. Hill. 15 W. 3, 3 Salk. 138. And to call a Man Cauckold, hath been refused not to be on Ecclesiastical Suit, but this is a Waste 16; for that implies his Knowledge and Contest to the Adultery of his Wife. 2 Salk. 652. Their Words were spoken of a Parson, he is a flying Fellow, and has lain with all the Women, &c. for a Prohibition was refused; for these Words are foundable, being spoken of a Parson, though not actionable at Law. 4 Lev. 18. But to say of a Parson, He hath an Unlawful Obsession, &c. 3 Salk. 652. Prohibition hath been granted; because a Parson is not punishable in the Spiritual Court for being a Bawd, 2 Salk. 653. So for calling a Parson Fool, &c. in a Thing which doth not concern his Profession. 2 Lev. 41. And where a Suit is in the Spiritual Court for Defamation, the Matter ought to be entirely of Ecclesiastical Cognizance; otherwise a Prohibition will lie. 4 Rep. 20. 5 Mar. 873. In an extraordinary Case, a Suit being brought for Defamation in the Spiritual Court, of which they had Cognizance, notwithstanding an Action at Law was not commenced for Special Damage, occasioned by speaking the same Words a Prohibition was denied. 4 Ed. 2. Rep. 110. If one call another Drunkard, such Libels may be punished in the Temporal Courts, and a Prohibition shall be granted. 4 Carn. 529, 2 Salk. 256, 3 Salk. 288. If a Man sues another Person in the County-Court for Debt, &c. amounting to the Sum of 40s. or above, the Party shall have a Prohibition to the Sheriff, that he do not hold Fees thereof. 24 Lev. 350. New H. 105. A Suggestion for Pro-bition begins, Do you remember, that on the Day giving of Evidence to a Jury upon a Trial, or oath upon Interrogatories, or by Copies of Records, or Exemplifications of them. 3 Litt. Abr. 393. Though where a Man spares generally of Proof, it shall be tendered of Proof by a Jury, which in the Examinations is legal Proof. 3 Bla. 66. The Condition of a Bond was to pay Mannors as an Apprentice should mispend, upon Proof made by the Master of the Apprenticeship or otherwise; and it was held, that although generally Proof shall be intended to be made at a Trial by the Jury, in this Case it being referred to the Consideration of the Party, it is sufficient if he confides it under his Hand. 1 Crad. 511. 3 Nefl. Abr. 15. It hath been insisted upon, that the Law knows no other Proof but before a Jury in a judicial Way, and that which is on Record; but if the Proof is modified by the Agreement of the Parties, that it shall be in such a Manner, or before such a Person, that Mediation which allows another Master of Proof shall be observed, and prevail against the legal Confirmation of the Word Proof. 3 Litt. 513. 2 Lom. 458. Where in Agreements, or Deeds recorded, no particular Form is directed how the Proof shall be made, the Plaintiff may bring his Action, and aver that the Thing was done; and the Defendant may say, I do not believe that it is so done, and he will not prove the Doing it. 3 Lom. 57, 77. 3 Crad. 303. A Plaintiff said that a Wafer was due, and that the Defendant had no defence. Then the Judge said, then make a Bill ingo, and if you can prove that it was worn by me by Desce, I will give you five Pounds; and in an Action on the Cogge brought against the Defendant upon his Premises to pay the Five Pounds, the Plaintiff alleged in justify that he had got the Wafer by Desce; and it was adjudged, that he need not make any other Proof of it, but in this Action. 3 Bla. 66. 3 Crad. 303. In Articles the Parties bound themselves in the Penalty of 100L. to be paid upon putt Proof of a Breach; the Proof at the Trial will maintain the Action. 1 Lom. 461. And Proof may be in the Action, in several other Cases. 3 Crad. 388, 428. Proof by Winesses, &c. See Evidence.

The parties and their happenings, is an ancient Writ for the Partition of Lands between Co-heiresses. 9 Reg. 316.

Writs, (Propriety) is the highest Right a Man hath or can have to any Thing; being used for that Right that one hath to Lands or Tenements, Goods, or Chattels, which no way depends upon another Man's Grant, and was first introduced, that every Man might know what was his own. 19 Reg. Comp. 253. Before the Frank, there was no such Thing as particular Property, but an universal Right instead of it; every Man might then take his Use what he pleased, and what he had to possess himself of, another could not, without manifest Injury, take away from him. But upon the Inorder of People, Trade and Industry, Property was gained by Purchasing, and other lawful means; for the securing whereof, proper Laws were ordained. 25 Reg. 2. Property in Lands and Tenements at this Day, is acquired either by Entry, D vnent by Law, or by Covenants; and in Goods and Chattels, it may be gained a great many Ways, though it is usually by Deed of Gift, or by Hargreave and Sale. 3 Litt. 400. And for preferring Man's Properties our Law hath these Rules, 1st. That no Man is to desire another of his Property, or disturb him in enjoying it, 2dly. Every Person is bound to take due Care of his own Property, so as the Neglect thereof may not injure his Neighbour. 3dly. All Persons must in using their Right, &c. they can not injure, with the Law, in the Managing of it, damage their Neighbour's Property. 3 Litt. 513. 2 Lom. 458. There are likewise three Sorts of Sorts of Properties. 1. Property absolute; Property qualified. 2. Inalienable Property, or such as cannot be transferred. 3. Property in the wild Creature. 3. Proprietor hath an absolute Power to dispose of his Estate as he pleaseth, subject to the Laws of the Land. The Heirs of a deceased Person have a right to their father's Goods, Real and Chattels and Debts; but in her Chattels personal, he hath an absolute Property.

Every Owner of Goods, &c., hath a general Property in them: Thus a Legatee of Goods hath no Property in the Goods given him by Will until actually delivered by the Executrix, so that he hath the Possession.

Proprietaries, Are mentioned with Monastery, and Projectors and signify the name as Monastici 3 Ind.

Proprietary, (Proprietarius) Was heretofore commonly applied to him that had the Profits of an Ecclesiastical Benefice to himself and his Heirs or Successors: as in Times past Abbots and Priors had, to them and their Successors. And Proprietary Monarches were those Monarchs who had any Goods or Substance of their own. Man. Angl. Law. 3. pag. 307.

Proprietea iuridica, Is a Writ to the Sheriff to inquire of the Property of Goods disfrained, when the Defendant claimed Property upon a Replevin suit; for the Sheriff cannot proceed till that Matter is decided by Writ: and if it is found for the Plaintiff, then the Sheriff is to make a Writ for the same; but if for the Defendant, he can proceed no further. F. N. B. 77.

Proprietors, Are as much as pro proprietariis sive as Jointtenants, or to pay Pro reas, i.e. in Proportion to their Estates. 16 Car. 2. c. 6.

Proposital, (Propositor) Signifies to prolong, or put off to another Day. 6 Hen. H. 8. Proposital, or of the Parliament, and Adjournment were anciently used as Synonyma; but of late there hath been a Distinction, a Proposition making a Session, and an Adjournment only a Continuance. Vide Parliament.

Protection, (Protestio) Is generally taken for that Benefit and Safety which every Subject hath by the King, any Man who is a loyal Subject is in the King’s Protection; and in this Sense to be out of the King’s Protection, is to be excluded the Benefit of the Laws. 25 Edw. 3. c. 22. In a special Signification, a Protection of the King is an Act of Grace, by Writ issued out of the Chancery, which lyes where a Man will pass over the Sea in the King’s Service; and by this Writ (when allowed in Court) he shall be quit of all Manner of Suits between him and any other Person, except Affairs of New Doctrine, Affair of Dispersi Prohibition, Attainders, or, until his Return into England. 2 25. 398. Protection is an Immunity granted by the King to a certain Person, to be free from Suits at Law for a certain Time, and for some reasonable Cause; and ‘tis a Branch of the King’s Prerogative so to do: There are two Sorts of these Protections; one is cum Claudia columna; and of that Protection there are three Particulars; one is the Name of the Judge, and is for him who is going beyond Sea in the King’s Service; another is quia maritatus, which is for him who is already abroad in the King’s Service, as an Ambassador, Or and another is for the King’s Debtor, that he be not sued till the King’s Debt is satisfied: And the other Sort of Protection is cum Claudia columna, Or which is granted to a Spiritual Corporation, that their Goods or Chattels be not taken by the Officers of the King, for the King’s Service; it may likewise be granted to a Spiritual Person tingling, or to a Temporal Person. F. N. B. 1. 20. On a Person’s going over Sea, in the Service of the King, Writ of Protection shall issue, to be quit of Suits till he returns; and then a Remission may be had against him: but one more proper against the Defendant having such Protection, until he comes and sues his Protection in Court, and hath it allowed: when his Fleta or Suit shall go non de suo, but after it appears that the Person whose Protection goes, is not about the Buccaneers for which the Protection was granted, the Plaintiffs may have a Repeal thereof, Lib. Hat. 2 Eliz. 1. 495. A Protection is to be made for one Year, and may be renewed from Year to Year; but if it be made for two or three Years, the Justices will not allow the same: And if the King grant a Protection to his Debtor, that he be not sued till his Debt is paid, on these Protections none shall be denied: the Party is to answer: and to be tried, and Execution shall be stayed. 1 Edw. 130. 25 Edw. 3. The King granted a Protection to one of his Debtors; and upon a De- murrer it was alleged, that by the Statute 25 Edw. 3. c. 109. Protections of this Kind are expressly, that none shall be delayed upon them: but the Party shall answer and proceed to Judgment, and Execution shall be stayed. And such a Protection as this cannot to Execution they would advise: so a Respondent’s Order was awarded. C. 2. 117. In all Protections ought there to be a Cause shown for granting them: If obtained pending the Suit, they are naught: and a Perfon giving Bail to an Action on Arrears, ‘tis said may not plead his Protection; one may not be discharged out of Prinon to which he is committed in Execution by a Perfon. 3 Edw. 3. Nor will a Protection be allowed where a Person is taken on a Capias Ultrajation, after Judgment; for though the Capias Ultrajation is the King’s Suit in the first Place, it is in the second Degree for the Subject. Lat. 157. 1 Law. 183. Dyn. 126. Hib. 115. But in Action on Affirmatio, a Protection under the Great Seal was brought in Court, for that the Defendant was in the Wars in Flanders, and it was allowed though after an Exigent. 3 R. 332. The Plaintiff in an Action cannot call a Protection; for the Protection is for the Defendant, and shall be always for him, if it be not in special Cases where the Plaintiff becomes Defendant. 4 Nat. Br. 62. And no Protection shall be allowed against the King. 1 Edw. 131. A Protection to save a Default, is not good for any Place within the Kingdom of England: And regularly it lies only where the Defendant or Tenant is demanded; an Exigent. 3 R. 332. When the King grants a Protection, the Writ thereupon in some Cases has been as follows.

A Writ of Protection by the King.

GEOEGE the Second, &c. To all and singular Sheriff, &c. and others, who shall be our present Letters, Greetings. Know you, that we have taken into our special Protection A. B. and all his Servants, &c. and are to be by you protected, &c. in the County of and in &c. And after our Writings whatsoever: Therefore we command you that you protest and defend the said A. B. and his Servants, &c. in the said County, &c. &c. and do all our Writings, &c. Therefore we command you that you protest and defend the said A. B. and his Servants, &c. in the said County, &c. &c. And after our Writings whatsoever. Pet. Coton. 66. 94. There are many Kinds of Protections; but they are rarely used, being mostly out of use. Vide Parliament. Wals. 3. 471. When the King grants a Protection, the Writ thereupon in some Cases has been as follows.

Protection of Parliament. Peers, and Members of Parliament, have a Privilege to protest their Mensal Servants, and those actually employed by them in Service; but by a late Order, this extends not to others, on written Protections. One Cather, Gentleman at the Earl of Suffolk, was by Order of the House of Lords committed to Newgate, on Proof of his being Guilty of procuring and selling written Protections, from and in the Name of that Peer, to several Persons, to the great Damage of their Creditors, and in Breach of the Orders of that House; and being charged with other Crimes, reflecting on the Credit of Persons, was brought to the Bar, and to stand in the Pillory, vide, M. 3. 394. &c. See Privilege.
The Petition of the Court at Westminster. The Protocol of the Court of B. R. is allowed for any Person who attends his own Business in this Court, or by Virtue of any Subpoena; but this is more proper in the Prestacy. The Statute of Allowing a Challenge to be entered against a Prestacy, &c. 33 Edw. 2.

Petition, (Protestant) Has two divers Applications; one by Way of Complaint, to return a Man's Bill of Exchange, refused Acceptance of Payments, which is necessary to recover Damages, &c. See Bill of Exchange.

Pestansmo, Is a Word made use of to avoid double Pleas. One Party presents a Plea that makes it from being concluded by the Plea he is about to make, that it cannot be applied upon it; and it is also the Form of aggrandizing hereon. It will not direct or deny any Thing alledged by another or himself. In the first Case, it is where a Man pleads a Thing which he does not affirm, or that he cannot plead for Fear of Making his Plea double: as in Tute to Land by two Defeants, the Defendant must plead one of them, and put the Word Pestansmo instead of dict., as to the other, that such a one died belied, &c. And in the last Case, when one is to answer to two Matters, and the Law he ought to plead but to one: then in the Beginning of his Plea he may say Pestansmo, that such Matter is not true, and add to his Plea, Pro Planta dict.; and so he may take Issue upon the other Part of the Matter. Procd. 276. 8 Edw. 5. Proct. Adept, &c. And effectual Matters in Bar ought not to be taken in a Plea by Pestansmo: A Pestansmo is sometimes thus: Pestansmo non Capitatis, such as Tithes, Pro; Planta dict., &c.

Petitionants, Exempt from Penalties, &c. See Different.

Prestacy (Prestacy), &c. (Prima Notitia) Is a Chief Officer or Clerk of the Common Pleas and King's Bench; and for the first named Court there are three Prestacy, and the other hath but one. He is to keep record all Actions Civil as the Clerk of the Crown Office doth all Criminal Causes in that Court: Those of the Common Pleas, since the Grotius in 1. 2. 1. upon an Agreement entered into between the Pristacy and Writers of that Court, do enter and enrol all Manner of Declarations, Pleadings, Affidavits, Judgments, and Actions: They make out all judicial Writs except Writs of Habeas Corpus, and the prerogative Jurisdiction, for which there is a particular Office erected, called the Habeas Corpus Office: Also Writs of Execution, and of Seisin, of Privilege for removing Causes from inferior Courts, Writs of Procedendo, Sureties in all Causes, and Writs to Inquire of Damages; and all Proces upon Prohibitions, &c. &c. They likewise enter Recognizances acknowledged in that Court; and all Common Recoveries; and make Exemplifications of Records, &c. 5 H. 4. rep. 14.

Protestation, Provisions of Meat and Drink. Proctor. A Way of Aggrandizing hereon, to be used in the Course of Business, given by a Deputy or Lieutenant. Litt. Dict. It was used among the Romans for a Century, without the Limits of Italy, gained to their Subject by the Sword; whereas that Part of France then the Alps was so called by them, and still retains the Name. With or, a Proctor is most usually taken for the Circuit of an Archdeacon's Jurisdiction; as the Province of Canterbury, and that of York: Yet it is mentioned in some of our Statutes, for several Parts of the Realm; and sometimes for a County. 32 H. 8. c. 23.

Provincial, (Provincei) Of or belonging to a Province; also a chief Governor of a Religious Order; as of Friars, &c. Stat. 4 H. 4. c. 17.

Province (Province), By the old Laws of England, as well as the Canon Law, is the Providing a Bishop, or any other Ecclesiastical Person, with a Living, by the Pope, before the Incompend is dead: It is also called Gratia explicationis, or Mandatum de providendo; the great Abuse whereof heretofore in this Kingdom, occasioned divers Statutes to prevent it. 35 Edw. 5. c. 22. 37 2 Edw. 2. 2 R. 3.

Provoiso, Is a Condition inserted into any Deed, on the Performance whereof the Validity of the Deed depends; and sometimes it is only a Covenant, scendum facultatem Materiae. 70. 2 Edw. 2. Abridg. 599. The Word Proviso is generally taken for a Condition; but it differs from it in several Respects: for a Condition is usually created by the Granter or Leeree, but a Proviso by the Granter or Leeree; there is likewise a Difference in placing the Proviso, as if immediately after the Habendum, the next Covenant is that the Leeree shall repair, provided always that the Leeree shall have Timber, this is no Condition; nor is it a Condition, if it comes among other Covenaunts after the Habendum, and is created by the Words of the Leeree, as of the Leeree covenanters to fence the Ditches, Proviso that the Leeree carry away the Soil, &c. 3 Nelf. Abr. 21. It hath been held, that the Law hath not appointed any proper Place in a Deed to insert a Proviso, but that when it does not depend on any other Sentence, but stands originally by itself, and when it is created by the Words of the Granter, &c. and is in retefective or compulsory, to inforce the Granter to do some Act, in such Case the Word Proviso makes a Condition, though 'tis intermixed with other Covenaunts, and does not immediately follow the Habendum. 2 Rep. 70. A Proviso always implies a Condition, if there be no Words subsequent which may change it into a Covenant; A. E. it is a Rule in Law, that where the Proviso is that the Leeree, &c. shall do, or not do a Thing, and no Penalty is added to it; this is a Condition, or 'tis void; but if a Penalty be annexed, it is otherwise. Grot. 549. &c. 1 Lees. 155. And where a Proviso is a Condition, it ought not to do the Office of a Condition, i.e. make the Effeate conditional, and shall have Reference to the Effeate, and be annexed to it; but shall not make it void without Entry, in a Limitation will: A Lease was made for Years, rendering Rent at such a Day, Provisor if the Rent be arrear for one Month, the Land to be vested back. The Question was, whether this was a Condition or Limitation; for if it was a Condition, then the Lease is not determined without Entry; adjudged, that it was a Limitation, though the Words were conditional, because it appeared by the Lease itself that it was the express Agreement of the Parties that the Land should be void on Non payment of the Rent; and it shall be void without Entry. 2 Nelf. Abr. 22. 26. If a Proviso be the mutual Words of both Parties to the Deed, it amounts to a Covenant; and a Proviso by way of Agreement to pay. A Covenant, and an Agreement well lies upon it. 2 Rep. 72. The Plaintiff convey'd an Office to the Defendant, Puissant, Provost that out of the first Profit he pay the Plaintiff 50l. And it was resolved, that an Advo. for the Plaintiff lay on this Provost; for 'tis not by Way of Condicion or Defiance, but in Nature of a Covenant to pay the Money. 4 Lev. 1. 5. But a Defendant in Condition of 400l. granted him to pay to the Plaintiff for ninety-nine Years. Provost if he pay so much yearly during the Life of 7. yr. or 40l. within two Years after his Death, then the Grant to be void, and there was a Bond for Performance of Covenants; in Adion of Debt brought upon this Bond, it was adjudg'd, that there being no express Covenant to pay the Money, there could be no Breach alleged on this Provost. 2 Med. 36. In Articles of Agreement to make a Lease, Provost that the Leele should pay so much Rent, yr. although there be no special Words of Resignation that fairly led to the Court of Rome for a Proctor. Stat. 25 Ed. 7. 6. Proctor. Inside the Governor, or Steward of a Religious House. 6. 7. Proctor. Williamout, The King's Parson, who provided for the Accommodations of his Court. 8. 9. Proctors, In this Case, a Plaintiff, in this Case. 10. 11. When Ules are raised by Covenant, in Consideration of the Age, which is paid by the Plaintiff. 4 Lev. 1. 12. And after in the same Indenture, there is a Provost to make, Lessee, without any particular Consideration, it is void; though such a Provost might be good, if the Ules were fined by Fine, Recovery, Cred. and of the Terms. 13. 14. A Remitter, to him and his Executors. 1 J. 15. When Ules are raised by Covenant, in Consideration of the Age, which is paid by the Plaintiff. 4 Lev. 1. 16. And after in the same Indenture, there is a Provost to make, Lessee, without any particular Consideration, it is void; though such a Provost might be good, if the Ules were fined by Fine, Recovery, Cred. and of the Terms. 17. At the Heirs for their Bodies, shall be void; this Provost is sufficient to cede the other Ules, on Difiurbance, 8. 18. But a Provost, to make an Estate, limited to one and the Heirs for their Bodies, to cede as if he were naturally dead, on his Attesting any Act by which the Limitation of the Land was in Tail, should Horrendum, be, this, red, Cred. hath been adjudged not good; because the Estate tail is not determined by the Death of Tenant in Tail, but by his dying without Male issue. 19. 1. 20. And if a Provost is good at first, and afterwards it happens, that there is no other Remedy but that which was restrained; the remedy shall be had, notwithstanding the Restraint. 3. And if a Provost is Parcel of, or abridged a Covenant, it makes an Exception, when 'tis annexed to an Exception in a Deed, 'tis as if there was no Deed; and where added at the End of any Covenant, there it extends only to defeat that Covenant. 1. 21. Disburs, concerning Matters judicial, is where the Plaintiff in an Action drifs in Professing his Suit, and does not bring it to Trial in convenient Time; the Defendant in such Case may take out the Vereins, against the Sheriff, which hath in its Words, Provost, or Cred. Punishment, (Punis) Is the Penalty of Transgressing the Laws: And as Debits are charged to private Persons by Payment: so Obligations to the Public, for disturbing Society, are discharged when the Offender undergoes the Punishment inflicted for his Offence. Kings, and such as have equal Power with them, have a Right to require Punishment for Injuries committed against themselves or their Subjects, upon the Violation of National Laws; though the Right of inflicting Punishments to provide for the Safety of Society, was originally (before Commonwealths were erected and Courts of Justice ordained) in the Hands of every Man being equal to, and independent of others; but since, it has reeded in the Hands of the highest Powers, as Subjection to others hath taken away that privilege. However, this Power and natural Right of punishing an Equal, still remains in those Places where the People are not subject to some Form of Government. Grat. de Fœre Bell. lib. 14 c. 2. The Punishment of Offenders are many. The Punishment of Offenders is various, and adapted to the several Degrees of Crimes, and the Countries where committed; and in England are Bicharding, Impriantion, Fine, Amercement, &c.

None can generally take as heir by Purcha, which is not a right Heir; nor by Defect, where the Eate was never executed in the Ancetor; by Holo Ch. The Fee of Holmen in London sells for seventeen or eighteen Years Purchases, if in good Repair, and the Ground Rents are not high; otherwise for less: Holne not in London, but well situated, without any Lands to them, are sold for fifteen or sixteen Years Purchases: For a Lease of a House for thirty Years, about eight Years Purchases is given in London; and for one and twenty Years about six Years Value. Purgation, (Purification) is the Clearing a Man's Self of a Crime, whereof he is publicly suspected, and acquitted before a Judge: Of which there was formerly great Use in England. And Purgation is either Canonica, or Vulgo; one that is by the Law of the Church, and the other that is by Privilege. The latter is more free from the Church and is a more absolute, and exact Purgation. The former is by the Law of the Church, and is a more absolute, and exact Purgation. The latter is by the Church, and is a more absolute, and exact Purgation.

Burxton, or Burxton, (from the Fr. Burx, i.e. purus, & Lius, locum) is all that Ground near any Forest, which being added to the ancient Forests by King Hen. 3. and King John, was afterwards disafforested and severed by the Stat. Charia de Forstia, and the Perambulations and Grants thereupon, by King Hen. 3. to that it became Purus, or Parus, from the Laws and Statutes of the Forest. Manwood's Far. Lawe. par. 2. cap. 20. Our Ancelliors called this Ground Purus, purus Lawe, because it was exempted from that Service which was formerly laid upon it: And whereas Manwood and Crescius call it Puruslaw, we may derive it from Parus, purus, & Lius, Amblyius, because he that walketh in the Course or Circuit, is not liable to the Laws or Penalties or taxes by them which hunt within the Forest Precincts; but Paruslaw is held to be properly the Perambulation whereby the Puruslaw is described. The Owners of Grounds within the Paruslaw by Disafforestation, may sell timber, convert Pastures into arable, or inclose them with any Kind of Inclosure; erect Edifices, and dispose of the same as if they had never been afforested; and a Paruslaw Man may as lawfully hunt to all Intents within the Puruslaw, as any Man may in his own Grounds that were ever afforested. He may keep his Dogs within the Paruslaw unexpediated; and the Wild Beasts do belong to the Paruslaw man ratione rei, so long as they remain in his Grounds, and he may kill them. 4 Inf. 503. 504. But in the Case of Sir Richard Wigel, Attorney General, it was laid, that though the Law be as above, yet that it does not extend by Presumption, and there is nothing in Statutes or in Hunting; and therefore Paruslaw Man may only keep out the Deer, but cannot kill them, though they be in their Ground. 1 Tenor Rep. 478. See Mor. 306. 497. And notwithstanding Paruslaw grounds are absolutely disafforested, it has been permitted, that the Ranger of the Forest shall, as often as the Wild Beasts of the Forest range into the Paruslaw, as his Hounds retrace him back into the Forest. 4 Inf. 12.

And when a Man takes himself, or introuses any Thing which he ought not, whether it be in Lands, Franchises, or Jurisdiction, it is a Purpurature, and some Writers mention three Sorts of Purpuratures; one against the King, the Second against the Lord of the Fee, and the Third against his Neighbour. 2 Inf. 38. Purpurature is every Incroachment made therein, by Building, Inclosing, or Using any Liberty. It is a lawful warrant for the same. And if any Inclosures are made in Forests, they may be laid open, 5. Quaere ejusdem Terminum. Is a Writ that lies for a Leafe, where he call out of his Farm before his Term is expired, against a Feoffee of the Lands, or the Lessor that ejected him; and the Effect of it is to recover his Term again, and his Damages.

Reg. Org. 227. F. N. B. 197. New Nat. Br. 439. It is said this Writ was devised for the following Cases: If a Man make a Lease of Land for Yeld, bought, and for his Term maketh not a Feoffee of the Land unto a Stranger in Fee; now the Leafe cannot have a Writ of Easements against him, before the Term; or before the Term is expired, against the Leafe, he had no Remedy against the Feoffee: And therefore, by the Equity of the Statute of Wymesw. 2. cap. 24. when it is said, that where it shall happen in one Case, a Writ is found, and in the like Case, falling under the same Law, and wanting the same Remedy, Etc. it is not so, the Clerks of the Chancery are to agree upon a proper Writ, Etc. By Reason of that Statute, was this Writ devised. New Nat. Br. 439. And if a Person lease Lands for Years, and the Lessor doth suffer a Recovery to be had against him upon a feigned Title, and the Recoverer entereth; the Leafe shall have his Writ of Quaere ejusdem Termimum, Etc. And the Words of the Writ are, Ocupation contra Possessionem; and yet the same is not properly a Sall, but those Words are only of Form. Ibid. It is in the election of the Leefe, or if he grants over his Term, the second Leefe, so far a Writ of Easements, or a Quaere ejusdem terminum, against the Leefe, or his Heir, or against the Lord by Escheat, Etc. if they put the Terminor out of possession and Damage; though in the Writ of Damages, so he recovers only the Presentation, not the Title to the Advowson, as for which Reason that disturbs him in his Right of Advowson by Precluding a Person from buying the Church, or other Goods, or the Sirs, F. N. B. 32. Stat. Ywmsw. 2. cap. 5. It differs from Allie of Dareste Preceptum (or Ulitme Preceptauncia) because that lies where a Man or his Ancestor, under whom he claims, have formerly preyended to the Church; and this is for him that is the Purchaser himself: But in both thele, the Plaintiff recovers the Preceptum and Damages; though in the Writ of Dareste Preceptum, Etc. he recovers only the Preceptum, not the Title to the Advowson, as he doth in a Quaere Impedit for which Reason that Allie is given for D. Quaere Impedit is to be brought in Six Months after the Avoidance; and by it a Patron may be relieved, not only on his Preceptum to a Church, but to a Chapel, Prebend, Vicarage, Etc. And this Writ lies for a Donor, and the special Matter is to be set forth in the Declaration: It allo lieth for a Deaconry by the King, although it be elective, and for an Archdeaconry, but not for a new Office of the Church.

Atr. 35. If a Bishop be disturbed to collater, where he ought to make Collision, he may have a Writ Quaere Impedit, and the Writ shall be good preeminent all the Patronage, Etc. and he shall count upon the Collision: And if the King be disturbed in his Collation by Letters Patent, he shall have a Quaere Impedit New Nat. Br. 439. A Grantee of a next Avoidance may bring this Writ against the Patron who granted the Avoidance. 39 Eam. 6. It may be brought by Executors, for a Disturbance in vice Succession; and Executors being disturbed in their Preceptum, may bring Quaere Impedit as well as their Teller might. Owen 09. Lawe 1. Husband and Wife jointly, or the Husband alone without the Consent of his Wife may have the Writ Quaere Impedit as well as if a Man had an Advowson in Right of his Wife, be disturbed in his Preceptum, and the Wife shall bring it. 14 Ed. 4. 5 Rep. 07. The King shall not have Quaere Impedit, for a Disturbance tempore patriæ nor can he have Execution upon a Recovery by the Ancestor: Br. 2. Ed. 3. 19. But by the Statute 13 Ed. 1. c. 5. Ulteration of Churches during Wardship, particular Eierties or Vacancy, Etc. shall not bar an His or Her Ulteration. 6 Rep. 07. The same Case is in the same Way as a Spiritual Person in Succession, from having a Writ of poissiory of Quaere Impedit, Etc. as the Ancestor or Predecessor might have had, if such Ulteration had been in their Time: And the same Form of Pleading shall be had in Darreren Preceptum, and Quaere Impedit. Where Partition is made upon Record, to present by Turnus, the Capriner that is disturbed shall not be put to a Quaere Impedit, but may have Remedy upon the Roll, by Scias facias: It is otherwise on an Agreement to present. Stat. Judic. 22 Ed. 4. 8. If Tenant in Tail suffers an Ulteration, and dies, and six Months pate, the Issue in Tail cannot bring Quaere Impedit, but at the next Avoidance he may have it within the six Months. 48 Aflh. 4. This Writ is all in the Poissiory; and the Preceptum of Grantee of the next Avoidance is a good Title for the Grantor and Patron in Fee to bring it in and like Rights for his Heirs, and other Grantees. 9 Hen. 7. 31. 5 Rep. 07. Preceptum alledged in Leafe for Life, or Years, or it is said in Tenant at Will, is sufficient in Quaere Impedit; so of Tenant in Demise for Five Years, so of Tenants by Sature Merchant, Seple or Eligite, Etc. 21 Ed. 4. 3. 5. Rep. 09. Malory's Quaere Impedit is 55. It supposes both a Poissiory and a Right; and a Plaintiff must allege a Preception in himself; or in those under whom he claims; unless it be in Cafe of Lalie, Etc. In the Declaration of the Plaintiff, it is not sufficient for him to allege, that he, or such a Person from whom he claims, were Seised of the Advowson of the Church, but he must allege a Preception made of one of them; for if he doth not, the Defendant may declare the Preception, and the Reason of this is, that the Defendant, by joining the said Preception to his own Title, is to make appear, that he hath a Right to present now as well as then. Cor. Eam. 116. 8 Rep. 07. Vagby. 57. The Writ must be brought in that County where the Church is; the Patron and Incumbent are to be named in it, the one as he may be dispossessed his Patronage, and the other of his Preception; and it is usual likewise to make the Bishop a Defender, to prevent a Lalie, where the Church is void, preceptum lite: Quaere Impedit shall not lie against the Ordinary.

and Incumbent, without naming the Patron; because at Common Law the Incumbent could not plead any Thing which concerned the Right of Patronage, and therefore it is unreasonable that he alone should be named in the Writ who could not defend the Patronage; but the Stat. 25 Ed. 3. c. 7, enables him to plead against the King, and to defend his Incumbency, although he claims nothing in the Patronage; and by that Statute he shall plead against any common Person; though with this Difference, that when the Inheritance of the Patronage is to be devolved by a Judgment in a Queu Impedit, he must be named in the Writ; but where the next Presentation only is to be recovered, he need not be named: Yet where the King presents without a Title, and his Clerk is indicted, the Queu Impedit is to be against the Ordinary and Incumbent; for it will not lie against the King; but if he is Plaintiff, the Writ may be brought against the Patron alone, without naming the Incumbent. 7 Rep. 25. 2 Cre. 650. Palm. 506. If the Church be full of a Predestination, so that there is no Danger of Lapley, the Bishop need not be named in a Queu Impedit; but it is otherwise where it stands upon a Disputance only: And though this Writ will lie against a Patron alone; yet in a common Case, where any Clerk is precluded and indicted, the Incumbent shall not be removed, without naming him also. Sdb. 380. Gist. 235. 3 T. K. Cen. 200. The only Plea which the Bishop has against the Common Law is a Queu Impedit, and that is, that he claims nothing but as ordinary; he could not counterplead the Patron's Title, or any Thing to the Right of Patronage, nor could the Incumbent counterplead his Title, till the said Stat. 25 Ed. 3. by which both the Bishop and the Incumbent may counterplead the Title of the Patron; the one, when he collates by Lapse, or makes Title himself to the Patronage; and the other being Per a imprestanta, may plead his Patron's Title, and counterplead the Title of the Plaintiff: And it has been adjudged, that the Incumbent cannot plead to the Title of the Patronage, without shewing that he is Per a imprestanta of the Predestination of the Patron, W. F. 13 March 159. 3 Nis. Abp. 38. In a Queu Impedit, though it was found that the Church was full of another, who was a Stranger to the Writ, and it did not appear whether he came in by a better Title than that which was found for the Plaintiff, the Court determined for the Plaintiff, so forth in the Queu Impedit. And the general Writ to the Bishop, which he is bound by Law to execute, or shall be amerced, &c. and he cannot shew, that the Church is full of another, till no Ilue can be joined between the Bishop and the Plaintiff, because he has no Day in Court. 6 Rep. 51. 3 Lem. 166. But where a Plaintiff recovered an Adowment in Erection, and thereupon had a Writ to the Bishop, there being another Incumbent in the Church, who was not a Party to the Adjourn; adjourns, so that this Writ would not lie without a prior Process to the Incumbent. Sid. 93. If it appears in a Queu Impedit, either in Pleading, or by Confession of the Parties, that neither of them have a Title, but that it is to the King: the Court may award a Writ to the Bishop for the King, to remove the Incumbent, and admit some new Person in obstruction. But this must be when his Title is very plain. Hob. 145. 1 Lem. 237. In a Queu Impedit, the Plaintiff and Defendant are both Accrues, so that the Defendant may have a Writ to the Bishop, as well as the Plaintiff; but without a Title appearing to the Court; wherefore if the Defendant never appears, the Plaintiff must make out a Title for Form-take, and to must the Defendant if the Paper be produced. Hob. 145. 3 Lem. 3. If the Plaintiff, after Appearance, in a Queu Impedit be nonsuit, it is peremptory because the Defendant upon a Title made, whereby he becomes Afoor, shall have a Writ to the Bishop: And it is the same in Case of a Discontinuance. 7 Rep. 27. It is the Nature of a Queu Impedit to be final, either upon its Discontinuance or Nonadmital; and no man can have two Things for the same Thing in this Case against one Person, though he may have several Queu Impedits against several Persons. 7 Rep. 27. Hob. 137. The Patron, Patron, and Ordinary are feed; the Ordinary disclaims, the Patron looses by Default; the Plaintiff shall have Judgment to recover his Presentation, and a Writ issue to the Bishop, &c. with a Caffex execution, until the Plea is determined between the Plaintiff and Patron. Fugue 6. Several were Plaintiffs in a Queu Impedit, the Defendant pleaded the Release of one of them pending the Writ; and it was resolved, that this Release shall only bar him who made it, and that the Writ shall stand good for the Rest. 5 Rep. 97. In a Queu Impedit against the Archibishop, the Bishop, and three Defendants; the Archibishop pleaded that he claimed nothing but as Metropolitan; and the Bishop pleaded that he claimed nothing but as Ordinary; and the three Defendants made a Title; but there was a Verdict against them: It was a Question, Whether the Writ of Execution should be awarded to the Archibishop, and the Bishop; and it was held, that the neither of them are Parties in Interest, it may be directed to either; but if the Bishop is Party in Interest, it must be directed to the Bishop only. 6 Rep. 46. 3 Gala. 174. And if the Bishop of Canterbury be Plaintiff in a Queu Impedit, the Writ must be directed to the Archibishop of York, &c. Show. 359. If the Defendant pleads No disturba, which is in Effect the General Issue in a Queu Impedit, this will be only a Defence of the Wrong with which he stands charged, and is so far from compelling the Plaintiff to prove his Case in it, that the Plaintiff may fairly press a Writ to the Bishop, or maintain the Disputance in order to recover Damages. Hob. 162. There must be a Disputance to maintain this Action: In a Queu Impedit, the Patron declared upon a Disputance of him to present 1 November: the Incumbent pleaded, that 1 May next after the Predestination was on the Queen by Lapse, and the presented him to the Church, &c. And upon Demurrer the Plea was held ill; because the Defendant had not confessed and avoided, nor shewn a sufficient Disputance. But in a Queu Impedit, the Plaintiff may press a Writ to the Bishop, or maintain the Disputance in order to recover Damages. If the Defendant pleads No disturba, which is in Effect the General Issue in a Queu Impedit, this will be only a Defence of the Wrong with which he stands charged, and is so far from compelling the Plaintiff to prove his Case in it, that the Plaintiff may press a Writ to the Bishop. 1 May next after the Predestination was on the Queen by Lapse, and the presented him to the Church, &c. In a Plea of Quaere Impeydis, Days are given from 15 to 16, or from three Weeks to three Weeks, according to the Distance of Place: And if the Disbarber come not in on the great Diffir, a Writ is to be sent to the Bishop, that he claim not to the Prejudice of the Plaintiff for that Time; and upon Recovery, Judgment is to be given to the Party to recover the Presentation and Adowment. Stat. 31 H. 5. c. 12. A Roll Ab. 377. And Damages are given in a Quaere Impeydis, by the Stat. of Wilm. 2. c. 5, though Damages shall not be had against the Bishop, where he claims nothing but as ordinary, and is no Disbarber. 2 Lev. 49. Before this Statute no Damages were allowed in a Quaere Impeydis; and the King hath now, for this Day, aliquando ad damamum, &c. he is not within that Statute; because by his Prerogative he cannot lose his Preemption. 6 Rep. 481. If a Privity have a Veredict, and the Church is found to be vacant, the Paris may have the Frums of his Preemption, and so be invited to Damages; in which Case, a Remittitur de damamum is entered, &c. That the Plaintiff shall have a Writ to the Bishop and this is the final Judgment, that goes to the Right between the Parties, and is the Judgment at Common Law: And Judgments for Damages, since the Stat. of Wilm. 2. after the Points of the Writ are inquired into; which Judgment is not to be reversed but at the Instance of the Party, &c. Mod. 454. 255. The Points to be inquired of, where the Jury find for the Plaintiff, &c. are, of whom, and upon what Premuim the Presentation is full; how long space it was void; the yearly Value of the Church, &c. which being found, Damages are to be given accordingly. 6 Rep. 51. No Costs are recoverable in Quaere Impeydis, because of the great Damages given by the Statute of Wilm. 2. c. 5, which ordains, that when six Months pass hanging a Quaere Impeydis, &c. so that the Bishop presents by Layle, the Party shall recover Damages, in two Years Value of the Church; otherwise to have only Half a Year’s Value. See 10 Rep. 35. Where Judgment is given to have a Writ to the Bishop in Quaere Impeydis; it shall not be reversed upon a Writ of Error brought upon the whole Judgment, though the Judgment by the Statute for Damages be erroneous and reversed. 7 & 8 Pleas R. 1. A Quaere Impeydis was brought against two, one of them called an Eadon, and idem dare data 58 to the other, &c. Then an Attachment in aid against them, not appearing at the Day, and Process continued to the Stat. Cap. 4. which being returned, and the Paris not appearing, it was ruled that final Judgment should be entered according to the Stat. 52 H. 5. But by an Order to discharge this Rule, because the Defendants were not summoned either upon the Attachment or grand Disbarber, the Statute being only the forensic Names of John Dyer and Richard Dyer, the Judgment was not final; for the Deign of the Statute was to have Process duly executed, and that must be with Notice, &c. And when the Right is for a Fine; this concluded, this being to fatal, the Process must never be suffered to be a Thing of Course, &c. 1 Mod. 428. A Writ of Quaere Impeydis is had against two Persons; one does not appear, and the Grand Disbarber, the other pleads in Bar; there shall be a Writ to the Bishop for the Plaintiff, without his making any Title, by Stat. March, cap. 12. If the Bar pleaded by the other Defendant is found for him, he shall have his Writ to the Bishop; and their two Persons being admitted, instituted and induced upon the Writ, shall try their Right in an Affidavit, or Trefpa. 9 Ed. 49. 359. To many Defendants in a Quaere Impeydis plead several Bars, and one of them is found against the Plaintiff, and the other with him; he shall have his Writ to the Bishop. If there are many Defendants, pleading several Bars; the Plaintiff shall not have Judgment before all the Bars are tried; for though some be for the Plaintiff, others may be found against him, and he cannot have Judgment without good Title. F. N. B. 50. Hol. 70. When one recovers in a Quaere Impeydis against an Incumbent, the Incumbent is so removed by the Judgment, that the Recoverer may presume without any Thing further; but the Incumbent conceives the Incumbents of faits; till such Preemption is made: And if the Plaintiff in this Suit be instituted upon a Writ to the Bishop, the Defendant cannot appeal; if he doth, a Prohibition lies; because in this Case, the Bishop acts as the King’s Minister, and not as a Judge. 2 Roll. as of Forbaid for Term of his Life; and the said C.
and W. quitting to therse sides, evertowards the Fines right of the said Church commences accursed, by the Death or Resignation of, &c. the left Incumbent, and yet is void:
And for that Resign, it was made to the said C. to the Bishop, who within six Months after the Vacayon of a Benefice, consents it upon his Clerc, whilst two others are contesting at Law for the Right of Pre after a Recovery in a Quaere Impedit, or Affile of Derrin Prefemation, against the Bishop that thus ad thereupon have a Ne Admits; and if the Bishop after the Receipt of such Write, admit the Clerk of any other Perfon without a Verdict in a Jure Patron the Bishop to disincumber the Church. F. N. B. and if the Plaintiff be Nonful in a Quaere Incubra first Declaration. 5. 48. After a Ne Ad may present his Clerk for Lapel, and shall not be charged by the Write of Quaere Incumbent for the Bishop does incumber the Church, there where there no Dispute about it, yet this Write Quaere Incumbent Quaere non Admits, is A Write which lies against the Quaere Impedit, or other Action, and the Bishop a Quaere Impedit, and a Write is awarded to the Bi him, and have his Damages. Dyer 260. King him; upon which the King brought a Quaere non one having episcopal Authority in that Place, and therefore he could not admit the King's Clerk: It was Quo warranto. It's a Writ which lies against Pardon or Corporation, that infringes any Privileges or Liberty against the King, without good Title; and it brings against the Quarters to show by other things.

Right and Title they hold or claim such Franchise or Liberty: It is also lies for Misfeasor, or for Nonfeasance, as before, & the King and by the King's Bract, it may be brought against one that intrudes himself as Herit into Land, &c. Old Nat. Br. 149. Finch 332. 2 Eq. 579. The Statute of Qua Warrants is the 18 Ed. 3, which is restraint upon 2 Eq. 494, 495. &c. And the Attorney General may exhibit a Qua Warrant in the Crown Office against any particular person, or the House of Parliament, or the Corporation, who shall claim or use any Franchises, Privileges or Liberties, not having a legal Grant or Preemption for the same; and compel them by Process to appear in the Crown Office, and file Caution or fine for by way of Pleading what Title they have to the Privileges claimed, and Issue shall be joined and tried therein by Nisi Prius, or the Plea be determined by the Judges on Demurrer, as in other Cases: But though on Demurrer, &c. the Question be determined for the Defendant, yet he has no Costs allowed him; in such case, he must be bound for the Information, and pay large Costs to the Proctor. Legis. Legat. 147, 148, 157. But this is altered by statute 9 Ann. It hath been adjourned, that the Stat. 4 & 5 Wm. 11, c. 18, by which Information in the Crown Office are not to be filed without express Order in open Court, &c. being a remedial Law, extends to Information in the Nature of a Qua Warrant, which is made to exhibit as an Information of some Franchise; and it is the General Practice not to make such an Order for an Information, without first making a Return upon the Petition, and then complained of to the Court, as to the same; nor is there any Rule to show Cause to the contrary; and this Rule is grounded on an Affidavit of the Office, &c. and if the Person on whom the Rule is made and personally appears, he shall be bound to satisfy the Court of Affidavit, that there is no reasonable Cause for the Prosecution, the Court generally grants the Information; and upon special Circumstances, will grant it against an Information of a Qua Warrant, on the ground of such Rule; as if they purpose abstain themselves, &c. But if the Party on whom such a Rule is made, throw to the Court a reasonable Cause against such Prosecution; as against a Qua Warrant Information, that his Right in the Franchise in Question hath been already determined on a Mandamus; or been acquiesced in as a Custom, or ever, or that he has been in the Right of others which hath not been tried; or that the Franchise no way concerns the Publick, but is wholly of private Nature, &c. the Court will not generally grant the Information. 3 Hen. P. C. 262, 263. A Qua Warrant was brought for Vexation, on Forty-eight Points; and the Court on Motion, ordered that the Proctor should prove that such a Warrant, and bring a new one, and therein insist only upon three Points: but that he might proceed to Trial upon his new Qua Warrant, in such Time as he might have done upon the old. Hild. 215. G. R. 2. Litt. Ab. 414. A Qua Warrant requires to know of the Defendant by what Authority he claims the Liberty, and charges him with the wrongful Umparison of them: in a Qua Warrant to show by what Authority a Person claimed to have a Court-Lient, and alluding further good ufperopsis Libertatem ficta uspfusit conueget, &c. the Defendant pleaded Non uspfusit and it was objected that this was no good Plea, for that the Answer to a Qua Warrant is either to claim or disclaim; but the better Opinion was, that the Defendant had answered the Information, though it did not show by what Title he had claimed. Gnd. 91. In Qua Warrants for suing a False and Malignant, and taking Toll, Issue was taken, whether they had Toll by Prefiguration, or not: and it was found that they had; and it was moved in Arrest of Judgment, that there was a Disconsequence, because there was no Issue as to the other Liberties, claimed: But it was held, they were not sufficient to make this Objection, and that there can be no Disconsequence against the King by Bract, by virtue of his Prerogative, the Attorney General may proceed to take Issue upon the Rest, or may enter a Nulli Prope; but if he will not proceed, the Court may make a Rule on him, and then there may be a special Entry made of it. Harde 504. 3 Nis. Abr. 43. A Motion was made for an Information in the Nature of a Qua Warrant, against a Mayor and Alderman, to be heard by what Authority they admitted Persons to be Freemen of the Corporation, who did not inhabit in the Borough: The Motion was rejected, as it would be against the Common Law, &c. and an Information was granted, there being no other Way to try it, nor to redress the Parties concerned. 1 Salk. 174. A Qua Warrant Information may be brought against a Person voting in the Election of a Mayor, or other Chief Magistrate of a Corporation, that hath no Right to do it, upon Affidavit made that the Defendant voted in such an Election, and that the Deponent the Proctor believes he had no Right to do it, &c. and by Statute 9 Ann. e. 26. If any Person shall interfere, or be party to any Information, by Lawfully or by the Office of a Mayor, Ballif, or other Office in any Town Corporate or Place in England, the proper Officers of the Court shall be seized of the Information, and proceed to hear the same, to the end that such Person be punished, and proceed as usual: and if the Right of diverse Persons may properly be determined in one Information, one Information shall serve, and the Defendants shall appear, and plead as of the same Town: &c. the Information is filed, unless the Court give further Time; and the Proctor shall proceed with all convenient Speed; and if the Defendant be found guilty of an Information, the said Costs may be well given Judgment of Ouster, &c. and if the Defendants, and also give Judgment that the Defendant shall recover his Costs: And if Judgment be given against the Relator, the Defendants shall have Costs to be levied by Casps ad Satisfaction. Fieri facias, &c. In a Qua Warrant, the Judgment is given by the Court, and the Dismissal of the Information, in the Nature of a Qua Warrant, is not conclusive: The Proceedings in one are Summons, and Judgment that the Liberties be settled, if the Defendant does not appear; but in the other the Proctors is a Fieri facias and Discharge. Ibid. 86. 11 Cro. 159. 3 Nis. Abr. 43. Upon Qua Warrant, where the Proctor is to be heard, and they do not reply them the Court is, that Judgment shall be given, Nisi they plead within such a time. Camberwell 18, 19. Wherever judgment is given for the King on a Qua Warrant, for Liberties usurped, the Judgment is an extinguto, and that the Usurers Libertatis, &c. mutatis intermissatis; and in the Case, the Writ must be brought against particular Persons: But where the Qua Warrant is for a Liberty claimed by a Corporation, there it is to be brought against the Body Politick; and the Liberties may be settled, but the Corporation shall suffer, and it is not dissolved without Caution of Forfeiture, 2 Med. 52, 58. A Judgment of Seilref cannot be proper where a Thing is dissolved: And by the Judgment of the Court of London, which was good Libertatis & Franchises ex parte & infra, in mains Reg, the Corporation was not dissolved; for it is implied that they were not exiguified, Ibid. It has been observed, that frequent and violent Prosecutions on Qua Warrant, in behalf of the Crown, have been fatal to both King and People.

Five and Ransom go together, and some Words tell as that they are the same; but others say, that the Offender ought to be first imprisoned, and then delivered or ransomed in Consideration of a Fine. 1 Stat. 127. The Rape of Chechford, Arrawd, Brammer, Lewis, Pescotty and Hufnings; every of which, besides Hundreds, hath a Castle, River, and Forest belonging to it. Camden Brit. 233, 259. These Rapes are incident to the County of Suffys; as Lathe is to Kead, and Wependal to Yobere, &c.

Rape of the Assizes. (Rapts Forets) Trefpads comminued in the Foret by Violence; and it is reckned among those Crimes, whose Cognisance belonged only to the King—inter dicta numeratur, quorum cognitio ad antiquum Regem spectat. Leg. Hen. 1. c. 10.

Rape of Citizens, is an unlawful and carnal Knowledge of a Woman, by Force and against her Will: A Violation of the Body, and violent deflowering her; which is felony by Common and Statute Law. C. C. L. 110. And the Word Rape is so appropriated by Law to this Offence, that it cannot be expressed by any other; even the Words Carnaliter Coitum, &c. without it, will not be sufficient. 1 Stat. 124. 2 Stat. 180. There must be Penetration and Emisson, to make this Crime; and it is said Emisson may be Evidence prima facie of Penetration, & not full Evidence: If there be Penetration and Emisson, an Attempt to ravish a Woman, though it be never so outrageous, will be an Assailut only. 1 Hen. P. C. 108. It was a Question before 13 Edw. c. 7, whether a Rape could be committed on the Body of a Child of the Age of six or seven Years; and a Person being indicted for the Rape of a Girl of seven Years old, although he was found guilty, the Court doubted whether a Child of that Age could be ravished; if the had been nine Years old the might, for that Age the may be removed. 14 Edw. c. 12. But the Stat. 15 Edw. whooever shall carnally know or receive any Woman Child under the Age of ten Years, he shall suffer as a Felon, without Benefit of Clergy: And upon an Indictment for this Offence, it is no way material whether the Child contented, or were forced; but it must be proved that the Offender entered her Body. &c. 3 Car. 1. 1 Stat. 332. 2 Stat. 353. In Rape, it is no Excuse or Mitigation of the Crime, that the Woman at last yielded to the Violence, and consented either after the Fall or before. If such her Consent was forced by Fear of Death or of Durance; or that she was a common Strumpet, for the is still under the Punishment of the Law, and may be forced: But it was ancienly held to be no Rape to force a Man’s own Concubine; and it is by some to be Evidence of a Woman’s Consent, that she was a common Whore. 1 Henw. 108. 1 Stat. 123. Also for merly it was adjudged not to be a Rape to force a Woman, who conceived at the Time; because if she had not conceived, she could not have conceived: Though this Opinion hath been since quelled, by Reason the previous Violence is no way exausated by such a subsequent Consent: and if it were necessary to show that the Woman did not conceive, to make the Crime, the Offender could not be tried till such Time as it might appear whether she did or not. 1 Stat. 192. The former Opinion is made of a Rape the best: In Scotland it ought to be complained of the same Day or Night it is committed; and our Law mentions forty Days: It is a strong Prohibition against a Woman, that the made no Complaint in a Reasonable Time after the Fact. 1 Inf. 143. 2 Inf. 19. H. P. C. 117.
On a Charge of Conspiracies, &c., where a Defendant did not infect the Plaintiff for a Rape, in a short Time after the injury supposed to be done, but concealed it for a Half a Year, and then would have preferred an Indict- ment against him; this was resolved to be malicious, and that there not being Relevus reprimae argued a Con- tent. 3 Nelf. Ab. 45. A Woman ravel'd may pro- fecure, and become an Excuse. 2 Rich. 3 Elaji. 3 El. 37.
Yet A Woman's positive Oath of a Rape, without concurring Circumstances, is seldom credited: If a Man can prove himself to be in another Place, or in another Company, at the Time he charges him with the Fact, this will overthrow her Oath; if she is wrong in the Description of the Place, or swears the Fact to be committed in a Place where he was, he should have the upon Oath; but the Credibility of her Testimony, and how the fact in her Belief, must be left to the Jury, being more or less credible according to the Circum- stances of Fact, and Signs of the Injury, which are many; and tho' a Rape is a most detestable Crime, it is an Accusation easily made, and hard to be proved, but harder to be defended by the Man accused, altho' ever so innocent: And there are several Instances of Repeal

Records, (Records, from the Lat. Registrum, to remember, or to cause to be remembered,) is a Memorial or Remembrance, or an anotchick Testimony in Writing, contained in Rolls of parchment, and preferred in a Court of Record, Brittan. c. 27. It is a Writing in Parchment, wherein are enrolled Pleadings of Land, or Criminal Proceedings in Courts of Records; and Records are restrained to such Courts only, and do not extend to the Rolls of Inferior Courts. The Registrity of Proceedings wherein are not properly called Records, 1 Lev. 260. 2 Litt. Abr. 418. And there are said to be three Kinds of Records, viz. a Record judicial, as an Amicorum, &c. a Record ministerial upon Oath, being an Office or Inquisition found; and a Record made by Conveyance and Custom, as a Fine, or a Deed inrolled, 4 Rep. 54. But it hath been held, that a Deed inrolled, or a Deed in Chancery inrolled, is not Records, but a Deed and a Deed recorded; and there is a Difference between a Record and a Thing recorded, 1 Litt. 421. Records being the Rolls or Memorials of the Actions, import in themselves fact only, without the introite of any extraneous Verity, that they admit of no Proof or Aversion to the contrary, infomuch that they are to be tried only by themselves, whereas in many there would be no End of Controversie: But during the Term wherein any judicial Act is done, the Roll is alterabile in that Term, as the Judges shall direct when the Term is over, and may be altered, or the Alteration, or Proof that it is false in any Instance, 1 Lev. 260. 2 Reg. 32. Litt. 422. A segued Recovery, which is the Recovery intended here, is a formal Act by Convent, used for the better Affurance of Lands and Tenures. C. 2. It is a segued Suit and Judgment upon a real Action brought in the Common Place Court, by one against another that is seized of the Freehold, to cut off and destroy Eateis-Tail, Remains and Reversion, and to bar the former Owners thereof. 1. Inf. 154. Accou. Conv. 1. Vol. 108. And it is called a Common Recovery, because it is a common Path to that End for which it was ordained, viz. to cut off Eateis-Tail, &c. Alfo it is by Custom be- come a Common Conveyance of Lands; and is much favoured by the Law, many of the Inheritances of the Kingdom depending upon these Affurances. 3. Rep. 40. 41. This Recovery, it is said, was intro- duced in the Time of Hen. 8. But some Authors mention it to be 'eal'd much earlier; and was framed by the Wisdom and Policy of our Law, whereby the there be a Judgment of a Court, it is not in an ad- versary Manner, but by the Convent and Permission of the Parties; which is the Reason we generally lay, that a Recovery is to be suffered: But though this judg- ment is fictitious as to any actual Litigation upon which it is had; yet it is given upon a real writ brought, and that Judgment according to the Rules of the Common Law. Jenk. Conv. 250. 257. 1 Rep. 131. Attain. Compan. 231. And Common Recoveries suppoze a Recompence in Value, to all Persons that lost the Eateis, which has been held to be the principal Cause why they bar; and being become the common Affurances of the Nation, shall not be taken so fictitious as real Recoveries are. 2. Litt. Abr. 425. The Right of Recovery, id est, the power of delivery all Estates in Remainder, &c. and Incumbrances derived out of them, that one may sell, give or devite the Eateis in Fee, or in what Manner he pleases; and the Recompence adjudged over shall go in Succession of the Eateis, as the Land lost should have done, and then it would not be reasonable for the Heir, &c. to have the Land and Recompence in Value also; there- fore he lotheth the Land, and mustt trueth to the Recom- pence. 1. Rep. 62. 3. Rep. 61. 6 Rep. 42. This suppoze Recompence is the Reason why a Common Recovery is so much valued to all that are in Remainder or Reversion, as well as the Illeis in Tail; whereas a Fine bars only the Heirs in Tail, and not those in Remainder or Reversion, unless upon Non-claim in due Time. Wood's Inf. 252. A late Author says, the Recompence in Value, is the true Reason for barring the Illeis in Tail, on suffering a common Re- covery, but not for the Remainders, &c. to which the Recovery does not extend: And that a Re- covery by Tenant in Tail, bars the Eateis Tail, and all Remainders and Reversioners thereupon expectant; because at Law, that which is now a Tail Eateis, was a Conditional Fee; and no Remainder could come after it, for a Fee by the Rules of Law cannot be created on a Fee. Pigeon. Com. Recov. 13. 21. And a Recovery disaffirms all the Title of him against whom it is had; and this so strongly, that if there be three or four Deficients after 'tis suffered, yet the Recovery may come, for the Recovery binds the Blood, and dis- approves the Title. Ibid. 18. It is also said by the same Author, that the Ufe of Common Recoveries, is to reduce Estates to that Parity and Condition they were in by the Common Law, and evade many Incum- brances: without which a Tenant in Tail cannot make a Jointure on his Wife, nor any Provision for Children, or even for paying the Remainder. Pigeon. Pigge. 20. A Common Recovery is the bettt Affurance (ex- cept an Act of Parliament) that a Man can have; and it may be had of such Things, for the most part, as paid by a Fine: An Ufe may be raied upon a Re- cevery, as well as on a Fine, &c. and the fame Rules are generally to be observed and followed for the guid- ing and disposing of a Recovery, as are ob- served for the Guidance and Direction of a Fine. Walf. Symb. Inf. 2. 3. 1 Rep. 15. There must be three Persons, the Writer of the Recov., the Tenant of the Recovery, a Recoveror, a Recoveror, and a Vocher; the Recoveror is the Plaintiff or Demandant, that brings the Writ of Entry for Diffirin, &c. The Recoveror is the De- fendant or Tenant of the Land, against whom Writ is brought, and he must be perfect Tenant of the Freehold; and the Vocher is he to whom the De- fendant or Tenant voucheth or calls to Warrant of the Land in Demand, either to defend the Right, or yield him other Lands in Value according to a sup- pozed Agreement. 1. Inf. 101. Now to suffer a Re- covery, the Tenant of the Freehold agrees with the Demandant (usually some Friend) that he shall bring his Action real against him, as though he be the De- mandant had good Right to the Land, and the Te- nant no Right of Entry to the same, but on a Diffirin which a Stranger, one High Awa or Edition Dif- fessor, had unjustly made: though the Demandant never had Poiffelion thereof, nor the Stranger: The Tenant appearing to the Writ vouches to Warranty A. B. the Cryer of the Court, or the Bay-bearer of Writs to the Cafis Breviam, who is called the common Vocher, and is in the Writ of Entry for the Vochers who shall appear, as though he would defend the Title, and the Demandant exhibits a Declaration against him, who thereupon prays a Day to make his Defense; but on the Day given by the Strange. he makes Default, and the Plaintiff or Demandant hath Judgment to re- cover the Land against the Defendant or Tenant in 'Tail, and he to recover in Value against the common Vocher, which is the infirmt of Suits for the right or Poiffelion of the Lands, &c. Yet this Recovery in Va- lue is only imaginary, because the common Vocher had no Lands to render in Value; as though it is taken for a Bar of the Tail for ever, and is said to be good in Consequence as well as Law, notwithstanding the Stat. Wilm. 1. cap. 2. wherein it is provided, that the Writ of the Vochers is to be suffered; 2. Litt. Abr. 426. &c. all is not to be observed. Diz. &c. Stud. cap. 26. 10 Rep. 37. 38. 1. Inf. 224. To every Recovery there must be a good Tenant to the Prae- cipe, or it will be void. 2. Litt. Abr. 425. If the Tenant be not a good Tenant, this is Divit, but it is to be made by Lease and Release, Bargain and Sale insrolled, Fine, &c. so as he may thereby become Tenant in Poiffelion of the Land. And if the Ten- ant to the Prae- cipe gains a Freehold before Judgment, it is sufficient: Alfo where a Prae- cip was made by a Fine, and a Common Recovery suffered, and after- wards in a Writ of Error that Fine was reversed; although this was allowed for Error to reverse the Recovery, it was adjudged that the Recovery was good, for there was a Tenant to the Prae- cipe at that Time, 2. Salk. 528. There is no Occasion of setting forth a Lease and Release to make a Tenant to the Prae- cipe, because where a Mas claims under a common Recovery it will be intended that there was a good Tenant to the Prae- cipe till the contrary is shown; and rather than the Recovery shall fail, they shall be in- tended to be Tenants to the Prae- cipe by Diffirin, especially if it is alluded in the Pleadings that they are Tenants libri Terementi. 3 Rep. 59. 2. Mod. 70. Aduant tenant is a sufficient Averment in the pleading a Common Recovery; but it is not so when the same Recovery is made in the praecipe, as it is considered and incongruous with it. 1. Mod. 418. A Defendant pleaded a Title under a Common Re- covery, in which he set forth the Lease and Release to the Tenant to the Prae- cipe, and the Writ of Entry, and the particular Proceedings upon it, the Judgment, Writ of Seisin, &c. And it was a Question, whether it might have been pleaded in a Baron Manner.

this ball bar the Remainder and rReversion in Fee too though he in Remainder or RevEnon did never affice to the Remainder. And if Tenant for Life furnish to him in Remainder in Tail, he may bind the Remainder and Reversion expedient upon his Estate, 1 Rep. 15. 2 Rep. 60. 1 Inf. 562. But if Tenant for Life alone suffer a Recovery, without the Assent of him in Remainder, the Recovery will be void.

And if a Recovery be had against Tenant for Life and a Remainder man in Tail, (not being vouched by Tenant for Life, and they have the common Voucher; the Recovery thus suffered doth not bar the fatal, nor the Remainder over, neither are the llls in Tail barred by it. 3 Est. Gez. 690. If Tenant for Life suffers a common Recovery by Consent and Consent between both Tenant and the Recoverer this is a Voucher of his Effort, and he in the Recovery may enter presently. And all Recoveries have by Agreement of the Parties by Consent, against Tenants in Tail after Possibility of llls, extant, Tenants by the Curtesy, or for Term of Life, or Lives, or shall be void against them. But all recoveries, by Tenant for Life, a common Recovery by Consent, in which a Tenant in Tail was vouched. 1 Rep. 15. Tenant for Life, Remainder in Tail, Remainder in Fee; the common Recovery in which the llls in Tail was vouched of. 1 Inf.

And it was objected, that the Remainder man in Fee was not vouched by this Recovery, because the Statute 14 Eliz. grants. That Recoveries suffered by Tenant for Life, shall be void against those in Recovery or Remainders and the Privy council that quarters extend to land only chose in Remainder who suffer to the Recoverer in Remainder, in Tail was vouched in this Recovery, it was adjudged, that he in Remainder in Fee was barred, as he would have been if the Tenant in Tail had been the first Tenant to the Promiss, instead of the Tenant for Life; which judgment was affirmed in Error in the Exchequer-Chamber. After Goo. A Father devised his Lands to his Son B. for Life, and after his Death to the life of his Body, Bt. And for Want of such Issue, Remainder over B. suffered a common Recovery and so to the Estate that B. had, two judges held, he had only an Estate for Life, because such an Issue was expressly devised to him; but Hooke Chief Justice held, that he had an Estate tail by Implication, and by Construcion the Recovery was well suffered, for the Words Issue of his Body, and whose which follow, min. For want of such Issue, make an Estate tail by Implication; though judgment was given according to the Opinion of the Judges, which was afterwards reversed in the Exchequer-Chamber, on the Opinion of the Chief Justice. H. 2. 22. 25. 3. 22. 256. A Man made a Partement in Fee, to the Life of himself for Life, after his eldest Son in Tail, Remainder to his right Heirs, he not having then any Son: Afterwards he suffered a Recovery, and Issue a Son, who died in the Life of his Father, leaving a Son, and after he himself died; and it was held, that the Son and Heir of the Son should not avoid this Remainder, moreover for them there was not any Remainder in him in the Time of such Recovery. 3 Rep. 12. 22. 124. 3. 81. 82. A Tenant in Tail cannot be refrain from suffering a Common Recovery, 10 Rep. 36. 41. If there be Tenant in Tail, Remainder in Fee, and Remainder or Recovery in Fee and Tenant for Life is implanted by Agreement, and vouchers Tenant in Tail, and he vouches over to the common Voucher; Fines levied, and Render in Fes, is no Bar to him in Remand: for by the Render a new estate is gained, and the Recourse shall not go to the ancien Remand. 1 Cr. 826. Tenant for Life, with B. above, is a Son; the Deman- dant recovered against the Tenant, and the Tenant over in Value: And it was held, that this should have been good. But it hath been adjudged other- wise in such a Case: unless he doth vouch the Donor, or their Heir, who is privy, Cf. 68. 41. 74. 27. 95. 475. If there be Tenant in Tail, Remainder in Fes, and he in Remainder is amiss of Tenor; a Recovery in his Life-time, in which he is Tenant or Voucher, doth not bar the King of his Remainder: So if he die, and his Heirs of his Body be vouched, because the Tail doth not descend upon him. Ibid. A Recovery had against Tenant in Tail of the King's Gift, the Remainder or Remainder being in the King, shall not be a Bar; nor shall the Remainder or Re- version, which at the Time of the Recovery is in the King, be barred by a Recovery. 34 & 35 H. 8. c. 30. But by the Stat. 34 H. 8. the Estate tail is not pre- served, where a Recovery or Remainder is in the King, except it was created by the Crown, and not where it was made by a common Person; for before that Statute a common Recovery barred an Estate tail made by a common Person. 1 C. 72. Abr. 424. The Case upon a Spec- ial known in England was: There was Tenant for Life, Remainder to Husband and Wife, and their Heirs, and the Husband and Wife suffered a Recovery; it was objected, that the Heirs of the Wife were not barred by this Recovery, by Reason she was not Te- nant to the Premises; neither did it appear that she was examined; but it was resolved, that he is concluded to speak again this Recovery, as the joined with her Husband in it, and the Recovery is perfect, and the being Party and privy to the Recovery, her Heirs shall be bound thereby. 319. Husband and Wife, John Johnson for Life, Remainder to the Heirs of the Body of the Husband, Remainder to A. B. in the Tail, the Husband alone suffered a Recovery; and it was held a Bar only as to a Moiety of the Lands, for by the Recovery the Jointure was severed, and the other Moiety was the Freehold of the Wife, so that the Re- covery could not bar the Estate-tail or Remainder, as to that Moiety. 3 Rep. 3, 5, 4. Moir 180. 4 L 2, 32. But when the Husband and Wife have not a joint Estate of Inheritance, and they join in a Fine to make a Tenant to the Premises, and the Recovery is suffered by the Husband alone, that shall be a good Bar to the Remainder. 3 Rep. 15. A Husband and Wife, Tenants in special Tail, Remainder to B. in Tail, Remainder to C. in Fes; the Husband alone levied a Fine to D. died, leaving a Wife; the Wife entered, she is in of her Estate tail; and though the Fine in Tail were barred by the Fine, yet by her En- try B. and C. are vested in their several Remainders; and if she suffers a Recovery, which the lawfulness may, because the hath the whole Estate-tail, those Remain- ders are barred. Hob. 629. 5 Nall. 125. An In- fant it hath been held, cannot suffer a Common Re- covery by Guardian; though if he obtains a Privy Seal for that Purpoe, he himself may. 10 Rep. 43. Hob. 156. A Lease for Years made by him who after suffers a Recovery, is good, and shall not be defeated by the Recovery; but otherwise where the Recovery is by a good Title. 2. Lawe. 65. It was a Doole by 2 Edw. that the Tenant in Tail was not a Brewer for Years, and Tenant in Tail suffers a Recovery, whether the Lease for Years be barred, or no. Because it was said that no Recoverer can go to this, being a Chaste. But it was ruled, that this Recovery should be barred, and that the effect of Experience has been.

2. Lee. 50. 2. Mod. 110. A Recovery bars only where there is a Recoverer in Law; as the Lease is an Interest in Tail, and he in Remainder, Recover. 2. Co. 55. Nor shall a Recovery bar the Heirs, who claim as a Purchaser, and not by Difference; or where there is an executory Estate, which depends upon Contingencies: but it will bar a contingent Remainder. Lawe. 1242. 3. Lest. 397. The Remainder and Interest in some Case of the Court derrified his Lands to B. his second Son, paying no money to C. and if B. died without issue, living A. then to pay upon Lawa. by Writ, B. suffered a Recovery, and it was held that this should not bar A. because he had only a Possibility to have the Estate if he survived. B. dying without issue, which cannot be negatived, B. suffered a Recovery. 2. Co. 590. A common Recovery is adjudged to be no Bar of a Remainder created in a Settlement, as a Security for raising Money; though Remainders are barred by a Recovery, here the Person to whom the Land was limited, were both in Nature of Trustees for Money raised for theire Remainder. Prior. Cae. 433. Yet where a Cysteque Trust in Tail in Possession under the Trustee, who has the Freghold, suffers a Recovery; in which he himself is Tenant, and so no good Tenant to the Principal, this shall bar the Remainder in Fea of the Trustee, and Society will supply that Defect. 2. Chanc. 63. See Prior. Cae. 433. Recoveries are now declared valid in Law, without Contingencies from Leases to make Tenants to the Writs of Entry, &c. and shall be so effectual as if a good Estate of Freghold was granted to any Tenant to a Writ, but they are not so, unless the Persons settled to the first Estate, have lawfully conveyed an Estate for Life in feoff, to the Tenants to any Writs aforesaid. 14 Geo. 17. c. 20. Purchasers of Lands, which are Remainders, are necessary, and all that claim under them, having been in Possession twenty years, may produce Deeds making a Tenant for suffering any Recovery, and declaring the Ueles, which shall be allowed, but the Evidence that the same was duly performed, though it be not regularly entered on Record, &c. Except. And after twenty Years, all common Recoveries shall be good and valid, if it appears there was a Tenent to the Writs, and the Persons placing these in had an Estate sufficient to suffer them, notwithstanding the Deeds thereof are lost. Ibid. A Party who suffered a Recovery, died the 8th Day of Michaelem-Term, between Five and Six in the Morning, upon which Day the Recovery was suffered; and assized good. 1. Rep. 153. & 2. Litt. 415. And the Court at the first Term after the Recovery had; but for gross Error in the Proceedings in Matter of Substance, a Recovery may be avoided by Writ of Error when an Infant, or Femm Covert without her Husband, suffers a Recovery, &c. and it may be also avoided by Pleading, that it was by Covin against Tenant for Life to defeatur him in Remainder; or that he again when the Writ is brought is no Tenant of the Freghold by Right or Wrore; or he that hath the Estate, neither Part or Privy to the Recovery, or because another hath some Estate in the Thing whereof the Recovery is had, &c. Also by Motion to the Court, and praying a Facia of the Judgment, a Recovery may be null and avoided. 8 Rep. 162. 1 Inf. 104. Recoveries shall be adjudged void as any other Conveyance, if suffered by Fraud to deceive Purchasers, &c. And to suffer a Recovery in another Person's Name, not Privy or Conscious to the same, is Felony with out Benefit of Clergy. 21 Jac. 1, cap. 26. And when Dioceses were divided into Parishes in this Kingdom, the Clergy who had the Charge in these Places were called Reeler and afterwards when their Reelers were appropriated to Monastery, &c. the Monks kept the great Tithes; but the Bishops were to take Care that the Reeler's Place should be supplied by another, to whom he was to allow the small Tithes for his Maintenance, and this was the Plan. Receptus who disputed the Authority of the Crown in Causes Ecclesiastical, and denied the King Supremacy, but the Acts of Parliament made against Receptus, particularly the 25 Ed. 3. describe a Receptus to be one that does not repair to some Church or Chapel, or usual Place of Common Prayer, to hear Divine Services: Afterwards the Receiving the Sacrament of the Church was a matter of Test of Conformity: And by the 25 & 26 Car 2. a Declaration against Transubstantiation was required, to diisguish Papists and Papists Realta from Protestants. At this Day all Persons are judged Papist Receptus convicts, who refuse the Oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy, or Abjuration; and are liable to suffer and bear according wise, when they incur a Maimonnia, whereupon they forfeit all their Goods and Chattels, with their Lands, &c. Read Stat. 4. Pemb. pag. 315. Receptus convicts, abide to their Place of Abode or Settlement, and not traveled above five Miles from thence, without Licence from the King, three of the Privy Council, or four Justices of the Peace, with the Assent of the Bishop of the Diocese, or the Lieutenant, or a Deputy Lieutenant of the County, on Pah of forfeiting their Goods, &c. And not having Lands worth twenty Pounds or Goods to the Value of 40l. if they do not make the Submission of Conformity mentioned in 35 Edw. cap. 2. being required by a Justice of Peace, they may be compelled to abjure the Reformation: which Abjuration must be certified to the next Assize; and it is Felony if they do not depart within the Time limited by the Justices, or departing and returning again without the King's Licence; but if any Person offending against that Act, shall before Conviction, come to some Pa- rish Church on a Sunday, and make a publick Declaration of his Conformity, he shall be discharged from all Penalties, &c. though if such Offender afterwards relapse, and become a Recusant again, he shall lose the Benefit he might otherwise have had upon his Submission: And Recusants required by Processe to trave- vel, the Bishop, Lieutenant, or Deputy Lieutenant, who gives his Assent to it, must be a distinct Person from the Justices of Peace that gave the Licence; and therefore if one and the same Person is a Justice of Peace, and Deputy Lieutenant, he cannot act in both Capacities, but if he sign and seal the Licence as a Justice of Peace, and the Assent of some other Deputy Lieutenant, &c. must be had: And it is a good Ex- ception to a Licence by four Justices, that no particular Cause of the Recusant's travelling is explicated in it. Gov. Tact. 253. Cecily 210. A Person was indicted for Recusancy, but convicted before Conviction: And so again the Second Time, and was indicted a third time for a Recusant; and on Motion, that it might be certified into the Exchequer, because by Stat. 35 Edw. it is to lose all the Benefit which he was to have by his former Conformity, the Recusant was certified accordingly. 1 Bulst 151. Justices of Peace in their Sentences are to cause Proclamation to be made, that Papist Recusants shall render themselves to the Sheriff or Bailiff of the Liberty where they are, before the next Assizes or Sessions, &c. And if they do not, the Default being recorded, shall be taken as a sufficient Conviction. 3 Tact. 1. c. 4. And Credentials and Church-waarden of every Parish, or one of three, or if there be none such, or any Credentials given there, are to present once a Year at the Quarter-Sessions such Recusants as shall absent from the Church for a Month together; the Forfeiture thereof is that which is 20l. per Month, &c. Ibd. If a Recusant shall conform, and not receive the Sacrament once a Year at least, he shall forfeit for the first Year 20l. for the second, and 40l. for the third, and so on to 60l. And if after he hath once received it, he make Default therein, the Space of one Year, he shall for- feit 6l. to be recovered at the Quarter-Sessions by Ju- dgment, and divided between the King and the Pro- floressor: But the Husband is not churgeable with the Offence of the Wife; nor the Wife for the Husband after his Death. And he hath been adjudged, that a Writ of Error will not lie on a Conviction of a Recus- ant, for not rendering himself to the Sheriff, &c. be- cause the Conviction is no Judgment, but the Sentence gives Processe upon the Conviction: So that if there be any Faults in it, the same is to be quashed in the Exchequer, the Party first conforming by Stat. 453. An Information new ground was brought against a De- fendant, setting forth that before and on such a Day he was a Recusant convict, and that afterwards he con- formed, &c. and for three Years had not received the Sacrament, and was demoted for every Year he resorted thither. Upon Not guilty pleaded, the Plaintiff had a Ver- dict; and thereupon it was ordered that the Information wi. was incertain, because neither the Time was alleged, nor the Place of his Death, nor the Reason of the Convinion was; and the Informer demands the Penalty for three Years, when by Statute no Informer can demand a Penalty upon the Penal Law, but by an Information within a Year after the Conviction:

But it was resolved, that the first Exception had been good on a Demurrer; but the Defendant having pleaded Not guilty, all the Circumstances of his Conviction were admitted, and that nothing remained to be tried but the Fact: And as for the second Exception, it was good against the Informer for his Part, but should not prejudice the King. 2 Cr. 215. 3 Nift. Ab. 52.

The Stat. 23 Edw. c. 1. gives several Remedies against Recusants: one for the King alone, and there the Protection must be by Indictment in B. R. The other for a common Peron, and that is by Action of Debt, Bill, Plaint or Information: And the 28 Edw. c. 6. was made for the Benefit of the Crown upon Indictments, and doth not extend to Informations: therefore such Informations may be brought in any Court of Record. Nib. 204.

Where the Defendant is indicted on the Statute of Recusancy, Conformity is a good Plea; but not if an Action of Debt be brought. Med. 216. But vide 2 Sher. 332. A Recusant certified into the Court of King's Bench, according to the 23 Edw. shall give Security for his good Behaviour. 2 & 3 B. Jef. 11. See Pophy.

Red Book of the Exchequer. (Liber rubrum Scot. carol.) is an ancient Record, wherein are registered the Names of those that held Lands per Baroniis in King James's Time. Before 1607, it is a manuscript Volume of several Miscellaneous Treatises in the Keeping of the King's Remembrancer in his Office in the Exchequer: and hath some Things (as the Number of the Hides of every County, &c.) relating to the Times before the Conquest. There is likewise an exact Collection of the Exchanges under King Hen. 1. Rich. 2 and King J. Jak.; and the Ceremonies used at the Coronation of Queen Eleanor, Wife to King Hen. the 3d.

Redemption. Is used substantively for the Close of a Lease, whereby the Rent is referred to the Sefor; and anciently Corn, Fleth, Fith, and other Vizuals, were for the most part referred on Leases. 4 Rep. 72. Wood's Inst. 216. In Debt for Rent, the Plaintiff declared upon a Lease made 25 August 11 W. 3. of a Meallage, &c. for seven Years, to commence from the 24th Day of June before; Reddemton Quarrel, between the Plaintiff, St. Thomas's Day, Lady Day, and Midsummer, three Pounds ten Shillings, the full Payment to be made at Michaelmas then next: and assigned for Breach that fourteen Pounds of the said Rent was in Arrear for one Year ending 24 December, Anne 15 Will. And upon Demurrer to this Declaration, it was objected that on this Lease there was no Year could be more upon the 24th of December, but on St. Thomas's Day, according to the Reddamton: which was held to be true, because where special Days are limited in the Reddamton, the Rent must be computed from thse Days, and not according to the Reddamton; and that the Rent is never computed from the Hebben, but when the Reddamton is general, i.e. paying Quarterly to much; to the Plaintiff had Leave to denominate, &c. 4 Chit. 141. See Debt and Redemption.

A Copy of a writ & satisfaction was returned Non de invento against the Principal, and one Scire Facias and a Nickle; and upon the second Scire Facias, he rendered himself, and was received; but if there had been a Scire facies and judgment thereupon, he had come too late. 3 Cray. 109. If a Defendant renders himself to the Marshal of B. R. upon any Action in that Court, in Dicherence of his Bail, the Defendant's Attorney is forthwith to give Notice of such Render to the Plaintiff's Attorney, and shall make Oath of the Notice, &c. And a Reddits &c will not discharge the Bail, unless the Attorney who is concerned for the Defendant or his Bail, enters it in the Marshal's Book; and having given Notice thereof to the Attorney for the Plaintif, brings the Bail Piece to the Secondary, who upon producing of a Note from the Marshal or his Clerk, that the Defendant is in Custody, will discharge it; and until this is done, the Plaintiff may notwithstanding proceed to Judgment and Execution against the Bail; for until the Bail Piece is discharged, there is a Record still remaining in Court against them. 15 Car. 2. 244. Redfisfia, (Redfisfia) Is a Difisfia made by him, who once before was found and adjudged to have disfisfied the fame Aths of his Lands or Tenements for which there lies a special Writ called a Writ of Redfisfia. Old Nat. Br. 106. F. N. B. 188. The Writ of Redfisfia lies where a Person doth recover by Affiit or Novel Difisfia any Lands, Rent, or Common, &c. and is put in Pofficion thereof by Verdict and Judgment, and afterwards he is disfisfied of the fame by him to whom he was disfisfied before Statute of Morton, c. 3. New Nat. Br. 417. Alto this Writ lies against him who committed the Redfisfia, and another who was not Disfisfier, if he be Tenant of the Land; and if a Man do recover by Redfisfia, and after he is disfisfied again by the Person who made the first Redfisfia, he shall have a new Writ of Redfisfia; and to one Redfisfia after another, every Time he is redifisfied is 419, 420. And the Redfisfia being found on the Sheriff's Inquisition, the Party to which it did it is to be committed to Prinon, and the Lands re- fetched; and he who redifisfies, doth pay Difisfia to double Damages, &c. Stat. Ws. 2. c. 56. The Punishment for Redfisfia is to be in the Statute 52 H. 3. c. 6. If a Plaintiff be redifisfied of Parcel of the Tenements lately recovered, he shall have a new Redfisfia: And when Coparceners be disfisfied, and recover in an Affidavit. If after they make Partition and are severally distinct, they may bring several Writs of Re-Entry, &c. As a Rule, if the Affidavit of Novo Distinctio is against two Distinctio, and one of them defiles the Plaintiff again, he may have a Distinctio against him. The Second Distinctio is against a Woman in an Affidavit, and the trusty Husband, and both of them defile the Plaintiff, he shall not have this Writ; because the Husband is also, and not the same 4th Distinctio, &c. And if it be a Writ of Right, &c. the Demander makes his Presentation to see in his Natures of Legal, and after is referred; he shall not have a Writ of Distinctio, that Writ of Right not being in Writ of Novo Distinctio. 2 Inf. See Pag Distinctio.

Rejectors, Are those that buy rotten cloth, and turn it into some other Colour or Fashion, that may not be known again. Britton, cap. 29. Inf. 134.

Rejectors, (from the Fr. Recusant, i. e. recusus in recusus) is the Returns or Retaking a Possession lately had; as if a Man may have a Writ of Lands, &c. to another, he thereby quits the Possession; and if he convenes with the Leafe, that for Non-payment of the Rent at the Day, it shall be lawful for him to re-enter; this is as much as if he conditioned to take the Land into his own Hands, and to recover the Possession by his own Act, without the Affiance of the Law. But Writs of a Deed give no Re-entry, if a Clause of Re-entry be not added. Wood's Inst. 140. Any one may recover a Re-Entry on Condition of a Feoffment, Lease, &c. That if the Rent be behind he shall re-enter, and hold the Lands he is it he is satisfied, or paid the Rent in Arrear; and in this Case if the Rent be bind, he may re-enter, though when the Feoffment, &c. pays or renders on the Land all the Arrears, he may enter again. Litt. 327. Inf. 203. And the Feoffor, &c. hath only an Interest, and not the Freehold, to take the Possess in the Nature of a Distinctio; Here the Possessor shall not go in Part of Satisfaction of the Rent; but this otherwise if the Feoffor was to hold the Land till he was paid by the Proffers thereof. Ibid. All Peroms that would re-enter upon their Tenants for Non-payment of Rent, shall make a Demand of the Rent; and to prevent the Re-entry, Tenants are to render their Rent, &c. Inf. 201. If there is a Lease for Years, rending Rent with Condition, That if the Leafe assign his Term, the Leafee may re-enter; and the Leaffee assigneth, and the Leafee receiveth the Rent of the Assignee, not knowing or hearing of the Assignment, he may re-enter notwithstanding the Acceptance of the Rent. 3 Rep. 65. 1 Co. 513. A Feoffment may be made upon Condition, That if the Feoffee pays or renders to the Feoffor, a certain Sum of Money at a Day to come, then the Feoffor to re-enter, &c. Litt. 322.

Refectory, In the Acceptation of Law is, where a Matter is referred by the Court of Chancery to a Master, and by the Courts at Law to a Preliminary or Secondary, to examine and report to the Court. 2 Litt. abr. 452. In Cases of Order of Courts, Irregularities, Exceptions, Matters of Account, &c. are referred to the Examination of a Master of that Court. In the Court of B. R. Matters concerning the due Proceeding, or undue Proceedings in a Cause, by either of the Parties, are proper Matters of Reference under the Secondary, and for him in some ordinary Cases to compute the Differences between them; and in others to make his Report how the Matters do stand, that the Court may settle the Differences according to their Rules and Orders. Fag 1650. If a Matter in Difference between the Plaintiff and Defendant be referred to the Secondary, and one of the Parties will not attend at the Time appointed, after Notice thereof, given, to hear the Business referred; the other Party may proceed in the Reference alone, and get the Secondary to make his Report without hearing of the Party not attending. 4 Litt. 452. See Report.

Deparf. Is where one hath by Law a Right and Power of having or doing something of Advantage to him, and he refuseth it. An Executive may refuse an Execution; but the Refusal ought to be before the Ordinary: If an Executive be summoned to accept or refuse the Executivehip, and he doth not appear upon the Summons and prove the Will, the Court may grant Administration, &c. which shall be good in Law till such Executive hath proved the Will; but no Man can be compelled to take upon him the Executivehip, unless he hath interceded with the Executors. Lam. 154. Cro Eliz. 858. Where there are several Executors, and they all refuse, none of them shall act ministrer afterwards; but if there is a Refusal by one, and the other proves the Will, the Refusing Executive may administer when he will, during the Life of his Co-executor. 1 Rep. 28. 1 Inf. abr. 53. There is this Difference when there is but one Executive, and where there are more Executors than one, as to Refusal of an Executivehip; for if there is but one, and in such Case he administer, he cannot refuse afterwards; and if once he refuse he cannot administer afterwards:

As for Inducible: The Tellor being possessed of Lands, &c. for a Term of Years, devised the same to the Lord Chief Justice Carlow, and made him Ex executor, and died: Afterwards the Executor wrote a Letter to the Judge of the Prerogative Court, intimating that he could not attend the Executivehip, and defining him to the Administration to the next of Kin to the Decedent, which was done accordingly; and after this the Executor entered on the Lands, and granted the Term to another; but it was adjudged void, because the Letter which he wrote was a sufficient Refusal, and he may not once refuse, and afterwards take upon him the Executivehip. 2 Bl. 532. An Executor, after a Court entered against the Will, took the Oath of an Executive, and afterwards refused to prove the Will; and it was held, that having taken the Oath of Executor, the Court could not admit him to refuse afterwards.

A Release of all Demands may discharge all Rents actually due, but not the grow

In Award, that all Suits should cease, and that the Defendants should pay 10l. and the Plaintiff on Payment thereof should release all Demands, &c. It was held, that if the Plaintiff would not take 10l. because he would not be obliged to release, and the Defendant tendered, and he re

Notwithstanding the Plaintiff could not have his Action till Michaelmas, it is Dehors in professo, and although fusussum in futuro. Ibid. 5 Rep. 28. If a Man makes a Release of all Debts to the personal Effece of another, this does not release a Bond; for it is a Demand to the personal Estate before Judgment and Execution, &c. Religion, (Religion, a religious) Signifies Piety, Devotion, and the Worship of God: And there are many Temporal Laws, made for the Support of Religion. The Law hath so tender a Regard for the Interests of the King and of Religion, that an Indictment will lie for doing any Thing which plainly appears immediately to tend to the Prejudice of either of them; and be good, though it do not expressly complain of it as a common Cause of Grievance. P. C. 198. Offences tending to subvert all Religion and Morality, which are the Foundation of Government, are punishable by the temporal Judges by Fine and Imprisonment, and also such corporal Punishment as the Court in Diction shall think fit; and seditious Words, in derogation of the established Religion, are indictable, as tending to a Breach of the Peace. Ibid. 7. So also the State, by Statute, No Person in Authority to execute Spiritual Jurisdiction, has Power to adjudge Matters of Religion to be Heretic, but such as have been so adjudged by Canonical Scripture, by one or more of the General Councils, or shall be adjudged by the Parliament with the Assent of the Convocation. 1 Eliz. cap. 1. The 13 Eliz. establishes the Thirty-nine Articles of Religion, to be subcribed by the Clergy. 1. But Irregular Ministers are exempted from subscriburing the 34, 35 and 56th Articles, by 1 W. & M. cap. 18. Persons educated in the Christian Religion, who by Writing or Speaking, deny any one of the Persons in the Holy Trinity, to be God; or asserting there are more Gods than one; or who shall deny the Christian Religion to be true; or the Old and New Testament to be written by Divine Authority, are rendered incapable to hold any Office or Employment; and being convicted of a second Offence, are disabled to prosecute any Action, to be Executor, Guardian, &c. and subject to imprisonment for three Years: But for the third Offence, the Offenders shall be disfranchised from Penalties, on denouncing his Errors in open Court. 9 & 10 W. 3. cap. 32. Remainder, (Remanuia) Is an Estait limited in Lands or Tenements, to be enjoyed after the Estait of another expired; as if one grant lands for Term of Years, or Life, and afterwards the same to remain to another Person, and his Heirs, Brad. lib. 2. c. 25. 2 Litt. App. 441. It is also defined to be the Residue of an Estait, and is the remainder to a particular Estait, and created together with the same; and it a man feid in Fee, let Lands or Tenements for Years, the Remainder over to another for Life, in Tail, or in Reversion, 12 Rep. 1. 20. 4th. 1st. Remainder, when it is creased out of a Fee, and afterwards the Residue disposed of which we call a Remainder; though the particular Estait is determined; and all the Remainders make but one Estait.

1 Plow. 25. 145. And where it depends upon a Leafe for Life or Years, Libery is to be made on the Leafe, or the Remainder will not pass. Remainders and Reversions are usually so called, because they are Estaites in Expectation only; they are a pretense Intestely, yet stand in a Degree removed from the Poifilion till the particular Estait is determined; And as by a Reversion, after the apportioned Term, the Estait returns to the Donor or his Heirs; so by a Remainder, it goes to some third Person or a Stranger. Woods' Inst. 152. Spina. If a Man make a Lease for Life, with Remainder to his Heirs, or Remainder to himself, and his Heirs, or to himself and the Heirs of his Body, the Remainder is void; and his Estait is not altered; But it is otherwise if he convey the Land by Way of Use, with such Limitation; and if he make a Feoffment to the Use of himself, and the Heirs of his Body; this is an Estait executed in him; and so it is if he covenant to flay feid in the same Manner. 21 Vict. 378. 1 Mo. 159. 5 Sales 252. A Lease was made for Life, and afterwards the Leafe reciting that Leafe, demited the Remainder to another; Hibbert, the said Remainder, after the Determination of the first Leafe, for twenty Years; and it was held, that the Remainder was void, by the Name of the Remainder; And if a Man grants Lands to another Person, and to the Heirs of his Body; and for Want of such Leafe, and then to the great Leafe, be it known by their Words the Remainder doth pass. Dyer 46. 3 Nefc. App. 90. And a Leafe by Deed reciting that A. B. held a Chole of him as Will, granted the same Chole to him for Life, rending Rent to the Leafe, and by the same Deed granted the Reversion to another in Fee; adjudged that A. B. had an Estait for Life by way of Condemnation, and that the other had a good Estait in Remainder, but not in Remainder. 1 And. 23. Though an Estait at Will is not such a particular Estait, whereon a Remainder may depend. 1640. In Deeds, by limitation, the Remainder may pass: There being a Grandfather, Father, and Son, &c. the Grandfather leived a Fine, to the Use of himself for Life, Remainder to the Father, to the Sons, to the Remainder; and the Remainder of the Grandfather; here the Grandfather had an Estait in Fee, expectant upon the Determination of the Estait, as a Remainder, and not in Remainder. 1 Rep. 91. And a Feoffment was made in Fee by a Man to the Use of himself for Life, Remainder over to the Use of A. B. for Life, Remainder over to the Right Heirs of the Proctor; and it was resolved, that the Fee simple was in the Proctor in the Nature of a Reversion, not of a Remainder to his Heirs, as it proceeded from himself, and was as good as. 2 Hil. 5. Nefc. App. 256. The following Rules are to be observed, in the Creation of Remainders: There must be a particular Estait precedent; made at the same Time, that the Remainder may depend upon it; and the particular Estait must continue till the Remainder shall vest; the Remainder is to commence in Possession, at the very Time the particular Estait ends, for there must not be a Mean between; and pass of the Leafe executed or executory at the Time of the Possession taken by the particular Tenant; but it cannot depend upon a nullity ex gvo. falso: Also a Remainder may depend upon a Condition, that is not repugnant or against Law, and then it will pass either executed or executory: the Possessor on the Remainder is limited, is to be capable of it at the Time it was created, or by common Possibility during the particular Estait; and the Thing whereof a Remainder shall be created, must be a particular Estait for Years, and at the Time of the Appointment and Creation thereof. 1 Rep. 66. 159. 2 Rep. 51. 3 Rep. 20. 2 Inf. 578. No. 2. 156. But in some Cases, there may be a Remainder, without a particular Estait in life, to support it; as in the Case of an Ufe in Remainder, by the Statute of Uses 2 Litt. App. 443. And if the Remainder is limited by a Statute of Uses, they are good Without a particular Estait; though not where the Estait passes by Livery and Seisin; for when the particular Estait is defeant, the Livery is gone, and all the Estates which depended upon it. 2 Plow. 403.

A Remainder must be created with the particular Estait, and be limited for a certain Estait: A Cognizance levied a Fine to the Use of himself for Life, and afterwards to the Use of his two Daughters, till his Son returned from beyond Seas, or came of Age, or died, which should first happen; and then Remainder to his Son, &c. This was a good Remainder, and did not depend upon any Uncertainty, because though his Returning or Coming of Age was uncertain, yet his Death is certain. 8c. E. 267. If a Person holds a Son nine Years old, and make a Leafe to his Son's come of full Age, and after that, it shall remain to another in Fee; If he live to his Age, it will be a good Remainder; and otherwise see 3. Rep. 20. A feeted of Lands makes a Leafe for Years to B. Remainder in Tail to C. and Remainder to the right Heirs of B. In this Case B. hath nothing in the Fee; It is a contingent Remainder to the Heirs of B. and if C. dies without Issue in B.'s Life time, the Remainder is void; for B. during his Life cannot have an Heir. Crest: The great Leafe be it known by their Words the Remainder doth pass. 20 Years, the Remainder to the right Heirs of J. S. who is then living; this Remainder is not good: But if it be a Leafe for Life, with such a Remainder, it may be good. 2 Pleas. 31. 1 Rep. 132. 2. A Leafe for Life, with Condition that if the Life die, it shall remain over; or if Lands be given to A. and B. to long, as they be to whom the Remainder is limited, the right Heirs of him that dieth first: these are good Remainders. 3 Pleas. 35. 1 Inf. 578. A Remainder to the Wife one shall marry, and that shall survive him, is as good a Remainder; but when a Leafe is made to Husband and Wife for their Lives, Remainder to the Heirs of the Survivor: it was held a good Remainder notwithstanding the Incurtainty, and that the Husband does not die long enough after the Death of the Wife. 2 Mol. 475. 20 Inf. 130. If an Estait be made to one and his Heirs, during the Life of W. R. this is a good precedent Estait of Remainder. 25 above. And some Remainders may be good, although the Estaites preceding be void and never take Effect. A Ufe was to a Man's felf for Life, the Remainder to his his Executors for Years, Remainder in Tail, and he made no Executor; yet it was adjudged, that the Remainder in Tail was good. 1 Fosb. 535. 2 Man. 609. and 3 Man. 457. in a Case of a Man dying during Life, with Remainder to another, and the Leftsee for Life wane, his Estate; the Remainder will be void. 4 Rep. 110. Though where an Estate could not be warded, because of the Prejudice of the Remainder. See Fed. Cest. 334. If a Lessee diffuse his Tenant for Life, and after make a new Lease to him, with a Remainder over; the Remainder shall be void; for the Lessee for Life is in of his first Estate, and the last Estate for Life which was the Foundation is gone. Plowd. 14. A Tenant may convey Land to the life of himself for ninety-nine Years, if he lives so long, Remainder to his heir, second, or third Son, &c. this Remainder is not good, for Want of a Freehold to support the same; a Freehold being necessary to support every contingent Remainder; and it is against the Rules of Law that such a Remainder can be supported by a Term for Years, or by any Thing less than a Freehold. 4 Inst. 54. 2 Saull. 679. One may make a Lease for Years to one, so long as he shall live of those Years; Remainder to another for the Rest of the Years: But he cannot give a Term for Years to one for Life; and after the Expired of the said Term, Remainder to another. 1 Rep. 153. 7. Rolls. Ab. 415. Though a Lease for Years may be given to one for Life, or so long as he shall live; and after to another during the Reversion of the Term. 8 Rep. 94. 10. Rep. 47. 1. Rolls. Ab. 627. 4. Saull. 577. All contingent Remainders before the Statute of 16 & 17 Vict. c. 9, were to be supported by particular Easates for Life, &c. and to vest either during such Easates, or at that very Instant when the particular Easates were determined: For if those Easates were determined, before the Contingencies happened, then the Remainders were void. Tenant for Life, made a Feoffment of his Estate, the contingent Remainder was destroyed, but not if the Tenant had been disabled, because there the particular Easate remains in Right, and may be revived; so that the Remainder is good. 3 Nels. Ab. 84. 1 Rep. 66. 65. 'To hold that a Right of Action, will not support a contingent Remainder, but a present Right of Entry will. If there be Tenant for Life with a contingent Remainder, and he makes a Feoffment in Fee upon Condition; here if the Contingency happens before the Condition is broken, it is gone and destroyed: But if before the Happening of the Contingency, the Tenant for Life continues in Right, the greatest broken, the contingent Remainder shall be revived; and the Contingency, if it happens, will then vest. 1 Ld. Raym. 314. 316. A Tenant being seized of Lands devised them to H. his Nephew, eldest Son of his Brother R. L. for Life, Remainder to his first Son in Tail, Remainder to R. the second Son of R. L. with several Remainders over: H. entered by Virtue of this Devis. died, and his Son was born, leaving his Wife with Child of a Son, and R. the second Son of R. entered as in Remainders over; H. entered by Virtue of this Devis. &c. and died before his Son was born, leaving his Wife with Child of a Son, and R. the second Son of R. entered as in Remainders over, and about six Months after this the Son was born; and it was adjudged, that this being a contingent Remainder to that Son, who was not born when his Father, who had the particular Estate for Life, died, it was therefore, void and the next in Remainders over, and entering before the Son of H. was born, it was vested in him by Pursuit; this Judgment was affirmed upon: A Writ of Error in B. R. But it was reversed in the House of Lords, for it being a Case arising upon a Will, it shall be construed according to Equity, and agreeable to the Intention of the Testator, which could never be to disfranchise the Heir of his Family; upon such a Nicety in the Law. 4 Med. 282. And because such Cases might often happen, the Statute of 21 Geo. II. c. 25 was enacted by the 10th and 11th of Geo. III. where any Estate is limited in Remainder, to the Sons or Daughters of any Person, with Remainders over to others, and a Son shall be born after the Death of his Father, such Son shall take in the same Manuary as if born in the Life time of his Father; although no Estate is limited to Trustees after the Father's Decree, to prefer such contingent Remainder to such after-born Son, &c. A Person not in life at first may take a Remainder by Way of Purchafe, if he be in life before the particular Easate is vested, to the son in Tail, Remainder shall be in Abeyance, until the Birth of the Child. 6 Ld. Abr. 404. A Feoffment was made to the Use of Husband and Wife for their Lives, Remainder to the first Son in Tail, Remainder to the Husband and Wife, and to the Heirs of their two Bodies, they having then no Son: In this Case, the Husband and Wife are Tenants in Tail; but when a Son is born, then the Easate is opened again; and they are Tenants for Life, Remainder to the Son in Tail, Remainder to them in Tail: and the Reversion is, because all these Easates were vested by one and the same Conveyance: wherefore the Remainder shall vest in the Husband and Wife 'till the Contingency happens, when the Easates shall be open and disputed, to let in the contingent Remainder to the Son, whose Name is Trespass. The Same in the Husband and Wife: But where the Remainder in life comes to the particular Easate by any Means whatsoever, after the original Conveyance, it is otherwise. 1 J. & B. 29. and 39. to Tenants for Life, with Remainder to his Wife for Life, Remainder to his first and second Son, &c. in Tail, Remainder to the right Heirs of the Tenant for Life, who afterwards commuted Trespass, and then his Son was born, and the Father was attained: It was adjudged, that whether the Son was born before or after the Attainment of the particular Remainder to him was not discharged by the Vesting of the Easate in the Crown, during the Life of the Father: because of the intermediate Easate to the Wife for Life, which supported the Remainder. 2 Saull. 576. Ruled by Hyde Chief Justice, that where W. R. is Tenant for Life, Remainder to R. for Life, Remainder to C. W. for Life, Remainder to L. L. and the Heirs of his Body: if H. R. and R. R. join in a Fine, the Right of Entry of C. W. prefers the contingent Easate over: And if there be Tenant for Life, Remainder to his first, second and third Son, the like Remainder to others, and their Sons. &c. one of which hath Issue a Son, and then he and the others join in a Fine to Tenant for Life, who after makes a Feoffment; by this Tenant not declaring the subsequent, as there is a Son, of one of the Remainder-Men born, who has a Right of Entry left in him, which will support the Remainders. 1 Med. 9. Contingent Remainders are where the Easate is to take Place upon an uncertain Event; and are preferred by making a Feoffment, &c. to the Use of A. B. for Life, Remainder to the Use of the Feoffment, for the Life of A. B. and so on for the contingent Remainders, when he that hath the first Easate cannot destroy the Remainder. 1 Vent. 180. 10. Rep. 85. A contingent Remainder does not destroy the Son, who a Reversion which comes after; but upon the Easate which precedes it: And may be destroyed by leaving a Fine, suffering a Recovery, or otherwise destroying the particular Easate upon which the contingent Easate depended, before the Contingency happens. 2 Ld. 446. Also where the particular Easate is drowned in the Reversion, the contingent Remainder depending upon it is gone. 2 Saunders. 182. It has been adjudged, that if an Estates be devised to A. for Life, the Remainder to the right Heirs of B. Remich. Or rather Remich, i.e. Nogars, from the Fr. Remich, means, to deny or refuse. 32 H. 2. cap. 2.

Remit, (Fr. Rendre, vis. Redder) Signifies to yield, give again, or return. This Word is used in the Levying of a Fine, which is either single, when the Thing is restored back by the Cognizant, or double, when it contains a Grant and Render back again of the Land, &c. to the Cognizant. Wofl. Symb. And there are certain Things in a Matter that are to be Rendered, which may be taken by the Lord or his Officers when they happen, without any Order made by the Tenant, such as Eicharts, &c. and certain that lie in Render, i.e. must be rendered or answered by the Tenant, as Rents, Hotes, and other Services: Also some Services confound in Esance; and some in Render. Wofl. Symb. par. 2. Perkin's Rents 665. 666.

Remit, or Remise, which we commonly call Remise, is one who was a Chriftian, and afterwards negat Chriftian, and apostatized to Mahometanism: This is mentioned in Renovatum by the Name of Re- nort. Hor. Ann. 1191.

Renou, Is a Kind of Rent or Taxation. — Per Renegyld Johannes B. Ar. debitum habet de quoddam Bencel von Torrens in A. d. R. Plant in Inam. ipsof Czethn, 14 H. 7.

Rentant, (from Renou) To renounce, or make away: The Fr. Renon find one Title, to be paid by Things Rendered, &c. 2 Cro. 450.

Rent, (Reducio) Is a Sum of Money, or other Consideration, titling yearly out of Lands or Tenors.
Revere to have him harmless: If afterwards the Leifre pays the Rent to the Grantee of the Rent-charge, voluntarily and without Compulsion, for the Chief Chief or any other Rent, or if his own Wrong, and must pay it again to the Leifre; though if he is dissuaded from the Rent-charge, and his Goods are taken, whereby he is compelled to pay the Rent, it is otherwise, and this is a Branch of the Covenant, and not before. 3 Sa. 109. Rent, Sec., or dry Rent, is where a Man by Deed paifeth his Estate to another, and Refrives to him and his Heirs a certain Rent, or grants a Rent issuing out of his Lands, without any Clause of Diffirets in the Deed: Now by the Law he cannot deprive for this Rent, by Reaon he hath not Seoin of the Rent, and no Diffirets is incident to it, and there being no Reverion or particular Charge to enable him to do it: But if the King hath a Rent-see, he may deprive for it. Litt. 217, 213, 253. And a late Act of Parliament gives all Persons the like Remedy for recovering Rent-see, Chief Rents, &c. as for Rents referred on Leide. 4. 6. 5. A Diffirets annexed to a gentle, and no Such Charge to the other; and therefore the one is a Charge upon the Land, but for the other the Grantor must first have a Rent-see, &c. to charge the Person of the Grantor in a Writ of Assize; and he must have Seoin of the Rent, which is to be created by Grant, and not by Deed: also the first Payment that gives Life to the Rent-see, ought to be made by the Tenant of the Freehold; likewise he should attain, or he cannot have Affide. 6 Rep. 56. If a Rent be granted in Fee, with a Clause of Diffirets only for the Life of the Grantee, there it is a Grant-see for his Life, and after his Death his Heirs shall have it as a Rent-see; though if the Clause of Diffirets be for Years, then it is a Rent-see, as well during his Life as afterwards. 7 Rep. 23. 3 Nelf. Att. 151. If one grant that if A. be not paid 20. a Year for his Life, he shall deprive for it; this is a good Grant of forc a Rent during his Life. Co. Litt. 147. To these three Sorts of Rents may be added a Rent referred upon a Lease at Will, called a Rent divisible of Common Right: And in Action of Debt for Rent upon a Lease at Will, the Plaintiff must set forth, that the Defendant entered and professed to construct, and prove it, because the Occupier does not defend but on a Lease for Years, the Rent is due on the Controll; and if the Leifre never enters he must pay the Rent. 1. 147. 1 Saalk 209. A Man may have a Rent by Priaphtions and prefcribe that he and his Ance-or grant the Reverion generally over to another, the Rent paifeth to the Grantee, although no Mention be made of it in the Grant; the Rent being incident to the Reverion, though a Rent be not made, and is not incident to the Reverion, it is not inapplicable incident; the Reverion may be granted, so as not to pass the Rent. 1 Inf. 145. 157. Rent may be Revived, and he shall have it in the same Manner as Lands: A Tenant fee'd of Lands in Fee, made a Leafe thereof rendering Rent, and afterwards devised the Rent to another; and adjudged that the Executor, and not the Heir shall have it; because it is but a Chattel in the Devisee. 2 Crs. 144. 425. 5. A Leafe is made for Years of Land in Fee Simple, rending Rent to the Leifre, his Executors or Assigns, during the Term; the Heir shall have the Rent; it running with the Reverion: And if a Leifre dies before the Day of Payment of Rent, it shall go to his Heirs, as incident to the Reverion; but if it becomes due in the Leifre's Life time, it shall go to the Executors. 12 Rep. 35. 10 Rep. 137. 95. 213. 4 Saund. 567. If the Leifre dies upon the Day of Payment, and the Rent is unpaid, the Heir shall have it: for the Rent is not due till the last Minute of the Day: But if it be paid that Morning before the Leifre dies, his Executors shall retain it against the Heir. 10 Rep. 137. 1 Inf. 212. In what Causes the Rent shall go to Executors, or him in Remainder; on the Leifre for Life's dying, and the Rent not paid before the last Minute of the Deceased's Life, the Rent shall be kept to the Heir, or to the Executors. Price. Cas. 555. One fee'd of Lands in Fee, makes a Lease of the same Lands for ten Years, yielding to him and his Heirs of 20. a Year, and the Feast of St. Michael or within one Month after; now if the Leifre die before the Feast of St. Michael and the End of the Month, the Rent must be paid to the Heir, and not the Executor; because this was not due until the End of the Month. 10 Rep. 137. 1 Saund. 252. If a Leafe is made for Years, paying a yearly Rent at Michaelmas and Lady day, or within twelve Days after, upon Condition that the Rent be not paid by that Time, next after the said Feasts, or Days of Payment, then the Leafe shall be void: in this Case, it is said the Tenant or Leifre hath twelve Days after the twelfth Day, to pay the said Rent; for the twelfth Day after the Feasts was a Day of Payment: But if the Clause in the Leafe had been, that if the Rent be behind for the Space of twelve Days after either of the said Feasts Days of Payment, the Leafe to be void, or, hère the Tenant hath but twelve Days allowed him. 6 Rep. 27. A Man fee'd in Fee of Lands, lets them for Years, and reserves a Rent to himself, not to him and his Heirs, the Rent shall determine by his Death, if he die within the Term; so that if he reserves a Rent to him and his Affigns, the Revision is good only during his Life. Wood's Inf. 186. Though if he reserves a Rent generally, without dwelling to whom it should go, it will go to his Heirs. 3 Inf. 47. 5 Rep. 11. An Heir shall have the Rent, where he is named in the Grant; and if the Rent is reserved to the Leifre, his Heirs and Affigns, the Affigns and the Heir shall have the Reverion shall enjoy it, if the Rent is incident to the Inheritance. 2 Crs. 282. Plead. 167. 1 Inf. 47. Where a Tenant for Life lets a Lease for Years, if he shall live for life, under certain Rent, and the Tenant for Life dies before a Quarter-Day, or Day of Payment, the Tenant is discharged of the Rent for that Quarter by the Act of God; But this may be guarded against by dividing the Rent, and making it payable weekly, or, though it be not usually received otherwise than quarrelly; or by Covenant in the Leafe, to oblige the Tenant to pay the Executors of the Leifre for so much of the Profits as shall be received 'till his Death, if he die before any Day of Payment. 10 Rep. 127, 129. Without this Care, the Tenant might receive the Profits of the Lands and detain the Rent.

Rent too, by quitting the Eftate upon the Death of the Landlord, who did not live till the Rent was due; and thereby burrying those in Remembrance and Restitution, &c., of the Rent, because he was not their Tenant at the Day of Payment: And this has been often done by the Tenants of Bishops and Parsonis, and of Widdows, and others, or having Professors of Land for Life, &c. The same as to Tenants at Will, where the Landlord dies the Day before the Rent Day. See Case 255. This Law is now altered by Statute; for if any Tenant for Life die on the Day, on which the Rent was made payable, his Executors, &c., may in Action on the Cafe recover from the Under-Tenants, the Whole, or if he die before such Day, a due Proportion of such Rent: And where Demises are not by Deed, Landlords may recover resonable Satisfaction, for the Use of what the Tenants held, &c. 11 Geo. 2.

If a Rent upon a Lease for Years of Land is reserved and made payable at four Quarter-Days, the Leifor may have Action of Debt after the first Day of Failure; for every Quarter's Rent is a several Debt, and didld it be due at the first, and the other three Quarter-Days are expired, because it is all but one personal Contract. 4 Rep. 94. 1 Inf. 292. An Action was for one Quarter's Rent, when two Quarters were due, so that the Plaintiff was for less than was his Due, without knowing how the Rent was divided, which it was objected the Law would not allow, has been adjudged good on Demurrer, every Quarter being a several Debt; but not if it appears by the Plaintiff's own knowing that Rent for a whole Year is due, and he brings an Action only for Half a Year, &c. 17 Geo. 2. 2 Pent. 129. 3 Nf. Abr. 1179. In Debt for Rent, the Plaintiff demands more in his Demand than is due, he may remit Part, and have Judgment for the Refidus. 2 Liff. 449. Action of Debt may be brought for Rent due for a Copyhold and Frehold together. 5 Lev. 33. 2 Cr. Eliz. 851. All for Rent upon a Leafe of Land, and a Flock of Sheep. 3 Lev. 150. All for Rent upon a Leafe for Years, shall have Debt for it. 1 Lev. 22. And Covenant for Rent lies against the Leifor after an Affirmation, by the Grantor in Reversion; and this, although Notice and Acceptance of the Rent had been pleaded, it was upon an expired Covenant. 3 Lev. 253. A Leifor for Years rendering Rent, asigned his Term in Possession of the Land, and that Alligferee made another Alligferee of that Place, and it was held, that the Leifor might have an Action of Debt against the first Leifor for the whole Rent, because the Priviledge of Contract remained between them, and that the Rent should not be apportioned. Dyer 4. 2 Lev. 121. If a Leafe be made of three Acres of Land of equal Value, paying such a Rent, and afterwards the Leifor grants the Reversion of one Acre to another; the Grantee shall have the proportionable Rent, for though it is but one Leafe and one Rent, yet because the Reversion is severable the Rent shall attend upon it, and be likewise severable. 2 Rep. But in a Lease of a Warren which extended into three Vills, where the Leifor granted the Reversion of that Part which lay in one of the Vills to another, and the Leifor acceded; adjudged that there should not have any Part of the Rent, nor the Grantor neither, because an entire Contract cannot be apportioned, and therefore the Rent is divided. May 175. Action of Debt was brought for Rent on a Lease of three several Acres of Land for three several Terms, paying Rent pro terminis prorata. And it was inferred, that the Rent could not arise out of all, because they were several Terms; but the Court ruled, that it was an entire Lease, and that the Rent issued out of all the Terms, and that if the Leifor should not pay, it shall be paid out of the Refidus. Dalby 139. A Lease is made of Lands, rendering ten Pounds Rent, per. For five Acres five Pounds, and for other five Acres five Pounds shall be divided between the two Parts, and not several Rests. 1 And. 174. But if one grant twenty Pounds a Year out of the Land, to hold ten Pounds yearly for thirty Years, and the other ten Pounds thirty-six Years, payable at the Feast of Easter, they will be several Rests, and a Diilref may be for either of them alone. 1 Cas. 109. A Man grants a Rent Charge to another for Life out of his Lands, if he grant further by the same Deed, that he and his Heirs may disfrain in the Land for the same Rent; this will amount to a New Grant of the Rent in Possession. 1 Inf. 149. Where Rent is granted for Life, out of Land in Fee, and a Term for Years; there it shall issue out of the Lands in Fee, nor the Term of Years. 7 Rep. 25. The Land in Fee only renders Rent, and yet the Rent in Fee and the other Land are chargeable after a for the same. 1 Inf. 27. 146. Plowd. 158. If a Man grants Rent out of his Lands, and lays not what Land, nor where; it cannot be a good Grant of the Rent, though it may be good to charge his Person as in an Annuity: So if one grant any Rent out of a Thing not chargeable with a Rent, as a Common, or Franchise, &c. 6 Rep. 58. 10 Rep. 93. But where Lands in general, are charged with a Rent, with Clause in the Deed, That if it be not paid, the Grantee shall disfrain it as in the Manor of S. it will charge that Manor, but not any other Lands. 1 Inf. 146. If the Rent be granted out of one Manor, with Power to disfrain in another; both the Mannors are liable to it. 7 Rep. 25. A Rent revered out of Land, is of the Nature of the Land: If a Person has a Rent on the Part of his Mother, the Dilref and Remedy for it shall go out of the Heir on the Part of the Mother, &c. Mor. 501. 1 Inf. 145. And if two Coparceners make a Frument in Fee, rendering Rent to them and their Heirs, the Rent shall be of the Quality of the Lands, and the Heirs of one of and of the other shall inherit. 5 Rep. 8. Yet if there be two jointenants, and one makes a Lease for Years, rendering Rent; the Leifor dies, the other shall not have this Rent. 1 Rep. 96. A Rent was reserved on a Leafe to be paid at two Periods, and not paid by what Portions; and yet held good, and that the Leifor should have Liberty to make the Payment by what Portions he pleased. 3 Lew. 332. The Husband after the Wife's Death is liable to pay the Rent of her Land, as his Wife, and a Man who in Right of his Wife, shall have any real Eftate in Rents, &c. which shall be due and in Arrear at her Death, may after her Death bring Debt for thde Arrears. 1 Lev. 23. 4 Rep. 10. An Action of Debt lies for Rent in arrears upon a Lease for Life, or Years; at Common Law it lay not on Leases for Life, but it may be brought by 8 Ann. cap. 17. If Tenants for Life or Years hold over Lands after the Determination of their Terms, and Demand being made to deliver the Poffession, they shall pay double the yearly Value, to be recovered by Action of Debt. And when Half a Year's Rent is due and in arrear from any Tenant, and no sufficient Dilref can be had on the Premises, the Landlord may serve a Declaration of Eftate, &c., and the Defendant, and the Tenant may file his Bill in Equity, within six Months, to be relieved; though not have an Injunction, till the Proceedings at Law, unless he bring the Money due into Court) and pay the Rent in arrears, and Costs, all Proceeding to cease, &c. by the 4 Geo. 3. cap. 48. If any Tenant, holding Lands, &c. at a Rack Rent, being in arrear one Year's Year's Rent, shall defeat and leave the same unoccupied or unoccupied; two Judges of Peace, may at the Requet of the Landlord go upon and view the Premises, and for the most notorious Part thereof, a Notice in Writing, on what Day (at the Distance of 14 Days) they will take a second View; and if the Tenant, or some Person for him, do not then pay the Rent, and there is no Diffiret, the Tenant's Lease shall become void: The said two Judges Proceedings to be examined into in a Summary Way, by the next Judges of Advice of the County; who if they see Con, may award Redress and Costs to the Tenant, &c. By this Statute, in Case a Tenant gives Notice of his quitting the Premises, and do not according discovery of the Action or the Time notified; he is then forewarned to pay double Rent recoverable as single Rent. Stat. 13 Geo. 2. cap. 19. Debts may be brought for Part of Rent due, and a Diffiret taken for the other Parts: so as to make both the Person and Land liable: If Tenant in Fee, or in Tail die, his Executor may have Action of Debt by the Stat. 32 Eliz. 8. for the Rent over, or may dier with or Annul the Execution of any Remedy by the Common Law: So it was in the Case of a Tenant for aver, for his Executor had no Remedy till the Death of the Owner; & now and now may dier or have an Action of Debt for the Rent arrear. 1 Geo. 471. 5 Sail. 333. If Tenant for Life die, his Executor may bring Action of Debt for the Rent in arrear; but this his Remedy at Common Law, but a new Remedy is given by this Statute, and that is to dier: Though if there be a Grantment of a Rent for twenty Years, if he be too long live, and there is Rent in arrear, and then the Gran-tee dies; his Executor cannot dier for the Arrears within the Statute, but must keep to his Remedy at Common Law, 3 Sail. 304. Where the Lord gained a Rent of the Tenant by Incroachment, up on a Diffiret taken for it, the Tenant could not help himself in Replevin, before the Stat. 32 Eliz. cap. 3, before the Stat. 32 Eliz. for the same Reason, but was compelled to bring the Writ Ne injuriet voci against the Lord, and there he might traverse the Tenure: Since that Statute, the Lord in his Arrears must al-ledge Seizin of the Rent for forty Years past; which the Tenant may traverse. 4 Rep. 8. to Rep. 88. 9 Rep. 33. In Debt for Rent upon a Lease for Years, the Defendant pleaded an Invasion by Enemies, who drove him and his Castle from the Lands demised, so that he could not enjoy the same; but it was adjudged against him; for he did not plead that the Army were all Aliens and unknown: And if a Man coven-ant to pay Rent, and it happens that the Lands are overflowed with Water, he is still chargeable with the Rent; yet he may prove the Accidents by his Contraf. and though there was no express Covenant in this Lease to pay the Rent, the Reversion is a Covenant in Law, and a Duty is created by it, and the Law will not pronounce him against his own Agreement. Stat. 47. If No Place is appointed for Payment of Rent, the Law appoints it to be upon the Land. 4 Rep. 91. Demand of Rent is also to be on the Land, &c. and to warrant a Diffiret, the Demand may be at any Time after due; but it is not to be Re-entry. 1 Inf. 201. Day 25. Rents of Annuity, The certain Rents of Freeholders, and ancient Copyholders, foiled, because they were affayed, and different from others that were uncertain, paid in Con, &c. 1 Inf. 19. Rents payable are such Rents as were annually payable to the Crown from the Lands of Abbots and Religious Houses; and after the Dissolution of the Abbey Lands which were demised to others, the said Rents were still re- served to the Crown; They are reckoned among the Peremour Rents, to be held by the Stat. 32 Geo. 2. cap. 6. Reparations, A Tenant for Life or Years, may cut down Timber thereon to make Reparation, though he be not compelled thereto; as where a House is ruinous at the Time of the Lease made, and the Lessee suffers it to fall, he is not bound to rebuild it, and yet if he fell Timber for Repara- tions he may justify the same. 1 Inf. 54. On an in- material Issue in a Case, Replevlar may be awarded, and Repledger is to be had where the Pleading hath not brought the Issue in Question, which was to be tried: All if a Vendi be given where there was no Issue joined, there must be a Repledger to bring the Matter to Trial. &c. 2 Lef. W. shall be encaised upon the Writer left of the Writ, upon the Demand of the Master of the Writ, the Defendant pleaded that he had appeared scou- dum, &c. and upon this they were at Issue; and there being a Vendi for the Plaintiff, a Repall of the same was allowed, because the Appearance was not tria- ble by a Jury, but by the Record. 1 Lef. 90. 3 Nef. Abr. 135. It was held by the Court of B. R. that that at Common Law, a Repleviant was granted before Trial, because a Verdict did not cure an immaterial Ille: but that now a Repleviant ought never to be awarded before Trial, because the fault in the Ille may be helped by the Statutes of Torts: That if a Repleviant is denied where it should be granted, or a Convoy, it is Error; and the Judgment in Repleviant is general, (case.) and Parties pleni:ent: They must begin again at the first Fault, which occasioned the immaterial Ille: if the Declaration and the Bar, and the Replication be all ill, they must begin de novo; but if the bar be good, and the Replication ill, they must begin at the Replication: and no Cods are allowed on either Side; and a Repleviant cannot be awarded after a Default. Trin. 5 Am. 2. 2. 1579. Tho's Repleviant is allowed after a Verdict; it has been adjudged not to be awarded after a Dissolution: (But a Dissolution hath formerly been granted after a Default, and likewise after the Dissolution argued) and that a Repleviant can never be awarded after a Writ of Error; but only after Ille joined. Repetitione aberrere. A Writ brought by one whole Cattle are displeased or put in the Found upon any Cattle by another Person, on Surety given to the Sheriff to prosecute or answer the Action at Law. F. N. &. B. 56. Reg. Orig. Stat. 7 H. 8. c. 4.

Replicatione (Pleonas. Replicatione, a Repleviant of a) is a Remedy granted and granted upon a Dissolution, being a Re-discharge of the tennis displeased to remain with the first Foulfeild, on Security or Pledges given by him to try the Right with the Dis-tractor, and to answer him in a Court of Law. 1 Inf. 145. If one doth detain another's Cattle or Goods for Rent, or Service, Damage-tenant, Gr. the Owner, upon giving Security to the Sheriff that he will pursue his Action against the Party displeasing, and return the Cattle or Goods again, if the Taking shall be adjudged lawful, may have a Writ of Replication or Repugnans facias; whereby the Sheriff is commanded to return the Cattle or Goods to the Owner, till the Right of the Dis-tractor is determined: And the Person that is displeased is to be Plaintiff in the Replication, and the Person displeasing the Defendant or Avowant: for his Justification the Dis-tractor is termed an Avowant. 1 Inf. 148. Replication are by Writ at Common Law; or upon the Jailer in the Sheriff's Court by Surety, for the Party's more speedy having again of his Cattle and Goods displeased; and the Sheriff ought to take them, by one of the Common Laws, or of the Places of Protection; and another by the Statute, i.e. Plagi de Retviso Habenda: And Replication lies either in the King's Bench or Common Places, by Writ: also it lies in the County Court, and Court Baron by Plaint; and a Hundred Court may hold Plea of Replication, but they are not to granted out of Court. 1 Inf. 145. Doe add. If the Cattle or Goods are not delivered upon a first Replication, the Party displeasing shall have an Alias and a Pluris Replication. F. N. &. B. 56. The Sheriff may set by Virtue of the Writ of Replication, or as Alias to Precept to his Bailiff: And the Sheriff may take a Plaintiff on the Statute, and make a Replication presently, and enter it in the County-Court afterwards. 2 Inf. 153. 5 H. 5. 21. dant, he can proceed no further, as the may if found for the Plaintiff; though the Plaintiff may afterwards reply by writ; and if the Sheriff returns the Process, then it is that he put in Issue and tried in C.B. 1. Inst. 145. Finch 316, 317. If any Thing touching the Freehold comes in Question, the Sheriff likewise must proceed no further. Wm's Inst. 515.

When a Plaintiff in Realpia is removed into C.B. 8. 8c. and the Plaintiff makes Default, or is Nonuit, before or after Declaration, or Judgment is given against him, the Decree in Realpia shall have the Effect of a Return Habendis of the Goods taken in Distress; so if he pursue not his Action of Realpia, &c. And the Plaintiff being removed, if the Plaintiff in Realpia is non-suited before or after Anwomy made, the Defendant may again disraine his Castle for the same Cause he disrained the First; yet the Plaintiff may sue out a Writ of Second Deliverance upon the same Record, which will revive the 6th Suit: And after this Second Deliverance and Trial thereupon, or if the Plaintiff be again Nonuit upon a Declaration, then there must be a New Impression, or Right arrived to the Defendant, and then he may make his Anwomy, or Plea in Nullification of his Distress, to ground a Writ to inquire of Damages; or he may hold the Beasts till he is satisfied. F. N. B. 2. Wm's Inst. 473.

If the Defendant makes Default, the Plaintiff shall have Judgment to recover all in Damages; as well the Value of the Castle, as Damages for the Taking of it, and his Costs. F. N. B. 9. Mich. 3. H. 8.

No Writ of Second Deliverance lies in Realpia after a Judgment upon a Demurrer, or after a Verdil given, but in these Cases the Judgment must be entered with a Return irrepeable; though on a Nonuit a Second Deliverance will lie, because there is no Determination of the Matter, and there is a Writ of Second Deliverance, as it appears in the Case in the Case of a Demurrer and Verdict, the Matter is determined by Law. Mich. 7. W. B. R. 2 Ill. 4. 457. The Plaintiff in a Second Deliverance was non-suited, and a Writ of Inquiry of Damages awarded, and also a Return Habendis, upon which the Sheriff returned Averia Elongata; whereupon a Wibrer was granted, and all the other of the Plaintiff's Beasts were delivered to the Defendant; and some Time after the Plaintiff came into Court, and paid the Damages and Costs, on which the Court granted him his Beasts. If Castle be put into a Castle, the Sheriff must nevertheless make Realpia and Deliverance; and if Occasion be, he may take the Puff or Power of the County with him for that Purpose: And whether the Castle are driven out of the County, &c. so that the Sheriff cannot make Realpia, a Writ of Wibrer shall go to the Sheriff to take many of the Distraint's or Defendant's Castle, &c. 1 Bull. 456. A Defendant in Realpia may plead Property in the Castle in a Stranger, either in Bar or in Abatement; and where the Plea in Abatement is to the Points of the Action, as Property is, there the Defendant shall have a Return without making an Anwomy for it; for whether the Property was in him or a Stranger, he ought to have a Return, because he had the Possession of the Castle, which were illegitimately taken from him by the Plaintiff in Realpia: But where the Plea in Abatement is of a collateral Matter, he must make an Anwomy to have the Realpia Delivery. 3 Bell. 497. The Return Habendis in Realpia is Non Stop; but the Defendant may plead Property in himself, in Bar or Abatement to the Action of Realpia, and in a Realpia, he must conclude in Abatement; and 'tis to be observed, that upon the General Issue Property cannot be given in Evidence, therefore it must be pleaded there. Post 249. 3 Sal. 507. Realpia was brought for Taking and Detaining a Mare and Colt; the Defendant pleaded Not guilty as to the Taking, refta for annex ultima key, &c. and upon Demurrer it was held that the Plea was good, because in Effect 'tis Non Stop; and if he be not guilty of the Taking, he could not be guilty of the Detaining; and if this Plea be not allowed, the Statute of Limitations can never be a Bar to Realpia; but the Plea was adjudged ill, because it does not answer the Detaining, and probably the Castle might be pleaded in the Plaintiff could not come to reply them, which is an illegal Detaining, the the doing might be legal. Sal. 81. The Plaintiff is to lay his Realpia in the Detinates, or Distress; if in the Detinates, the Plaintiff hath his Goods again, and Damages for the Taking and Detaining; if 'tis brought in the Distress, he shall only recover for the wrongful Taking; for that Word being in the proper perfect Tense, implies that the Plaintiff had its Goods again: So that if in Realpia the Writ be in the Detinates, and the Plaintiff declare in the Distress, the Declaration is ill, the Veracity being material. Sal. 1147, 1151. A Realpia ought to be certain, in setting forth the Number and Kinds of Castle disrained, or it will not be good; because if it be uncertain, the Sheriff cannot tell how to make his Deliverance of the Castle, if a Writ be directed to him to do it. Tim. 23. 9. B. R. And in a Declaration in Realpia for Taking of Castle, if the Time and Place of Taking be not named, the Declaration is sought for Uncertainty: The Declaration must be not only of a Taking in a Vill or Town, but in quadam loco vel or. &c. or the same will not be good on Demurrer. But in a Declaration in Action of Trespass is good. Hob. 16. 3 Sal. 508. In Realpia for Taking several of his Beasts in quidom loco called A. and B. upon a Demurrer to this Declaration it was ruled, that the Plaintiff ought to shew how many were taken in one Place, and how many in another Place. Litt. 32. And if the Plaintiff allege two Places, and the Defendant answers only one, it is in the Place. Sal. 94. The Plaintiff in Realpia declared, that the Defendant took his Castle opus R. omittit the Words in quadam for ibidem; and on a Demurrer it was ruled, that the Effect of this Suit is the Taking of the Castle, and not the Shewing the Place where they were taken; for the Plaintiff might not know the Place, &c. and in this Action the Avowrant is not bound to shew where the Castle were taken, and therefore it ought to be shewed by him. 1 Brom. 176. 3 Nill. 1932. Count in a Writ in Action of Distraint for the Sheep of the Plaintiff's Doors and Locks, and Carrying away his Goods and Castle; the Defendant avows for a Rent-Charge, and pays nothing of the Breaking of the Doors, &c. Per Con'. He need not answer it in this Action; that in Action of Trespass he must. Tim. 7 W. 3 B. R. 1 Ill. 456. In a Realpia for Taking of four Beasts, the Defendant had Judgment for a Return; and he then formified that four Beasts were taken, and impounded, and were not all delivered back, and prayed that the Sheriff should make a Deliverance to him of forty, &c. But resolved, that the Plaintiff having declared less than four Beasts taken, and he the Defendant agreed that Four only were taken by Aworing for them, he was therefore without Remedy; for he might in his Aworry have shewn that forty Beasts were taken, and have avowed for all, and prayed a Return of all of them, although the Plaintiff had not declared for so many. Cras. 7. 611. In Realpia, the Aworry was for the Rent, and the Awovrant had Judgment; and in a Writ of Error brought in B. R. the Error aligned was, that Part of the Rent because of the Dairies taken, in the that Writ of Error, the Dairies was made three Days before Michaelmas, and the Defendant avowed for Michaelmas Rent; and it was adjudged ill, being for more than was due at the Time of the Difetens taken: The Awovant ought to have stated his Avowry good the Michaelmas Rent, and taken Judgment for the Rent; but he got the Roll answered, 5. 7. and so it was here. 1. Salii. 508.

If the Jury in trying an Action of Replevin do inquire as well of the Value of the Cattle disaffirmed for Rent, that they may be told according to the Statue, as also of the Rent due, there shall be no Writ of Inquiry to supply it. 1 Erw. 255. A Verdict was found in Replevin, Part for the Plaintiff with Damages at Costs; and Part for the Defendants: But in Avowry for Rent, Part was found for the Plaintiff and Damages and Costs, and Part for the Awovant; and it was held, that the finding Damages and Costs for the Plaintiff was void, but that Part being found for the Awovant, he shall have a Return with Damages and Costs. Lawr. 1104. Cr. Jac. 473. It is a proper Conclusion of a Plaia in Replevin, Cr. to try Unde judicium & return. Assertum, without saying any Tying of Damages, because they are given by the Statue: And the Defendant must fogett Matter to have a Return, Cr., which Suggestion is only to bring his Case within the Statue of Hen. 8. for Damages; for before that Statue at Common Law the Defendant had no Damages; and this Suggestion being for a particular Purpose, is not transmissible. 1 Salii. 94. A Second Deliverance may be a Superfetatio to the Return. Habend. but 'tis not so to the Writ of Inquit for Damages; because they are not for the Tying for which the Defendant avowed, but by Virtue of the Stat. 21 H. 8. as a Reanswering to the Awovant for his Expense and Trouble. In Action of Replevin, the Defendant avowed for Damage feasant, and had a Verdict, as adjudged, that he shall have a Return. Habend. for the Cattle, and a Copias at satisfied, for the Damages: But if the Costs and Damages, the Sheriff ought not afterwards to execute the Return. Habend. If a Man take Cattle for Damage feasant, and the other traders Amendis, and he refuseth it, Cr., on a Replevin sued for the Cattle, Damages shall be recovered by the Plaintiff for the Detaining of them; and not for the Taking, which is lawful. New Nat. Br. 154, 155. Replevition is an Exception or An- swer made by the Plaintiff in a Suit to the Defend- ant's Plea: And it is also that which the Complain- ant replies to the Defendant's Answer in Chancery, &c. Mod. Rep. part. 2. The Replication is to con- tain Certainty, and not vary from the Declaration, but must purport and maintain the Cause of the Plaintiff's Action; otherwise it will be a Deprecation in Pleading, and going to another Matter. 1 Inst. 504. Though as a faulty Bar may be made good by the Replica- tion; so sometimes a Replication is made good by a Rejoinder; but if in the same Suits a Replication can never help it. 2 Litt. Abr. 463. A Replication being intire, and ill in Part, is ill in the Whole: But if there be three Replications, and one of them is superfuous, and the other two sufficient, and the Defend- ant demurs generally, the Plaintiff may have Judg- ment upon those which are sufficient. 2 S. W. & M. 55. c. 5. If the Plaintiff pleads in Bar, and the Plaintiff replies insufficiently if the Defendant demurs specially upon the Replication, and the Bar is insufficient, if the Action be of such a Nature that a Title is set forth in the Declaration or Count, as in a Formed, &c. Judgment may be given for the Plaintiff upon the insufficient Bar of the Defendant: And where the Title doth not appear till set forth in the Replication, and that is insufficient, the judg- ment shall be had for the Defendant for the ill Replic- ation. Godb. 138. 1 Lew. 75. 3 Nef. Abr. 123.

Upon a Demurrer it was held the Plaintiff ought to have concluded to the Country; because there is an Affirmative and Negligent, and if he might be admitted to aver his Replication thus, there would be no End in Pleading. Ca. Lit. 293. There are likewise Reports when the Court of Chancery, or other Court, refer the Suing some Case, &c. to a Master of Chancery, or other Referee, his Certificate therein is called a Report. Upon which they may draw an absolute Order. Prakt. Solis. 67. A Master in Chancery, having an Order of Reference, is to file his Summons for the Parties to attend him at a certain Time and Place; and where and when they may come with their Counsel, Clerks or Solicitor, to defend themselves, and main- tain or object against his Report or Certificate, &c. And he proceeds to try the cause as clearly and as judiciously as may be, preferring the Master carefully for the Judgment of the Court; without Recital of the several Points of the Order of Reference, or the Debates of Counsel before them; unless it be in Cases doubtful, when they may shortly represent the Re- fisons which induce them to that Answer. &c. Ibid. Rep. &c. and Certificates of Matters in Chancery are to be filed with the Register in four Days after the Making and Signing; and to be confirmed by the Court, to which Exceptions may be made, &c. Repitilis, (Repertulis, or Reprising) Is the Taking of one Thing in Satisfaction for another, derived from the Fr. Reprisilis and is all one in the Cor. Rep., and Civil Law. King 44. enacted, That Application being made to the Keeper of the Privy Seal, by Persons injured in the Loss of Shipping at Sea contrary to Treaties, &c. on Evidence drawn, he shall sign Let- ters of Reprisilis to demand Restitution and Reparation; which if not made in convenient Time, the Lord Chancellor of England is to grant Letters of Reprising, to obtain the same by Force, and for the Indemnity of the Persons interested: And this is confirmed by the Stat. 3 H. 7. cap. 7. Also there are two Sorts of Repressilis, Ordinary and Extraordinary; the Ordinary Repressilis are to arrest and take the Goods of Merchant Strangers within the Realm; and the other is for Satis- faction out of the Realm, and is under the Great Seal, &c. Lex Mercat. 140. If any Person shall be killed, wounded, spoiled, or any ways damaged in a hostile Manner, in the Territories of any King or Po- seessor, to whom Letters of Repressilis are transmitted, and no Satisfaction shall be made, there is no Neces- sity to refer to the ordinary Prosecution, but Letters of Reprising shall ille sufficere; and the Prince against whom the same are issued, is obliged to make Satisfaction out of the Ealties of the Persons committing the Injuries; and in Case of a Deficiency there, it will then be ad- judged a common Debt on his Country. But where Misfortunes happen in Person, or their Goods, residing in a Foreign Country in Time of War, Repressilis are not to be granted: In this Case they must be contented to sit down under the Loft, for they are at their Liberty to relinquish the Place on the Approach of the Enemy, when they forsee the Country is subject to Spoil and devastation; and if they continue, they must parallel of the common Censorship. Lex Mercat. 140. Rep. rem. 174, 175. Repressilis may be granted on unjust and illegal Persecutions abroad; where wrong judg- ment.
ment is given in Matters not doubtful, which might have been redress'd either by the ordinary or extraordinary Power of the Crown or Parliament, and which was apparently dennied. Gc. See Letters of Marque.

Regiftis, (Fr. Retournages, or a Taking back) is used for Deductions and Payments out of a Manor or Land, as Remedies, Annuitues, &c. And therefore when we speak of the clear yearly Value of a Manor or Feaste or Land, we fly it is so much per Annum ultra Regiftus, besides all Regiftus.

Regiftus, (from the Fr. Retour) Signifieth to back or expulsion a Prisoner from the Execution and Proceeding of the Law for that Time. Terme de Leg 169. 1. Every Judge that hath Power to order an Execution, hath Power to grant a Regiftus; and oftentimes Execution is stayed upon Condition of Transportation. But no Prisoner convicted of any Felony, for which he cannot have his Clergy, as at the Sessions of the Old Bailey for London and Middlesex, &c. ought to be repressed but in open Sessions; and Regiftus are not to be granted otherwise, without the King's express Permission, nor in the Order of the Judges, for the 7th Eliz. 21, 25 and 26. Delivery. K. 4. 2. Hawk. P. C. 463. Wood's Jaff. 662. If a Woman is condemned for Treason or Felony, and she is found by an Inquest or Jury of Magistrates impanneld by the Sheriff, Gc. to be quick with Child, Execution shall be reprieved, and the Woman reprimed till her Delivery; though the Inquest take this for a good Excuse, and the charge save herself by this Means from pleading upon her Arraignment, nor from having Judgment pronounced against her on her Conviction. S. P. C. 158. H. P. C. 272. Finch 478. Where 's found by a Jury of Women, that a Woman convicted of Felony, is with Child, some Judges have used to command a Regiftus of her Execution until a convenient Time, i. e. a Month after her Delivery, and then to be executed: But this is irregular, for the may have a Pardon to plead, and therefore ought to be reprimed till the next Sessions. 12 Aff. 10. Hale's Hist. P. C. 568. 390.

Repugnant. (Repugnans) Is what is contrary to any Thing before said: And Repugnancy in Deeds, Grants, Indemnities, Verdicts, &c. will make them void. 3 Nolf. 135. 2 Harw. P. C. The Common Law abhors Repugnancies and all Incongruities; but the former Part of a Deed, Gc. shall stand, where the latter Part is Repugnant to it. Finch. Cent. 251, 276.

Reputation, (Reputation) Is defined by Sir Edw. Coke to be Vulgaris Opinion uti non est voritas; and he tells us, that vulgaris Opinion uti duplicis, utra. Una arte interim. &c. &c. But seem to be the same word altern. inter mira &c. vulgari homines abscis specis voritas. &c. Rep. 104. That is not Reputation which per se has a great Value, but that which generally has been, and many Men have had or thought. 1 Leon. 15. A little Time is sufficient for the gaining of a Reputation, which needs not a very ancient Pedigree to establish it; for general Acquittation will produce a Reputation. 2 Cro. 397. 1. &c. But let it be held, that common Reputation cannot be intended of an Opinion which is conceived of four or five Years standing; but of Hoie Time. 2 Litt. Abb. 646. And some Special Matter must be averred to induce a Reputation. Ibid. Land may be reputed Parcel of a Manor: though not really. 1 Tod. 269. 3 Nolf. Abb. 237. And there is a Parth, and Office in Reputation, &c.

Reputation of Name, is under the Protection of the Law; and where a Person has an Interest in their good Name; and Scandal and Defamation are injurious to it, though defamatory Words are not actionable, otherwise than as a Damage to the Edifice of the Person injured. Jaff. 57.

Request, Of Things to be done: Where one is to do a Collateral Thing, agreed on making a Contract, there ought to be a Request to do it. 2 Litt. Abb. 166. If a Duty is due, it is payable without Request; On Promise to pay a Duty precedent on Request, there needs no special Request; but upon a Promise for Money due after the Demand, Collateral, there should be an actual Request before the Action is brought. C. Litt. 74. 3 Sandt. 53. 1 Lew. 293. If a Debt is before a General Assizes, and is not a Request, then a Request is not necessary, and a Request is not a Course of the Action: though a General Assizes generally do pay upon Request, the Action arises upon Request and not before. C. Litt. 74. 1 Lew. 48. Action of Debt, for Money due on a Bond, may be brought without alleging a special Request; and if the Action is for Debt, not appointed to be paid upon Request, there needs no special Request to be laid in the Declaration; otherwise if it is of a Thing collateral, C. Litt. 539. 535. A Man promises to redeem the Person upon Request, such Goods as were delivered to him; if an Action of Detinue is brought, the Plaintiff need not allege a special Request, because the Action is for the Thing itself: But if an Action of the Cade is bad for their Goods, then the Request must be specially alleged; as in the Action of the 7th Eliz. 25, 26. Delivery, &c. It felt, but for Damages. Sall 66. 3 Salk. 509. If a Promise is made to pay Money to the Plaintiff upon Request, no special Request is required: But where there are mutual Promises between two Persons to pay each other Money upon Request, if they do not perform the same, the Request is to be specially alleged. And if the promise is that the Plaintiff lends a Man upon Request, and he dies before any Request made, it shall be paid to his Executors; but not till the Request is made. 3 Salk. 509. 3 Bift. 259. When a Person promises to pay a precedent Duty, the general Allegation Licit sumus requisimus is sufficient, because there was a Duty without a Promise: As for Infancy: If one buys or borrows a Hare, and promises to pay so much upon Request: But where the Promise is collateral, as to pay the Debt of a Stranger upon Request, &c. the Request is Part of the Agreement, and traslatable. If the promise be to pay a Duty before the Promise is made; and for that Reason the Request must be specially alleged, for bringing the Action will not be a sufficient Request. Litt 93. 3 Lew. 200. 1 Sandt 55. 3 Bift. 306. If a Debt or Duty either upon Bond or Contract, Licit sumus requintus is good; where it becomes a Duty by the Request itself, then it is to be alleged specially. 5 Nolf. Abb. 144. It has been adjudged, that where the Thing is a Duty before any Request made, a Request can only be alleged to aggravate Damages, and such Request is not trivestable, but if the Request makes the Damage as in Affirmation to do such a Thing upon Request. there the Day, &c. of the Request ought to be alleged. And in the same Case, a Person could not be sued for a Request to do a Thing upon Request, a Request must be alleged; and a special Request must be laid to be made such a Day, at such a Place; where the Duty is not upon Bond, &c. If a Request is to be specially made, the Day and Year when made should be specially alleged. 1 Litt. 231. 2 Litt. Abb. 466. Cro. Car. 280. But where a Person is not restrained to make the Request by a Time limited, if made at any Time during his Life, it has been held to be good, C. Litt. 150. And a Request at any other Time than that set apart in the Deed. 5 Nolf. 294. A Defendant pleaded the Statute of Limitations in an Action on a Promise to pay so much on Request, &c. And upon Demurrer the Plaintiff had Judgment for though a Promise to pay a Duty precedent, the Duty was not, being no Duty till the Request was made, and the Action being then brought within Time after the Breach, 'is good. Cro. Car. 95. At a Trial, the Defendant would have the Plaintiff plead the Request; but it was ruled that he need not; for not being traversed in the Plea, 'is admitted. 1 Lew. 160. In a special Action on the Cafe for keeping a Passage first appears, so that the Plaintiff could not come and cleanse his Gutter, &c. after a Verdict for the Plaintiff. it was objected in Arrell of Judgment, that the Plaintiff ought to have set forth a Refusis to the Defendant, at the time of the Release, and it was held a good Objection after a Demurrer, but not after a Verdict. 1 Mad. 27. Unreasonable Refusis are not regarded in Law; and there is no Distinction where a Thing is to be done upon Refusis, and reasonable Refusis. Dyer 218. Cr. Carr. 176. 3 Niles 140. 142.

Refisset, (Reposite) is an Admission or Receipting of all the Goods of a third Person to plead his Right in a Cause formerly commenced between two other Persons; as where an Action is brought against Tenants for Life, or Years, or any other particular Tenants, and he makes Default, in the Case, and in the Reversion may move that he may be received to defend his Right, and to plead with the Demandant: Refisset is likewise applied to the Admission of a Miss, where the Controversy is between the same two Persons. Bridge 105. Co. Litt. 115. Niles 3 146. He in Reversion may come into Court, and pray to be received in a Suit against his particular Tenant; and after such Refisset the Refisset shall be had, as much as may be by the Law, without any Delay of either Side. Stat. 15 & 2. cap. 17. And 'tis said a Writ shall be return'd, in Default of her Husband, &c. 2 Litt. 467. But Refisset is admitted only for those who have Estates depending upon particular Estates for Life, Tenants by the Curtesy, or other Possibility, &c. and not for him in Remainder after an Estate tail, which is indurable. 1 And. 153. And Husband and Wife were Tenants for Life, Remainder to another in Fee. a Forman was brought against the Husband, who made Default after Default: and thereupon the Wife prayed that she might be received to defend her Right; but it was denied by the Court; because, if the Defendant should recover against her Husband, it would not bar her Right if she survived him, and therefore it would be to no Purpose. Then he in Remainder prayed to be received, which at first the Court denied; but upon some further Consideration, he might falsify such Recovery; and because his Estate did not depend upon the Estate of the Husband alone, but upon the Estate of the Wife at least he was received. 1 Lom. 86. And if any Stranger come in by a collateral Title, before he is recover'd, he shall find the Court to satisfy the Demandant the Value of the Lands if he recovers from that Time till final Judgment; and the Demandant recovering, he shall be gavously amerced, &c. by Stat. 20 Ed. 148.

Refisset, (Refisset) from the Fr. Refisset, i.e. (Liberation) is an illegal Taking away and setting at Liberty of a Defeas taken; i.e. a Person arrested by Proces or Court of Law: And where a Miss has taken a Defeas, and the Castle disallowed as he is driving them to the Pound happen to go into the House of the Owner; if he then took the Defeas disallowed and drove them away, and he delivered them not, this is a Refisset in Law. Co. Litt. Allo it is used for a Writ which lies for, this Fall, called Beso de

Reffsetis. F. N. B. 101. Reg Orig. 105. Refisset is a forcible Resistance and a Refusing of any Thing, or of a Person arrested, and procuring an Escape against Law. 2 Repet 150. And there must be a Defeas, or an Arrell, or there cannot be a Refisset. 2 Repet. 191. If a Defeas is taken without Cause, as where no Rent is due; or if one disarms out of his Fee, or in the Highway; or disarms fuerit parce sententia, where there is a sufficient Defeas before; or if the Landlord disarms any Thing that is not disarming, one may Refisset: And this may be done by the Tenant, when any thing of his is wrongfully disarmed; or by a Stranger, when his Goods are disarmed without just Cause, &c. But if the Defeas was made upon good Cause, the Owner cannot make Refisset as they are going to the Pound; and notwithstanding the Defeas be without Cause, if it be imposed, the Owner cannot break into the Pound to refuse the Defeas. 3 Repet. 150. 4 Repet. 11. Where the Owner of the Castle, before Defeas, renders his Rent, and a Defeas is afterwards taken, it is wrongful, and the Tenant may make Refisset; tho' he under after the Defeas, it is otherwise; he cannot make Refisset, the Taking being lawful. 1 Repet. 150. 2 Repet. 107. 2 Repet. 147. A Tender of Amends to a Bailiff is not good; for he cannot deliver the Defeas when once taken. Wod. 102. In Refisset, the Plaintiff declared that he had disarmed forty Sheep of the Defendant's, and eighty Sheep of another Person's Damage-feasant, and that the Defendant turned and refused all of them; the Defendant justified the parting his forty Sheep in the Place where, &c. having Right of Commun in them, and that the Plaintiff de injuria sua propria causa chained them, and that the Defendant would have taken them from him, but they ran among the other eighty Sheep of the Stranger, and he folded them, and because he could not seiver them, he chained them the Coal. 2 Repet 107. 2 Repet 147

Refissets of Goods disarmed, and Pound Breaches, incur turel Damages; recoverable by Statute on Action of the Castle, &c. 2 W. of M. Goods were levied on a Writ of Fori secus, and the Sheriff returned that they were removed by him from A. contra volanturiam adjudget, that no Refisset can be on a Fi. fac. for that lies only on a Castle arrestum pro phần, and cannot be of Goods seized; but the Party injured may have an Action on the Castle against A. B. who made the Refisset. Hamb. 104. And if the Refisset be not taken, it is. It has been held, that the Plaintiff, at whose Suit an Arrell is made upon mefe Proces, may have his Action against the Refissetors; and he cannot bring it against the Sheriff: And where a Person is refused, taken upon a Capias ad satisfaciendum. Action lies for the Plaintiff, as well against the Refissetors as the Sheriff. 2 Ric. 3 cap. 146. 2 Ric. 3 cap. 139. For a Refisset in Action upon the Castle, the Plaintiff alleged, that he recovered against A. B. in Debt, and that he was taken by the Sheriff on a Capias ad satisfaciendum, and the Defendant refused him; it was adjudged this Action did lie by the Plaintiff against the Defendant; who is not bound to sue for the Sheriff, and he to have his Remedy against the Refissetors: And if the Plaintiff recover, and he be after fed by the Sheriff, this may be pleaded in Bar. Higges' A. 1734. 1756. If a Sheriff return, that the Defendant refused himself, it is not good; Yet the Defendant shall not take Advantage of his own Wrong. 1 Co. 174. 146.

Here a Case (Rheuum) is peculiarly used both in the Canon and Common Law, for the Continance of a Parson or Vicar upon his Benefice: and personal Residece is required of Ecclesiastical Parishes on their Lords, upon Pain of forfetting 10s. for every Month. Stat. 1 H. 8. cap. 15. One of the great Duties incumbent upon Clergymen, is that they Refute upon their Living: and on the old Erection Parochial Churches, every Clergyman was obliged to refute upon his Benefice, for Reading of Prayers, Penance, &c. by the Laws and Canons of the Church; and by Statute, the Parson ought to abide upon his Rectory in the Parsonage-House; for the Statute is intended not only for serving the Cure, and for Hospitality, but to maintain the House, Repair, and prevent Dilapidations; The lawful Imposition, Sicknes, &c. being Things of Necessity, are good Cause of Excuse for Absence, and excepted out of the Act by Concession, and not refusing that the Parson is employed in some important Business for the Church or King; or he is entertained in the King's Service. 6 Rep. 21. 1 Co. 470. In an Information on the Statute above mentioned, it was adjudged that the Parson is to live in his Parsonage House, and not in any other, though in the same Parish. But as by Stat. 13 Eliz. it is declared void, where the Parson is absent above eighty Days in any one Year, &c. On this Act a Defendant pleaded to an Agreement for Ten, that the Parson was absent from his Parsonage for the Space of eighty Days in one Year; and the Jury found that he dwelt in another Town adjoining, and came constantly to his Parish Church four Days in every Week, and there read Divine Service; and it was held, that this was not such an Absence as is intended by the Statute to avoid any Agreement or Lease made by the Parson. 1 Bell. 112. A Person allowed to have two Benefices, may Demise or Lease one of them (on which he is Non-Resident) to his Curate only; but if the Curate leaves over, such Lease shall last no longer than during the Curate's Residence, without Absence above forty Days in any one Year. 1 Leon. 100. Exemtion Legatee. Is he to whom the Residue of the Estate is left by Will. And such Legatees being made Executor by others, shall resist against the Ref: Where there are two Residue Legatees, and one dies insolvent, his Administrator shall have a Moiety of the Surplus of the Personal Estate of the Testator, contrary to joint Executors, who are not intituled to Moieties; because by making them Residue Legatees, the Testator intended an equal Share to both: And if a Residue Legatee die before the Will is proved, his Executor shall have Administration, &c. 6 H. 7. 1 Chan. Rep. 238. Show. 26. See Executor.

Refutation, (Rheumation) Is the bringing up a Benefice into the Hands of the Ordinary, called by the Curates' Resumption; and though it is all one in Nature with the Word Surrender, yet it is the only surrender to the Yeomanry, to the Spiritual Living to the Bishop, as surrender is the Giving up of Temporal Land into the Hands of the Lord. And a Rheumation may now be made into the Hands of the King, as well as by Bishops, because he has Supereminence in Ecclesiastics, as the Pope had here in ancient Times; though it has been adjudged that a Rheumation ought to be made only to the Bishop of the Diocese, and not to the King because the King is not bound to give Notice of the Rheumation to the Patron, as the Ordinary is; nor can the king make himself, without previous Forewarning, to the Bishop. 2 Bank. 498. Roll. Abr. 358. Every Parson that refuses a Benefice, must make the Rheumation to his Superior; as an Objection to the Bishop, a Bishop to the Archibishop, and an Archibishop to the King, as supreme Ordinary; and a Donative is to be refused to the Patron, and not the Ordinary; for in that Case the Clerk received his Living immediately from the Patron. 1 Rep. 137. A common Benefice is to be refused to the Ordinary, by whose Admission and Inducement the Clerk first came into the Church: And the Rheumation must be made to that Ordinary who hath Power of Indulgence; in whose Diocese it is either to accept or refuse the Rheumation; as the Law hath declared him the proper Person to whom it ought to be made, it hath likewise empowered him to judge thereof. 2 Co. 64. 198. The Instrument of Rheumation is to be directed to the Bishop, and when the Bishop hath accepted of it, the Rheumation is good, to make void the Church, and not before; unless it be where there is no Curate, when it is good without the Acceptance of the Bishop. A Rheumation, may be made before a Publick Notary, but without the Bishop's Acceptance it doth not make the Church void: The Notary can only attest the Rheumation, in order to its being presented, 2 Co. Abr. Before Acceptance of the Rheumation by the Bishop, no Presentation can be had to the Church; but as soon as the Acceptance is made, the Patron may present to the Benefit Rheumated: And when the Clerk is instituted, the Church is full against all Men in Church of a Common Patron; though before Induction, such Incumbent may make the Church void again by Rheumation. Count. Parl. Compan. 106. A Parsonage is not to be granted over by the Incumbent, but it may be Rheumated; and Rheumations are to be absolute, and not conditional; for it is against the Nature of a Rheumation to be conditional, being a judicial Act. 3 Nisw. Abr. 157. If any Incumbent shall corruptly refuse Rheumation, or to any Reward directly or indirectly for refusing the same, he shall forfeit double the Value of the Sum, &c. given, and the Party giving it be incapable to hold the Living, Stat. 51 Eliz. cap. 6. But a Man may bind himself by Bond to Rheumate, and it is not unlawful, but may be upon good and valuable Reasons; as where he is obliged to Rheumate if he take a second Benefice, or if he be Non-refuted by the Space of so many Months, or on to Rheumate if the Patron shall present his Son or Kinsman when he shall be of Age capable to take the Living. 2 Co. 147. 149. For Rheumation of Benefices have no Encouragement in Church; for no such Bonds generally the Incumbent is relieved, and not obliged to Rheumate. 1 Roll. Abr. 443. A Parson's Refusal to pay his Tithes, tis said is a Rheumation, for which he may be deprived. Owen 5. And where Rheumation is actually made de Eexitial, as it extends to all the Lands and Profiscions of the Church. Co. Yar. 63. The usual Words of a Rheumation are Reseatures, Cede, Dimittor, and Refugum; and the Word Rheumate is not a proper Term alone. 2 Roll. 350.

Mat. Par. 555.

Restitution, (Restitutio) Is a Restoring any Thing unjustly taken from another: It signifies also the setting him in full Possession of his Goods, or Tenements, which he had been unlawfully deprived of them. Cramp. Inf.
144. And Restitution is a Writ which lies where a Judgment is reversed, to re-stores and makes good to the Plaintiff all that he hath lost: The Court which reverses the Judgment, given upon the Reversal a Judgment for Restitution, where a Scire facies quae Restitutionem habet non debet, reversus the Reversal of the Judgment, and the Writ of Execution, &c. must issue forth. 2 Litt. Abp. 472. But the Sheriff doth oftentimes refer the Plaintiff to one without a Writ of Restitution, i.e. by Writs Habeas facias Petitionum, &c. in the common Proceeding of Judicam upon a Trial at Law. Ibid. 473. And there is a Rule as to the Possession of Lands in Cases of forfeiture Every a Restitution of Lands to an Host, on his Ancestor's being attainted of Treason or Felony; and Restitutio of Judicam Goods, &c. A Writ of Restitution is not properly not reversed: but where the Party can't be referred by the ordinary Course of Laws and the Nature of it is to re-stores the Party to the Possession of a Freethold, or other Matter of from, from which he is in illegally removed; and it extends to Restitution on Mandamus to any Publick Office. Trin. 25 Car.
B. R. 2 Litt. 472, 473. Where a Judgment for Land is reversed in B. R. by Writ of Errors, the Court may grant a Writ of Restitutions to the Sheriff to put the Party in Possession of the Lands recovered from him by the erroneous Judgment: though there ought to be no Restitution granted of the Possession of Lands, where it cannot be grounded on some Matter of Record appearing to the Court. Hill. 22 Car.
And Persons that are to re-stores, are to be Parties to the Records of the Title, must be made by the special scire facias. Cro. Car. 328. a Salk. 587. If a Leafe is taken in Execution upon a Foro facias, and fold by the Sheriff, and afterwards the Judgment is reversed: the Restitution must be of the Title for which the Leafe was fold, and not the Term. Cro. Juc. 246. Mers. 288.
But a Sheriff extended Goods and Lands upon an Ejectment, and recovered that he took a Leafe for Years, which he fold and delivered to the Plaintiff as Secret & Catallia of the Defendant for the Debt, and afterwards the Judgment was reversed for Error: and it was adjudged, then, the Party shall be referred to the Leafe, because the Ejectment gave the Sheriff no Authority to sell the Term, and therefore a Writ of Restitutio was awarded. Teile. 179. And there has been in this Case a Distinction made between compulsory and voluntary Acts done in Execution of Judicam, where the Sheriff is commanded by the Writ to sell the Goods, and where he is not, when the Goods are to be re-stores, Cro. 8 Rep. 96. If the Plaintiff hath Execution, and the Money is levied and paid, and afterwards the Judgment is reversed, there the Party shall have Restitution without a scire facias, for it is upon the Record what the Party had lost and paid: but if the Money was only levied, and not paid, then there must be a Scire facias2 alleging the Sum levied, &c. And where the Judgment is for aside after Execution for an Irregularity, there needs no Scire facias for Restitution, but an Attachment of Contemn, if upon the Rule for Restitution, the Money is not re-tionem, &c. 'the Defendant pleaded Payment of the Money mentioned in the scire facias; and it was held that the Plaintiff could not be no. Cro. Car. 328. But now Payment of the money is a good Plea to a scire facias by the Stat. 4 & 5 Anm.

son was put out of Possession; and upon a Suspicion thereof, and Aschalt, made, Restitution was ordered.

But where one is indicted for a forcible Entry, and the Party indicted trespass the Indictment, there cannot be Requisition before Trial and a Verdict, and judgment given, though the Indictment be erroneous; it being too late to move to quash the Indictment after the Verdict, which puts the Matter upon Trial. 2. Litt. 475. 476. The King may require the Party or his Heirs to his Lands, and the Blood, as to all fines begotten after the Attainer. Ibid. There shall be a Writ of Requisition granted to the Owner of false Goods, by the Court where a Falsa is tried on Indictment, after the Attainer of the Falsa, as in Case of Appeal of Robbery. 21 Hen. 8. cap. 11. P. C. 168.

Resumption, (Reimposition) Is usedparticularly for the Taking again into the King’s hands such Lands or Tenements, &c. as before upon false Suggestion he had had by Letters Patent to any Man. Bract 296. It is said that the King cannot grant a Prerogative of Power so, but that he may resume it: but otherwise it is of a Grant of an Interest. Skinner’s Rep. 236. Resumption of Grant is mentioned in the Stat. 51 Hen. 6. cap. 7. and other Statutes.

If the Plaintiff says he will not appear, this is not a Revisitante but Non suit: But if the Plaintiff says he will not for it, it is a Revisitante. 2 Daws. Ab. 471. And Revisitante is always on the Part of the Plaintiff or Defendant: and it cannot be before a Declaration, for before the Declaration it is only a Non suit. 3. Litt. Ab. 476. Stat. T queryString. 2. cap. 59. 1 Litt. Ab. 470. The Sheriff is to send return to the Returner always to be the Return of Writs; otherwise it doth not appear how they came into Court. If a Writ be returnated by a Person to whom it is not directed, the Return is not good, it being the same as if there were no Return at all upon it. And after a Return is filed it cannot be amended; but before it may. Cr. Eid. 110. 1 Litt. Ab. 472. 478. If the Sheriff doth not make Return of a Writ, the Court will smere him so if he makes an insufficient Return; and if he makes a false Return, the Party grievous may have his Action of the Cause against him. Judgment may be pronounced conditionally, i.e. that the Judgment is reversed if the Defendant in contrary at an appointed Time; and this is called a Refusation, (Recus, from Recus) Signifies a Return against; and therefore Recusus term is often applied to a Person who is not granted one for Life, and who cannot dismiss it, nor demand it. 1. Sm. 142. A Recusus hath two Significations: the one is an Easement, which continues during a particular Easement in Being; and the other is the Reverse of the Land after the particular Easement is ended: It is said to be an Interfell in the Land, when the Possession falls, and so is commonly taken; or it is when the Easement which was passed with for a Time, ceases and is determined in the Possession of the Aliens or Grantors, &c, and returns to the Grantor or Donor, or their Heirs from whom derived. Plead. 160. 1. 134. But the usual Definition of a Recusus is, that it is the Recovery of an Easement left in the Grantor after a particular Easement granted away, continuing in him that granted the particular Easement: and where the particular Easement is in the Owner: Alfo a Recusus takes Place after a Remainder, when a Person makes a Difiision in Taw, the Recusus of the Fee-simple is in the Donor; and in a Leafe for Life, or Years, the Recusus is in the Leafee: Alfo a Recusus takes Place after a Remainder, when a Person makes a Dissolution of several Easements, and in such a Leafe, than whereof he was feated at the Time of making thereof.

1. Sm. 22. 14. Wood's

Was Py. 151. When the particular Easement determined, then the Recusus comes into Possession, and before it is the Grant of a Recusus will not pass. The Act of

When a Party dieth, a Female Plaintiff married, or there have been no Proceedings on a Decree, &c. for a Year past, the Decree and Proceedings must be revised by Salpuna Strike focius, or if the Decree be installed, by Bill of Revise: But if the Parties be not Heirs or Executors, &c. to the Party dead, the Decree or Caute is to be revised by original Bill, and not by Salpuna. Burlatia. A flight Wound in the Flesh. It is mentioned 44 Eliz. c. 44.

Right. (fut) In general Signification, includes not only a Right for which a Writ of Right lies; but all any Title or Claim for which no Action is given by Law but only an Entry. 1 Infus. 265. There is Right of Entry, and of Action, where a Man is put out of his Lands; of Property, when one is defied, &c. and of Pussicion. There is a Right of Future and Future Right; a Fut in Re, which may be granted to a Stranger; and what is called a naked Right, or Fut ad Rem, where an Action is turned to a Right, on a Declaration, &c. Gr. Co. Litt. 126. A Right in Writs and Pleadings, is properly in one, when he is outed of the Possession of his Estate by Dileffin or Wrong, and hath Remedy by Entry, or Affets: But Right doth also include an Estate in office in Conveyances; and therefore if Tenant in Fee simple makes a Leave and Release of all his Right in the Land to another, the whole Estate in Fee passes. Woul. 119. 126. Sir Edward Coke tells us, That of such an high Estimation is Right, that the Law preferveth it from Dileffins; and if it continues down it may be, but never trodden out: And there is such an extreme Enmity between an Estate gained by Wrong and an ancient Right, that the Right cannot possibly incorporate itself to the Estate gained by Wrong. 1 Infus. 279. 8 Rep. 105. 6 Rep. 70. A Right may sometimes sleep, though it never dies; a long Possession exceeding the Memory of Man, will make a Right; and if two Persons are in Possession by divers Titles, the Law will adjudge the Possession in him that hath the Right. Co. Litt. 478. 6 Litt. 158. Where there is no Remedy, there is presumed to be no Right by Law. Waugh. 38. No Commands shall be made under the great or little Seal, to disturb or delay common Right. Stat. 2 Ed. 3. c. 8. See Rights.

Rights upon the publick: Possessions of Rights and Liberties against the Conduits of J. James, 2d fet forth, that He by the Assistance of divers evil Counsellors, did endeavour to subvert the Laws and Justice, and the Power of dispencing with, and dispensing of Laws; by levyng Money for the Ute of the Crown by Preten-sions, without Consent of Parliament; by raising and keeping a Standing Army, in Time of Peace; by violating the Freedom of Election of Members to serve in Parliament; by violating Proclamations in the Court of King's Bench and caudng partial and corrupt Jurores to be returned on Trials; exeuctive Bail to be taken; and exeuctive Fines to be imposed; also to encouragement of such Practices in the Courts of Common Law, and to expel and replace the Judges the courts to be illegal, and infringing upon the ancient Rights and Liberties of the People. Stat. 1 W. & M. cap. 6.

Rift, (Sax. Rynn) A Water course, or little Stream, which rises high with Floods.

Rings, A military Girdle; from the Sax. Rinn, i.e. decum, circuit, in a cause it was girt round the Middle: But according to Braut, Rinnas enim dicunctum precedit circum., ens dictum accipit girdle. Brass. lib. 1 c. 8.

Ringstitched, An Engine used in furching of Cloth. 45 Eliz. c. 10.

Ringletts, A Kind of Baifiiff or Serjeant; and such Rsperq livelihoods in Hen. 7th.

Rift, (Rizza, Risset, Fr. Riote) Is where three or more Persons assembled together; do some unlawful Act of a private Nature, with Force and Violence, to the Disturbance of the Peace; as by beating one Person, forcibly Entering into the House, or upon the Possession or Lands of another, breaking down Inlocures, &c. 3 Infus. 176. In every Riff, there must be the Intention of Force, or Violence; wherefore Inlo-cums for Wredlng, Playing at Cudgels, Dance, cums, &c. are not Riffs: And this Force must relate to some private Quarrel only; for if the Intention of such Inloccums is to redress Some Relevances of a Publick Nature, and such Intention is executed, it is a Levying War against the King, and Treason. Dall. 352.

3 Infus. 170. 1 Eliz. 70. 76. There are to be three Persons at the least to make a Riff, and two alone cannot be guilty of it: though two Persons may make a Conspriacy, &c. 3 Litt. ad. 489. If divers Persons assemble together in such a manner, and after assembled do some deliberate riotous Act; this is a rious Assembly, notwithstanding they did not at first assemble in a rious Manner. The rious Act shall have Relation to their Assembling together, and the Intent and Nature of Persons is best interpreted by their Actions. ibid. But if Persons on a lawful Meeting, fall out upon a sudden Quarrel, here being no Intention of an unlawful Act, it is no Riff. Dall. A Number of Persons being met together at a Fair, Markcr, or Church-Day, or any other lawful and innocent Occasion, if they happen to fall together by the EAST, they are not guilty of a Riff, but a sudden Affray only; because the Delight of their Meeting was lawful, and the consequent Breach of the Peace happened unexpectedly: Yet it is said, if Persons innocently assembled together, do afterwards upon a Dispute happening to arise among them, form themselves into Parties, and then make an Affray, they are guilty of a Riff: For upon their Confeder-acting together, with an Intent to break the Peace, they may as properly be said to be assembled together for that Purpose, from the Time of such Confederacy, as if their first coming together, had been upon such a Delight. 1 Hawk. P. C. 156. 6 Mod. 45. and it is agreed, That if an Assemble of Persons met together on any lawful Occasion, shall on a sudden Propoal go into a Body to pull down a Houte, or Inclosure, or do any Act of Violence to the Diburbance of the publick Peace, and the same be executed accordingly, the Persons concerned cannot be Riffers; their Assoilciating themselves together for such a new Purposo, being no way evemuated by their having met at another Place, and then proceeding to act upon a Person feeing others actually engaged in a Riff, shall join them, and assist them therein, he is as much a

Riffor as if he had at first assembled with them for that that Intent; nor shall his pretended that he came innocently into the Company avail him; for it is impo-sable, white any past, but that a Person for inegaged in a Rist was in Truth one of the first Assemble, or had a previous Knowledge of the Design of the Tumult. 1 Hark. 80. On an Indictment for a Rist, it hath been adjudged, that where three or more are assembled unlawfully, without any ill Intent, and an Affray happens amongst them, none are guilty behold, who are actually concerned in it; but if they were unlawfully assembled, then the Act of one may be imputed to all: That if they are unlawfully assembled, and afterwards quarrelling, one of the Compa-y is by himself the reef, it is no Rist; though if they beat a Stranger, in that very Moment the Quarrel began, they are an unlawfully Assemble: And if each Stranger is beaten by one of the Company, the Concurrence of the Reef is Evidence of their evil Intention, and it is a Rist in all of them. 2 Salk. 595.
Any Person may assemble a Number of Men to de-feet his Hosts against Injury or Violence; and yet if a Man be threatened, that if he comes to fetch a Place, he shall be beaten, and he thereupon assembles a Company to go thither with him, though it be for the safety of his Person, this may be deemed a Rist, because of the Danger the Government may be in from such Assemblies; and for that the Law gives him another Remedy, viz. by demanding Surety for the Peace. Bract. Rat. But every Man in a peaceable Manner may assemble a Company to do any lawful Thing, or to remove any Nuisance; and may for that Purpose enter another Man’s Ground; And, that a Man had erected a Weir over a common River, and several People assembled with Spades and other Things necessary to remove the said Weir, and made a Trench in the said Weir, to turn the Water so as they might the better take up the said Weir, and did remove the same Nuisance; this was held neither any forcible Entry nor Rist. 6 Br. 14, 53.
Though if, by removing such Nuisance, the Persons assembling use any threatening Words, as that they will do it, if they die for it, or the like; or their Behaviour be in apparent Disobedience of the Peace, then it will amount to a Rist for the Manner of doing a lawful Thing may make it unlawful. Ibid.
If one assembles a proper Company to carry away a Public Token of Timber, in which he pretended the Right, if the Number be no more than necessary to carry it away, although another Man may have a better Right to the Timber, and this is an unlawful Act, it is no Rist by the laws the performance of the Peace; so that the Doing of an unlawful Act by an Assemble of People, may be so managed as not to be a Rist. 1 Harp. 404. And Persons assembled together to do any Thing prohibited by Statute, if they peaceably perform the same, cannot be denominated Ristar.
& Mod. 141. An Indictment against A. B. for that he committed rist at such a Place, Or. did commit a Rist, is good: And several being indicted for a Rist, it was moved, that the Professor might name two or three, and try against them, and that the Reef might enter into a Rule to plead guilty, if they were found guilty; and a Rule was made accordingly, this being to prevent the Charges in putting them all to plead. Mod. Cap. 212. 3 Salk. 517.
If two only are found guilty on an Indictment for a Rist, and the Reef acquitted, all are acquitted; and if a Battery be likewise laid in the Indictment, if it be not made out a Battery, but an Offence, the Defendants be so Discharged, the Reef, the Discharge of the Rist, are also discharged of the Battery, 2 Salk. 593. Upon an Information against several Persons for committing a Rist, and setting up a Battery as a pretended Offence to set up the Bank, but proved the Rist not guilty; and it was held, that by this Verdict the Defendants were acquitted of the Charge in the Information, which was a Rist; for an Affion on the Cause would lie for erecting the Bank. 3 Mod. 72. The Defendants bening found guilty of a Battery, and setting up a Battery, and claiming Turnpike Royalties, was an unlawful Assembly, where three or more are assembled, and the Ref did not question, whether any Right in the Battery and Turnpike, to meet together to choose a Battery, and they might be assembled to do an unlawful Act themselves; and then it is not unlawful in the Defendants to disturb them.
2 Salk. 594. Dyn. 68. A Mayor and Aldermen of a Town making a Rist, are punishable in their natural Capacities; but where they have committed dangerous Ristar within their Precincts, their Liberitys have been seised, or the Corporation owned.
3 Cr. 352. Dal. 204, 216. Women may be prosecuted as Ristar; but Infants under the Age of fourteen Years, are not punishable. Dall. 345. Word. lib. 425.
By the Common Law, Ristar are punished by Fine and Imprisonments, and if infamous, by Pillory; And by Statute, Justices of the Peace have Power to restrain Ristors, &c. to arrest and imprison them, and cause them to be duly punished. 34 Ed. c. 1. As soon as the Sheriff and other the King’s Ministers hear of a Rist, or other Assemble against the Peace, they with the Power of the County shall apprehend such Offenders, and put them in Prison until delivered by Law. 27 Eliz. 2 c. 8.
If a Man found a Justice of the Peace, dwelling near the Place where such Offencers shall be committed, together with the Sheriff or Justices of the Peace, shall by the Power of the County, if need be, suppress Ristar, Run, &c. shall the Offenders, and record what shall be done in their Presence; by which Record the Offenders shall stand convicted in Camera, or in any other Court, civil or criminal; and if Offenders are departed, the said Justices, &c. shall within a Month after make Inquiry thereof, and hear and determine the same; and on such Inquiry being found, within a further Month the Justices and Sheriffs are to certify to the King and Council, &c. on Default whereof, the Justices, &c. shall forfeit 100s. 13 H. 4, c. 7. Their Statutes are underfoot of great and notorious Ristar.
And the Record of the Rist within the View of the Justices, by whom it is recorded, is such a Conviction as cannot be reversed, nor can the King or any other person do anything against it; and they shall thereby; but they may take Advantage of the Inoffi-cency of the Record, if the Justices have not purged the Statutes, &c. It is laid before the Justices being recorded, and the Offenders being sentenced, and the Justices and Sheriffs are to certify to the King and Council, and the Offenders are to be sent to the next Quarter-Session, or into the King’s Bench, to be tried according to Law.
Dall. 200, 201, 202. It has been adjudged, that where Ristar are convicted upon the View of two Justices, the Sheriff must be a Party to the Inquisition on the Stat. 13 H. 4. But if they differ, before Conviction, the Sheriff need not be a Party; for in such Case the two Justices may make the Inquittance of being a Party; and the Defendants by the Inquisition, if they are not found guilty, the Sheriff, and the Defendants are to be declared guilty as just, and the Justices to make an Inquisition afterwards.
2 Salk. 592. Ristar convicted on View of two Justices, and of the Sheriff of the County, are to be fined by the two Justices.
Judges and the Sheriff; and if the Sheriff do not join in letting the Fine, it is Error; for the Statute requires that he should be joined with the Judges in the whole Process, 35 Geo. 1. c. 7. By the 21 Geo. c. 8. If the Judges make Default in Inquiring of a Riot; at the Inquest of the Parry given by a King, or the Sheriff, to inquire into, and to try by sufficient and indifferent Men of the County, at the Direction of the Chancellor; and the Coroner shall make the Panel of Inquest upon the said Commission, which is returnable into the County, &c. and by this Statute, henceforth Risers are to suffer one Year's Imprisonment. The Lord Chancellor having Knowledge of a Riot, may send the King's Writ to the Judges of Peace, and to the Sheriff of the County,  &c. requiring them to put the Statute in Execution; and the Chancellor, upon Complaint made, that a dangerous Riot is fled into Places unknown, and on Suggestion under the Seals of two Judges of Peace and the Sheriff, that the common Fame runneth in the County of the Riot, may award a Capias against the Party, returnable in Chancery upon a certain Day, and afterwards a Writ of Proclamation returnable in the King's Bench, 2 Hen. 6. c. 9. 8 Hen. 6. c. 14. If one Justice of Peace hath Notice of a Riot, he shall immediately return the Writ; and if any person desire the Risers to the good Behaviour; and if they have no Sureties, or refuse to be bound, he may commit them to Prison. If, 5 July last, Risers committed by the Sheriff, the Risers, upon a Precept directed to him, is to return twenty-four Perfons dwelling within the County to inquire thereof, 19 Hen. 7. c. 13. The Statute, 1 Geo. 1. enacts, That if any Person to the Number of Twelve or more, unlawfully and riotously assembled against the Peace, being required by a Judge of Peace, Sheriff, or Under-Sheriff, Mayor, or any other Officer to come and give Information against the Person, committed in the King's Name, to disperse themselves, shall continue together an Hour afterwards, they shall be guilty of Felony without Benefit of Clergy, and Persons thus assembled and continuing, are to be apprehended and carried before a Justice of Peace, &c. And if in Refusance, the Risers are killed, the Perfons concerned in it shall be indemnified; Persons by Force hindering the Proclamation, shall be adjudged Felony; and the Offenders nevertheless guilty, if they do not disperse, &c. Risers demoliishing any Church, Churchyard, or Dwelling House, to be guilty of Felony, and Inhabitants of Towns and Hundreds are to yield Damages for Rebuilding or Repairation, to be levied and paid in form. As much as money recovered against the Hundred, by Persons robbing on the Highway, 1 Geo. 1. c. 5. Proclamations on this Aff are to be commenced within one Year after the Offence: And this is the severest Statute that hath been made against Risers, but it being wholly in the Affirmative, it doth not take away any Authority in the suppressing a Riot by Common Law, or by other Statutes. Wood's 450. See Robberies, p. 8.

A Record of a Riot on View.

B. in the Year, &c. in the County after-said; and then and there saw G. H. of, &c. and J. K. and L. M. of, &c. in the County after-said, and other Malefactors and Disters of the Peace of our sai'd Lord the King, to Us unknown, to the Number of five Persons, armed with Swords, Staves, &c. unlawfully and riotously assembled at the said House, threatening great damage to the said Lord the King, and Terror of His People, against the Form of the Statutes, &c. And therefore as we the said A. B. and C. D. Esquires, and then said E. E. Esquire, of the said G. H. J. K. and L. M. to be arrested, and carried to the next Goal of our said Lord the King in the County after-said, by our Force and Record being composed of the unlawful Assembly, Tomball and Riot after-said, there to remain until they have made Fine and Restitution to our said Lord the King for the same. In Witness whereof We have set our Seals to this our present Record, Dated at, &c. after-said, the Day and Year above mentioned.

Rivers. By the Statute of Westminster 2. c. 47. The King may grant Commissions to Persons to take Care of Rivers, and the Fishery therein: And the Lord Mayor of London is to have the Conservation in Breaches and Ground overflown as far as the Water ebb and flows in the River Thames. 4 Hen. 7. c. 15. Persons are appointed to take Care of the River Thames, making Shews there, calling Deng therein, or taking away Stakes, Boards, Timber Work, &c. off the Banks, incur a Forfeiture of 1 sl. Stat. 37 Hen. 8. c. 18. Commitments were appointed to prevent Excavations of the Occupiers of Locks, Wents, &c. upon the River Thames Westward from the City of London to Cricklade in the County of Wiltts, and for ascertaining the Rises of Water Carriage, on the said River, &c. by Stat. 6. & 7 W. 3. And this Statute is revived with Authority for the Commissions to make Orders and Conclusions, to be observed under Penalties. 3 Geo. 2. c. 11.

Rivers made navigable. The River Wye is dedclared a free and common River, for the Carrying of Goods and Pallengers, with Power to Traffick to make it navigable, and ordaining Tell or Tonnage Duties to be paid for Carriage of Goods, &c. by the Stat. 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 14. Duties and Impediments are abrogated by the Act of 1714, to recover and preserve the Navigation of the River Dee, by 11 & 12 W. 3. And the River Darwen is made navigable by Stat. 1. Ann. So of many others. 15 Geo. 1. If Persons break down a Lock, or other Works on any navigable River, it is Felony; and drawing up Fodgoutes made for preserving the Navigation of Rivers, &c. shall be sent to the House of Corretions for a Misd.
2 Geo. 2. c. 20. Persons may justify the going of their Servants or Horses upon the Banks of navigable Rivers, for towing of Barges, &c. to whomsoever the River may belong. 9 Geo. 1. L. 2. 244.

Roba. A Robe, Coat or Garment; and those who Robs accipient of another, are accounted of his Family. Wolfgang 627.

Robbery. (Robberia, or Robbaria, deriv'd de Roba, i.e. Ffyn) is a felonious and violent Assault upon the Person of another, by putting him in Fear, and taking from him his Money or Goods, on the Highway: And it is said to be so called, because a Man was thereby sometimes bereaved of his Robes or Garments; and for that his Money or other Goods being taken from his Person, were the Robber's Garment or Robe. 3 Inf. 68. Though Robbery in a large Sense, is any wrongfull Taking away of Goods; 2 Inf. 103. Pallers on the Highway of Death, though the Sum taken is under Twelve-pence, or be but one Penny; for it may be of any Value; whereas in other Cases of Judgement of Death is only where the Thing stolen is above the Value of 12s. 6d. H. P. C. 73, 74. But there must be something taken; and if any Thing be taken from the Person of another, on the Highway, without putting him in Fear, it is no Robbery, but Felony allowed Clergy; the putting in Fear distinguished the Robbery from the other stealing from the Person. 3 Inf. 68. H. P. C. 71.

If there be only an Attempt to rob, without any Taking, it is not Felony, but a Misd.

Meanor punishable by Fine and Imprisonment. 2 Inf.
Wynn's Inf. 505. There is a Taking in Deed, and a Taking in Law, in Robberie; as when a Thief only receives Money of a Traveller, who delivers it through Fear or by his own Compulsion for Fear of Death to swear that he will fetch him a Sum of Money, and he delivers it; this is a Taking in Law, and adjudged a Robbery. 3 Inf. The Robber must be in Possession of a Thing stolen: For Example; If the Possession of a Man be effaced to his Grand, and the Thief the more easily to take it out the Girdle, whereby it falls to the Ground, it is no Taking by Reaon the Robber never had any Possession thereof: But if the Thief take up the Bag or Purse, and in Striving let it fall, though he never take it up again; or if finding little in the Purse, he delivers it with all the Money to the Party again; these are a felonious Taking, because he had in it his Possession; and the Continuance of his Possession is not required by Law. If the Thief, by means of the Purse, lead the Purse into a Bush, to conceal it from the Robber, who perceiving it, takes it up, that is deemed in Law a Taking from the Person; so if a Man had thrown off his Coat, and whilst it lies in his Presence, a Thief assists him and takes his Coat, it is a Robbery; and if one endeavouring to make his Escape from a Robber, drops his Hat, and the Thief takes it up, it is a Taking from the Person. Ibid. The Taking away a Horie which a Man is actually riding, is not only Robbery; but if the Horse is standing by him, and he is taken away, it is a Robe; and a Claim of Property, without Colour for it, will not avail: But if any Man leaves his Horse tied, and steps aside; or if a Carrier follows his Horse at a Distance, and they are taken by a Thief, such Taking is not Taking from the Person, to make it Robbery. Dall. 364, Part. 128. If a Peron having assaulted me, drives my Cattle in my Presence out of my Paiture; or robs my Servant of my Money before any Place, he may be indicted as having taken such Things from my Person. S. P. C. 27.
Style 156. And some have gone so far as to hold, That the Taking away a Man's Money in his own Money is Aiding and Abetting. That is, if a Man going with his Coon drawn, and he gives it him; or a Person with Sword or Pillion in his Hand, demands my Money, and afterwards pays Alms, and I give it accordingly; it is a Taking with a Robe, &c. 34. 1. 21. 47.

A thief another with Circumstances of Terror that cause him by Reaon thereof to part with his Money, the Taking thereof is adjudged Robbery; whether there were any Weapon drawn or not, or the Peron assaulted delivered his Money upon the other's Command, or after gave it to him upon his Request to the Force, and begging Alms, 1 Inf. 96. H. P. C. 71, 75, 1 Haw. 96. And if I am robbed by several in a Gang, and one of them only takes my Money, in this Case in Judgement of Law, every one of the Company that furnish to the Rest, is a Robber, by express of that Indictment which they give to one another through the Hopes of mutual Affluence; and though they mis it of their full intents; and no one of them afterwards rides from the Rest, and robs another Person in the same Highway without their Knowledge or Consent, out of their View, and returns to them, all are guilty of Robbery, as they came together with an Intent to rob, and to afflict one another in doing so. Camp. 34.
1 And. 116. H. P. C. 72. Five Persons agreed to ride out to rob, but at Thames one parted from the Company, and rode away another Road, the other four riding on towards E. about three Miles further, they assailed a Man, and three of them robbed him; it was revolting, that the Party who rode away from the Rest, was not guilty of the Robbery, though he went out with them upon the same Defige, because he left them at H. and fell not in with them, for it may be repeated of what was defiled, or at least be purifyed it not: But the other four were adjudged guilty, although one of them was not actually present at the Robbery. 1 Haiti's Hist. P. C. 535. A Robber was committed upon the Thames in a Ship there, on that Side of the River which is in Middlesex, and the Offenders were indicted for it done in or near the King's Highway, and parted for the Thames; which is in Truth alias via Regia, the King's High Street. Ibid. 536. Stat. 23 H. 8. The Words in an Indictment for a Robbery, by the old Form of Proceedings, are, are, a Person A. B. wileless & felonious Capt. & after from the Town of London, in two parts, & the Robbers must be laid in the Indictment to be done in Alias via Regia, if it be alleged to be done in quodam via Regis per Majestatem de Londini, &c. &c. The Creditor will not be at his Cost & Charge; because the Words of the Statute to this Purpose are, in or about or near the Highway. 1 Hann. P. C. 97. 2 Hann.

Also the Sacrament is not w. be administered to such as refuse to be present at the Prayers of the Church, or to Strangers; for a Minister is not obliged to give it to any but those of his own Parish; and the Purifiers of the Holy Sacrament ought to signify their Names to the Curate at least a Day before it is administered.

Statute 25 Ed. 3. cap. 1. Salarium at first signified the Rests or Profits of a Sale, Hall or House (as in Gasgoys they now call the Seats of the Gentry Sale's, as we do Halls) but afterwards it was taken for any Wages, Stipend, or annual Allowance.

Sale, (Sale) Is the Transferring the Property of Goods from one to another, upon valuable Con-consideration: And if a Bargain is that another shall give me £ 1 for such Thing, and he gives me Earnest, which I accept, this is a perfect Sale. Wood's, Instr. 316. On Sale of Goods, if Earnest be given to the Seller, and Part of them are taken away by the Buyer, he must pay the Redress of the Money upon fetching away the Rest, because no other Time is appointed: and the Earnest given binds the Bargain, and gives the Buyer a Right to demand the Goods; but a Demand without paying the Money is void: And it has been held, that after the Earnest is taken, the Seller cannot dispose of the Goods to another, because there is none Default in the Buyer; therefore if he do not take away the Goods and pay the Money, the Seller ought to require him to do it; and then if he do not do it in convenient Time, the Bargain and Sale is dissolved, and the Seller may dispose of them to any other Person.
1 Salk. 113. A Seller of a Thing is to keep it a rece-by the Seller. Nay 87. It is said a perfect Bargain Sanctuary, (Santuarium) Is a Place privileged for the Safe guard of Offenders Lives, being founded upon the Law of Mercy, and the great Reverence and Devotion which the Prince bears to the Place whereunto he grants such Privilege. Sanctuaries were fist granted by King Luctose to our Church and their Precincts; and among all other Nations, our ancient Kings of England seem to have attached motif to their Sanctuaries, permitting them to shelter such as had committed both Pelones and Traitors; so as within forty Days they acknowledged their Fault, and submitted themselves to Banishment; during which Space, if any Layman expelled them, he was excommunicated; and if a Cleric, he was made irregular. Mat. Wiel. Ann. 187, S. P. C. lib. 3. cap. 38. Ecles. lib. 1. cap. 29. St. John's of Beverley in Yorkshrie had an eminent Sanctuary belonging to it in the Time of the Savages: And St. Burjins in Cornwall had the like granted by King Aberkel, Ann. 995. to had Wimflem granted by King Edw. to the Confessor. Henr. P. C. 335, 336. Sanctuaries were abolished here by the Statutes 26, 28 & 32 H. 8. and 1 & 2 Ed. 6. And the Plan of Sanctuary with Anplot is taken away by 21 Jac.

Sir John Hoby in his Expedition of this Word, says it is not to be one and separate Clause, nor a depravity, but an intercession, and intire Clause, but intermedium; neither is it a fabulative Clause of itself, but it is rather to utter in the Sentence of another, and to particularize that which was too general before; so that which was too great, or to explain what was doubtfull and obscure; and it must neither increase nor diminsh, for it gives nothing to bring it: But it is a make a Restriction, where the precedent Words are not so very express, but they may be refrained.

Hob. 171, 172.

The Word Subject in a Declaration, shall not make any Almense of that which went before.

Add. 255. 204.  And yet in some Cases, the Subject which introduces a Subsequent, shall not be rejected. 2 Cor. 6:18.

Sect. 1. A Write judical, most commonly to call a Man to shew Cause to the Court wherence it issues, why Execution of a Judgment should not go out.

Old. Nat. Br. A Scire facias, to shew Cause, why there should not be Execution issued upon the Judgment against him; and if he can shew no Cause, there is Judgment.

This Word was not at the Common Law, but given by the Statute of Wms. 2, cap. 45, in personal Actions, when Debt or Damages are recovered, and in Execution is issued, if the Plaintiff had not sued out his Execution in a Year and a Day after his Judgment, he had no Remedy but by new Action of Debt upon his Judgment; but now he hath the same right to bring either a Scire facias, or Action of Debt, as he pleaseth. 2 Inf. 469.

By the Statute it is ordained in lieu of a new Original; and therefore Judgment upon the Scire facias shall have the same Effect as if it was before. 2 Inf. 600.

If any of the Writs of Execution, whether in Personal or Real Actions, are not executed within the Year and Day after the Judgment, to obtain Execution, there must be a Scire facias, to shew Cause why the Execution should not be awarded: But if the Plaintiff seeth out any of them within the Year, he may continue them after the Year till he hath Execution; and so cannot get out any Scire facias.

And a Writ of Error is a Consequence of the Cause, so that no Scire facias is required, though it depend some Years, and because pending the Writ of Error the Plaintiff cannot sue out Execution of the Judgment, but he may after the Affirmation of it, Gr. of 181. 1 Inf. 290. 2 Inf. 471. 2 Litt. 205, 174.

Where Judgment is had against a Tenant, there must issue a Scire facias against the Executor, although within the Year, to shew Cause why Execution should not be had; the like against an Administrator of an Intestate; And to on the Plaintiff's Part, if Heir, Executor, or Administrator; the Peron being altered: And if one recovers against a叁�ee, and the is manifest within the Year and Day, a Scire facias is to go against the Husband.

Word's Inf. 610. When either Plaintiff or Defendant, or one of the Plaintiff's or Defendant's dies, Execution may not be had, and thereupon, if an Administrator obtains and Judgment thereupon, in these Cases there is to be a new Judgment to warrant Execution. 2 Litt. 290.

If an Administrator obtains a Judgment for a Debt due to the Intestate, by Default or Confession, and the Administrator doth after die intestate, and Letters of Administration are granted, that is to one de bonis asyment, will of him that first died intestate; this Administrator cannot have a Spece facias to revive the judgment obtained by the first Administrator of the first Intestate, but must bring a new Action to recover that Debt; for he is no Ways Party or Privy to the first Judgment, but is in the same Situation as the Executors were By Verdict, he may now have a Spece facias upon it, by 17 Car. 2, c. 8. 2 Lill. 505. It hath been said of late to many late actions for this purpose, and also in Spece facias, and a Writ of Inquiry, all in one Writ, against an Executor or Administrator, for the speedy Obtaining of Execution upon a Judgment; and so be severally executed. 2d. 505. One may have a Spece facias to revive an old Judgment upon which no Execution hath been executed, without any Motion or Application to the Court; and the Judgment was good; and if it be above seven Years, and under ten Years since the Judgment was given, a Spece facias may be moved for at the Side-bar to revive it: But if it be above ten Years, then a Spece facias cannot be had without moving the Court, and a Rule for it; and the Court doth not use to deny it, if moved for. 2d. 505. The Court will not revive a Judgment ought not to be granted, till the Record of the Judgment be in Court where the Facia is moved for. 2 Lill. 446. In a Spece facia brought upon a Judgment, it is after a manner similar to the form before what Chief Justice by Name the Judgment was had; but it is not necessary to do in a Spece facias upon a Judgment of B. R. And the Reason is, because the Proceder in a Common Placem is the Common Pleas from the Chief Justice & facia sit; and in the King's Bench they are called Common pleas. Reval. 2d. 499. If a Spece facias is brought upon a Judgment of B. R. the Court will not revive a Judgment, but is brought by Original; the Plaintiff must allege a Place where the Court is held; as such a Facia is, returnable C. Coram nobis; sub reg. firminum, &c. To this or with a Name or in the Name of the Person by Magis- trate; or, in those Cases it may be returnable in Common, the Reason being before the Court, and the Place. If a Spece facias be brought to. In Debt upon a Recovery in Spece facias, on a Recognizances taken in the Chamber of London, it was not allowable that it was a Court of Record, and that they had been used to take Recognizances; And on Exception taken to it, divers Cakes were put, that though the Judgment was valid, yet Execution might be by Spece facias. For upon a voidable Judgment a Man shall recover, and may take out Execution; and that it should stand good, until the Judgment were revered. Godd. 96. After the Removal of a Record by Corrodari into a Superior Court, a Spece facias shall lie. And if a Spece facias is brought in B. R. upon a Judgment in an inferior Court, it must appear in the Writ it fell, how the Judgment came into B. R. whether by Corrodari, or by Writ of Error, because the Execution is different; if it came by Corrodari, the Spece facias is to be forth the same, and the Limits of the individual Action, and pray Execution within those particular Limits: But if it was brought in Writ of Error, that must be shown in the Spece facias itself likewise, and pray Execution generally. 3d. 505. A New Action, as the Defendant may plead to it: And it ought to be brought in the County where the original Action was laid; so as it must always be the first Action. Finch 477. 2d. 505. As a Spece facias is an Action, it requires a new Warrant of Attorney, and when the Party comes to pray Judgment thereon, he does it by Attorney. 2d. 505. And if one doth not proceed upon a Writ of Spece facias within a Year after it is taken out, he cannot, after that Time proceed upon that Writ, which is discontinued; but is to sue out a new Spece facias. 2d. 505. Spece facias may be pleaded to, before Judgment is given upon it: afterwards it is too late: Though a Writ of Error may be brought to reverse the Judg- ment on the Spece facias, if that be not good on which the Judgment was grounded. 2d. 505. Payment is no Plea at Common Law to a Spece facias upon a Judgment, because it is a Debt upon Record. 3d. 505. But this is altered by the 4 & 5 Ann. Whatever is pleaded to the original Action, in Abatement shall not be pleaded to disable the Plaintiff from having Execu- tion on a Spece facias; because the Defendant had admitted him able to have Judgment. 2d. 505. In Spece facias on a Judgment out of Debt, in a Real Action, the Defendant cannot plead Non-tenure of the Land generally, where it is contrary to the Re- turn of the Sheriff, but he may plead a special Non- tenure: But in a Spece facias to have Execution in a Real Action, the Defendant may plead Non-tenure generally, because the Freehold is in Question, and that is favoured in Law; and the Tenants in Chief may plead there are other Tenants not named, and pray Judgment if they ought to answer: The others are tenanted, &c. but it would be otherwise if the Facia had been brought against particular Tenants by Name. 3d. 505. On a Spece facias to have Execution upon a Judgment in Debt of every Tenant is to be contributory; and therefore one shall not an- swer, as long as he can show that nothing is due, and not warned: Canto in a Spece facias upon a Judgment in a Real Action for every Tenant is to answer for that which he hath, or is capable of receiving, and the other not. 3d. 505. N.S. 2d. 204. There is to be a Spece facias against the Heir and Tenants in Chief to reversible a Common Recovery of Lands; the Spece facias is to be had against the Heir, and for they are to gain or lose by the Judgment in the Re- covery. 3d. 505. Med. 2d. 749. A Spece facias to have Execution of a Fine, shall not be used against the Free- hold for Years, but against him who hath the Freehold, who may have some Manor to bar the Execution. 2d. 471. 2d. 144. In Ejaculation, it was adjudged, that a Spece facias might be brought by the Leasor though he was not the landlord, and that it may be had by the Leasor himself; as either of them may have a Writ of Error on the Judgment; And that it might be brought against those who were strangers to the Judgment, and against the Executors of the Defendant. 3d. 2d. 1257. A Defendant being summoned upon a Spece facias, and the Summons returned, if he doth not appear, but the Judgment go by Default, he is for ever barred. 1d. 41. 42. If the Sheriff hath returned him warned, he shall not have Autia Querela on a Re- leas, &c. for the Defendant might have pleaded the fame on the Return of the Spece facias; but if the Sheriff return Nihil, on which an Execution is awarded, he shall have Autia Querela, New Nat. 3d. 2d. Where the Plaintiff in the Judgment re- leases the Defendant of all Judgments and Execu- tions, &c. the Defendant may upon his Release sue out a Writ of Spece facias against the Plaintiff in the judgment ed Cogendum scripsum factum Relata- tions; and he need not sue out his Autia Querela. 3d. 5d. & M. B. R. Spece facias may be sued a- gainst a Sheriff, for not bringing a Moneyograph to Court levied on a Judgment, to show Cause why Execution should not be had against him for the Sum, with which he had charged himself by the Return of the Writ of Execution. 3d. 51. If.
one faces out two Writs of Scire facias, one after the other, where it is upon a Judgment by Bill, there ought not to be the space of three years between the first and Return of the first Scire facias. And the Scire facias is to be the Day of the Return of the first Scire facias. But if both the Bills be Writs of Scire facias, then they be to be laid out of the Court at the same time, and the second Scire facias, if Notes be allowed in Suits on Writs of Scire facias, &c.

B. there is but one Scire facias against the Ball, and upon a Nikil Oath returned, there is Execution; but in B. R. there are two Scire facias and two Nikils, and the first is to be duly returned, before the second filed out; and there must be fifteen Days interval between the Two of the first and the Return of the last. 2 Sa. 599. There must be a particular Warrant of Attorney to a Scire facias against the Ball for such a Warrant in the principal Action is no Warrant to the Scire facias, because there are distinct Actions; and the particular Warrant is to be entered when the Suit commences, which is when the Writ is returned. 2 Sa. 593. When a Scire facias is brought against the Ball, it must be in two parts, and where it is brought against the Defendant in the principal Action, it is to be in one part. 2 Sa. 599. Sequestration in London, is made upon an Action of Debt and the Course of Proceeding in it is thus: The Action being entered, the Officer goes to the Shop or Warehouse of the Defendant, when there is no Body within, and takes a Padlock and hangs it upon the Door, &c. using their Words, viz. Serjeant or Serjeant. (Lat. Serviant.) Is a Word diversly used in our Law, and applied to fundry Offices and Callings. First a Serjeant at Law, (Serviant ad Legem,) otherwise called the Serjeant of the Court of the Cafe, is the highest Degree in the Common Law, as a Dater is in the Civil Law; but according to Spense, a Doctor of Law is superior to a Serjeant, for the very Name of a Doctor, is but a Title of a Serjeant is only Ministerial. To these Serjeants, as Men well loved and experienced in the Law and Practice of the Courts, one Court is offered to plead in by themselves, which is that of the Common Pleas, where the Common Law of England is most strictly observed; obeyd however are not so limited as to be restrinted from Pleading in any other Courts, where the Judges (who cannot be such till they have taken the Decree of Serjeant) call them Brothers, and hear them with great Respect, and of which one or more are filled the King's Serjeants, being commonly chosen out of the rest in respect of their great Learning, to plead for the King in all his Causes, especially upon Indictments for Treason, &c. In other Kingdoms the King's Serjeant is called Advocatus Regius; and here in England, in the Time of King Edw. 6th, Serjeant Bredes wrote himself filius Servient ad Legem, there being for some Time none but himself, and in Ireland at this Day there is only a King's Serjeant. Serjeants at Law are made by the King's Writ directed unto such as are called, commanding them to take upon them that Degree by a certain Day; and by the Writ or Patent of Creation it appears that the Honour of Serjeant at Law, is a State and Dignity of great Rank; in giving these Degrees, which are so remune is void: and the Serjeant chosen hold a fum-tuous Feast, like that at a Coronation, which formerly continued several Days; also they make Presents of Gold Ring, to a considerable Value, &c. Fortnum, c. 50. 3 Cor. 1. Dryer 75. 2 Leigh 213, 214. Their Privilege of being impregnated in C. B. &c. Vide Privilege.

Serjeants at Arms. Their Office is to attend the Perion of the King; to arrest Perions of Condition offending, and give Attendance on the Lord Admiral, and Steward of England, sitting in Judgment on any Traitor, &c. There may not be above thirty Serjeants at Arms in the Realm, who shall not oppose the People. &c. 13 R. 1. c. 6. And two of them by the King's Allowance, do attend on the two Houses of Parliament; the Office of him within the King's Commons is, the Keeping of the Doors, and the Execution of such Commands touching the Apprehension and taking into Custody of any Offender, as that the House shall injeion him. Another of them attends on the Lord Chancellor in the Chancery; and one on the Lord Treasurer of England: Also one upon the Lord Mayor of London on extraordinary Solemnities, &c. They are in the old Book called Fermons, because they carried Silver Rods gilt with Gold, as they now do Maces, before the King. Stat. 7 Hen. 7. c. 5. Cranmer, 2. 39. Flint, 1. 2 c. 59.

Serjeants of a more inferior Kind are Serjeants of the Mace, whereby there is a great Band in the City of London, and other Corporate Towns, that attend the House or other head Officer, chiefly for Matters of Justice, &c. Kirk. 143. Formerly all the Judges of Eyre had certain Officers attending them called Serjeants, who were in the Nature of Typhoons. &c. With 1. c. 30. And the Word Serjeant is used in Britten for an Officer belonging to the County; which is the fame with what Breath calls Serjeant of the Hands of the Hundred, being no more than Bailiff of the Hundred. Brit. lib. 5. c. 4. And we read of Serjeants of Maces, of the Peace, &c.

Serjeants of the Bench, are Officers who execute several Functions within the King's Bench, mentioned in the Stat. 53 Hen. 8. c. 12.

Serjeants, (Serjeantia) Signifies in Law a Service, that cannot be due from a Tenant to any Lord but to the King only; and this is either Grand Serjeancy, that is, a Liberty to have a Serjeant, or Petit Serjeant, or Petit Serjeancy; in a Tenant of the King's Land to have a Serjeant to help him in his Wars and in Effect payable at Rest. Though all Tenures are turned into Service by the 12 Car. 2. c. 24. Yet the honourable Services of Grand Serjeancy still remain, being therein excepted. Litt. 153, 150.

Serants, Are such as Men of Trades and Professions employ under them, to assist them in their particular Office or Business; and others who perform the Work and Business of their Families, which comprehends both Men and Women: And Sernewt mens ten Menial, or no so: Menial, being Domestic, living within the Walls of the Houle. Dre'. 51. Every Person under the Age of thirty Years, that has been brought up in Handicraft Trade, or Land of Labour, though, or for Life, of the yearly Value of forty Shillings, or is not worth ten Pounds in Goods, and is allowed by two Justices of Peace; and not being retained with any Person in Husbandry, or in the Old Age, not being lawfully hired as a Servant with any Nobleman or Gentleman, or having any Farm or other Holding whereon he may exercise his Labour; shall, upon Request made by any Person using the Mystery wherein in such Person hath been exercised, be obliged to serve him as a Servant therein, on Pain of Imposition. 5 Eliz. c. 4. And by the same Statute, Persons are compellable to serve in Husbandry by the Year, with any Person that keepeth or sitheth Husbandry, and who will require any proper Person to serve; and, by the same Authority herein, and to affile the Wages of such Servants in Husbandry, order Payment, &c. Also two Justices, and Mayors or Head Officers of Cities or Towns, may appoint any poor Woman of the Age of twelve Years, and under forty unmarried, to go to Service by the Year, &c. for such Wages and in such Manner as they think fit: and if such Woman shall desire to go abroad as a Servant, then the said Justices, &c. may commit such Woman until he be bound to serve. Stat. 1 Henr. If any Master shall give more Wages than affiled by the Justices; or any Servant takes more, or refusing to serve for the Statute Wages, they are punishable: but a Master may reward his Servant as he pleases: but not by way of Contract on the Retainer; and if a Servant depart before the End of the Term, being hired for a Year, without Cause allowed by a Justice: or after his Term is expired, without giving a Quarter's Warnings, two Justices may commit him to Prison till he give Security to serve out the Time; or one Justice of Peace may send him to the House of Correction, there to be detained as a disorderly Person. A Master cannot put away a Servant before the End of his Term without some reasonable Cause, to be allowed by one Justice; nor after the End of the Term without a Quarter's Warning given before Wimborne: if a Master discharges a Servant otherwise, he is liable to a Penalty of forty Shillings. 5 Eliz. And where Servants quit their Service by Consent, by Court, &c. and two Holdouthers, &c. declaring their lawful Departure; and a Servant not producing such a Ticket, or Note, where he is free to dwell, is to be imprisoned till he gets one; and in Default thereof be whipped as a Vagabond; Masters retaining them without such Testimonial, shall forfeit five Pounds. But the Testimonial concerns only Servants in Trades and Husbandry. Stat. 1 Henr. No Person may retain a Servant for less than a Year, by the ancient Statutes; if one retains a Servant generally, without expressing any Time, the Law confines it to a Year; and where a Servant is hired for a Year, according to the Statute, and the Master dieth within that Time, the Executor must pay any debt due: and if a Woman Servant marryeth, she is obliged to serve out her Year; but if a single Woman who is with Child procures herself to be retained with a Master, who knows nothing thereof, this is a good Ground to discharge her from her Service; and if so be gotten with Child during her Service. Dall. 92. Rol. Ann. 1635. A Servant retained for a Year, falling sick, ought not to be discharged therefore, or for any Disability of the Lord; neither may his Wages be absolved for the same Cause. Dall. 125. Master and Servant are two persons, and the discharge of the Bever of a Justice of Peace is not necessary: And a Master's retaining Wages, not allowing sufficient Mews, or to the Master's Wife beating him, are good Causes for a Servant's Departure; but he shall not be allowed by a Justice. Dall. If a Master put away his Servant, he must pay him his Wages to the Time he served; though if the Servant gets some of the Master's Money before the End of the Time agreed, he shall forfeit all his Wages. Dall. 125. A Servant is not to depart from his Service; and if he refuse to do his Work, this is a Departure in Law, although he go not away. Noy. Max. 90. Enticing away a Servant, or retaining and keeping one who departed from his Master without Licence, knowing him to be a Servant to another, the Master may have Action of the Court against the Person doing it. 2 Lev. 63. Stat. 23 Ed. 3. But if a Man do retain another Servant's, not knowing that he was in the Service of the other, he shall not be punished for so doing; if he do not retain after Notice of his Fifth Service: And if a Person do retain one to serve him for forty Days, and another person afterwards retain him, the Fifth Service is avoided, because the Retainer was not according to the Statute. New Nat. Br. 374, 375. A Master is answerable for the Actions and Treasons of his Servants in many Cases: but not for Treasons of Battery, &c. and in criminal Castle, unless done by his Commandment. Noy. Max. 59. And if the Master order his Servant to drive his Master's Cattle, and after he hath driven them he kills or abeeds the Deer, the Master shall not answer it. Noy. 111. If a Man has a Servant known to be such, and he sends him to Fairs and Markets to buy or sell, his Master shall be charged if the Thing come to his Use; tho' if a Servant makes a Contract in his Master's Name, the Contract will not be binding, unless it were by the Master's Commandment or Assent; and where a Servant borrows Money in his Master's Name, without Order, that does not bind the Master. Dall. & Stud. Dial. 4, 5. A Servant buys Things in his own Name, the Master shall not be charged, except the Things bought come to his Use, and he have Notice of it. Noy. 171. Where a Master always gives his Servant Money, he shall not answer for what the Servant buys on Trust: but if he sends sometimes on Trust, he must answer to his usual Trademen for what is to be taken up on Trust by him. Wold's Stat. 56. A Master used to give his Servant Money every Saturday, to defray the Charges of the foregoing Week, and the Servant kept the Money; for Hold. Ch. Law, the Master is not to have that Advantage; his Peril ought to take Care what he spends his Money on; and 'tis more reasonable that he should suffer for the Chances of his own Money, and Trademen who do not employ them. Salk. 234. It has been adjudged, that where a Servant usually buys Goods for his Master upon Tick, and takes up Things in his Master's Name, but for his own Use, the Master is liable: but it is not so where the Master usually gives him ready Money: That if the Master gives the Servant Money to buy Goods for him, and he converts the Money to his own Use, and buys the Goods upon Tick, yet the Master is answerable, as the Goods come to his Use; otherwise he is not. Alth. & Note upon Salk. 234. And the Lands and Goods of a Man do not bind his Master, where he is allowed to deliver out Notes, though the Money is never applied to the Master's Use; but if he is not allowed or accustomed to deliver out Notes, his Note shall not bind the Master, if the Money be not applied to the Use of the Master. Salk. 234, 235. The Act of a Servant shall not bind the Master, unless he be by the Authority of his Master; and therefore if a Servant lends his Master to receive Money, and the Servant instead of Money takes a Bill, and the Master as soon as told thereof discharges himself of his Debt: But Acquittance, or any small Matter, will be Proof of his Master's Consent, and that will make the Warrant to levy the name of the Master's Goods. And upon Complaint on Oath of any Midlemaster, Mitcarriage or Ill-behaviour in any such Master, Artificer, or any person to the said Master, the Justice or Justices, may punish the Offender by Commitment to the House of Correction, there to be corrected and held to hard Labour, not exceeding a Calendar Month: or by abating some Part of his or her Wages, or by discharging such Master, Artificer, &c. from his or her Service or Employment. And on Complaint upon Oath of any Midlemaster, Refusal of necessary Provision, Cruise, or other ill-treatment to such Master, Artificer, &c. by any Master, the Justice or Justices may summon the Master to appear before him or them, and upon Proof thereof on Oath to the Satisfaction of such Justice or Justices, he or they may discharge such Master, Artificer, &c. from his said Service or Employment, such Discharge to be given gratis. Persons thinking themselves aggrieved by any such Determination, may appeal to the next Sessions of the Peace. But no Certiorari to remove any such Proceedings to any of the Courts of Writsminster.

SEITIR. (Seoyer) is a Fresh-water Trench, or little River, incompell'd with Banks on both Sides, to carry water into Sea, and thereby prevent the Land against Inundations, &c. The Kings of England granted Commissions of Sewers long before any Statute was enacted in Parliament for it; and during the Reign of King Hen. 6. Ed. 4. Hen. 7. several Statutes were made for appointing Commissions of Sewers in all Parts of the Realm where needful; some to Indemnify for 20 Years, and others for 21 Years, &c. with certain Powers to the Commissioners; which Commissions, by the 23 Hen. 8. are to be settled by the Lord Chancellor, Lord Treasurer, and the two Chief Justices, or any three of them, whereof the Lord Chancellor to be one: and are to continue ten Years, unless repealed by a new Commission: And by this Law, the Commissioners Oath is appointed: they are to be qualified and to Elect, by having Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments, in Fee or for Life, worth forty Marks per Ann. besides Repriphs (except they are resident in and about a Corporation, and having Moveables worth 100l.) and if they execute the Commission not being thus qualified or before sworn, they incur a Forfeiture of 40l. Commissioners that may lawfully have an Allowance for their Service, as of ass. per Diem, and their Clerks 21. a Day, out of the Taxes to be laid and levied. 23 Hen. 8. c. 5. The Commissioners of Sewers have a Power to make what Laws and Ordains they think fit; but not to continue in Force longer than their Commission by this Statute; and may decree Lands to be sold to levy Charges affixed, upon Non-payment, &c. All Laws, and Ordinaries of the Commissioners, are to remain in Force still repealed, notwithstanding the Determination of their Commission; and Clerks of Commissioners of Sewers are to exact Fines and penalties imposed by the Commissioners, yearly into the Exchequer, by 13 Eliz. c. 9. The Business of the Commissioners of Sewers is to repair Sea-Banks, and Walls, ferry Rivers, publick Streets, Ditches, &c. and make Orders for that Purpose: They have Authority grounded on the Statutes, to inquire of all Natives, and Officers committed by the Stepping of Rivers, seeding Mills, nor repairing of Banks, and Bridges, &c. and to tax and affix all whom it may concern, for the Amendment of Defaults, which tend to the Overflowing or Hindrance of the free Passage of the Water through its ancient Course: And they may arrest Carts and Horses, and take Trees, paying a reasonable Price for them, for Repairs, to the Nearer, to the Neighbors, and other Officers, &c. Terms de Ley 541. 4 Blunt 275. 275. Laws Sew. 86. 96. They proceed by Jury and View, in their Inquiries into Annuities and Defects of Repairs; and the Jury may assess for Neglect: All the Commissioners may punish by Fine for Contempes, and where Officers are negligent in their Duty, though they may not imprison Persons for Disobedience to their Orders. Laws Sew. But they cannot intermeddle where there is not a publick Prejudice; nor can they make a new River: Upon the 25. Statute 23. Hen. 8. the Commissioners decreed that a new River should be made out of another large River; through the main Land for seven Miles, unto another Part of the old River, and that they should take the tax of the same upon several Towns: adjudged that the Commissioners have no Power to make a New River, or any new Invention to call out Water, &c. for such Things are to be done in Parliament: But they may order an old Bank to be made new, or alter a Sourer upon any in evitable Necessity; and the Tax of a Sum in gross is to be made by them, to tax every Owner or Possessor of the Land, according to the Quality of their Land, Rent, and Number of Acres, and their respective Portions and Prods, whether of Pashure, Fithing, &c. 10 Rep. 141. Commissioners of Sewers are to tax equally, who are in Danger to receive any Damage by the Waters, and not only the Land of which Landowners are the Administers; because the Rages of the Waters may be so great, that the Land contiguous may not be of the Value to make the Bank; and therefore the Stat. 6 H. 6. c. 6. will have all those in Danger to be contributory, 5 Rep. 100. The Commissioners having made a Rate, according to the Quantity and Quality of the Land, &c. may grant Warrants to detain for it; and the Land may be decreed to be sold to pay the Rate: But the Decrees of Commissioners of Sewers are to be certified into the Chancery, and have the King's Affiet to be binding in the Commissioners and their Proceedings, are subject to the Jurisdiction of the King's Bench, 23 Hen. 8. 1 Fost. 67. There are several Cases and Considerations for which Perpet: may be obliged to repair and maintain Sewers; as farmers were bound to the Repair of the Walls, and Banks, &c. by reason of Frontage, by 37 Eliz. Afl. pl. 10. The bringing of a Quaerek over a Bank, or other Defence, is a sufficient Inducement to impose the Charge of the Repair thereof upon such Sewer. 8 Hen. 7. Presefion and Covenants are much of the same Nature, and the Law about Covenants in this Case; but Perpet: by Presefion doth not bind a Man to the Repair, except it be Rauious Terra. 21 Ed. 4. 58. 15 Hen. 7. By Tenors of a Statute, it is enacted that any Person may repair the Banks, or any part of the Wall, Bank, or Defence mentioned in the Statute of Sewers, 22 H. 4. A Man may bind himself and his Heirs by Covenants expressly to repair a Bank, Wall or any part of it, and be good; yet this shall not bind the Heir after his Death, where Affiet are not left from the Ancestor, which entered into the Covenant. Cullis's Read. The Use of Defences may be in the Man to the Reparation thereof; if one and his Ancestors have had the Use of a River by falling up and down the same, or have used a Ferry on or over it, &c. Laws Sew. 57. If no Persons or Grounds can be known, which ought to make Repairs by Tennure, Presefion, Covenants, or otherwise, then the Commissioners are to tax the Land: And by the Laws and Statutes of Sewers, all shall be charged. &c. Rid. 67. 58. If it is found before Commissioners of Sewers, that such a Person ought to repair a Bank; and this is removed into B. R. the Court will not quash the Inquisition, or grant a new Trial, except he repair it: and if afterwards he is acquited, he shall be reimbursed. Sid. 78. In Cases of Sewers, the Court of King's Bench inquires into the Nature of the Path, before they grant a Coroner to remove Orders; that no Milkfish may happen by Inundations in the mean Time, which is a discriminatory Execution of their power. 3 Sal. 46. The Court commonly hears Counsel on both Sides, where Orders of Commissioners of Sewers are removed by Coroner, before such Orders are filed; for if granted the Court will grant no Proceeds, which cannot be done after they are filed: But now they will file them in any Case, where there is no Danger likely to infuse. 3 Sal. 145. If Commissioners of Sewers proceed after a Coroner's delivered out of B. R. Attachment will issue against them, and they may be fined. 3 Nelf. Anc. 218. The Heirs and Bequest on Grounds, are all within the Statutes of Sewers in Point of Extent; but they and the Shore, and the relinquished Grounds, are out of the Commission of Sewers, to be determined thereby: But Parts of the same that is, as well as the Walls and Banks of Waters, are within the Commission of Sewers; and the Shore and Grounds left by the Sea, when they are put in Gaging and made profitable, then will be under the Commission of Sewers: And though before, the Ground left by the Sea, is not as to Defence, within the Commission.

Simmet, (Siminos, vel Simellus) Is mentioned in the Acte of 1687, and is ill in Life, especially in Lent: The English Simul is Paniitur, or the Simmery, (Simmor) Is a corrupt Contraft for a Presentation to any Benefit of the Church, for Money, Gift, or Reward: It is defined to be, judicium voluntati emendati vel vastati aliquis Spirituale aut Spiritualium opera publica — Atto venefium et sacrae — De consilio Simmor et Simeor, so called from Simon Magus. And some Authors mention Simmery per manum triplex; as per manum & munus, i.e. by Bribery, where Money is paid down for a Benefice; per manum & donum, by Favour and Flattry; per manum ab oppresso, i.e. by a fordid Subjection to the Patron, or doing him Services: To which has been added, the making of Prefents, without taking any Notice of expecting a Benefice. Against the scandalous Corruption of Simmery many Church Canons have been made; particularly in the Time of King Henry II. A Provincial Canon was made against it by the then Archibishop of Canterbury; and among the Canons of Oxford, Anno 55 H. 3. there is a severe one on this Head: There are some other general Canons of the Church, requiring an Oath to be administered to Clergymen against Simmery; and whereby Simmery is punished with Deprivation, Disability, &c. as was that of Dr. Warfen, Bishop of St. Davids, for pretending a Person to a Reditory in his Diocese for Money; and taking several Sums from Persons to admit them into Orders, &c. This Crime of Simmery is fraid to be worse than Felony; and the Abhorrence of the Law to it seems to have arisen from the Canons that had been made against it; for it was not an Offence at Common Law, Moz 564. And it has been held by others of the like nature, if not the Sine of the Holy Ghost: But neither the Greatness of the Offence, nor the Severity of the Canons (as has been observed) were sufficient to restrain this Practice in the Church; till the Parliament took it into their Care, and Anno 35 Eliz. enacted the following Law, One. That if any Person for any Sum of Money, Reward, Gift, Profit, or Benefice, or by Reason of any Promiss, Agreement, Grant, Bond, Covenant, or other Assurance for any Sum of Money, Reward, Gift, &c. shall present or collate any Person to any Benefice with Care, Dignity, or Living Ecclesiastical; or give or bestow the fame in Respect of any such corrupt Caule or Confidence, every such Pretention, Col-laction, Gift, and Befowing, and every Admision to Induction thenceupon, shall be utterly void; and the Crown shall present for that Tune: And the Perfon that shall give or take any Sum of Money, or shall take or give any such Perfon, &c. shall forfeit and lofe double the Value of one Year’s Profits of every such Benefice; and the Perfon so corruptly taking any such Benefice, shall be taken and delivered to have and enjoy the same. Stat. 35 Eliz. c. 6. 1 Inf. 120. Generally any Covenant or Agreement, made under any Manner of Confidence whatsoever, to present a Clerk, or to present any Person to be a Clerk, that in Confidence he will marry his Daughter, Kinwoman, &c. he will present him to such a Living where void, or the next Living that shall fall within his gift, this has been adjudged a Seminotcal Controft: But if a Father, upon the Marriage of his Daughter, covenants to pay a Portion, &c. and there is a distinct Covenant that he will procure the Son in Law to be admitted to such a Benefice upon the next Avoidance, it shall not be intended to be Jnnaeciacal because the Covenant had no Dependence upon the Marriage or any Covenant by itself, and not made in Consideration of Marriage; for if it had, then it would have been Simmery; and yet 'tis said it may be made fo, by a special Averment, shewing that it was Simmtery. 43 Eliz. c. 43. A Free Squire was feided of an Advowson, and the Church becoming void, he presented a Parson upon Condition that he would marry her, which he did accordingly, and this was held to be Simmery, and that it made the Preseuation void; for it was for her Benefits, which is the very Word in the Statute: So if a Patron preface one, on Condition that he shall be a Turne to his Son, the this is not properly a Gift or Reward. 1 Nq 148. If a Patron take Bond of his Preseuer to pay a yearly Sum to the Wife of the Incumbent, for the Maintenance of her and her Children, or pay a yearly Sum to the Son of the last Incumbent, so long as he shall be a Student in the University unpreferred, no Simmery will be comitted; and this is by an equitable Construction of the Statute against Simmery: But if the Money were to be paid to the Son of the Patron, it would be otherwise. Pajb. 2 Jac. 1. New 142. A Man may buy the next Turn of a Church, when the Church is full of an Incumbent, who is well in Health, and be no Simmery: And if a Father doth purchase the next Avoidance, a Right for his Son, when the Incumbent is sick, with an Intent to present him after the Death of the Incumbent, it is not Simmery: because the Father is obliged by Nature to provide for the Son: And therefore it is, that though the Son may not contrav for a Benefice, to the Intent that another should present him; yet the Father may contract with an Intention of presenting his Son. 3 Car. 2. c. 3. Consequently a Melville was for many Years as the Church is void, in some Cases; for not withstanding it be lawful for any Perfon to buy the next ne the Turn of a Church, when it is full, generally speaking, such Contracts have been sometimes adjudged unlawful: As if a Peron feized of an Advowson, grants the next Presentation to another, who enters into Bond to pay him a Sum of Money for it, when the Church shall be void, this is SIMONY: And if a Church being full of an old fickle Incumbent, a Clerk doth contract with the Patron of the Church for a certain Sum of Money, payable when the Church shall be void, to make a Grant of the next Turn to a Friend of his; and the Friend having such Grant doth present the said Clerk to the said Church, it is SIMONY:

Simony.

Hob. 105. In a Squar Impedite it was held, that the Grant of the next Avoidance for Money, when the Incumbent was very sick in his Bed and near Death, is SIMONY.

Hob. 53. One feied of an Advowson granted the next Avoidance to his second Son, who after his Death corruptly agreed with J. S. to procure him to be preferred to the Benefice, and to perfect this, it was agreed that the second Brother should forrester his Grant and Interfell to the elder Brother, and he knowing nothing of the first Agreement preferred J. S. it was held to be SIMONY, and all void.

Lawe 73. But if a Patron of a Church contract with one for SIMONY, and present another without SIMONY; this is not within the Statute, for the King is to present.

Hob. 105. Where a Man agrees to give a Sum of Money to procure him to be preferred to a Church, this is SIMONY: And if an Incumbent make a Simoniacal Contract with the Friend, or Wife of the Patron, who knows nothing of it, it will be SIMONY; also if Strangers make Agreement by Compact betwixt them, without the Privy of the Incumbent or Patron; as if a Friend of the one, give Money to a Relation of the other to procure him to present such a Clerk, it is SIMONIACAL: Though this Judgment hath been opposed, because thereby the Patron's Right may be defeated by Collusion between Strangers.

Carr. 330.

Carr. 786. Sim. 339.

And if one that hath No Right to present, shall by means of an corrupt Agreement, present a Clerk, who is by his Fds presented to Church; and the Patron being full by Ufperation, and a Squar Impedite then pendat to remove the Ufperation, and by which he was afterwards not to be doing the Right of another, in whom there is no Fault.

Borneu L. 7.

3 Inf. 153.

But on a Sale of an Advowson with Covenent to present such a Peron as the Bargainer should nominate, the Church being void by Ufperation, and a Square Impedite then pendat to remove the Ufperation, and by which he was afterwards not to be doing the Right of another, in whom there is no Fault, be it proved, for that the Presentation by Ufperation being avoided, the Church shall be now void to be void from the Death of the last Incumbent.

Simony's Rep. 90.

If a Clerk receive an nomination to a Benefice, although he who presented know nothing of the Matter, his Prefentation, Induction, and Induction are void by the Statute 31 Eliz. and the King shall present a boc ex. The Statute intends to infilt a Punishment upon the Patron, by the Loss of the Prefentation, because he was the Author of the Corruption, and the Incumbent, by the Loss of his Incumbency, because he came in by such a corrupt Patron.

And it is the corrupt Agreement, by Colour of which the Clerk is indited and indited, which makes the Simony: and Notice in this Cause is not material, because of the Difficulty of Proving it.

3 Lev. 337.

Though the Forgery of double Value of the Church, in receipt of a Benefice, in respect to the Forgery of the value, the Presentation is not forfeited to the King, unless the Clerk be de facto prefented or collated upon the same.

Count Part Compan. 175.

The Clerk is dilid to hold this Benefice made void by the Simony: and although he be neither Party nor privy to the simoniacal Con-the next Avoidance upon Purchases, &c. not Laymen, nor such as are not to be presented to the Church, Wood, 150. It originally belonged to the Spiritual Court to determine Simony; and the Star. 31 Eliz. doth not abrogate the Ecclesiastical Laws concerning it, but only makes particular Penalties in more remarkable fraudulent Acts, relating to Benefices, &c. But in those special Cases mentioned in the Statute, they are to be determined in the Temporal Courts. Colly, Cade's 139. Birch. Lib. 2. cap. 35. Free Seckam was a Tenure of Freehold by a certain Rent for all Services, and to pay upon the Death of the Tenant a double Rent for a Relief, and to be free from Wardship, &c. And Seckam was a Tenure of so large an Extent, that the Inhabitants of all the Lands in England, which were not held in Kingship Service, were held in Seckam: It seems the Land was divided between these two Tenures; and as they were of different Natures, so the Defect of these Lands was in a different Manner of the Estates held in King's Service being defenced to the eldest Son; but those held in Villam Seckam, equally among all the Sons; and if there was but one Mortgage, the eldest Son was to have it, paying the Rest of the Value, Stat. 17 Eth. 117.

the Act: it shall be deemed true, and therefore good Arguments may be drawn from the same. 1 Inf. 11.
It is the most natural and genuine Exposition of a Statute, to confine one Part by another Part of the same Statute, for that bel Professor the Meaning of the Makers: The Words of an Act of Parliament are to be taken in a lawful and rightful Sense, and the Contraction of Statutes in general must be made in Suppression of the Milchif, and for the Advancement of the Remedy intended by the Statute; but to that end the Statute must be so interpreted as not to receive any Damage. 1 Inf. 581, 24. The bel Way Lawgivers would probably have given to the Question proved in the same; and so to construe the Statute.

Statutes Staple, Are concerning Merchants and Merchandizes of the Staple; and of the same Nature with Statutes Merchant: They are for Debt acknowledg'd before the Mayor of the Staple, at our chief Court, viz. in the Presence of one or more of the Confiants of the Staple, by Virtue of which the Creditor may forthwith have Execution of the Body, Land, and Goods of the Debtor in Non-payment. 4 Inf. 238. The Mayor of the Staple may take Recognition of a Debt in Presence of the Confiance of the Staple; and there shall be a Seal remaining with the Mayor, viz. with which every Obligation upon such Recognition shall be sealed: And upon such Obligation, after Default of Payment, the Mayor may Impose upon the Debtor, and attach his Goods, and sell them to satisfy the Creditor; but if the Debtor be not found within the Staple, the Mayor is to certify the Obligation into Chancery, and from thence a Process shall go against the Debtor's Person, his Lands, Goods, and Chattels, as in Case of a Statute Merchant. In every Staple Town there is to be a Mayor and two Confiance established to take Recognition of, and when they die, or are changed, others shall be chosen in their steads, by the Commonalty of Merchants; though the Mayor is not to hold over a Year, unless he be again chose, Eq. 37 Ed. 3, c. 1. Mayors and Confiants of the Staple are to have Confiants of Debts and Contrasts touching Merchandize: Officers of the Staple shall be sworn first to render an Account to the Mayor; and to the Staple; and the Mayor of the Staple taking Recognition contrary to the Statute, is to forfeit to the King Half the Sum recognized, viz. Perme leading out a Sire facias in Chancery, to defeat an Execution upon a Statute Staple, must find Security both to the King and Recognize to prosecute, Eq. Stat. 56 Ed. 3. 14 & 15 Rich. 2. A Statute Staple acknowledged before a Mayor only, and no others, was held good, being before the principal Officer; and where it is void as a Statute, it may be good as an Obligation. Hll. 23 Rec. 1. Cro. 461. Debt lies as well upon a Statute Staple, as upon a Bond: And a Statute acknowledged on Lands, is a present Duty, and ought to be satisfied before an Obligation; A Debt due on an Obligation being but a Choise in Action, and recoverable by Law, and not a present Duty by Law, as a Debt upon a Statute, Judgment or Recognition is, upon which present Execution is to be taken without further Suit. See. Eliz. 355. 461. 494. 2 Litt. Abr. 536. But a Judgment in a Court of Record, shall be preferred in Case of Execution before a Statute, though one acknowledges a Statute, and afterwards confesses Judgment; if the Land be extend'd thereon, the Cognitor shall have a Sire facias to stand Extent upon the Judgment. See. For. &c. 45 & 1 Brow. 57. It is otherwise as to Goods, for there he that comes first, shall be first served. Ibid. The Cognitor of a Statute grants his Eflate to the Cognitor; by this the Execution of the Statute will be suspended. 2 Cro. 444. But if the Cognitor before Execution of a Statute, Release to the Cognitor all his Right to the Land, it would be a Whistle to the whole Execution: For notwithstanding, he may be for Execution of his Body and Goods. 3 Steep. Abr. 336. Upon a Statute Staple, a Copy of Extent of Lands, Goods, and Chattels are contained in one Writ; but it is not so on a Statute Merchant. Jenk. Cent. 163. In Chancery the Proceedings on a Statute Staple, are in the same Way, and Officers: and Statutes Staple are liable in the King's Bench or Common Pleas, as well as in Chancery. See. Eliz. 208. On a Statute's being satisfied, it is to be effectuated by entering Satisfaction, viz. Statutes Staple and Statutes Merchant are to be entered within six Months, or shall not be good against Purchasers. 27 Eliz. c. 4. See the Stat. 16 & 17 Car. 2. for preventing Delays in extending Statutes, Vide Recognizance.

Statutes Merchant and Staple, Tenants therto. He that is in Possession of Lands on a Statute Merchant or Staple, is called Tenant by Statute Merchant and Statute Staple, during the Time of his Possession: And Creditors shall have Freehold in the Lands of Debtors, and Recovery by Novel Diffinjon, if put out: but if Tenant by Statute Merchant, on Statute Staple, hold over his Term, he hath Right may sue for a Feire facias ad commandam, or enter, as upon an Esco. 37 Edw. 3. 446. Sterling, The fame with the Stereomanus, or Stereomannus.

Sterling. (Sterlingum) Was the Epithet for Silver Money current within this Kingdom, and took Name from this: that there was a pure Coin stamped in England by the Eightharies, or Merchants of East Germany, by the Command of King John; and Howden writes it Ejuring. Instead of the Pound Sterling, we now say so many Pounds of lawful English Money: but the Word is not wholly disused, for though we ordinarily lay lawful Money of England, yet in the Mint they call it Sterling Money: and when it was found convenient in the Fabrication of Monies, to have a certain Quantity of better Metal to be mixed with the pure Gold and Silver, the Word Sterling was then introduced; and it has ever since been used to denote the certain Proportion or Degree of Fineness, which ought to be retained in the respective Coins. Lownes' Essay on Coin 146.

Sterneham. (Sternfalle, compounded of the Sax. Stera, i. e. Room, or Stere, a Ward or Keeper) Is as much as to say a Man appointed in my Place or in my Ward, and Representative, but always denotes an Officer of chief Account within his Jurisdiction. The greatest of these Officers is, The Lord High Sterneward of England, who anciently had the Supervising and Regulating, next under the King, the the Administration of Justice, and all other Affairs of the Realm, whether Civil or Military; and the Office was Hereditary, belonging to the Earls of Leicester, till forfeited to King Hen. 3. But the Power of this Great Seal being very great, for the Office of High Steward of England hath not been granted to any one, only pro bar voce, either for the Trial of a Peer of the Realm on an Indictment for a Capital Offence; or for the Decree of the Privy Council of those who claim to hold by Grand Serjeantry, to do certain honourable Services to the King at his Coronation, for which Purposes he may call a Court, and proceed according to the Laws and Customs of England; and he to whom this Office is granted must be of Nobility and a Lord of Parliament. 4 John, 29. Crant. 24. 42 Hen. 8. 11. 2 Hen. 6. P. C. 5. Of the nine great Officers of the Crown, the Lord High Steward is the first; but when the Special Business for which he appeared in once ended, his Commission expires. The first Lord High Steward that was created for the Solemnizing of a Coronation, was Thomas, second Son of Hen. 4th; and the first Lord Steward for the Trial of a Peer, was Edward Earl of Durns, on the Arrangement of John Hilders- one, Earl of Huntingdon in the same Reign. Les Confuta- tions. 170. There is a Lord Steward of the Household, mentioned Stat. 24. E. 3. cap. 13. whose Name was changed to that of Great Master of the Household, Anno 32 H. 8. But this Statue was repealed by a Mar. 24. Stat. 29. Statute, and the Office of Lord Steward of the Household revived. He is the chief Officer of the King's Court, to whom is committed the Care of the King's House; he has Authority over all Officers and Servants of the Household, except those belonging to the Chapel, Chamber, and Stable; and the Palace Royal is exempted from all Jurisdiction of any Court, but only of the Lord Steward, or in his Absence, of the Treasurer or Comptroller of the Household, with the Steward of the Marshalsea, who by Virtue of their Offices, without any Commission, hear and determine all Treaties, Murders, Felonies, Breaches of the Peace, &c. committed in the King's Palace: Besides the Treasurer and Comptroller, the Lord Steward hath under him a Cofferer, several Clerks of the Green Cloth, &c. He superintends the King's Person at the Beginning of Parliament; and is a White Staff Officer, which he breaks over the Hearst on the Death of the King, and thereby discharges all Officers under him: Of this Officer's ancient Power, read Flota, lib. 2. and P. N. B. 241. In the Liberty of Westminster, an Officer is chosen and appointed, called the High Steward; and there is a Deputy Steward of Westminster; and the Word Steward is of so great Diversity, that in most Corporations, and all Houses of Honor, an Officer is found of this Name and Authority. Sumptuary Laws, (Sumptoria Lawes, from Sumptoria) of or belonging to Expenses) Are Laws made to restrain Excess in Apparel, and prohibit costly Cloths, of which heretofore we had none in England, but they are all repealed by 1 Jac. 1. 3 Inf. 199.

Sumptuaria Lawes, (Dio Dominicus) Is the Lord's Day set apart for the Service of God, to be kept religiously, and not be profaned. Persons using Bell-banging or Bear beating, or such like Sports on a Sunday, shall forfeit 3s. 4d. and for Wrestling, Boxing, &c. Stat. 1 Car. 1. And if any Butchers shall kill or sell Meat on a Sunday, they are liable to a Penalty of 6s. 8d. Carriers, Drivers, &c. travelling on the Lord's Day, in a Forfeiture of 20s. Stat. 4 Car. 1. 1. No Person shall do any worldly Labour on a Sunday, except Works of Necessity and Charity on Pain of 51. And crying or expeding to tave any Woe or

But this is not to extend to Dressing Meat in Families, Jars, Cook Shops, or Vending Hoities; nor to crying of Milk on a Sunday in the Morning. 29 Car. 3. c. 7. Law Proclaves are not to be served on a Sunday, unless it be in Cases of Treason or Felony; or on an Escape, by Virtue of 3 Ann. Sunday is not a Day in Law for Proceedings, Contra'd. &c. And hence it is, that a Sale of Goods on this Day in a Market overt is not good: And if any Part of the Proceedings of a Suit in any Court of Justice, be entered and recorded to be done on Sunday, it makes it all void. 2 Ida 264. 5 Rep. 181. The Service of a Citation on a Sunday is good, and not restrained by the Stat. 29 Car. 3. And by two Judges, the Delivery of a Declaration upon a Sunday may well be enough, it not being a Process; but Hild. C. Superfecundas, A Writ that lies in a great many Cites, and signifies in general a Command to lay some fine or Punishment on an Act that was done good on Cassel Brown, which ought otherwise to proceed. F. N. B. 256. A Superfecundas is used for the laying of an Execute, where a Person is alleged to have killed a Man and put in: But no Superfecundas can be made out on bringing Writ of Error, till Bill is given, where there are judgments upon Verdicts, or by Default, in Debt, &c. though in Cites and Treipas, where Damages only are recorded, on the bringing and allowing of the Writ, the Clerk of the Errors will make out a Superfecundas, without Bill. 2 Litt. Law. 543. A Writ of Error is laid to be in Judgment of Law a Superfecundas, until the Errors are examined, &c. that is to the Execution; not to Action of Debit on the Judgment at Law. From the Time of the Allowance, a Writ of Error is a Superfecundas; and if the Party had Notice of it before the Allowance, it is a Superfecundas from the Time of such Notice; but this must be where Execution is not executed, or begun to be executed. 1 Cro. 123. Raym. 100. Abel. Ca. 150. 1 Saull. 321. If before Execution, a Writ of Error is granted, and the Sheriff will execute a First Faire and levy the Money, the Court will award a Superfecundas, quia errorem eamali, and to have Redemption of the Money. 1 Stile 414. After an Execution there where a Superfecundas, quia Exequio improper eamali, ec. null. and there being no Clause of Relitigation in the Superfecundas, it was intimated that the Execution was executed before the Superfecundas was awarded, and the Money demanded, and the Sheriff was no Superfecundas; but the Court ordered another Superfecundas, with a Clause of Relitigation. Mor. 456. 3 Nelf. Ab. 356. The Superfecundas, quia errorem eamali, lies to relieve a Party from a Punishment, after an Action of Factum fejusnum, when firsted out erroneously: So of a Superfecundas after Execution upon a Capitas ad just. furnished, if he is immediately delivered to the Sheriff. Tent. Cas. 58. 42. It appearing upon Affidavit, that there were two Writs of Execution executed upon one Judgment: The Party moved for a Superfecundas, because there cannot be two such Executions, but where the Plainit is hindered either by the Death of the Defendant, or by some Act in Law, that he can have no Benefit of the first and so it was adjudged. Stile 255. A Superfecundas is granted to a Sheriff to stay the Return of an Habbus Corporis; and if he return it afterwards, and the Parties proceed to Trial 'tis Error; and so are all the Proceedings, inferior Courts below, after an Habbus Corporis delivered, unless a Procedens is awarded, in which Case a Superfecundas is not to be granted. Cr. Car. 43. 350. When a Certiorari is delivered, it is a Superfecundas to inferior Courts below, and being allowed, all their Proceedings afterwards are erroneous; and they may be punished. The Judges &c. to whom a Certiorari is sent, are to inform a Superfecundas to the Sheriff to stop Execution of any Award, Cr. 2 Howk. P. C. 193. If a Sheriff holds Pleas of 401. Or after Judgment he may have a Superfecundas directed to the Sheriff, requiring him not to award Execution upon such Judgment, and upon that an Action, a Placita, and an Attachment, &c. New Nat. Br. 132. Superfecundas may be granted by the Court for setting aside an erroneous Judicial Procurs, &c. Allo a Prisoner may be discharged by Superfecundas: as a Perfon is imprisoned by the King's Writ, so he is to be set at Liberty; and a Superfecundas is as good a Cause to discharge a Perfon, as the full Process is to arrest him. Finch 433. Cro. 17. 370. If a privileged Person is sued in any Jurisdiction foreign to his Privilege, he may bring his Superfecundas. Vaugh. 155. But a Peer being arrested by a Bill of Middelfox, was ordered to plead his Privilege; and not allowed a Superfecundas. Stile 177. It is false Imprisonment to detain a Man in Custody after a Superfecundas delivered; for the Superfecundas is to be obeyed, it is only a Writ of Error, and not a Caption without any Cause. 2 Cr. 370. 3 Nelf. 256. There is a Superfecundas where an Audia Querela is sued; and out of the Court of Special Jurisdiction, and taken upon an Exigent, giving Security to appear, &c. Surrurber, (Surrurber) is a Deed or Instrument testifying that the particular Tenant for Life or Years, of Lands and Tenements, doth yield up his Estate to him that hath the immediate Estate in Remainder or Reversion, that he may have the present Possession thereof; and wherein the Estate for Life or Years may merge or devolve by the mutual agreement of the Parties. Co. Litt. 357. And of Surrurers there are three Kinds, a Surrurer properly taken at Common Law; a Surrurer of Copyhold or Cul- tuary Estates; and a Surrurer improperly taken, as of a Deed, a Patent, &c. shall not create. U.S. The Surrender at Common Law is the usual Surrender, and is of two Sorts, viz. A Surrender in Deed, by or by express Words in Writing where the Words of the Leather to the Leather is sufficient Affair to give him his Estate back again; And a Surrender in Law, being that which is wrought by Operation of Law, and not actual, as if Leefe for Life or Years, take a new Lease of the same Land during their Term; this will be a Surrender in Law of the first Lease. 1 Lef. 338. 5 Rep. 51. Perk. 601. And in some Cases a Surrender in Law of greater Force than a Surrender by Deed, because there is no Reversion when it is may devolve; but if the Leather before the Day, take a new Lease of the same Land, it is a good Surrender in Law of the former Lease; And this Surrender in Law, by taking a new Lease, holds good, though the second Lease is for a left Term than the first; and this is, though the second Lease is a voidable Lease, U.S. 5 Rep. 11. 6 Rep. 65. 10 Rep. 67. 1 Lev. 218. A Leefe for Years takes a second Leafe to commence at Michaelmas next; adjudgeth this was an immediate Surrrender in Law of the firft, and that the Leefe mortiſter and take the Profit from the Time of the Acceptance of the second Leafe, until Michaelmas following. If a Woman Leefe for Years marries, and afterwards takes a new Leafe for Life without her Husband, this is a Surrrender and Extinguishment of the Term; but if the Husband dies, or residue, though the new Leafe had been made to the Husband and Wife, then by the Acceptance thereof, the firft Leafe had been gone. A Surrrender may be of any Thing grantable, either absolute or conditional, and may be made to one, being a Conveyance tied and charged with the Limitation of a Use: But it may not be of an Estate in Fee; nor of Rights or Titles only to other Estates for Life or Years; or for Part of such an Estate; nor may one Term regularly Surrrender to another Term; nor can a Tenant at Will Surrrender any more than he can grant. To the making of a good Surrrender in Deed of Lands, the following Things are requisite: the Surrrenderer is to be a Person able to grant and make a Surrrender, and the Surrrenderer a Person able to receive and take it; the Surrrenderer must have an Estate in Possession of the Thing Surrrendered, and not a future Right; and the Surrrenderer is to be made to be hath the next Estate in Remainder or Reversion, without any Right than that for another's. The Surrrenderer must have a higher or greater Estate in his own Right, and not in the Right of his Wife, &c. in the Thing Surrrendered, than the Surrrenderor hath, so that the Estate of the Surrrenderor may be drowned therein; (for if Leefe for Life Surrrender to him in Remainder for Years, &c. it is a void Surrrender) there is to be a new Estate, by the Surrrenderor, and Surrrender, and the Surrrenderor must be sole feied of his Estate in Remainder or Reversion, and not in Jointtenancy; and the Surrrenderor agrees to the Surrrenderor, &c. The Leefe for Life or Years, may Surrrender to him that is next in Remainder in Fee-tail, or Fee-tail: And if Leefe for Life Surrrenders his Estate to one Remainder, that is not a Tenant for his own Life; it is a good Surrrender, for a Man's Estate for his own Life in Judgment of Law, is greater than that for another's. And where an Estate is Surrrendered for Life, there needs no Livery and Selle, as in a Grant. 1 Inf. 338. Dyer 251, 280. Yet in some Cases an Eftate, &c. may have Considerance, though it be Surrrendered; as where Leefe for Life makes a Leafe for Years, and after doe Surrrender, the Term for Years doe continue; and so of a Rent-Charge granted by such Leefe, Es. First of him in Remainder to the Tenant for Life, and then by the Tenant for Life to him in Reversion. Perk. 137. In Syllogismus, or Synthesis, is a Deduction, or Writing, under the Hand and Seal of all the Parties; and to which the Deeds themselves, and all the Documents, were subscribed. [D.L. 364.]

Symbology, or Symbology, is a Meaning or Assembly of Ecclesiastical Persons concerning Religion: being the same Thing in Greek, as Composition in Latin: And of Symbols there are four Kinds, viz. 1. A General or Universal Symbol, or Synod of a Hundred Persons, made at Rome, and published to the whole World; 2. A National Symbol, of the Clergy of one Nation only; 3. A Provincial Symbol, where Ecclesiastical Persons of a Province only assemble; 4. A Diocesan Symbol, of those of one Diocese, &c. And our Saxon Kings usually called a Synod or mixed Council, consisting of Ecclesiastics and the Nobility, three Times a Year; which is said to have been the same as our Parliament.

Symbology, or Syllabary, is a Alphabet of Signs used in Money, paid to the Bishop or Archdeacon, by the inferior Clergy, at Easter Visitations; and it is called Symbola or Symbolization, quia in Symbolo formata est e Graeco. They are likewise termed Symbols, in the Stat. 35 H. 8. cap. 16. And sometimes Symbols is used for the Symbol of itself, and Symbols Provincial, the Canonists or Commentators of a Provincial Symbol. 25 Hen. 8. cap. 19.

Symbols, or Syllables, were the urban and rural Deeds, whose Office at first was to inform of and attend the Disorders of the Clergy and People in the Episcopal Synod, and for which a solemn Oath was given them to make their Preparations, &c. But when they took in their Authority, the Synodal Writings were a Sort of impetissed Grand Jury, composed of a Priest and two or three Laymen of every Parish, for the Informing of or Preventing Offenders; and at length two principal Persons for each Diocese were annually chosen, till by Degrees this Office of Inquest and Information was devolved upon the Church-operatives. Synonymy, or Synonymy, is a Thing of the same Name; or of the like Signification. Litt. Dist.
the Tail. 3 Nuc. Abr. 266. Before the Statute of Wills 1, 13 Ed. 1. If Lands were given to a Man and the Heirs of his Body, it was interpreted to be a Fee-fimple present by the Gift, upon Condition that it should be inherited by his Wife, and if he had an Issue, the Condition was supposed to be performed for three Purposes, viz. to alien and disinherit the Issue; and by the Alienation to bar the Donor or his Heirs of all Possibility of the Reversion; to forfeit the Estate for Treson or Felony; and to charge it with Rent, &c. But by this Statute, the Will and Inheritance of the Tail may be otherwise stated, thus in If a Man and his Issue shall not alien after Issue had or before, or forfeit or Charge the Lands longer than for his own Life, &c. and the Estate shall remain to the Issue of the Donor, or to the Donor or his Heirs where there is no Issue; so that whereas the Donor had a Fee-simple before, now he has but an Estate-tail, and the Donor a Reversion in Fee expectant upon that Estate-tail. Ca.
&c. In the same time, though daily Experience shewed that much Mistake had crept into the Law by instalment Inheritances, and from the Creditors, &c. and Sons became disobedient when they found they could not be dispossessed; wherefore the Judges found a Way to bar an Estate-tail, with Remainders over, by a feigned Recovery. Ans.
12 Ed. 4. The Case is by a Fine to bar the Issue. See 4 Hen. 7. cap. 20. and 32 Hen. 8. cap. 56. And for that Owners of Land held in Tail were left in a difficult condition to commit Treson on Account of the safe Future interests; therefore the Stat. 26 Hen. 8. cap. 13 was made; and because men that had installe Lands, could not make improvements, their Estate being only for Life; for they had the next 32 Hen 8. cap. 18 gave them Power to make Leases for twenty-one Years, or three Lives, &c. And notwithstanding the many Mistakes and Inconveniences arising from installe estates, and the Statutes before mentioned, and Flaws and Recoveries to dock Installs; there are Methods ob-forced in Settlements to limit Estates that no Law or Statute can reach or alter them, except a particular Act is made for that Purpose. Wood's Inst. 122.
The Statute de bonis creates no Install, but of such an Estate which was Fee-simple in the Common Law; and defendable as a Fee-simple. 1 Inst. 19. Lands of Inheritance, and all Inheritances favouring of the Residuary, may be installe; to Rents, Profits, Officers, Dignities, &c. which concern Lands, or certain Places; but it is not allowable to personal or exercised with Channel only; it cannot be installe.
4 Inst. 87. 7 Rep. A Grant of an Annuity, to a Man for Life of the Body, to the Heirs of his Body; Although for Years to a Person and the Heirs of his Body, is also void; though an Affirmment may be made of a Lease for Years, in Tail to permit the Issue in Tail to receive the Profits; which is in Effect an Estate-tail. 10 Rep. 87. Estates-tail of Lands, are General, or Special; General Tail is where Lands or Tenements are given to a Man and the Heirs of his Body begotten; or to a Woman and the Heirs of her Body begotten: In this Case, it is called a general Tail, because whoever Woman the Man taketh to wife, in any case the Issue will be his or her Issue; and whatsoever Man the Woman takes to Husband, the Issue may inherit; or if the have divers Husband, and have Issue by every of them, they shall inherit one after another, as Heirs of their Body; Special Tail is when Lands and Tenements are given to a Man and his Wife, and to the Heirs of their two Bodies begotten: in which Case, no other Person can inherit but the Issue that are begotten by him on that particular Wife; and it is called Special Tail, for that if the Wife die, and the Husband marries again, by whom he hath Issue, such Issue has no Benefits, as they have by the general Tail.
Litt. 14. 16. Ca. Litt. 19. 20. If Lands are given to the Husband and Wife; and to the Heirs of their Bodies, both of them have an Estate in special Tail by Restitution of the Word Heirs, for the Inheritance, is not limited to one more than the other: Where Lands and Tenements are given to a Man and his Wife, and to the Heirs of the Body of the Man; the Husband hath an Estate in general Tail, and the Wife an Estate for Life; as the Word Heirs relates generally to the Body of the Husband: And if the Estate is made to the Husband and Wife, and to the Heirs of the Body of the Wife by the Husband and Wife, then if the Wife should die, the Issue in Tail, and the Husband for Term of Life only because the Word Heirs hath Relation to the Body of the Wife, to be begotten by that particular Husband: If an Estate be limited to a Man's Heirs which he shall begot on his Wife, it creates a special Tail in the Husband; but the Wife will be limited to nothing.
Ca. Litt. 16. 28. Ca. Litt. 22. 26. Lands given to a Man and Wife; and when one of them dies, shall be an Estate in special Tail for they may marry. 1 Inst. 25. 10 Rep. 50. And though lands are given to a married Man and another Man's Wife, and the Heirs of their two Bodies, it may be a good Estate-tail, for the Possibility of their Intermarrying.
15 Hen. 7. A general Tail, and a special Tail, may not be created as one and the same Time; if they are, the General, which is greater, will frustrate the Special.
1 Inst. 28. There are other Estates tail within the Equity of the Statute; as if Lands are given to a Man and his Heirs Male or Females, of his Body begotten, the Issue Male or Female shall only inhert according to the Limitation: By Virtue of the Statute, here the Daughter may be Heirs Male, Defents, though there be a Son; but in Cafe of a Purcahse, there cannot be an Heir Female where there is a Son, who is right Heir at Law. 1 Inst. 24.
164. And whoever Wife hath a Claim, as Heir for formam desu to an Estate tail, must make his Defect by such Heirs to whom it is limited; if it is to Heirs Males of the Body, there the Pedigree is to be de-divided by Heirs Male; and if it be to Heirs Females, he must derive it by Heirs Females one after another. 1 Inst. 396. If a Gift is to one, and the Heirs Males of his Body, and he hath Issue a Daughter, who hath a Son, and dies; in this Cafe the Son shall not inherit the Estate-tail, for he cannot make his Defect by Heirs Male. Ibid. And where there is a gift to the Heirs Male or Females, the Case is where the Gift was made by the Will or By the Act of a Grantor, when Issue fail, the Land shall revert to the Donor or defend to him that is to have it after the Effetail is forever, and if not this, there is a Void other Words amounting to it, make the Entail: And a Gift to the Heirs Male, or Heirs Female, without any Thing further, is a Fee-simple Estate, because it is not limited of what Body: And hence a Corporation cannot be seated in Tail. 1 Inst. 13.
20. 27. In a Devise or Gift Will, an Estate-tail may be created without the Word Body; also begotten shall be supplied and necessarily intended. Noy's Inst.
101. 1 Inst. 26. If one gives Lands to a Man and his Issue, or Children of his Body, without the Words, to Inherit, to the Issue of his Body; and whatsoever Man the Woman takes to Husband, the Issue may inherit; or if the have divers Husband, and have Issue by every of them, they shall inherit one after another, as Heirs of their Body; Special Tail is when Lands and Tenements are given to a Man and his Wife, and to the Heirs of their two Bodies begotten; in which Cafe, no other Person can inherit but the Issue that are begotten by him on that particular Wife; and it is called Special Tail,

has no Benefits, as they have by the general Tail.

If he die without Heirs of his Body; for otherwise the Remainder limited to the eldest Son had been void, as the younger Son cannot die without Heirs, so long as the eldest is living. 1 Lev. Ab. 856. In Ejectment the Case was, the Father having three Sons, devised his Lands to his second Son, and his Heirs for ever; and for Want of such Heirs, then to the right Heirs of the Father; then the Father died, and his second Son entered, and died without Issue, living the eldest Son: it was resolved, that the second Son had but an Estated-tail, and that the Devisee by their Words, and for Want of such Heirs, is vested in Point of Limitation, for the Testamentor's Intent was that the Lands should descend from himself, and not from his second Son; and the Words, Want of such Heirs, could import no other than Want of Issue,Gr. so that the eldest Son takes by Devise, in this Case, and not by the Will. 1 Salk. 253. A Person devised Land to his Wife for Life, Remainder to his Younger Son, and his Heirs for ever; and if he died without Heirs, the same to remain to his two Daughters: In this Case it was held in Equity, that the Remainder over is to one, who may be the Devisee's Heirs at Law, such Limitation will be good, and the first confirmed an Estated-tail for the Generality of the Words, Heirs, shall be reversionary to the Heirs of the Body, since the Testamentor could not but know that the Devisee would not die without an Heir, while the Remainder Man, or any of his Issue continued; but where the second Limitation is to a Stranger, 'tis nearly void, and the first is a Fee-simple. Tailor's Chaf. Caf. 2. Case, (Fr.) Sells a Justice, i.e. Ordo Tribunum A Tribute or Impost laid upon the Subject, which being certainly and orderly rated, was wont to be yearly paid into the King's Exchequer: And it differs from what is commonly called a Subsidy, in That, it is always certain as it is set down in the Exchequer Book, and levied in general of every Town, and not particularly of every Man. &c. No History mentions that the Sextis Kings had any Taxes after the Manner of ours at present; but they had Leases of Money and personal Services towards Repairing of Cities, Castles and Bridges, and for military Expeditions, which they called Buinshes, Brightes and Hercy, and when the Danes invaded this Kingdom, great Sums of Money were raied yearly, by a Tax on every House of Land, the Lands of the Church only excepted, and therefore it was afterwards called Hy- denhouse, which Name remained and was used for all Taxes and Subsidies imposed on Lands; though sometimes it was laid upon Cattle, and then was termed Hercy: The Norman called their sometimes Taxes, other Times Tabling; and made a Law for it, in 1079.

wise than now, as every ninth Fleece, and every ninth Sheep, &c. Royal 7th 4th 26th 53. It is fair to suppose that they were imposed by the King at his Pleasure; but King Edward 1. bound himself and his Successors, in the 25th Year of his Reign, that from that Time forward no Tax should be laid upon the Subject, without the Advice of the Lords and Commons in Parliament. Stat. 35 Edno.
1. c. 5. But although Taxes which are for the Defense of the Realm, cannot be imposed but by Act of Parliament; yet the Crown has a Right to ask them, upon any Emergency, and therefore 'tis held they have a virtual Existence always, tho' not actual one. In the 14th Year of Ed. 3. an Aid was granted porality and Clergy in two or three Years, &c. And they were frequently granted after this, for Fifteen, and Tenants; then by Subsidies, afterwards by Royal Aids, and at last by a Pound Rate; the former were all upon the Peron and Personal Estate, and were much the feast and the Pound Rates the Land and Rents.

Anne 18 Ed. 3. A Valuation was made of all the Towns in England; and returned into the Exchequer, and this became the hanging Rule for Taxing every Town, &c. When a Tax was given, the Officers of the Exchequer pretend to know how much it amounted for every Town, and the Inhabitants rated the Landholders, and Occupiers of Lands, and they were charged and paid their portion, &c. A Subsidy was granted Anne 52 Hen. 8. and this was a Tax upon the Perons, both for Lands and Goods, and payable where the Perons lived; and this continued till the 15 Car. 1. and about two Years afterwards the and Queen Anne, to defend the Crown and Kingdom against the Efforts of the King of France, in Favour of the pretended Prince of Wales, and secure the Protestant Soveraign in the Line of his present Majesty King George. Since this Necessity, joined to others, Land Taxes have been annually granted of 1 2 3 4. and in the Pound, as the present Exigencies have required; enabled to be levied by Commissioners on the several Counties, Cities, Towns, &c. And in respect of this, it is not the Quantity but the yearly Value of Lands that must be oberved; the Farmers or Occupiers of the Land, are to be charged and death is out of their Rents to the Landholders; and a Man may be rated for Goods, as well as Lands, but not for both; and in Cate of a Rate on Goods, the Charge must be on the Peron:

The Commissioners must ascertain the several Proportions of the Tax, to be charged on every Hundred or Division; and appoint for Perons to be Affixed and Collectors in every Parish to aish and levy the Money, which when received is to be paid to Re-civers; Gen'ral, and by them returned to the Exchequer, &c. If any Peron refuse to pay the Tax, the Collectors may levy it by Distress and Sale of their Goods; and if they are imposed, they be relieved by Appeal to the Commissioners, who have Power to charge the same on others, as they shall for Castle, and a Case of Deficiency to make a Re-affil-ment of Affixed Persons, or to be fined not ney, shall be imprisoned, and their Elusses seized and the Money by him received, he is liable to the Penalty of 500 l. and where there is any Failure in raising and paying the Sums of Money charged on any County, Process may issue against the Commissioners for their Neglect, &c. By other later Statutes, when Land, &c. are afflicted at more than an equal Pound-Rate, the Commissioners upon Complaint made in twenty Days, shall abide it, and re-affix such Abses-ments within the whole Hundred, &c. or on Perons under-named, so as the Sum charged be fully paid.

And when the Collectors have consented to charge themselves to the Land Tax for their own Estates, Com-misioners by Statute have been empowered to su-manent and execute them, and out of their Oath, and upon Discovery thereof, to award Satisfaction to be owed to the Collectors. If Lands or Houses are unoccupied, whereby the Parish is obliged to make good the Tax, the Collectors at any Time after may, enter and Distress, and sell the Distress in four Days, and the Money shall be distributed propor-tionably to the Parties who paid for such Lands, &c. In Case any Persons by charging themselves with the Tax, and being taken before the Commissioners, escape the Taxation, on Proof before two of the Commissioners, or a Judge of Peace, within one Year, they are to be charged at simple the Vaue, to be levied by Distress, &c. And in the taking their Distress, Collectors may break open Houses, Chests, &c. in the Day-time, upon a Warrant under the Hands of two Commissioners, and cal-ing Constables to their Affidance: Allo if any Peron refuse to pay the Tax, by the Space of ten Days after Demand, or convey away his Goods, &c. the Com-misioners may commen him to the common Gaol, till Payment. Payzys are doubly taxed: but the Colleges in the Universities are exempted from paying any Thing to this Tax: There is a Poundsage Fee for collecting the Tax, of 3 6. per Pound to the Collectors, 2 6. per Pound to the General Receiver, and 1 6. Halfpenny per Pound to the Commissioners of Cash. 4 Geo. 1. 1 6. & 15 Geo. 3. 1 6.

Tenure, (Tenures, from the Lat. Tenura) is the Moner whereby Lands or Tenements are holden; or the Service that the Tenant owes to his Lord: And there can be no Tenure without some Service, because the Service makes the Tenure. 1 Inf. 1. 93. A Tenure may be of Hosues, and Land or Tenents; but not of a Rent, Common, &c. All Lands in the Hands of a Subject are held of some Lord or Landlord, by Tenure or Service: And all the Lands and Tenements are held by a tenant either militarily or immediately of the King; and therefore he is Summi Dominus supra suos. 2 Inf. 531. Tenure signifies the Estate in the Land; and Tenants were anciently divided into the following, viz. Essajas, which was Land held by the Service of the Shield, and by which the Tenant was obliged to follow his Lord into the Wars at his own Charge. Knight's Service and _Laudno_, where Lands were held of the King or some Lord, to perform Service in War, and which drew after it Homenage, _Eponse, Wartship, Chivalry, &c._ _Burgage Tenure_, where Land was held of the Lord of the Borough, at a certain Rent. _Villageware_, a base Tenure of Lands, whereby the Tenant was bound to do all inferior Vassalage Services commanded by the Lord. _Grand Servicery_, a Tenure of Lands by Honourary Services at the King's Coronation, &c. And _Petit Servicery_, where Lands were held of the King to contribute yearly some small Thing towards his Wars. _Fredeamandor_, a Tenure by which Land is held by Ecclesiastical Persons in free and perpetual Absolute Possession: And _Swage Tenure_, where Lands are held by Tenants to plough the Land of their Lord, and do other Services of Husbandry at their own Expenditure, but this has been turned into an yearly Rent, for all Manner of Services, when it is called _Free Service_. Of these general ancient Tenures, Knight's Service, Chivalry, _Eponse_, _Petit Servicery, Villageware_, and _Burgage Tenure_ are expressly by Statutes. 16 Car. 2. The Common Tenures at this Day, are _Fee Simple_, which is an absolute Tenure of Lands, to a Man and his Heirs for ever. _Fee tail_, a limited Fee to a Person and the Heirs of his Body begotten. _By the Curtesy_, where a Man marries a Woman sole of Lands in Fee simple, _&c._ and hath Issue before her Death, the Land dairing Life. In _Dower_, where a Widow holds for her Life the Third Part of her Husband's Land, whereby he was held in Fee. For _Life and Years_, where Lands are held by Tenants for the Term determined, on Rent referred. And _Capheild Tenure_, a holding for Lives or in Fee, at the Will of the Lord, according to the Manner, under divers Services. _Vide the Heads, and see Fee Tenure._

_Tenures._ (Terminus ex Tenens) is he that holds Lands or Tenements for Term of Years or Life. L. 400.

:A Terminus for Years, cannot plead in Agfs. like Tenants of the Freehold; but the special Matter, viz. his Lease for Years, the Reversion in the Plaintiff, and that he is in Possession, G. Dyer 246. 7th. Cl. 142.

_Terms._ Are those Spaces of Time, wherein the Courts of Justice are open, for all that complain of Wrongs or Injuries, and seek their Rights by Course of Law or Action, in order to their Redress; and during which, the Courts in Westminster-Hall sit and give Judgments, *G. But the High Court of Parliament, the Chancery, and inferior Courts, do not observe the Terms; only the Courts of King's Bench, the Common Pleas, and Exchequer, the higher Courts at Common Law. Of these Terms there are Four in every Year, viz. Hilary Term, which begins the 25th of January, and ends the 12th of February; _Easter Term_, that begins the Wednesday Fortnight after Easter Day, and ends the Monday before Whitsun-Day; _Trinity Term_, which begins the Friday after Trinity Sunday, and ends the Wednesday Fortnight after; and _Michaelmas Term_, that begins the 23d of October, and ends the 28th of November. Each Term has certain Returns: as Hilary Term has Four, Easter Five, Trinity Four, and Michaelmas Six: And _Easter Term_ was anciently divided into four Terms, viz. _Easter Term_, _Trinity Term_, _Trinity and Michaelmas Term_, and _Trinity Michaelmas Term_; and for these Terms were formerly longer than now, till contrabated by the Statutes 3 & 4 H. 8. c. 21. and 16 Car. 1. c. 16. There are also Four Terms in Term, called the _Eves-Day_: the _Day of Exceptions_: the _Day of Return of Writs_: and _Day of Appearance_, called the _Quarter die post_. The Term is laid to begin on the _Eves-Day_: when one Judge sits in each Court of Law at Westminster, to take and enter Efficients; but the third Day afterwards is the first Day of the Term, at which Time the Judges in all the Courts sit to do the Business of the Term. *L. 559._ All the Terms in Confraction of Law are accounted but as one Day to many Purposes; for a Plea that is put in the last Day of a Term, is a Plea of the first Day of the Term; and a Judgment on the last Day of the Term is as effectual as on the first Day. Trin. 25 Car. 2. B. R. And for this Reason, the Judges may alter and amend their Judgments in the same Term, *G._ It has been held, that the Courts sit not but in Term, as to giving of Judgments: And the Judges of B. R. and C. B. before Trinity Term 1651. did not sit longer in Court than till one a-Clock upon the last Day of Term; because they would not encourage Attornies to neglect their Client's Business to the last Day of Term, as too commonly they do, to the Toil of the Court, and too much Hurry in Dispatch. Mich. 12 Car. 2. L. 91. Terms have been adjourned, and Returns of Writs and Process have been made by Statutes 11 and 12 M. 2. c. 4. Where there is a Term intervening between the *Tys_ and Return of a Writ of *Copias_, or when the Term to which a Suit is continued is adjourned, and the Suit is not adjourned, it is a Proclamation, *G. 2 Hawk. 298._ The Inflatable Terms are _Hilary and Trinity Terms_ only; to call them, because in them the _Illay days_ after Tys are made up of Cates, to be tried at the Lent and Summer Assizes, which immediately follow. L. 558.

The Terms in Scotland are _Martime_, _Commales_, _Whithandis_, and _Lammas_, at which Time the Court of Exchequer, *G._ there is to be kept. Stat. 6 Ann. 1. And the Terms of the Manor, under divers _Services_, *Vide the Heads, and see Fee Tenure._

_Terms._ (Terminus) Signifies commonly the Limitation of Time or Edent; as a _Leases for Term of Life, or Years, *G. Brath. Lib. 3._

_Tenures._ (Terminus ex Tenens) is he that holds Lands or Tenements for Term of Years or Life. *L. 400._

I. which runs thus: "Williamus Radulfo Sanctius iannam Eppesius & amicus Thaito, &c., though not long afterwards the Word was disused, and instead thereof those Men were called Barones Regis: And there were also Thanes Masones, likewise titled Barons; they were Lords of Manors, and had a particular Jurisdiction within their Lutins, and over their own Tenants in their Courts, which to this Day are called Councils.

thiathors of any Parishes, payable to the Clergy for the Church Service, and are not Ecclesiastical Inheritance, collateral to the State of the Land; and a Spiritual Duty, not releaved by a Release of any Demands of a Parishioner out of his Lands. 11 Rep. 13. 511. 814. The Ecclesiastical Cures do hold. That Tithes are due for every Thing; though by the Common Law it is otherwise, for they are due only for such Things which arise by annual Profit. 4 M. & W. 344. Tithes must be paid of all Things as yield an annual Increase by the Act of God; but are not due to be paid for Fruits, but for Fruits Terra. Selina. Those Tithes are of very Early Antiquity with us; being mentioned in the Laws of King Abbeballam: Though the Priests, and Ministers of the Altar, lived at first wholly on Oblations; in after Times, the Latiy gave a certain Portion of their Revenues to the Clergy, but this was voluntarily without any Compulsion; which Gift was called Tithes, though not a tenth Part of their Income, or near so much. Then in a following Age, the Priests in their Councils, in Concert with the Princes, made an express Law, by which they obliged the Latiy to give a full Tenth of their Revenues, for Fruits. 2 Chas. Chap. Dit. 15. But no Kian had a Property in Tithes until the Council of Lateran, which was held in the Reign of our Lord King Henry, for all that Time there were no Parishes distinct from one another, and by Consequence no Parish Prions who could claim any Right to the Tithes: By a Clause made in the Lateran Council, every Parson is compulsive to pay Tithes to the Parson or Vicar of that Parish where they arise; whereas before, the Bishop of every Diocese made a general Distribution of Tithes to Spiritual Persons for their Subsistence, to charitable Uses, and for Repairs of the Church. 2 H. 19. At Common Law none had Capacity to take Tithes, but only a Spiritual Person, or mixt Person, as the King; but a Layman, was by the Common Law capable of a Decharge of Tithes. 2 Rep. Since the Statutes of Difflusion of Abbey, &c., which were made 27 & 37 H. 8. Tithes and other Ecclesiastical Revenues have been transferred to Laymen, who were not capable to take them: And Spiritual Prions being by those Statutes made Lay-Prions in the Hands of Temporal Men, if those Men were wrongfully kept out of their Possession, a subsequent Statute, made the 31 H. 8. gave them Remedy to recover in the King’s Territorial Courts; though, as it did not take away the Force of the Ecclesiastical Law concerning Tithes; but all Spiritual Persons who had any Right to Tithes before the Parson, are in full of force; for, 1 Rep. 8, 9, 10. An Affid for Tithes is given by the Statute 32 H. 8. 4. 7. And the Statute of Liberties does not extend an Action of Debt for Tithes before the Parson. 45. 46. 47. And in the following Age, many Men were so thoroughly careful in their Payment of Tithes, as they at their Deaths bequeathed Legacies, and ordered Memorials to be given to the Priests, in Lien and Remembrance of any Tithes which might be forgotten: But it was observed by Sir Edward Coke, that in later Times, Laymen taking Occasion to restrain their Tithes, the Statutes 27 & 32 H. 8. and other Laws were made, to enforce the Payment thereof. 2 Inf. 648. By the 27 H. 8. 20. On Complaint, by a Judge of the Ecclesiastical Court, to forfie [if the Person of the Connexy] of any Connexy or Middlemanor committed by a Defendant in any Suit depending for Tithes, and on the Petition of the Plaintiff, the Judge may commit such Defendant to Prison, to remain without Bail till he shall find sufficient Security to give due Obedience to the Proces, Decrees and Sentences of the Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction, as requires. Thus all Persons do devise daily for, and pay Tithes and if they are not set out and paid, the Party grived may conveze, make as obtain them before the Ecclesiastical Judge, who has Power to hear and determine, &c. And Perons refusing Payment after Sentences are to be committed to Prison by two Justices of Peace, on Certificates from the Judge; and if such Persons are distrained of a Penitance or Tiber, made Temporal, they may have like Remedy in the Temporal Courts as for other Lands, &c. By 25 & 3 Ed. 1. 3. No Person shall carry away his Corn before he hath justly divided and fet forth the Tenth Part, or agreed for the Tiber with the Parson or other Pro- prietor, on Pain of forfeiting the True Value of the Tiber taken away; and the Owner claiming such Tiber may depose his Servant to view the said Tiber, and see that they are truly set out and fettered from the Nine Parts, and the same to take away; and if any Person shall carry his Corn or Hay, before the Tiber is fet forth, or withdraw his Tiber, fling the Owner, &c., from viewing or carrying away the same, upon twice Proof before a Spiritual Judge, the Party shall pay double Value of the Tiber, besides Costs of Suit; And in Suit for subtracting or withdrawing of Tiber, the Ecclesiastical Judge may communicate Perons disodifying his Sentence, &c. The true Value Damages are recoverable in the Temporal Courts, by Action of Debt; for they are given generally, not limiting where to be recovered, and the Foriture is to the Party grieved, though it is not given to any Person in certain by that Statue; but it cannot be demanded of Executors, because the Wrong was Peronal, and it was a personal Consequence of the Party. As for the double Value, it may be recovered in the Ecclesiastical Court; and it is equivalent to the true Foriture to be recovered in the Temporal Courts, because one may sue in the Spiritual Court for the Tiber themselves, or a Reconmpense for them, and have also the double Value. 1 Inf. 159. 2 Inf. 612, 610. If the Tiber are set out and fettered from the Nine Parts by the Owner, they are become Lay-Carlts; so that if after the Severance they are carried away by a Stranger, the Remedy is in the Temporal Courts for treble the Value. And if the Owner 1 the Land carries them away after Severance, this is no Setting forth. 1 Cor. 607. 2 Inf. 615. The Laws of the Church oblige the Owners of Corn, Hay, &c., to give Notice to the Parson of the Setting forth the Tiber; but by the Common Law such Notice is not necessary; and the Statue gives the Parson only a Right of seeing the Tiber, if it be set out, but does not oblige to Notice. 25 & 39. 2 Dwork. Ab. 505. If a Parson lays his Land, and before Severance the Parson of the Parson does, and the Parson of the Eccles- iaster, but if the Corn is cut down, the Parson’s Execu- tors shal have the Tiber. 1 Cor. And if a Par- riioner die before he pay his Tiber, his Executors or Administrators may be sued for the same, for as they have Affits to do it, must pay the same. Let 60. 9 Sho. Ab. 111. If a Man lets his Ground or Her- bage, it is laid the Parson may lie either the Owner of the Ground, or of the Cultivator for his Tiber; if the Cultivator of the Place be not against it; And if to evade the Statue, the Owner, the Parson, &c., sell it before Severance to another, who doth reap and carry away all the Corn; in this Case the Parson may sue the Vendor, who shall be charged with the treble Damages on the Statue. 13 Rep. 24. 2 Bell. 184. A Letter for Years Rents given the Parson to pay him 10d. per Aum for his Tiber, and that for this he shall be Tiber free; it is good to ground a Prohibition upon, if the Parson for the Tiber, 1 Leon. 308. The Statute 13 Edw. enacts, That Composition for Tiber may be made by the concurrent Consent of the Parson, Patron, and Ordinary; and a Mode Document may arise by Patent from the Common Council, beyond the Memory of Man, &c. Where there is a Capium allowed for the Payment of Tiber, a Proceedi... bition shall go to the Ecclesiastical Court, which may not try Cullum, but the Temporal Courts; and so it is of a Prescription to pay Money in lieu of Tithe; but when it concerns a Right to be paid, or a Prescription merely Spiritual, it is other- wise. 2 Lev. 103. By the 7 & 8 Will. 3. c. 6. Small i. under the Value of 20l. may be recovered before two Justices of the Peace not interest- ed in the Tithes, within twenty Days after Demand, and two Years after due; and the said Justices are in- powered to administer an Oath to Witnesses, to sum- mon the Party, and to appear, or in Default thereof, to determine the Case in Writing, with Costs not exceeding 10s. but with Liberty of Appeal to the Quarter-Sessions, whose Judgment shall be final, unless the Title of such Tithes come in Question: The Justices may levy the Money adjudged by Di- ffrin, upon Re- fusal, ten Days after Notice, &c. And this Judgment being inrolled by the Complainant, shall not be removed by Correrinari; though if the Defendant insists on a Modus, and gives Security to pay the Amount Damages in the Courts above, which shall be given against him upon a Trial at Law, the Justices shall not proceed; but the Complainant is put to his Remedies, and for his Tithes in the Courts at Weymouth. This Statute does not extend to the City of London, or any other Corporation where the Tithes are particularly settled by Act of Parliament. The 7 & 8 Will. 3. c. 54. ordains, That if any Person refuse to pay or compound for great or small Tithes, &c. the two next Justices of Peace may, upon Com- plaint, administer an Oath to him before them, and examine upon Oath the Matter of Complaint, and thereupon determine what is due to the Person complaining; and by Order under their Hands and Seals, direct the Pay- ment in all Cases of or under 10l. But by the Statute 2 & 3 6. The Tite is frequently given to the same Town with a Conable, who is as it were a Deputy to execute the Office in the Conable's Absence; but there are some Things which a Conable has Power to do, that Tithe-men and Headboroughs cannot intermeddle with. 1 Blant. 3. Tolls, (Talhe) Signifies to defeat or take away: so as to Tell an Entry is to take away the Right of Entry. 8 Hen. 6.

Toll, (Talumum, vel Thomeumum) Is a Savoy Word, and means, a house, market, and fair, for goods and cattle bought and sold. It is a reasonable sum of Money due to the owner of the Fair or Market, upon Sales of Things sellable within the same. 2 Inst. 210. And it is used for a Liberty as well as to take, as to be free from Tolls of which Freedom from Toll the City of Coventry boasts an ancient charter granted by Leopold, Earl of the Mercia, in the time of King Ethel, the confessor, who in theimportance of Graces, his virtuous Lady, granted this freedom to that City. By the ancient law of this Country, what is sold in a Market in Fairs or Markets ought to pay Toll to the Lord of the Market, in Testimony of the Contract there lawfully made; for Toll was first invented that Contracts in Markets bound to be kept, and private Winesellers; and Contracts were held unlawful. But the King shall pay no Toll for any of his Goods; and a Man may sell in the King's Grant. Also Tenants in Ancient Demesne are discharg'd of Toll throughout the Kingdom, for Things which arise out of their Lands, or bought for Maintenance thereof, &c. not for Merchandises. Here's Min. lib. 1. 2 Inst. 211. 2 Roll. Abr. 198. Toll doth not of common Right belong to a Fair; though it hath been held, that some Toll is due of common Right, as it appears from the Imposition of several Persons not to pay Toll, which proves that if it was not for those Privileges, they ought to pay Toll of common Right; therefore where the King grants a Market, Toll is due, although it is not exprest in the Grant what Toll is to be paid: and this from the Necessity of it, because the Property of Things sold in a Market is not altered without paying Toll. Palm. 76. 2 Lawr. 1337. 3 Nelf. Abr. 326. But it is said, if the King grants to a Man a Fair or Market, and grants no Toll, the Patron shall have no Toll; for Toll being a Master of private Right for the Benefit of the Lord, is not incident to a Fair or Market, as a Court of Piepowders is, which is for the Benefit of the Publick and Advancement of Justice, &c. Such a Fair or Market is free from Toll; and after the Grant made, the King cannot grant a Toll to such a Free Fair or Market, without some proportionable Benefit to the Subject: And if the Toll granted with the Fair or Market be outrageous, the grant of the Toll is void, and the same is a free Market. 2 Inst. 320. 2 Coke, &c. 570. When the King grants a Fair, he may likewise grant that Toll shall be paid, though it be a Charge upon the Subject; but then it must be of a very small Sum. Toll is to be reason-able, for the King grants a grant a reasonable Toll; and one may have Toll by Precrastination for some reasonable Cause, but such a Precrastination to charge the Subject with the Publick and Advancement of Justice, &c. But a Benefic or Recompence for it, or some Reason must be shown why it is claimed. 3 Coke, 579. 3 Lew. 474. 2 Med. 143. 4 Med. 223. The Toll in Fairs is generally taken upon the Sale of Goods, as Horses, &c. but in the Markets for Grain only; and the Lord may seize until Satisfaction is made him: it is a thing may be be the Buyer, unless there be Customs to the contrary: and nothing is Tolsable but the Sale, except it be by Customs Time out of Mind; which Customs none can challenge that claim the Fair or Market by Grant since the Reign of King Richard.

And by 1 W. & M. cap. 34. all Trade with France was prohibited during the War, and importing Goods was declared a common Nuisance, and the Commonalties were to be seized and burned; the Vellists with their Furniture, &c. to be forfeited; and Lading Goods, or assailing therein, incurred a Penalty of 500 L. Though the Prohibition of Trade to France was taken off and repealed by 9 Ann. cap. 8. The King was enabled to prohibit all Trade with Sweden, on the intended Invasion of this Kingdom, by the last King of Sweden. 3 Geo. 3 cap. 1. All Trade with Spain, during the present War, is prohibited; and no Goods of the Growth or Manufacture of Old Spain, shall be imported into Great Britain or Ireland, &c. from any Place, mixt or unmixed with Commodities of any other Nation, on Pain of forfeiting the Goods and treble Value; and also the Ship or Vessel, with all her Furniture. Er. Stat. 13 Geo. 2 e. 27. None of the King's Subjects may trade to and with a Nation of Infidels without the King's Leave, because of the Danger of re-inquelling Christlikeness: and Sir Edw. Coke said, That he had been a Litigant from one of our King's, reciting, That he having a special Truth and Confidence that such a one, his Subject, would not decline his Faith and Religion, licensed him to trade with Infidels. 12 Nelf. Abr. 331. As to private Trades, at Common Law none was prohibited to exercise any particular Trade, wherein he had any Skill or Knowledge; and if he used it unskilfully, the Party injured might have his Remedy against him by Action on the Cafe, &c. By the 5 Edw. 1. Man might serve seven Years Apprenticeship, before he could set up any Trade; though it hath been reliev'd that the Statute doth not prohibit the Use of a Trade for a Family, but the publick Use of it in general. 11 Rep. 51. If a Bond or Premise relieves the Exercise of a Trade, though it be to a particular Place only, if there was no Consideration for it, it is void; if there be a Consideration, in such Case, it may be good. Transplantation. A Write or Action of Trespass, according to前述

A Action of Trespass. It is used for a Warrant from the Custom House, to let pass. 14 Car. 2. cap. 11.

Transplantation. Is the Opposite to Local. Transplantation Actions may be laid in any County, or Place; such as Personal Action of Trespass. See Local.

Transplantation. (Transplant) In a common Sense of the Word signifies a Verdict out of one Language into another; but in a more confined Acceptation, it denotes the Setting from one Place to another, and the Removal of a Bishop to another Diocese, &c. which is called Transplanting: And such a Bishop writes not Anna Congregation, but Anna Transplantation minit, &c. A Bishop transplanted, is not consecrated de novo; for a Consecration is like an Ordination, 'tis an indelebel Character, and holds good for ever. 3 Salk. 32. But the Bishop is to be a new elected, &c. 3 Salk. 137. See Consecration.

Transplantation, Is the Banishing or Sending away a Criminal into another Country. And by statute, if any one convicted of Felony, shall in open Court prays to be transplanted, it may be done; if the Court thinks fit. 31 Car. 2. cap. 2. The 4th G. 1. cap. 11. was made for the more effectual Transplantation of Offenders convicted of Felony, or Larceny, within the Benefit of clergy, &c. And all Charges in transplanted Felons, are to be born by the Place for which the Court was held, &c. By the 5 G. 1. cap. 28. Deer-Stalkers may be transplanted to the Plantations, &c. And if any Persons forcibly hinder Officers of the Customs, in executing their Office, being armed with Weapons, and eight in Company, they shall be transplanted, by 6 G. 1. So three Persons assembled near the Sea Coast, with Fire-Arms, &c. to run uncontrolled Goods. Stat. 9 G. 2. c. 37.

Transplantation. Of Goods and Merchandise, is allowed and not allowed, in many Cases by Statute, for the Advantage of Trade. See Merchant, &c.

Transplantation. (Transplantation) Is a Converting into another Subsistence: To transplanta, i.e. Tradupiam in alium Substantiam convertit. Litt. Dict. A Declaration against the Doctrine of Transplantation used in the Church of Rome, is required by the Stat. 30 Car. 2. cap. 1.

Travellers. Inn keepers are to receive Travellers, and find them Lodging, Vehicula, &c. And on Reputa, a reasonable Price being tendered, they may be indelibly fixed; or Action of the Cafe lies against them. 2 Hook. 225.

Treasurer. (from the Fr. Trésorier) is used in the Law for the denying of some Matter of Fact, alleged to be done in a Declaration or Pleading; upon which the other Side comes and affirms that it was done; and this makes a single and good Issue for the Cause to proceed to Trial: And the formal Words of a Treasurer are in our French Suits, in Latin Habes locum, and in English without that, for a 'thing was done, or not. 2 Kitto. 227. W. Irf. Synb. part 2. A Plea will be ill, which neither traverses nor confesses the Plaintiff's Title, &c. And every Matter in Fact, alleged by the Plaintiff, may be traversed by the Defendant; but not Matter of Law, or where it is Part Matter of Law and Part Matter of Fact; nor may a Record but not being tried by a Jury. And if a Matter be expressly pleaded in the Affirmative, which is expressly answered in the Negative, no Travers is necessary, there being a sufficient Issue joint and also where the Defendant hath given a particular Answer in his Plea, to all the material Matters contained in the Declaration, he need not take a Treasurer; for when the Thing is answered, there needs no further Denial. Cr. Eas. 755. Telv. 173, 191, 195. 2 Mad. 44. If a Treasurer contain no more than the Party hath pleaded before, it will not be good: No Treasurer ought to be taken but where the Thing traversed is issuable. And where one will make a Treasurer to a Declaration, he ought to traverse that Part of it, that no Proof will be given of it. In a Declaration, the Point is determined by the Jury. 2 Roll. Rep. 37. 2 Litt. Abr. 587.

Treasurer. As one Treasurer is enough to make a perfect Issue, it is not traversable to be taken upon a Treasurer, if 'tis well taken to the material Point, and goes to the Subsistence of the Action; but where the said Treasurer is not well taken, it is pertinent to the Matter, there to that which was sufficiently confess'd and avoided before, the other Party may well take a Treasurer after such immaterial Treasurer taken before. And if special Matter alleged in a foreign Country in the Defendant's Plea be false, the Plaintiff may maintain his Action, and traverse that special Matter, and in it, if the Treasurer, or a Plea on a Treasurer hath been adjudged good. 1 Swale. 32. Pop. 101. These Rules are to be obdered in Treasurer: 1. The Treasurer of a Thing immediately alleged, vitiates a good Bar. 2. Nothing must be traversed but what is expressly alleged. 3. Surplusage in a Plea doth not inform a Treasurer. 4. It must be always made to the substantial Part of the Action. Where an Action is intended to be laid at one Day or another, there the Day is not traversable. 6. In Action of Trespass generally the Day is not material; though if a Matter be to be done upon a particular Day, there it is material and traversable. 2 Roll. Rep. 37. 1 Roll. Rep. 235. Telv. 122. 2 Litt. Abr. 313. If the Parties have agreed on the Day for a Thing to be done, the Treasurer of the Day is material; but where they are not agreed on the Day, it is otherwise; and though 'tis proved to be done on another Day, 'tis sufficient. Pamba. 90. Per Hol C. T. W. Where a Treasurer goes to the Matter of a Plea, &c. all that went before is waved by the Treasurer; and if the Treasurer goes to the Time only, it is not waived. 2 Salk. 634. In Action of Trespass, a particular Place and Time were laid in the Declaration, and in the Plea there was a Treasurer as to the Place, but not as to the Time. On Avernum that it is a Town treasurer, the Treasurer was held good. 3 Law. 227. 2 Law. 1492. Where a Plea in justification of a Thing is not local, or the Treasurer of the Place is wrong. 2 Mad. 720. The Subsistence and Body of a Plea must be traversed. Hoo. 232. But a Treasurer, that a Person died issue of Land in Fee ends &c. as forming the Action, the Defendant had declared, was adjudged good. Hoo. 123. A Lord and Tenant differ in the Services, there the Tenure and not the Seisin shall be traversed; but if they agree in the Services, the Seisin and not the Treasurer is traversable; and it is a general Rule, that the Tenant shall never traverse the Seisin of the Services without admitting the Tenure. March. 156. 2 Nelf. 65. That a Seisin is not material not traversable, is not admitted when it is alleged, and not traversed. 2 Salk. 601. But the Omitting a Treasurer where it is necessary, is Matter of Substance. A Mad. 60. And a Treasurer of a Debt is ill when a Promissie is the Ground of the Action; which ought to be traversed, and not the Debt. Law. 252. A Treasurer should have an Indemnity to make it refer to the Reason given by the Jury. And as not traversed for a Plea for the Plaintiff to reply, that is an alleged to be dead, without traversing that he is not dead. 2 Litt. 3 Salk. 357. It is laid that where a Treasurer a Jesu decy compriseth the whole Matter generally, it may conclude &c. de Jesu, &c. papier Patriam; but when it traverses a particular Matter, the Conclusion ought to be with an Answer, &c. 2 Salk.

Travers, not confessed to; the Plaintiff is not to take issue upon, and can not deny or force any chief Point of it: As in a Pretermitment against a Person for a Highway overflowed with Water, for Default of foreseeing a Drain, &c. he may traverse the Matter, that there is no Highway, or that the Ditch is sufficiently focused, or whatever traverse the Cause, &c. That he hath not the Land, or he and they who have Estate, &c. have not used to do the Ditch. Lamb. Eiron. 531. But East.

Travers or an Affair, it is to prove that an In- quisition made of Lands or Goods by the Executive, is defective and untrue only. No Person shall traverse an Office, unless he can make to himself a good Right and Title: And if one be admitted to traverse an Office, this Admission of the Party to the Travers, doth suspend the Title to be in him, or else he had no Cause of Travers. Travesty, (Proctor et al.) Treschurous, or full of Dishonour, &c. It is said.

Travestying Person, Of taking Arms by the King's Authority against his Peron, and that are commissioned by him, is condemned by the Statute 14 Car. 3. cap. 3.

Travers, (From the Fr. Traverb, to betray, and Traversim Betraying, contrived into Travers) is the Crime of Treachery and Infidelity to our lawful Sovereign; the Latin Word for which used in Law is Prodisti, and is divided into High Travers, Alia Prodisti, and Petit Travers, Prodisti paraas; And there is Mention of Accumulative and Conspiratorial Travers in some of our Statutes. High Travers is de- fined to be an Offence committed against the Security of the King and Kingdom; and as all Travers include Felonies, the Word Prodisti must be used in the Indictment for Travers, to distinguish it. 3 Salk. 4. 15. The Greatness of this Offence of Travers, and Seve- rity of its punishment, is upon all Accounts, is so great that it is upon all Accounts, is a Crime: because the Safety, Peace and Tranquility of the Kingdom, is highly concerned in the Prepreration of the Person and Government of the King; and therefore the Laws have given all possible Security there- to, under the severest Penalties: And as the Subjects have Protection from the King and his Laws; so they are bound by their Allegiance to be true and faithful to him. 1 Hali. His P. C. 59. At Com- mon Law there were different Opinions concerning High Travers; and besides the Statute 25 Ed. 3 tr. Travers was made to be increasing Royal Power, and held to be Travers; so that by the Excess of the Times, any Crime by aggravating the Circum- stances, it is heightened into Travers: Wherefore this Statute was made to determine what should be Travers; and since the Making thereof, there can be no constructive Travers, i. e. Nothing can be construed to be a High Travers, literally defined in that Act, nor may the Statute be construed by Equity, be-tures ancient and modern, declaring what Offences shall be Treason; and Treasons committed out of the Realm may be tried in B. R. as if the Offence had been done in the County of Middlesex; also they may be committed and tried in such County as the King thinks fit, &c. A Party within one Year after Outlawry for Treason, may surrender himself to the Chief Justice of England, and traverse the Indictment; and none shall be attainted of Treason but by the Testimony of Two Witnesses, &c. by Stat. 35 H. 8. c. 2. & 6 E. 6. c. 11. All Trials for High Treason shall be according to the Course of the Common Law, and not otherwise. 1 & 2 Ph. Mar. cap. 10. And Per- sons indit for Treason are to have a Copy of the Indictment five Days before Trial, to advise with Coun- sel; and shall be admitted to make a full Defence by Counsel learned in the Law, and by lawful Witnesses, &c. and there must be two Witnesses to the fame Overt Act, or two Acts of the fame Treason, produced Face to Face, to make out the Treason against them. 7 H. 3. cap. 3. If one Witness in High Treason be put to the Testimony, and the other is only by Hearsay; these are not two lawful Witnesses, within the Case of a Deny. But two Witnesses are not required either upon the Indictment or Trial of Treason for Counterfeiting Money, by the Provis of the Statute. 1 & 2 P. & M. of- fenders guilty of High Treason by being concerned in the Rebellion in the first Year of K. Geo. 1. were to be tried before such Commissioners of Oyer and Terminer and Goal Delivery, and in such County as his Majesty by any Commission under the Great Seal should appoint, by lawful Men of the fame County, as if the Fact had been there committed: This ex- tended only to Persons actually in Arms. 1 Geo. 1. c. 53. All are Principals in High Treason; and On Attinder of Treason, the Blood of the Criminal is corrupted; he shall be drawn, hung, and quartered; and forfeit his Lands and Goods to the King, &c. Treason by the Stat. 25 Ed. 3. in compounding and imagining the Death of the King, must be manifested by some Overt Act, as by providing Arms to do it, cons- ulting to levy War against him, writing Letters to excite others to join in it, assembling Persons in order to imprint or depose the King, or to get him into their Power, &c. their Acts are sufficient to prove that one compounded or imagined the Death of the King, and to make a Man guilty of High Treason. 3 Stat. 15. c. 5. It has been a very great Question whether Words spoken can amount to High Treason: But it was resolved in the Trial of the Regicides, that though a Man cannot be indicted of High Treason for Wishing away the King's Life, if he be indicted for compounding the Death of the King's Death, these Words may be laid as an Overt Act, to prove that he compounded the Death of the King; and to support this Opinion, the Case of a Person was cited who was indicted of Treason, Anno 9 Car. 1. for that he being the King's Subject at Liffon used the Words: I will kill the King, (pronouncing King Charles) if I may come to him; and afterwards he came into England for that Purpose; and two Mer- chants proving that he spoke the Words, for that his traitorous Intent and the wicked Imagination of his Heart was declared by these Words, it was held to be High Treason by the Common Law, and within the Statute of the 25 Ed. 3. cap. 2. Cor. Cap. 2. Car. 5. c. 7. 2. Other Words, which were by a direct Punishment against the King's Life, will amount to an Overt Act of compounding or imagining the King's Death; in the Compounding or Imagining the Death of the King. The Reasons of these are the most natural Way of expressing the Imagination of the Heart, and may be \(\text{of certain Evidence of it. And any external Act which may be a Manifestation of such Imagination, in such Words without an Overt Act of treason, they must be so certain and positive, as plainly to denote the Intention of the Speaker, and be laid with an Averment that they were spoken de Rege, &c. 1 Hawk. P. C. 40. 2 Salt. 343. 3 Mad. 52. The Maxim, That no Words can amount to Treason, at this Day, is not generally understood; and was never understood in such Passage of the Statute, as Words being High Treason, from the Stat. 1 M. cap. 1. where it is said, that many honourable Persons, and others of good Reputation, had been indicted for Words only suffered shameful Death, that the Se- verity of such like dangerous and painful Laws should be abolished: It was encharged, That no Offence made by Words, Writing, Kyphering, &c. Should be adjudged Treason: It appears from the next Part of the Preamble of the said Statute, that it is applica- ble only to the Statutes in the Time of King Henry VI., which made bare Words High Treason: And in the first Edition of Hoc's Piaus of the Crown it is twice said, that it hath been adjudged that Words are an Overt Act; though in a later Matter it is said, that Compounding by bare Words is not an Overt Act, &c. 1 Hawk. 44. Ever since the Revolution, it has been the constant Practice, when a Person, by treasonable Discourses, has manifestly resolved to murder the King, to depose the King, to convict him upon such Evidence: And Chief Justice Hale was of Opinion, that Express Words were not necessary to constitute a Man of High Treason; but if from the Tenor of his Discourse, the Jury were satisfied he was engaged in a Design against the King's Life, this was sufficient to convict the Person, State, and Fellow Subjects. The Words of Persuasion to kill the King, are Overt Acts of compounding his Death; and it hath been adjudged, that he who intended by Force to procure Laws to the King, and to deprive him of his Power, did inten- tiously deprive him of his Crown and Life; that if a Man be ignorant of the Intention of those who take up Arms against the King, if he join in any Action with them, he is guilty of Treason; and that the Law constrains every Rebellion to be a Pisc against the King's Life, and a Deposing him, because a Rebel would not suffer that King to reign and live, who will punish him for Rebellion. 2016. 2 Salt. 353. 3 Nof. Abs. 352. It is said, that Words spoken to draw away the Affection of the People from the King, and to find a Rebellious Spirit against him, to his Death and Destruction, are Treason: But the Imagination in High Treason, without Act or Word, is punishable. 1345. 1 Rep. Treas. Cent. 127. Words are set down in Writing, and kept privately in one's Closet, they are not an Overt Act of Treason, except the Words are published. 2016. But it has been held, that treasonable Muses put in Writing, written \(\text{of aggre.} \) and though it was not published, but sent in a Box to the King, it theorised the Intent of the Party to be High Treason. 2 Stat. Repl. 43. Under the Head of compounding and imagining the King's Death, Intention of Treason proved by Circumstances, is High Treason: The Law takes Notice of Intentions to com- mit Treason, and Men's Actions are governed by their Intentions, &c. 1 Stat. 140. 5 Mad. 265. For a Man to say, That he will be King after the King's Death, hath been adjudged Treason: And so to pro- pably when the King shall die; for this may imply a Knowledge of a Conspiration. Roll. Repl. 43. There must be a Compelling, Intent or Imagination to kill the King: State of the Overt Act of Treason, and the Killers him for infatuation, as Sir W. Fryel killed King Will. 2. by the Gliance of an Arrow in New Forest, is not Treason; And though by the ancient Law, if a Man slams killed, orADMINISTRATION, as the King, it was held to be Treason; by the Stat. 25 Ed. 5. by Force of the Words Compay or Imagine, he is that in Nov. Comps, and totally deprived of all Compelling, \(\text{of aggre.} \) and even Words may be an Overt Act of Treason, but it must be an absolute Misdemeanour, and total Depriva- tion of Memory. 3 Stat. 24. If the Husband of a Queen Queen Regent conspire her Death; or a Queen Consort shall conspire the King’s Death, either of these Acts are Treasons: And though the Compounding the Death or Wounding the King or Queen by the 25 Ed. 5. this must be intended during the Marriage; and it doth not extend to a Queen Dowager. 3 Inf. 8. And the eldest Son and Heir of the King, that is living, is intended by the said Act, though he was not the first Son; but if the Heir apparent to the Crown be a collateral Heir, he is not within the Statute; nor is a Conspiracy against such collateral Heir, Treason by this Act. Ibid. Also Violating the Queen Consort is High Treason, and her yielding and confessing to it is Treason; but this does not affect a Dowager Queen: So likewise Violating the Wife of the Prince in Treason only during the Covens. 3 Inf. 9. And the eldest Daughter of the King is such a Daughter as is eldest not married, at the Time of the Violation, which will be Treason, although there was an elder Daughter than her, who died without Issue; for now the Elder alive has a Right to the Inheritance of the Crown, upon the Death of the Male Heir: as Violating the Queen’s Person, &c. was High Treason at Common Law, by Reason it destroyed the Cerenity of the King’s Issue, and the Custom and Consequence about the Succession. H. P. C. 16. A Queen Dowager after the Death of her Husband, is not a Queen within the Statute; for though the bears the Title, and hath many Honours and Adornments of that Dignity of her Person, yet she is not the King’s Wife or Companion: And a Queen divorced from the King a coena Matrimoniis, is no Queen within this Act, although the King be living; which was the case of Q. Katharina, who after twenty Years Marriage with King Hen. 8. was divorced causa affectuosa. 1 Hale’s Hist. P. C. C. 134. At Common Law Compealing the Death of any of the King’s Children, and declaring it by Overt Act, was taken to be Treason; though by this Statute it is restrained to the eldest Son and Heir. Ibid. 135. By the Common Law, Leaguing against the King was Treason: But, as in Case of High Treason, there must be an Overt Act; a Conspiracy or Compassing to levy War is no Overt Act, unless a War is actually levied; though if a War is actually levied, then the Conspirators are all Traitors, although they are not in Arms: And a Conspiracy to levy War will be Evidence of an Overt Act to maintain an In- diement for Compealing the King’s Death; but if the Indictment be for levy War only, Proof must be made that a War was levied, to bring the Offender under this Clause of the Statute 25 Ed. 3. 3 Inf. 8. 9. H. P. C. 14. If two or more comply to levy War, and one of them alone railes Forces; this is not enough to all. Dryden’s Case, More 620. To suffer or adhere to the King’s Enemies, give them Comfort or Relief, or for any Person to be in Council with others to levy any seditious Wars, are High Treason: And the Deliver- ry or Surrender of the King’s Coaltres or Forts, by the Captains thereof, to the King’s Enemies, within the Realm or without, for Reward, &c. is an Adhering to the King’s Enemies, and Treason by the 25 Ed. 3. A Lieutenant in Ireland let several Rebels out of Dublin Castle, and discharged some Irish Hostages which had been given for Securing the Peace; and for this he was attainted of High Treason, as adhering to the King’s Enemies, 35 Ed. 8. 1 Lew. Adhering to the King’s Enemies out of the Realm is Treason; and one who was beyond Sea having falsified a foreign Prince to invade the Kingdom, was held guilty of High Treason, and triable by the Statute 35 Hen. 8. But Adherence out of the Realm must be alleged in some Place in England. 5 Inf. 10. H. P. C. 14. Dryd. 298. 310. If there be War between the King of England and France, those Engl. Men, that live in France before the War, and continue there after, are not meerly upon the ground that they are not Enemies, to be guilty of Treason, unless they actually assist in such War; or at least refuse to return into England, upon a Proper Proclamation and Notice thereof; and this Refusal is but Evidence of an Adherence and not so in irrefi. 1 Hale’s Hist. P. C. 125. It has been adjudg’d, that Adhering to the King’s Enemies is an Adhering against him; and that Engl. Subjects joining with Rebel Subjects of the King’s Allies, and fighting with them under the Command of an Alien Enemy Prince, is Treason, in Adhering to the King’s Enemies; and Cruelty in 9 K. A Ship a Ship with Intent to destroy the King's Ships, without doing any Act of Hajolity, is an Over-Act of Adhering, Comforting and Aiding; for where an Englishman fills himself and marcheth, this is Treason without any Act of Adhering, or actual Fighting; it is 2 & 3 Ed. 6 s. 634. An Indictment for Levying of War, or Adhering to the King's Enemies generally, without bewing some particular Infringes, is not good; because of their Words, to be. And thereof shall be provably attainted by Overi Dred, which follow and are connected to the Treason of Compelling the King's Death, Levying War, and Adhering to the King's Enemies; and as these Treasons are several and distinct Treasons, one of them cannot be made an Over-Act of another.

When there is no such or no such words evidently to alledge that Adherence was against the King; but the Special Maner of Adherence must be set forth: And it is said, that the Succeeding a Rebel, fled into another Realm, is not within the Statue; for a Rebel is not properly an Enemy, and the Statue is strictly taken. 1 Hen. 35. Subjects of the King, in open War or Rebellion, are not the King's Enemies, but Subjects of a Subject in War; and come into England with him, if he be taken Prisoner, shall not be randomed or process for any Enemy, but as a Traitor to the King: On the other hand, an Enemy coming in open Holliety into England, and taken, shall be either executed by Martial Law, or randomed; for he cannot be indicted of Treason, because he never was within the Ligeance of the King. 3 Ed. 11. From the Word Provenably, a Person ought to be concern'd on direct and manifest Proof or and not upon Presumptions or Inferences; and the Word Attainted, neatly implies, That the Prisoner be proceeded against and attainted according to due Course of Law; wherefore if a man be killed in open War against the King, or be put to Death arbitrarily, or by Martial Law, and be not attainted of Treason according to the Common Law, he forfeits nothing; for which Cause some Person, kill'd in open Rebellion against the King, have been attainted by Act of Parliament. Ibid. 12. If a Person be indicted of Treason, and will not answer, or if he answers improperly, Judgment shall be given against him as taken pro confessa that he is Guilty.

Upon a Writ of Error to reverse an Attain- der in Treason, because the Party convicted was not actually taken, to try by what Judgement would not be given against him, the Attainer was reversed; for he might have a Pardon, or some Matter to move in Arrest of Judgment. 2 Salk. 550. 3 Mad. 126. And the Omission of any necessary Part of the Judg- ment for Treason, is Error sufficient to reverse an Attainder, as it is more severe and formidable in Tra- son, than in any other Crime. 3 Salk. 123. As to the Counterfeiting the King's Seal, this was Treason by the Common Law; and the Statute 25 Ed. 3. mentions only the Great Seal and Privy Seal; for the Commonages of the Sign Manual, &c. 1 Han. 3, is not Treason within that Act, but by 1 & 2 F. & M. c. 6. Whose aid and consent to the Counterfeiting of the King's Seal are equally guilty with the Auctor: But an Intent or Compounding to counterfeit the Great Seal, if he be not actually done, is not Treas- son; there must be an actual Counterfeiting, and it is 12 Eliz. 2 P. & C. 3 s. 1. Forging or Counterfeiting foreign Money made current here by Proclamation, is likewise High Treason, by 1 Mar. c. 6. And if not current here, it is Misprision of Treason. Counterfeiting the King's Coin, or impairing or lightening it by Clipping, &c. is Treason; but it shall work no Corruption of Blood, nor be try'd by a grand Jury. 18 El. cap. 1. And as those who coin Money without the King's Authority are guilty of Treason; to those who coin Money, and do it, if they coin it of greater Alloy, or less Weight than they ought: 3 Ed. 17. 2 & 177. If A Counterfeiting Money, and another vent the fame for his own Benefit, he is not guilty of Treason; for it is only a Cheat and Middlemener in him, punishable by Fine and Imprisonment: But if one Counterfeits the King's Money, though he never ven's it, this is a Counterfeiting and Treason within the Statue. And if any Man doth Counterfeit the lawful Coin of this Kingdom in a great Measure, but with some Varia- tion in the Impression, &c. yet it is Countereating of the King's Money; and shall not evade the Statue. 1 Haliis H. If any Man die here in one County, of a Wound received in another; he shall be tried by a Jury of the County where he died. And if he be tried here, it is to be there brought, and Tried by be both Counties. Stat. 34. 3. 3. 24. 3. 7. 7. 12. And if one be wounded on the Sea, or out of England, and be of the same here; or shall be wounded in England, and die on the Sea, or at any Place abroad; an Indictment may be found by Juries of the County in which the Death, or Striken, &c. has happened, and the Judge proceeded in the same as the Officers, as it the Penalty were done, Out. by Stat. 22 Geo. 1. 21. 21. An Issue being joined in R. of a Matter triable in Ireland; this shall be brought into Ireland to be tried, and after Trial be remanded; though an Issue be thus joined of a Thing in Wales, the Record shall not be sent there to be tried; but it shall be tried in the next County of which it is a part within thirty miles. 20. Hum. 2. 2. 243. If a Foreign Issue which it is local, should happen, it may be tried where the Action is laid; and for that Purpose the Plaintiff may enter a Suggestion on the Roll, that such a Place in such a Country is next adjacent; and it may be tried in R. by a Jury from that Place, according to the Laws of that Country, which may be given in Evidence and Adjudged in Action of Debt for Rent, upon a Lease made in London of Lands in Jamaica; and it was held, that where the Lessor declares upon the Privy of Enkare, the Action must be brought where the Lands are; but his otherwise when the Action is founded on the Privy of Covenant, the one being local, and the other extraordinary, as in this Case. 2 Salk. 631. In Covendants, the Action was laid in London, and Issue joined upon a Feoffment in Oxfordshire, of Lands in that Country, and the Case was tried in London; after Verdect it was objected that the Trial ought to have been in Oxfordshire, but relieved that by the Stat. 37. 2. 2. it was well tried in the County where the Action was brought; but though the Words of that Statute are, that it shall be good, if tried by the County where the Action is laid, it hath been adjudged, that must be understood of a Trial by the County, and the Issue done both ways; for otherwise it would destroy the whole Law concerning Trials by Juries. 3 Salk. 364. In the Trial of a Grant of Lands, if the Issue be whether such Grant was made or not, the Issue shall be from that Place where that is alluded to upon Demise; but 'tis otherwise of a Feoffment or Lease for Life, when Livery is made; for there it is to be given where the Land birth. 39. 38. 39. 3. 13. In Ejectments the Plaintiff ought to come always from the Place where the Lands lie, and not from the Place where the Demise is laid to be made; But that Case is help'd after Verdick. Md. Ca. 26. 9. And by the Statute 4 & 5. 4. for the Prence for the Trial of any Issue in a civil Cause, shall be awarded of the Body of the Country where the Cause was grown to be tried, if they are to be tried in London or Middlesex, and the Defendant live not forty Miles from London, eight Days Notice of Trial is to be given; and if the Defendant lives that Distance or further, he must have fourteen Days Notice from the Plaintiff, before he tries his Issue; but eight Days Notice of Trial is good at the Clerk of Affid, or his Affidavit, delivers a Copy of the jury's Names, and the Affidavit they are to try, to the Jury; and a Bailiff being sworn to keep them without Disturbance, till they are agreed, they depart from the Bar; and when they are all agreed, they return to give in their Verdict: Then the Plaintiff is called, and if he do not appear, a Nonuit shall be recorded; but if he appears, the Clerk asks the Jury who they find, and what Costs and Damages; and he enters it on the Back of the Panel, and repeats it to the Jury, which stands in the Tally: And when the Trial is over, the Affidavit delivers to the Party recovering the Record with the Differings, and the Names of the Jury annexed, on the Back of which he indorses the Substance of the Verdict, and the Costs given by the Jury; and then upon the Back of the Record is ingrossed the Affidavit, which is delivered to the Clerk of the Rolls, and he makes out a Four Days Rule for Judgment; and when the Rule is out, if Judgment be not arrested, further Costs are taxed, and the Judgment is fit to be entered: But in Trials at the Affidavit, the Record and Differings is usually kept by the Affidavit till the next Term, when he is to be called upon for the Affidavit, and you proceed to have it marked, made out a Rule, and sign Judgment; and Judgment being entered, Execution is thereupon awarded, and Writs of Ca. Inj., Plur. Fac. Judic., &c. Issued, &c. Ibid. 100, 101. If a Trial be had the last Day of Term, or at the Sittings after the Term, or the Affidavit, Judgment cannot be given therein, till the first Day of the next Term. When a Defendant is not prepared to try his Case, upon Pension and Affidavit of the Reactions, the Court will order the Cause to be tried till another Day the same Affidavit; or in London till the next Term, on Payment of Costs: And in Cases at a Trial, the Court hears that one of the Parties is surprised, through Want of Money, and no bond from any Party on his own, they may in their Discretion put off the Trial to another Time, until such Party is better prepared. 2 Litt. 569, 610. If the Matters concluded are of great Value, or the Title in Question is difficult or intricate, on Motion the Judges will order a Trial at Bar, for the better Satisfaction of the Parties: though it is not usual to grant Trials at Bar the same Term moved for: And these Trials are appointed by the Statute of Westminster. 2, where the Cause requires Magna Examinatio; the Officers of the Court, and Barristers at Law, may sit upon a Trial at Bar after which, a new Trial is not to be granted. 2 Saughter 628, 629, 630. It had been laid down as a Rule, that after a Trial at Bar, no new Trial shall be had in any Cause, except it appear that there had been some Corruption in the Jury. 2 Car. 2. New Trials may be granted generally in several Causes, wise: where the Defendant had not sufficient Notice given him of the former Trial; or where Evidence is too great to be managed in one Term; or where great Damage is given, or costs are incurred, or where the Evidence at the former Trial, which the Party might then have produced: And it had been denied, where the Defendant forgot to bring a Settlement at the Trial's side, likewise where very large Damages were given, on the Report and Opinion of the Judge who tried the Cause, that he believed the Jury gave a Verdict according to their Consciences: And no new Trial Ball shall be granted for too small Damages; unless where Action of Covenant is brought for a Sum certain, and the jury give Damages under the same, &c. The Reason of granting new Trials upon Verdicts against Evidence at the Affidavit is, because the Trials are subordinate to the Courts; and such new Trials have been anciently granted, as appears from this: that it is a new Challenge to a Juryman to say that he had been a Juror before in the same Cause; Adjudged that a new Trial cannot be granted in an inferior Court. 2 Saughter 628, 629, 630. 3 Nef. Abr. 414, 417. 2

After a Motion in Arrêt of Judgment, the Party shall not move for a new Trial; but after Motion for a new Trial, he may move in Arrêt of Judgment. 2 Saughter 628. A new Trial is granted in Criminal Causes, where the Defendant is acquitted, if some Fraud, or Trick be not proved in the Case. Ibid. But on Convi-iction, a new Trial may be granted upon Cause; so if a Trial on Indictment be by a wrong Person, or in Cases where Appeal may be brought. 2 Litt. 606, 613. If the Affidavit tried in any Cause is not joined, it is not a good Trial; except it be an Affidavit in Chancery in the Petty-Big-Side, which is to be first from thence to be tried in B. R. Hall. 22 Car. It is a Mis-trial for a Thing to be tried before a Judge, who hath Interest in the Thing in Question; and if the Tally be tried by a Jury out of a wrong County, or there be any Error in the Proofs against the Jurors, or it is directed to a wrong Officer, &c. it is a Mis-trial, likewise where Matter of Record is to be tried by a Jury, it will be a Mis-trial; but if the Matter of Record be mixed with Matter of Fact, Trial by Jury is good. Ibid. 139. On a Mis-trial, Judgment may not be given; but shall be arrested, &c. But a Miss-trial is helped by the Statute of放假。See offic, Visit, &c.

may have TROVER for the Goods of the Teller: the Law gives him a Property, which draws the Possession to it, though there be not an actual Possession. Lawfully a Rape is a Right of Property in the Goods, or a lawful Possession, &c., which is to be proved by the Plaintiff in TROVER, before the Goods came to the Defendant's Hands: And if a Man by his own Hands or by his Goods left in the Hands of another, if he bought them in open Fair or Market; this alters the Property, and he cannot recover them. 1 Inf. 496. 1 Dowa. 93. The Plaintiff declared on a Conversion of his own Goods, the Defendant judg'd, that the Property of the Goods was in B. E. who sold them. This was a good TROVER to justify the Conversion without a TROVER, unless the Goods had been fold in the Market. 1 Lem. 291. In TROVER, the Plaintiff may declare upon a Conversion of his own Goods. The Plea on the Defendant's Part is commonly Not guilty, on which the special Matter may be given in Evidence, to prove the Plaintiff hath no Equity of TROVER or other Right of Property to the Thing in Controversy: If the Defendant pleads a special Plea, he must confess and avoid, or traverse the TROVER; the Plaintiff must prove a Bult 1243. Inf. Wood's Case 540. The Defendant in TROVER may plead Not guilty, and give in Evidence, that he disfraised the Goods, and detained them till he was paid; but he cannot confess, especially not that he took the Goods by Defraud, or that he detained them as a Hoit till paid for Horses flarding, &c., for the Detainer being lawful, the Conversion is confessed; though if he pleads a Matter which confounds a Conversion, and avoids it, the Good. 1 Tel. 198. 2 Salk. 654. A Man puts out Cattle to Pasture at so much per Week; and then tells them to the Plaintiff, who demands the Cattle, but the Defendant refuses to let them go till paid for a TROVER well lies, and the Defendant's Remedy must be by Action for the Money due to him for depreciating the Cows; as he may not maintain for the Money, as in Case of an Inkeeper, or a Taylor, of Things in their Custody. 1 Cr. Cas. 27. 2 Litt. 632. In TROVER for a Bond, the Plaintiff need not shew the Date; for the Bond being lost or converted, he may not know the Date; and if he should lay out the Date, and mistake it, he would fail in his Action. Cr. Cas. 262. If the Defendant find the Bond, and receive the Money, Action of Account fitteth against the Receiver, and not TROVER. Cr. Cas. 243. The Plaintiff in Action of TROVER alleged, that such a Day and Year he required the Defendant to deliver the Goods, but he refused and converted them to his Own Use; though he shewed no Day or Place as the Day and Place were alleged of the Receipt and Refusal, it was held sufficient. Cr. Cas. 162. But the Place of Conversion must be generally mentioned in TROVER, or it will be found, Cr. Cas. 78. 97. And yet where the TROVER of Goods is in one County, and the Conversion in another County, the Action brought for these Goods may be laid in the County where the Conversion was, or in any other County, as it is only a transitory Action; and neither the Place of TROVER, nor Conversion, are traversable. Pag. 25. 2 B. R. If Goods were converted then in Plaintiff, and a Conversion afterwards; the Husband and Wife may join, and it will be good. 2 Lev. 109. 1 Barri. 464. E. Pennington, stating forth that they converted the Goods to the Use of the Husband; for the Feme may be a TROVERER, and convert them to the Husband's Use, or the Use of a Stranger, but not to her Own Use; and if the Conversion be laid ad usus of her self and Husband, or ad usum program, &c., it will not be good. Cr. Cas. 494. In TROVER the Plaintiff may lay a Conversion here, and prove it in TROVER; his otherwise in TROVER quae Clavem friget, for there the Party cannot prove the Trefpa but where it lies, nor lay it in any other Place than where it lies. 31 lev. 152. 2 B. R. 92. The Action of TROVER or Detain, at the Plaintiff's Election, may be brought for Goods detained; for it is but Justice that the Party should have his Goods detained if they may be had, or else Damages to the Value of the Detaining and Conversion of them. 1 Litt. 461. And TROVER or TROVER, lies for the same Thing; though they cannot be brought in one Declaration; And the Allegation of the Conversion of the Goods in Trefpa, is for Aggravation of the Damage, &c. Cr. Tref. 172. Lawes that Measure not lie nor take numbered; but TROVER and Conversion lies for it: For though in the Finding and Converting generally, the Money of one Person can't be distinguished from that of another, all Money being alike; yet the Proof that the Plaintiff lost, and Defendant converted so much, maintains the Action, if the Verdict finds it. 2 B. R. 208. Where Money is given to a Person on a Condition, though it be given in Bills, Actions of TROVER will lie; because this Action is not to recover the Money, but Damages. Pag. 91. 3 Salk. 165. In Case a Master delivered Cows to his Servant to sell, who does and converts the Money, the Master may bring TROVER against the Servant; 2 B. R. 107. 1. Bll's Rep. 19. And where an Ap- prentice goes into the Service of a Master which he hath a Right of TROVER of Money he earns, if the same be refused Payment, Cr. Mead. Cas. 69. There is no paper Plea in an Action of TROVER, unless there is no paper in it; and then if it lies, but the General Issue Not Guilty; on which the Defendant may give Evidence that the Goods or Money were not the Plaintiff's. 1 B. There are only two Kinds of Trouws by Operation of Law: one where the Deed or Conveyance has been made in the Name of one Man, and the Purchase-declared the Trouw with regard to some Part to be Part, in which case he himself ought to have the Benefit of that, being plainly his Interest. Barn-

Cefait que Trouw for so much as though a Purchaser, for valuable Consideration, shall have his Turke, Is the King's Lost through all the Country; of which the Sheriff is Judge, and this Court is incident to his Office; wherefore it is called the Sheriff's Turk: And it had its Name originally from the Sheriff's Taking a Court or Circuit about his Shire, and holding this Court in several Places; for the Word Turk properly taken, doth not signify the Court of the Sheriff, but his Pasambolization. Compl. turf. 250. 4 Inst. 250. 2 Inst. 250. 2 Inst. P. C. 55. The Turk is a Court of Record; and by the Common Law, every Sheriff ought to make his Turk or Circuit throughout all the Hundreds in his County, in order to hold a Court in every Hundred for the Redressing of Common Grievances, and Prevention of the Peace; and this Court might be held at any Place within the Hundred, and as often as the Sheriff thought fit: But this having been found to give the Sheriff too great Power of oppressing the People, by holding his Court at such Times and Places, at which they could not conveniency attend, and thereby increase the Number of his Amertemente; by the Stat. of Magna Chart. c. 27, it was enacted, that no Sheriff shall make his Turk through a Hundred but twice in a Year, viz. once after Easter, and once after the Feast of the Nativitas Domini, at the Places assigned. Also a subsequent Statute ordains, That every Sheriff shall make his Turk yearly, one Time within in the Month after Easter, and another Time within in the Month after Michaelmas; and if they hold them in any other Manner, they shall lose their Turk for that Time. 37 Ed. 4, cap. 15. Since these Statutes, the Sheriff is indefinable for holding this Court at another Time, then what is therein limited, or at an unusual Place: And it hath been held, that an Indictment found at a Sheriff's Turk, ap proving to have been held at another Time, is void. Dall. Sib. 350, 151. Dry. 131. 38 Hen. 6.

At Common Law the Sheriff might proceed to hear and determine any Offence within his Jurisdiction, being indicted before him, and requiring a Trial, till Sheriff were restrained from holding Pleas of the Crown by Magna Chart. c. 17. But that Statute doth not refrain the Sheriff's Turk, from taking Indictments or on a Warrant or Indictment, for several Offences thereto; though the Power of awarding such Proces being abdicated, was taken from all the Sheriffs (except both of London,) by the Ed. 4, c. 2, and laye ed in the Justices of Peace at their Sessions, who are to award Precises on such Indictments delivered to them by the Sheriff, as if they had been taken before themselves. Ed. 6, c. 7. A Sheriff's Power in this Court is still the same as antici-cently it was, in all Causes not within the Statute above mentioned for a Judge of Records, and may inquire in his Turk of Trespass and Felonies, by the Common Law; as well as in the lower Offences against the King, such as Purpasures, Seifors of Trespass-Tres, of Waifs, Estrays, Goods wreck'd, &c. All common Nuisances and Annoyances, and other such like Offences; as filling corrupt Vehiculars, breaking the Alleie of Beer and Ale, or keeping false Weights or Measures, are here indicable; also all common Disturbances of the Peace, Barratrous, and common Opprobriums; and all dangerous and injurious Persons, &c. And the Sheriff in his Turk may impose a Fine on all such as are guilty of Contempes in the Face of the Court; and upon a Suitor to the Court making Default, or refusing to be present in the Court, or on a Bailiff not making a Panel; on a Riding-man neglecting to make his Prenticeship; or a Peron chose Contable refusing to be sworn, &c. And he may amend for Offences; which Fines and Impositions are liable and recoverable by Dilectis, &c. Jud. 98, 60, 67. But notwithstanding this it has been observed, that this Part of the Business of the Turk, is for some Years past, through the Negligence of Sheriffs and Sewardes, devolved on the Quarter-Justes. Wertstift. (Perdistium, quae dixerunt Perdisti.) Is the Answer of a Jury given to the Court, concerning the Master of Fact in any Cause committed to their Trial; whereas every one of the Twelve Jurors must agree, or it cannot be a Verdict; And the Jurors are to try the Fact, and the Judges to adjudge according to the Law that ariseth upon it. 2 Co. 285. Verdicts are either General, or Special: A General Verdict is that which is brought into the Court in like general Terms to the General Issue; as if a Defendant pleads Not guilty, or no Wrong, then the Issue is general, whether he be guilty, or the Fact be a Wrong, or not; which being committed to the Jury, they, upon Confirmation of the Evidence, say for the Plaintiff, that the Defendant is guilty of a Wrong, or for the Defendant, that it is no Wrong, &c. A Special Verdict is where they find the Matter at large, according to the Evidence given, that such a Thing is done by the Defendant; and declaring the Course of the Fact, as in their Opinions it is proved, pray the Judgment of the Court as to what the Law is in such a Case. 3 S. P. 2. & Hil. 4. sa. And a Fact may be found specially, sae. Where a Person is indicted of Murder; the Jury may bring him in guilty of Manslaughter, &c. Or they may leave the Matter to the Judges, in which Cases sometimes the Fact is referred to the Chief Justice of B. R. and all the Judges, to determine it; wherein 'tis said a Recorder of London who tried such Cases, gives his Opinion; and the King himself, to whom the Matter was reported. 2 Lev. 255. 2 Nolf. Abr. 57. There are likewise Publick and Privy Verdicts: Publick, when given in open Court, and Privy, when given out of the Court, before any of the Judges thereof; and is called Privy, being to keep secret from the Parties 'till affirmed in Court. 1 Sk. 287. But a Privy Verdict is in such a Case, as it is only to direct which is to be tried, and is allowed by the Court to the Jury for their Ease: The Jury may vary it from, and when come into Court give a contrary Verdict; but this must be before the Privy Verdict is recorded, 5 Mod. 451. 1 Sk. No Privy Verdict can be given in criminal Matters, which concern Life, as Felony, &c. but it must be openly in Court; because the Jury are commanded to look upon the Prisoner, when they give their Verdict, and so the Prisoner is to be there present: But in criminal Causes, where the Defendant is not to be personally, at the Time of the Verdict, and in Informations, a Privy Verdict may be given. Ryca. 193. 1 Pet. 57. A Special Verdict may be given in criminal, or civil Causes; and where the Court directs the Jury to find a Special Verdict in a civil Cause, one of the Counsel on each Side agree upon Notes for it, and draw them up and set their Hands to them; and then they are to be delivered to the Jury in convenient Time, or the Court will take a General Verdict: If at the Prayer of the Plaintiff or Defendant, a Special Verdict is ordered to be found, the Party praying it is to prosecute the Special Verdict, that the Matter in Law may be determined; and if either Party desire to join in drawing it up, and pay his Part of the Charges, or if the Counsel for the Defendant refuses to subscribe the Special Verdict, the Party deferring it shall draw it up and enter it Ex parte. 2 Lill. Abr. 645, 653. Where the Parties disagree, or the Special Verdict is not drawn contrary to the Notes agreed upon, the Court on Motion will rectify it and the Court may amend a Special Verdict, to bring the Special Matter in Question: Though 'tis a Matter of Fact be left out in the Notes of the Special Verdict drawn by Counsel, this cannot be amended afterwards. Ibid. 646. The Plaintiff and Defendant are both of them present in Court to hear the Special Verdict, and the Jury is to be called and to have the Special Verdict read unto them by the Second; and upon the Reading of it, if there be any Mistake in the Drawing it up, the Counsel on either Side may except against it; and when the Counsel are agreed, then the Secondary demands of the Jury, whether they agree to find it so; and if they say they do, the Verdict is found; and it is to be afterwards entered, &c. Page. 23 Car. B. R. 2 Lill. 46. A Special Verdict, though agreed to by the Counsel, is not a Special Verdict till allowed by the Court. Ibid. In all Cases and all Actions, the Jury may give a General or Special Verdict; and the Court is bound to receive it, if pertinent to the Point in Issue, and if the Jury doubt, they may refer themselves to the Court, but are not bound to do so. 3 Salt. 373. Though the Plaintiff and Defendant in a Cause content to have the Jury find a Special Verdict, yet they may find a General Verdict; but this is not usual: And if the Jury will take upon them to find, against the Direction of the Court, the Thing in Matter of Law, the Court will receive the Verdict; but if they give a false Verdict, they are liable to Attaint. Page. 23 Car. The ancient Course of having a Fine on Jurors, barely for giving a Verdict contrary to the Directions of the Court, is condemned as illegal, and disused: And it is the fame if the Verdict be given against Evidence; for the Jury may give it against Evidence, if they know the Fact themselves. Leit. 50. 58. If Jurors eat or drink any Thing at the Charge of him for whom they give their Verdict, before they agreed; or if any Person give them any Thing, or find for the Plaintiff or Defendant; if any Writing, Letter, &c. be delivered by the Plaintiff, or in his Behalf to the Jury, concerning the Matter in Issue, after the Jury are gone from the Bar, and the Jury is found for the Plaintiff; or if either of the Parties, their Attorneys or Solicitors, speak any Thing to the Jury before agreed on their Verdict, which relates to the Cause, as it is not to be seen, which will find for such a Person; or if any Witness be bốc for by the Jury, after gone from the Bar, and he repeats his Evidence again, &c. In their Caves the Verdict shall be void and set aside: But though where the Jury eat and drink at the Charge of the Plaintiff, and the Verdict being found for him, it is void; it is not so if given for the Defendant: And if the Plaintiff, after the Jury are gone from the Bar, deliver any Writing to any of the Jurors, although the Verdict shall be void if given for the Plaintiff; it is otherwise if given for the Defendant, and it cannot be set aside. &c. Also if the Jury have eat or drank after they went from the Bar, and before they gave their Verdict, this ought to be known before the Verdict is given. 1 Sk. 237. 1 Pet. 125. 2 Lev. 140. Mist. 57. 5 Nolf. Abr. 454. A Juryman withdrawing from his Fellows, or keeping them from giving their Verdict, without giving good Reason for it shall be fined; but if he differ from them in Judgment, he shall not: And although Jurymen are punishable for Misdemeanors, every Misdemeanor of the Jury before they give their Verdict, is not a sufficient Cause to make void the Verdict. Dyer 53. 2 Lill. Abr. 647. If one of a Jury that found a Verdict, were outlawed at the Time of the Verdict, it is not good: And where a Verdict is given by thirteen Jurors, it is said to be a void Verdict; because no Attaint will lie. 2 Lill. 650. If there be eleven Jurors agreed, and one dissenting, the Verdict shall not be taken, nor the Refuser fined, &c. Though 'tis said anciently it was not necessary, that all the twelve should agree in Civil Causes. 2 Holt's Hist. P. C. 297. In capital Causes, a Verdict must be actually given; and if the Jury don't all agree upon it, they may be carried in Carts after the Judges, round the Circuit till they agree; and in such a Case they may give their Verdict in another County. 1 Sk. 271. 281. 1 Pet. 97. The Court may set aside a Verdict that convicts a Man contrary to Evidence in a criminal Cause; but they cannot not set aside a Verdict which acquits him. *Wid. *Inf. 648. If the jury acquit a Peron of an Indictment of Felony against Evidence, the Court, before the Peron is to be absolved, must frankly and, as far as it can, consider the Matter; but this hath been thought hard, and of late Years is not so frequently practised as formerly: There are Instances where Defendants acquitted of Crimes contrary to Evidence, have been bound to the good Behaviour. *2 Haml. *P. C. 443.

In Cae 2 a jury acquit a Man upon Trial against full Evidence, and being sent back to consider better, it is, peremptory in and to that matter, the Court must take it, but may refuse judgment upon the Acquittal: And here the King may have an At- taint. Wicke, (Figurac, going wit fingen limitati) The Priest of every Parish is called Figurac, unless the Pradial Tibes are appropriated, and then he is called Figurac; and when Rectories are appropriated, Figurac are to supply the Rectors Places. At first a Figurac was a mere Curate to the Impropriator of the Church, temporary, and removable at Pleasure; to those who are now in the Figurac, and when there were no particular Parishes, were only Curates to the Bishops; but by Degrees the Vicars got a settled Maintenance of Gibe; and some Kind of Tiches, and now claim their Dues either by Endowment or by Precipitation; And where the Vicar is endowed, and comes in by Induction and Induction, he hath Carum animarum actualiter, and is not to be remoned at the Pleasure of the Rector, who in this Case hath only Carum animarum Vadimir; but where the Vicar is not endowed, nor comes in by Induction and Induction, the Rector hath Carum animarum actualiter, and may remove the Vicar. 1. Pet. 15. 3. Sal. 378. H. 4. 2. Roll. 397.

Upon Endowment, the Vicar hath an Equal, though not to great an Interest in the Church as a Rector; the Freethold of the Church, Church-yard and Gibe is in him; and as he hath the Freehold of the Church, he may prescribe to have all the Tibes in the Parish, except those of Cora, &c. Many Vicars have a good Part of the great Tibes; and some Benefices, that were formerly held by a外国, have, by being united, had all the Gibe and Tibes given to the Vicar: But Tibes can no other Way belong to the Vicars, by out of the Patron, Patron, and Paragraph; for all Tibes of this Nature appear to the Patron; and yet generally the Vicars are endowed with Gibe and Tibes, especially small Tibes, &c. If a Vicar be endowed with a small Tich, and afterwardsLand, which had been arable Time out of Mind, is altered, and there are growing small Tibes thereon,

Par. Canefall. 195, 196. Stat. 29 Car. 2. c. 8. Upon the Apprehension of a Church, and Endowment of a Vicar out of the same, the Vicarage and Vicarage are two distinct Ecclesiastical Benefits: And it hath been held, That where there is a Vicarage and Parsonage endowed, that the Bishop in the Vacation may dissolve the Vicarage; but if the Parsonage be improperly, he cannot do it; for a Dissolution the Cure must revert, which it cannot into Lay Hands. Comp. Incumb. 2. Cr. 518. Pal. 219. For the most part Vicarages were endowed upon Appropriations; but sometimes Vicarages have been endowed without any Appropriation of the Patronage, and these are several Churches, where the Tithe is wholly appropriated, and no Vicarage endowed; and there the Impropricators are bound to maintain Curates to perform Divine Service. Cf. The Patron, Parish, and Ordinary, may create a Vicarage, and endow it:

Unity of Possession, (Unius Pasta Possess.) Is where a Man hath a Right to two Elstons, and holds them together jointly in his own Hands; as if a Man take a Lease of Lands from another at a certain Rent, and after he buys the Re-simple, this is an Unity of Possession, by which the Lease is extinguished, because that the Person who had before the Occupation only for his Rent, is now become Lord and Owner of the Land. Term. de Ley. A Lease for Years of an Adventurer, on the Church becoming void, was praetured by the Leifiton, and intimated and indicted; and it was held, that this was a Surrender of his Lease; for they cannot stand together in one Person, and by the Unity of Possession one of them is extinguished.

Use, and Useable. In the Law some Things are absolutely void, and some are useable. A Thing is void, which is done against Law at the very Time of the Doing of it, and it shall bind no Person: But a Thing which is only useable, and not void, although it be what he did ought not to have done, yet when it is done the Deed cannot avoid the same; though by some Act in Law it may be made void by his Heir, &c. 2 Litt. 653. Usance, A Calendar Month, as from May 20 to June 20, and douce Usance, is two such Months a Words used in Bills of Exchange. Merch. Dict. 1756.

Usf. (Uf) is Application of Law, the Profit or Benefit Lands and Tenements; or a Trust and Confidence repose'd in a Man for the holding of Lands. That to whom the Usf the Trust is made shall take the Profits thereof: Welf. symb. par. 1. 1 Inf. 572.

An Usf is a Trust or Confidence which one Man puts in another; and therefore 'tis not a Thing lying out of the Land, but collateral to it, and annex'd to the Privy of Estate between them, leas. That he to whom the Usf is made shall have the Profits; and that the Tenant of the Land shall make an Eftate as he shall direct; But the Coffin技艺 is neither in lies in Red and Ren, the only remedy being to Chancery to compel the Coffin技艺 to trust to execute a 3 Nelf. Abr. 457. The Limitation of an Usf, was at the Common Law but a Matter of Equity: But now Festsments to Usf, &c. have the same Acceptation as Deeds at Common Law; and Usf limited by any Conveyance, are govern'd and directed according to the Rules of the Law. 2 Litt. Abr. 664. There were two Inversions of Usf, Fear in the Time of Trouble and Civil War, for the saving of inheritances from Forfeiture; and Fraud in Time of Peace, to defeat Debtors. De ever. 34; and did the Original of Usf was the Statute of Mortmain, which cramp'd the Clergy so much that they were forced to take Shelter under the Laity, and make use of them to purchase Lands in the Name of the Usf, in order to their Usf: Afterwards the Wars between the Houses of York and Lancaster coming on, Trusts and Usfs increased more than ever; and although the Common Law could take no cognizance of them, yet there were always, until King Hen. 8th's Reign, Clergymen Chancellors, who were ready upon all Occasions to decree the Performance of the Trust and Usf. 2 Litt. 662, 663. It hath been observed by some Writers, that there were no such Things as Usfs at Common Law the Reason was, because the Fee was always taken as the Owner of the Land and it was very inconvenient and absurd that there should be two several Fees, and the Owners, of the same Land Usf, &c. therefore by the Common Law the Feesments to Usf, were the very Tenants, &c. But the Statute of Usf hath united the Eftate to the Usf, so that now the Feesments to Usf have no Eftate or Interest in all, but in the Usf and the consequent Eftate, and Usf limited in the Deed. 3 Salk. 386. Because in Time many Decrees were inverted, by firing the Possession in one Man, and the Usf in another, so much that the Possession and the Usf were divided, which opened a Gap for Frauds; To avoid these Inconveniences, the Statute of 27 H. 8. gives the Possession to the Usf and as before the Statute the Possession ruled the Usf, so now the Usf governs the Possession; for this Reason in Conveyances it is set down in the Habeendum to whole Usf the Lands are conveyed, and whatever Eftate a Man hath in the Usf, the same he has in the Possession at this Day. 1 Reg. 121. 2 Lev. cap. 25. The Stat. 27 H. 8. c. 10. enacts, That where any are or shall be entitled to Lands, to the Usf of any other, by reason of any Bargain and Sale, Feesment, Fine, Recovery, Contract, Agreement or Will, &c. he to whole Usf and Lands are subject, are to take the Usf, &c. 1 Inf. 300. But there are Usfs, that are not executed, by this Statute; as if Lands are are granted to others in Truf, that the Feesfoles shall take the Profits, and deliver them to the Feeholder and his Heirs; also Leaves for Years of Lands in Uf, (wherein the successors to the Leasehold have had their being before, are granted over in Uf and Truf) where the Leafe is forfeited only of his Term, and not forfeited of any Freehold, Uf, may be a Uf of Woods and Chatches Personal, which is properly a Chantry Truf, wherein the Uf and Poffeffion are divided; though in other Cases the Statute executes Agreement as the Chantry would have done before. Ward, 2 Rep. 256.
All Lands of Inheritance, Liberties, Franchizes, vizible or local, may be conveyed by Way of Uf. But Inheritance Personal, which have no Relation to Lands or local Hereditaments, cannot be conveyed by Way of Uf.
And some Questions having been made, out of what an Uf shall arise, it hath been held, That Uf shall be raised only out of a Feehold, that they cannot be raised out of a Chattel, nor out of an Uf, or a bare Right or Power, nor out of an intended Purpose, &c. More 509. 1 Lem. 148. 3 Salk. 356. In Uf there are many or Our in the Statute, 401. And there are four Things required to the Execution of a Uf within the Statute, &c. There must be a Perfon for Uf, or the King or a Corporation, an Alien, Uf, cannot be feized to the Uf of another. There is to be a Coffit or Uf in Being; for the Words of the Act are, Stood and be feized to the Uf of any Person or Persons: There must be a Uf in Eft, in Poffeffion, Remnant, or Reversion, and the Effe of the Feeholders, &c. out of which the Uf arise, is to be vended or transferred to Coffit or Uf; and if any of these fail, the Uf will not be executed. 3 Lem. 126. 2 Chit. 401. Ufis are in Eft, either in Poffeffion, Remnant, or Reversion; or in Contingency, which by Possibility may fall into Poffeffion, or in Reversion, &c. Contingent Ufis in 12 G. 4. may be created though they are not executed by the Statute, but remain at Common Law: But when they come in Eft, then the Statute executes them; and before that, they may be destroyed, discontinued, or suffended. 1 Rep. 135. A Uf is also expres, or implied, as when a Feehold is made of Land to A. B. and his Heirs, to the Use of C. D. and the Heirs of his Body, &c. Implied, where the Uf is not declared between the Parties, but is left to the Construction of the Law: And if a Man Ried of Lands makes a Feehold in Eft without any Consideration, and it is not declared to whole Uf, by Implication of Law it shall be to the Use of the Feoffor, &c. It hath been adjudged, that if by Feehold, or Lease and Release, A Man convey any Uncertain Effe that afo to another Person, there the Refidue of the Effe shall by Implication remain to the Uf of the Party having the Effe, and not to the whole Effe. And, the whole Effe may be conveyed to any Person, if the Party be continued to have the remaining Uf in him; indeed upon A Fine or Recovery Persons may have their particular Eftates in other Receipts, as barring upon Nonclaim, &c. 1 Rep. 212. 2 Ball. 781. 272. 3 Salk. 678.
3 Salk. 357. An Uf may be raised two Manner of Ways, &c. By Trannimation or death with the Poffeffion of the Effe, &c. Without Trannimation of the Effe, by keeping the Land in a Man’s own Hand, and making the Possession be to the Uf of another, who is to have the Uf of that which is to pass into Trannimation, are by Feehold, Fine, Recovery, &c. And those which arise without Trannimation, being by Bargain and Sale instated, and Covenant to land feized to Ufis.
1 Rep. 140. Covenant to land feized to Ufis are of three Sorts; a Covenant to feize feized, a Feehold, Fine, or Recovery to Ufis, and a Bargain and Sale feized to Ufis are no Covenant to land feized to Ufis, excepted, though by the two first it may; and there is a Difference between a Covenant to Ufis, and a Covenant to land feized, because the Feeholder depriveth with his whole Effe, but the Covenantor depriveth with no more than what is actually velted in the Coffit or Ufis. 2 Sid. 64.
129. In Bargains and Sales, and Covenants to land feized, some Consideration is necessary to make the Deeds operable to Ufis; the Consideration of Money in a Bargain and Sale, and natural Affection, Blood, Affinity, Marriage, &c. in the Covenant to land feized:
And they are to be a Money, or a Body in Feoffment, and not without any Consideration; but not to others. Plow. 301. Dyer 162. 3 Lem. 356. The Consideration, or a Reservation of 12 d. a Penny, or a Pepper Corn, are sufficient Considerations to raise an Uf. 2 Med. 251.
3 Sal. 387. If a Man covenants in Consideration of Marriage, or of a Sum of Money paid to him, that the Covenantor shall have such Lands; the same shall change the Use immediately, for these are good Conditions either to change or raise Ufis. Dyer 6. But a Perfon covenanteth to make an Effe to certain Persons to certain Ufis, in Consideration of Marriage; no Uf arises by such bare Covenant, unless the Effe be made accordingly: So where upon Marriage there is a Covenant to levy a Fine, except the Fine be levied; but if a Fine be levied, the Effe shall be made. 1 Lem. 356. 3 Cov. 81. 401. An Uf arises when declared by Effe executed, which needs no Consideration: A Fine it self without any Consideration, does raise Ufis, where a Marriage is intended; but in other Covenants, the Consideration of Marriage will not raise an Uf, if the Marriage take not Effect; because the Consideration must be executed before the Uf arise.
1 Lem. 138. A Consideration of Money given by one, may extend to all the Estates; but if it be of Blood, &c. it is singular, and will raise the Uf of that only to which it goeth: Though if I Covenant with B. in Consideration of the Marriage of my Son with his Daughter, to be feized to the Uf of a Stranger for Life, and after to my Son and his Wife in Tail, then the Use shall arise to the Stranger, to bear up the Remainder, which is not good without a particular Effe. Pless. 307.
Dyer 174. 1 Rep. 24. Yet if such Covenant be to stand feized to the Uf of any in Fee for Life, and after to C. a Stranger for the Term of Twenty Years, and after that to my Son in Tail; in this Case the Uf is limited to C. is void, and my Son after me. And if a Covenant be made to the Use of any in Fee for Life, and after that to a Stranger for the Term of Twenty Years, and after to my Son in Tail; in this Case the Uf is limited unto C. is void, and my Son after me. And in this Case the Land. 1 Rep. 155. A Covenant for natural Affection, to be seized to the Uf of himself for Life, and after his Death that the Land should descendent or remain main or descendent. Trench. 267. An Uf cannot be raised by any Covenant, Prevoi, or Bargain and Sale, upon a general Consideration, without special Aver-ment: And although he that hath the Fee-simple of Land, may make what Ufis he will of it in Fee, for Life, or Years; yet unless the Agent makes a Covenant in writing, no Uf is raised to R. 1 C. 400. 401. Ufis may be made to a Man and the Wife he shall marry, or to his heir, fecond, or third Wife, &c. And if Parties to a Deed declare, that one of them shall make a Feeffor, or levy a Fine to the Uf and Intent that one shall hold the Land for Life, and after his Death another in Tail, and after that a Third in Fee simple, &c. the Effe attaches according to the Ufis declared by the Deed. 1 Rep.

13. 121. A Devise may be to an Uf, and be so excuted: A Man makes a Feeffment to the Uf of his Will, he hath the Uf while the Tenor Time; and when the Feeffor by Will limits the Effe power to his Power, the Effe takes Effect by the Feeffment, and the Uf is directed by the Will. Law. 833. 6 Rep.

dition must first be performed; and a future Ufis may conveyeth to land feized after his Death to the Uf of his Kinsman and his Heirs, the Effe in the mean Time is in him; for it cannot pass out of him during his Life, and therefore in Cave of Covenant he hath such Estate. 1 Rep. 154. 2 Lev. 77. An Uff is constantly to be given, and therefore may be, to comply with the Intent of the Party: Intention is the Foundation of Uffs, but it ought to be out of the Words of the Dead, to be agreeable to Law, and collected and taken from the mise Deed. 1 Med. 98. Laws 700, 790. If the Meaning of the Party doth appear, that he intended to pass his Estate by Way of sailing an Uff, then the Words, Give, Grant, &c. shall secure as a Covenant to be void; but where it doth not appear, that he intended to pass it by way of Uff, but by Conveyance at Common Law, no Uff is raised. March 50. Lands being once sold and stated to Uff, the Party that makes the Uff may not create any farther Uffs: Where the Estate out of which an Uff is rais'd is gone, the Uff is gone likewise; and Uffs may be made void by Releas, or Power of Revocation. Dyer 186. 1 Inst. 377. Deeds of Gift of Goods, &c. made in Trust to the Use of the Grantor, shall be void. 3 H. 7. c. 4. And no Uff will prevent Power of a Woman after her Husband's Death. &c. See Covenant to be void.

Superstitious Uffs. By Statute, a Devise of Land or Goods to Superstitious Uffs, is where 'tis to find or maintain a Chaplain or Priest to pray for the Souls of the Dead, or Lamp in a Chapel, a Stipendiary Priest, &c. These, and such like, are declared to be Superstitious Uffs; and the Lands and Goods so devised are forfeited to the King. 1 Ed. 6. c. 14. But a Man devoted Lands to Trustees and their Heirs, to find a Priest, to pray for his Soul, so long as the Laws of the Land would permit; and if the Laws would not permit it, then to apply the Profits to the Poor, with Power to convert the Profits to either of the said Uffs; adjudged this was not a Devise to any Superstitious Uffs. 3 Nelf. Abr. 259. And where certain Profits arising out of Lands are given to Superstitious Uffs, the King shall have only so much of the yearly Profits, which were to be applied to the Superstitious Uffs; though when the Land itself is given by the Testator, declaring that the Profits, without finding a Priest, shall be expend'd for such Uffs, in this case the King shall have the Land itself. Bower 129. If a Sum certain is given to a Priest, and other Goods which depend upon the Superstitious Uffs, all is forfeited to the King; yet if Land, &c. is given to find an Obis or Anniversary, and for an other good Uff; and there is no Certainty how much shall be applied to the Superstitious Uffs, the Gift to the good Uff shall preserve the Whole from Forfeiture. 4 Rep. 104. 2 Roll. 205. It has been held, when the Goods were void, so that the King could not have it; that it was not so far void, as to refect to the Heir at Law; and therefore the King may apply it to Certainty. 1 Stat. 12 Hen. 8. under Westmarn and the 1 Co. 1 Tithe Parliament.

Usury (Usura) is Money given for the Use of Money; and is particularly defined to be the Gain of any Thing by Contract above the Principal, or that which was lent, exacted in Consideration of Loan, whereby, whether it be of Money or of any other Thing. 3 Inst. 151. Some make Usury to be the Profit exacted for a Loan made to a Peron in Want and Distress; but properly it consists in exacting an unreasonable Rate for Money, beyond what is allowed by Statute. The Letting Money out at Interest, or upon Usury, was against the Common Law; and in former Times, by one after his Death had been found to be a Usurer, all his Goods and Chattels were forfeited to the King, &c. And according to several ancient Statutes, all Usury is unlawful; nor at this Time neither the Common or Statute Law, absolutely prohibit Usury. 3 Inst. 151, 152. Though excess of Usury is liable to the forfeiture of treble Value of the Money, unless by Statute; and that Judge cannot be given upon the Statute, if it be found that a Peron took Money for Usufructure by corrupt Agreement, Judgment should be given against him at common law, which is a Fine and Impemision. 3 Salk. 391.

Reasonable Interest may be taken for the Use of Money at this Day: The Stat. 22 Hen. 8. c. 9 and the Statutes for Money lent at Interest, and the 2d Car. 2. c. 13, and the 12 Ann. c. 17, are in force. The 2d Car. 2. c. 13, lowered the Interest of the Money to 6l. per Cent. And the 12 Ann. c. 16, to 5 l. per Cent. But it is said, that the Statutes 15 Eliz. and 1 Ann. 1 allow not Usury, but punish for Usury; and the 2d Car. 2. is called the Statute against Excessive Usury. By the Stat. 12 Ann. c. 16. No Peron shall take directly or indirectly, for Loan of any Money, or any Thing, above the Value of 5 l. for the Forbearance of 100 l. for a Year, and so proportionably for a greater or less Sum; and all Bonds, Contracts, and Affurances made for Payment of any principal Sum to be lent on Usury, above the Rate of 5 l. per Cent. shall be void: And whosoeuer shall take, accept or receive by way of corrupt Bargain, Loan, &c., a greater Interest, shall forfeit treble the Value of the Money lent: and Receivers, Solicitors and Drivers of Bargains, are not to take above 5 l., for the Procurring the Loan of 100 l. a Year, on Pain of forfeiting 20 l. &c. It has been adjudged on this Statute, that a Centum for 6 l. per Cent. made before the Statute, is not within the Meaning of it; and therefore that it was valid and receivable, which is contrary to the Statute; and that a Centum for 6 l. per Cent. made before the Statute, and after the Statue comes and finds the Interest to 2 l. per Cent. if he continues the old Interest on that Bond, the Bond shall not be void as usurious: but it is said the Party shall be liable to forfeit treble Value. 1 Hawk. 246. 1 Nut. 69. The Receipt of higher Interest than is allowed by the Statute, by Virtue of an Agreement subsequent to the first Contract, doth not avoid an Affurance fairly made; and a Bond made to secure a full Debt, passed by Statute, and if ill more, shall not be avoided by a corrupt usurious Agreement between others, to which the Obligee was no ways privy: Nor shall Mistakes in drawing Writings make void a said Agreement. But if the original Contract be not usurious, nothing done afterwards can make it so: And a Counter-Bond to have one harmeless against a Bond made upon a corrupt Agreement, shall not be void by the Statutes. But if the original Agreement be corrupt between all the Parties, and within the Statute, no Colour will exempt it from the Danger of that Act. 1 Lev. 217. 3 Inst. 428. 4 Sum. 170. A Fine levied, or Judgment suffered as a Security for Money, in Pursuance of a usurious Contract, may be avoided by an Averment of the corrupt Agreement; as well as any common Specialty, or parcel Contract: And it is not material, whether the Payment of the Principal and the aforesaid premium be made, or by different Conveniences, for all Writings whatever, for the Strengthening such a Contract are void; also a Contract referring to the Lender a greater Advantage than was agreed, is usurious, if the Whole is referred by way of Interest, or in Part only under that Name, and in Part by way of Rent for a House, let at a Rate plainly exceeding the known Value; so where Part is taken before the End of the Time, that the Borrower hath not the Profit of the whole principal Money, &c. 1 Hawk. P. C. 248. 3 Nelf. 499. By Hulst Ch. Jul. ii. 42, a Peron of 100 l. who demands his Money, and A. acquaints him, that he hath not the Money ready, but is desirous to pay it if he can procure it to be lent by any other Peron, and if Jud. B. has an Occasion for his Money, contracts with C. That if he will lend him 100 l. he will give him 10 l. on which C. lends the Money, and the Debtor pays 10 l. is a good and lawful Contract, and not usurious between B. and C. Cart. 2. Rep. 372. It is not Interest in Law, if there be not a corrupt Agreement, for more than the principal, nor that he shall be paid in any other Way, and he is not punished, unless he receive some Part of the Money in Affirmance of the usurious Agreement. 3 Salk. 390. There can be no Usury, without a Loan; and the Court hath distinguished between a Bargain and a Loan. 1 Lev. 273. 37. If a Man lend another 100 l. for two Years, to pay the Loan 30 l. and if he pays the Principal at the Year's End, he shall not be paid nothing for Interest; this is not Usury, because the Party may pay it at the Year's End, and so discharge himself. 1 Lev. 409. 40. And it is the same where a Peron by special Agreement, is to pay double the Sum borrowed, &c., by way of Penalty, for Nonpayment of the principal Debt; the Penalty being in Lieu of Damages, and the Borrower might repay the Principal at the Time agreed, and avoid the Penalty. 2 Lev. 89. 2 Roll Abr. 801. A Man surrender a Copollony Easite to another upon Condition that if he pays 80 l. at a certain Day, then the Surrenderor to be void; and after it is agreed between them that the Money shall not be paid, but that the Surrenderor shall forfeit, &c.; In Consideration whereof, the Surrenderor promises to pay on the Surrenderor on a certain Day 60 l. or 6 l. per Annum from the said Day pro prste of Interets of the said 60 l. till that Sum is paid, or with interest of the said 60 l. in the Year, shall be liable to be Interest Demurrum, and not Lucr., and but limited as a Penalty for Nonpayment of the 60 l. as a Nomine pone, &c. 2 Roll. Rep. 469. 1 Damo. Abr. 44. On a Loan of 100 l. or other Sum of Money for a Year, the Lender may agree to take his Interest Half-Yearly, or Quarterly; or to receive the Profit of a Manor or Lands, &c., and he be no Usury, though such Profits are rendered every Day. 3 Lev. 36.

If a Grant of Rent, or Lease for 20 l. a Year of Land which is worth 100 l. per Annum be made for One hundred pounds, this is not a usurious Agreement, that this Grant or Lease shall be void, upon Payment of the Principal and Arrears, &c. 1 Lev. 249. But if two Men speak together, and one desires the other to lend him an hundred Pounds, and for the Loan of it, he will give more than legal Interest; and to evade the Statue, he grante to him 30 l. out of his Land, for ten Years, or makes a Lease for one hundred Years to him, and the Loeffet regrants it upon Condition that he shall pay 30 l. yearly for the ten Years; In this Case, it is Usury; and though the Lender have his own hundred Pounds again. 1 Lev. 27. See 1 Lev. 119. A Man granted a large Rent for Years, a small Sum of Money: The Statue of Uttery was pleaded; and it was adjudge'd, that if it had been laid to be upon a Loan of Money, it had been a plain Contradiction; though it otherwise, if it be a Contract for an Annuity, 4 Sep. 170, l. 170. If one hath a Rent-charge of 50 l. a Year, and another afeaks what he shall give for it, and they agree for 100 l. this is a plain Contrad for the Rent Charge, and no Uttery. 3 Nef. 510. The Grant of an Annuity for Lives, not only exceeding the Rate allowed for Interest, but also the Proportion for Contracts for a Kind, in Confideration of a certain Sum of Money, is not within the Statutes against Uttery; and of no Grant of an Annuity, on Condition, 6 Cr. Cas. 215. 2 Litt. 182. See 1 Sid. 45. If the Interest exceeds 5 l. per Cent. per Annum on a Bond, if possibly the Principal and Interest are in Hazard, upon a Contingency, or Casualty; or if there is a Hazard that one may have lost more than his Principal, as when a Bond is to pay Money upon the Return of a Ship from Sea, 6 Cr. 206, 508. 1 Cr. 27. 2 Litt. 8. Though where B. tends to D. three Hundred Pounds and more, and the Time is during the Life of E. for such a Time; if therefore D. pays to B. twenty Pounds in three Months, and at the End of six Months, the Principal Sum, with a further Premiuim, at the Rate of 6 l. per Bond a Month; or if before the Times mentioned E. dies, then the Bond to be void: This differing from the Hazard on a Butterxy Bond, was adjudged an infinite Contract. 2 Carlev 67, 68. 2 Cembr. 125. One hundred Pounds is less to have 20 l. at the Year's End, upon the Casualty; if the Casualty goes to the Interest only, and not the Principal, it is Uttery. The Difference in the Books is, that where the Principal and Interest are both in Danger of being lost, there the Contract for extraordinary Interest is not Uttery; but when the Principal is well secured, 'tis otherwise. 3 Salk. 391. A Peron secures the Interest and Principal, if it be at the Will of the Party who pays, it is Uttery. 3 Salk. 120. And a Lender accepting a voluntary Gravity from the Borrower, on Payment of Principal and Interest; or receiving the Interest before due, etc., without any co-rupt Agreement, shall not be within the Statutes against Uttery. 2 Cr. 367. 3 Cr. 501. Also if one gives an annuities Bond, and tenders the whole Money; yet if the Party will take the only legal Interest, he shall not forfeit the treble Value by Statue. 4 Lew. 43. In Action for Utter, the Statue against Utter must be pleaded, and a corrupt Agreement set forth: It is not sufficient to plead the Statue, and lay the Party's pleading 20 l. the Defendant took more than 5 l. per Cent. without setting forth a corrupt Agreement or Contrat. 5 Litt. 466. 2 Litt. 672. 3 Nef. 514. And in pleading an annuities Contract by way of Barr to an Utter, the whole Matter is to be set forth specially, because it lay within the Party's own Privicy; but in an Information on the Statue of Utter, it is not sufficient to set forth the corrupt Agreement generally, by Reason Matters of this Kind are supposed to be privily transfixed; and such Information may be brought by a Stranger. 2 Twel. 243. In Case of Utter, etc. an Obiror is admitted to aver against the Condition of a Bond, or against the Bond itself, for Necelc. 66, 67, 68. B. R. Utter, Is the Eighth Day following any Term Day, as the Usus of St. Michael, etc. And any Day between the Feast and the Oadies is said to be within the Usus: The Use of this is in the Return of Writs; as appears by the Stat. 51 H. 3.
is called by the Crier thrice; and if he do not appear, he becomes nonsuit; and the Defendant swears that he owes the Plaintiff nothing, and the Comportors give it upon Oath that they can prove it true, the Plaintiff is barred for ever; and for when a Person has waage by Law, it is as much as if a Verdict has passed against the Plaintiff: If the Plaintiff do not appear to hear the Defendant perform his Law, so that he is nonsuit; he is not barred, but may bring a new Action. 1 Jet. 155. 2 Litt. Abr. 674. In an Action of Debt on a By-Law, the Defendant waage Law; a Day being given on the Roll for him to come and make his Law, he was set on the Right Corner of the Bar, and the Defendant asked him if he was ready to waage his Law; who answering that he was, he laid his Hand on the Book, and then the Plaintiff was called: Then the Judges admonished him and his Comportors not to cross each other above to make Oath. That he did not owe the Money said of forms as the Plaintiff had declared; and then his Comportors, who were standing behind him, were called, and each of them proved his Right hand upon Oath that they believed what the Defendant had sworn to. 2 Jet. 171. 2 Sa1. 682. The Defendant cannot waage his Law in any Action, but personal Actions, where a Person has a Right to waage Law. Wages of Law has been denied on hearing the Case, and the Defendant was advised to plead liase. Er. Also this Wages of Law being, it is said, abated by the Iniquity of the Times, the Law was forced to find another Way to do justice, and that was by turning Actions of Debt on simple Contract, &c. into Action upon the Case by Indisoport. Affirm that, which he has defied the Defendant of his Lay Ganger. 2 Litt. 675, 656.

The Law makes a Forfeiture of Goods without, as a Punishment to the Owner of the Goods, for not bringing the Felon to Justice: But if the Thief had not the Goods of the Owner, when he ran off, there is no Forfeiture: If a Felon steals Goods and hides them, and afterwards files, these Goods are not forfeited; for where he leaves stolen Goods any where, with an Intent to fetch them at another Time, they are not forfeited; and in these Cases the Owner may take his Goods where he finds them, without forfeit, &c. 5 Geo. 1. cap. 109. 1. Wales. (Wallia) is Part of England on the West side formerly divided into three Provinces, North Wales, South Wales, and West Wales; and inhabited by the Offspring of the ancient Britains, chased thither by the Saxons, called in to aid them against the Picts and Scots. (Stat. Wallia, 1 ed. 1. England and Wales were originally but one Nation, and so they continued till the Time of the Roman Conquest; but when the Romans came, those Britains who would not submit to their Yoke, betook themselves to the Mountains of Wales, from whence they came again soon after the Romans were drove away by their Difficulties and Wars. After this came the Saxons, and gave them another Disburthen, and then the Kingdom was divided into an Hepertacy; and then also began the Welsh to be divided into nine Provinces, from the English: Yet it is observable, that the Welsh had Princes of their own, the King of England had Superiority over them, for to him they paid Homage. Two Justices are to sit ad hoc to hold a Sessions twice every Year, and determine Plans of the Crown, and Affairs, and all other Actions; and Justices of Peace shall be appointed as in England, &c. The 18 Edw. cap. 8. enacts, That the King, or his Lieutenant, may appoint two other Persons learned in the Laws, to be Judges in each of the Welsh Circuits, which had but one Judge before; or grant Commissions of Allocations, &c. Wassens, (From the Sax. Wesen, i.e. Examen, &c. &.c. &.c.) is one with what we call a Hundred; especially used in the North Counties beyond the River Trent. Bract. lib. 3. Lamb. The Words seem to be of Danish Original, and to be called fo for this Reason; when first this Kingdom, or Part thereof, was divided into Wapentakes, he was who the Chief of the Wapentake or Hundred, and whom we now call a High Constable, as soon as he entered upon his Office, appeared in the Field on a certain Day on Horseback with a Pike in his Hand, and all the chief Men of the Hundred met him there with their Lancers, and waved his Pike; which was a Sign that they were firmly united to each other, by the Teaching their Weapons. Howden. Fier. lib. 2. But Sir Thomas Smith says, That anciently Mullers were made of the Armour and Weapons of the several Habitants of every Wapentake; and from thence that could not find sufficient Pledges for their good Behaviour, their Weapons were taken away, and given to others; from whence he derives this Word. Warr (Bellow) A Fighting between two Kings Princes or Parties, in Vindication of their just Rights; also the State of War, or all the Time it lasts. By our Law, when the Courts of Justice are open, so that the King's Judges distribute Justice to all, and protect Men from Wrong and Violence, it is said to be a Time of Peace: But when by Invasion, Rebellion, &c. the Whole Country is in a State of War, then it is adjudged to be a Time of War: And this shall be tried by the Records and Judges, whether Justice at such a Time had her equal Course of Proceeding or not. For Time of War gives Privileges to them that are in War, and all others within the Kingdom. 1 Inf. 249.

In the Civil Wars of K. Char. 1. it was composed that there were not less than 200,000 foot and 50,000 Horse.
Horrible to Arms on both Sides; which was an extraordinary Effort, considering its composition of British sufficient to have shaken Europe, though it was otherwise luckily employed. And in ancient Times, when the Kings of Macedonia were to be fought with Soldiers in their Wars, a Knight or Squire that had Revenues, Farmers and Tenants, would covenant with the King by Indenture drawn up in his name, to furnish him with such a Number of Military Men: and those Men were to serve under him, whom they knew and honoured, and with whom they must live at their Return. 1. Stat. 71. This was an excellent Inducement; but we have had many Statutes which have alter'd this Method of recruiting the Army, by introducing the Lifting of Soldiers, and retaining them by Virtue of Money paid and advanced, &c. The Statute 25 E. 3. enabled, that none should be condemn'd to find Men of Arms: but by Torment of Land, or Grant in Parliament. Warranty being a Covenant real, binding to yield Lands in Recompence. 1. Inf. 365. 384. Warranty is the Inscription of Life, or a common Recovery, which is the Act of the Party. 1 Inf. 370. 3 Rep. 62. Though if the Estate the Warranty is annexed to be free, the Woman heirs by the Deed to Warranty, and hath Issue a Son and dies, and the Warranty defends to his Son and Heirs; for if no Deed with Warranty had been made, then the Right of the Lands should have defended to the Son as Heir to his Father, and he would have conveyed the Defect from Father to Son: This Warranty binds the Right of Fee-Simple: but not the Right of an Estate, unless the limited Warranty be with Issue in Fee Simple. Litt. 609, 703. 1 Inf. 350. Collateral Warranty is when the Party upon whom the Warranty defends, cannot convey the Title which he hath in the Land from him that made the Warranty, or swears that he is his Heir, etc. As if Tenant in Tail defeatis the Tail, or alienates the Land, and then dieth, leaving Issue, and the Uncles the Heirs declare to the Defendant no Issuu with Warranty, and dies without Issue; this is a collateral Warranty to the Issue in Tail, and bindeth his Right, without declaring it upon him, and he can't make a Title to the Insuit from his Uncle. Litt. 704- 1 Inf. 375, 376. Warranty by Defeasance, is where one that hath no Right to the Freehold of another, enters and makes it with Warranty, which shall not bind or bar the Person defeas'd, or the right Heir that ought to have the Land: And if where Tenant for Life, Remainder in Tail, leases for Years with Agreement with the Lease, that he shall make a Defeasance of the Land, and then he will release with Warranty, which is done accordingly; adjusted that this collateral Warranty annexing by Defeasance, shall not bind the Heir in Tail, upon whom it depended. Litt. 698. 1 Inf. 366, 367. Cro. Cos. 483. Accomp. Conv. 1 Vol. 56. He that makes a Warranty, may make it as large, or small as he pleases; as for himself and his Heirs, and what Heirs, etc. And if the Warranty be made for Life, or Tenancy, 'tis good, and shall bind for so long only. 1 Inf. 387. 1 And. 261, 305. But no Warranty can enlarge an Estate granted; for if the Leasor for Deed doth Release to his Lessee for Life, and warrant the Land to him and his Heirs, it shall not make his Estate greater. 1 Inf. 389. And where one binds him and his Heirs to Warranty; by this they are not bound to new new Titles, or any Right that consequent after Warranty made, but such as were in Fight. 1 Inf. 387. And if any Person doth there be, and grant to warrant the Land, but doth not say for how long: it shall be taken for so long as the Estate to which it shall be granted, and the Grantor grants to warrant Lands to another, and say not against what Persons; here it will be held a general Warranty against all Men. 1 Rep. 1. A Warranty may be annexed to Estates of Inheritance or Freehold, and that put only to Houses and Lands, but also Rent, Adowment, Connu, etc. which Issue out of Lands or Tenements. 1 Inf. 366, 389. And to every good Warranty in Deed, to make it binding: the Person that doth warrant must be a Person able; it is necessary that there be some Estate in which the Warranty is annexed, to support that which is annexed; by him who is Heir of the whole Blood by the Common Law, to him that made it, and not upon another; and that the Heir claim by the same Right as the Ancestor; that it take Effect in the Life-time of such Ancestor: and he be bound thereby; and the Estate of Freehold, which is to be barred, be put to a Right before, or at the Time of the Warranty, and that he to whom the Warranty defends, have idea but a Right to the Land. 1 Inf. 367, 370, 384, 388. 10 Rep. 96, 97. If one be a Successor only in Cafe of a Corporation, he shall not be as the Heir of his Natural Ancestor; and he that comes into Land merely by Act of Law, as the Lord by Easement, or he shall never take Advantage of a Warranty: but it is otherwise when the Est­ate arises by a Collateral Warranty, or a common Recovery, which is the Act of the Party. 1 Inf. 370. 3 Rep. 62. Though if the Estate the Warranty is annexed to be free, the Woman heirs by the Deed to Warranty, and hath Issue a Son and dies, and the Warranty defends to his Son and Heirs; for if no Deed with Warranty had been made, then the Right of the Lands should have defended to the Son as Heir to his Father, and he would have conveyed the Defect from Father to Son: This Warranty binds the Right of Fee-Simple: but not the Right of an Estate, unless the limited Warranty be with Issue in Fee Simple. Delt. 48. 2 Lib. 681. This Warr. may be found forth before a Man is impeached in any Action, but the Warr. doth suppose that he is impeached: and if the Defendant appear and say, that he is not impeached, by that Plea he confest the Warr. forth, and the Party shall recover in Value of the Lands against the Voechee, which he had at the Time of the Purchase of the Purchaser of the Purchaser; and the Jury shall, by may be good Policy to bring it, against him, before he is sued, to bind the Lands as he had at that Place; for if he have auled his Lands before the Voechee, he shall recover in Value. Rep. 259. It is certain in Canons law, a Man could not devise by Will, the Lands which he had by Defeunt, though he might those which he had by Purchase; indeed he might devise Lands which he held for a Term of Years, because such an Effeate is of little Regard in the Law: but not Lands of which he had the Fee-simpie in Fee-doble or Reversion: Yet in certain Borough Tracts, the Inhabitants might devise the Houses and Lands, which they had by Defeunt; and this was a Privilege which they claimed by the Custum of those Places. 3 Nef. Where a Ship is perished on the Sea, and no Man escapes alive out of it, this is called Wreck: And the Goods in the Ship being brought to Land by the Waves, belong to the King by his Prerogative, or to the Lord of the Manor. 5 Rep. 106. By the Common Law, all Goods belonging to the King, and therefore they are not chargeable with any Culloms, and for that Goods coming into the Kingdom by Wreck, are not imported by any Body, but cast ashore by the Wind and Waves: But it was usual to feile Wrecks to the King's Use, only when no Owner could be found; and that Case, the Property being in no Man, it of Consequent, belongs to the King, as Lord of the narrow Sea, &c. The Year and Day shall be accounted from the Conquestry; and if the Owner of the Goods dies within the Year, his Executors or Administrators may make Proof: And when the Goods are Bona persequata, the Sheriff may sell them within the Year; so as he dispenses of them to the best Advantage, and accounts for them, Stat. 2 Inf. 1675. 5 Rep. 106. writ. (Writu, in Sax. Writing, i. e. Scribere) In general is the King's Process, in Writing under Seal, issuing out of some Court to the Sheriff, or other Person, and commanding something to be done touching a Suit or Action, or giving Commiision to have hit done. 1 Ed. 2. 54. A Writ is said to be a formal Letter of the King, in Parchment sealed with a Seal, directed to some Judge, Officer, or Kinsman, &c. at the Suit or Plaintiff of a Subject, requiring to have a Thing done, for the Cause briefly expressed, which is to be inclosed in the proper Court according to Law. Old Nor. Br. 4. Slep. Abr. 245. Of Writs there are divers Kinds, in many respects; some Writs are grounded on Rights of Action, and some in Nature of Commitments; some Mandatory and Extraditall, and others Remittal, and some are Patent or open, and some Chief or sealed up; some Writs issue at the Suit of Parties; some are of Office, some Ordinary, and others of Privilege; and some Writs are directed to the Sheriff, and in Special Cases to the Jury, Par. 1. 1 Ed. 594. 2 Ed. 59. 1 Rep. 20.

The Writs in Civil Actions are either Original or Judicial: Original Writs are issued in the Court of Chancery, for the Appraisement of a Defendant, and are granted before the Suit is begun, to begin the same; and Judicial Writs issue out of the Court where the Original is return'd, after the Suit is begun: The Original is a Bear of the Name of the King: but Judicial Writs bear Telle in the Name of the Chief Justice: And it is obferv'd, that a Writ without a Telle is not good, for the Time may be material when it is return'd, and it is prov'd by the Telle; and if it be out of the Common Law Courts, it must bear, Date some Day in Term, (not being Sunday) but in Chancellor Writs may be issued in Vacation as well as Term Time, as that Court is always open; also there are to be fifteen Days between the Telle and Return of all Writs, excepted out of the Seven Days, and the Statute Delays in Actions by Return of fifteen Days between the Telle and Return of Writs in Personal Actions, and Ejectments, are remitted. F. N. B. 51. 147. 2 Ed. 40. Law. 335. 15. 144. 3. 207. Writs in Actions are likewise Rest concerning the Possession of Lands, called Writ of Entry, or of Right of Recovery, &c. by a Person who was the Possessor of Goods, Chattels, and Personal Injuries; and Mis'd, for the Recovery of the Thing, and Damages. 2 39. And Writs may be Peffellry, of a Man's own Possession; or pursuant, of the herein and Possession of his Ancestor: And there are certain Writs of Prevention or Anticipation; and of Restitution, &c. But the most common Writs in daily Use, are in Debt, Detinue, Trespas, Action upon the Cafe, Accomps, and Covenant, &c. which with others must be rightly directed, or they will be bought. F. N. B. Style 42. 257. And in all Writs, Cases is to be taken, that they are laid and formal'd according to the Cause or Ground of them, and so purposed in the Process thereof: That the Writ in some Cases may be general; and the Writ in some Cases may be specific. 2 Ed. 2. 26. After the Action is fixed on, for a Wrong done, or Right detained, such a Writ must be taken out as is suitable to the Action; for the Writ is different from the Action; though they are often confounded. The Writ is to be grounded upon the Action, and is the Means to bring the Plaintiff to his Right. 24 Ed. 255. The King's Writs cannot be denied to the Subject: and it is regularly true that no Man shall be punished for doing Writs in the King's Courts, be it of Right or Wrong: But Writs may be abused in several Cases; and the Writs Judicial, Fereneous, may be amended; Original Writs are not amendable, if the Error be by Default of the Party who gave Instructions; yet a new Original may be taken out, where it is not amendable. 2 716. Writs may be removed every Year, unless a Writ be amended; but in B. R. if the Plaintiff be not renewed in five Terms, a new Writ is to be taken out; and the Plaintiff may not renew the old one. The Sheriff's Bulllets cannot execute a Writ directed to the Sheriff, without his Warrant; and if in a Writ several Persons are included, (for four Defendants may be in one Writ) there must be several Warrant from the Sheriff to execute the same. Comp. Action. All Writs are to be return'd and filed in Due Time, to avoid Costs and penalties; and it is very unsafe to keep Writs undecided, because the Filing them is the Warranty for the Proceedings: And where a Writ is issued out directed to the Sheriff, when it comes to his Hands, though the Plaintiff requires the Writ back again, the Sheriff must return and file it in the Court where returnable; unless the Plaintiff procure a Writ of Supersedeas, 2 716. 3. 444. where the Sheriff, for non-executing a Writ, or for doing it oppressively by Force,-extort Money thereon, or not doing it effectually, through any corrupt Practice. Vide 8 Rep. 66. The Court of B. R. cannot give Judgment or Execution before the Writ is return'd, and has deferred to quash it, because the Defendant was not present in Court. 1 Lord Rym. 618. 620. See Attr. Executors. &c. of Writ of Affidavit, Is a Writ issuing out of the Exchequer, to authorize any Person to take a Confin-tile, or other public Officer, to seize Goods or Merchandise, without the permission of the Warrant, is punishable with imprisonment and fine, and there is a Writ of this Name issued out of the Chancery, to give Possession of Goods. Stat. 14 Car. 2. cap. 1.

Writ of Jeopardy, or Damages, is a Writ which issues out of the Sheriff upon a Judgment by Default, in Action of the Café, Covenant, Trespass, etc., commanding him to summon a Jury to inquire into what Damages the Plaintiff has sustained, and when this is returned with the Inquisition, the Rule for Judgment is given upon it; and if no damage be found, the contrary, judgment is ipso facto entered. 2 Litt. Abr. 731. This Writ lies on a Nihil dicat, Non sum informatus, or a Demurrer; but not upon a Verdict, and it is executed before the Sheriff, or his Deputy, at the Time of which both Parties, have the Liberty of being heard before the Sheriff, by their Counsel or Attorney, and Evidence may be given on both Sides: It is the Duty of the Jury not to inquire into what Damages have been sustained by the Plaintiff, and this cannot be without Evidence given upon it; and if where an Indebtedness, Affranchi is brought for 100 l. for Goods sold, and the Defendant less than this goes by Default if the Plaintiff at the Executing it, gives no Evidence to the Jury of any Goods, sold or delivered to the Defendant, or that the Goods sold or delivered in this Case, the Jury must find some Damages, because the Defendant hath confessed the Affranchi, and admitted that there is Damage; but there being no Evincing they ought to find only a Penny, or some such small Matter. 2 Litt. Abr. 731, 732.

If a Writ of Inquiry be executed without giving due Notice thereof to the Defendant, it shall be quashed. 2 Litt. 731. In an Action of Covenant, Judgment was given for the Plaintiff in the Common Pleas by Default, and a Writ of Inquiry of Damages executed, and final Judgment for the Plaintiff. And on a Writ of Error brought in by B. R. amongst other Exceptions, one was, that no Day was given on the Writ of Inquiry, and therefore it might be a Discontinuance; but the Court ruled, that they never give a Day in C. B. on this Writ, nor is it necessary, because nothing is done but to ascertain the Damages. 1 Ld. Raym. 588.

A Writ of Inquiry was ordered to be executed before the Lord Chief Justice, the Action being laid for very large Damages: And such Writ hath been set aside where the Jury gave too little Damages; and a new Writ of Inquiry ordered by Rule of Court, on Payment of Costs, etc., 2 Litt. Abr. 217, 240. A Judgment shall not be set aside, after a Writ of Inquiry executed. 3 Aik.
